CAST ON THE WORLD:

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER VI.

THE DISCOVERY OF THE BANK ROBBERY—PURSUIT OF THE BURGLARS—THE LONDON DETECTIVE.

About half past nine o'clock on Monday morning, the 15th of July, the tellers had assembled in the inner room of the bank, and were chatting gaily with each other as he might give them money from the safes to cover their transactions for the day.

Profoundly ignorant of the scene that had occurred in that room before dawn on the previous morning, they talked with much animation of their country trips on Saturday afternoon—some of them, in particular, descanting on the pleasant journey he had taken on horseback to Dumbarton, where he stopped overnight, went to church on Sunday, and rode back to Glasgow in the cool of the evening.

In the midst of the gentleman's graphic description the cashier entered—a smart, active, middle aged man with a bald head and a bland, smiling face; and most pleasant and agreeable was the greeting with which he met his co-officials.

Fearful, however, was the change which passed over his countenance when he had opened the large safe, and mechanically, stretched out his hand to lift the cash.

'My God!' he suddenly ejaculated, starting the others into intense silence, and attracting all eyes towards him as he stood with blanched face and staring eyes gazing into the safe.

'What's the matter?' cried more than one. But they required no verbal answer, for the empty safe was revelation enough, instantly the group was congregated before it in dumb consternation, gazing on the empty space where the piles of notes and specie ought to have been.

With a loud cry the cashier rushed to the other safe and flung wide its iron doors.

'Empty too!'

He gave a deep groan, and opened the third safe with the same precipitancy. Within it stood the iron box which had come on Saturday from Edinburgh. It was wrenched open, and its contents abstracted.

'Gone!'—roared the cashier.

'A robbery!' exclaimed one, in a tone of horror.

'A clean sweep, too!' cried another.

'Twenty Thousand Pounds!' groaned the cashier.

For nearly a quarter of an hour the Bank officials were so paralysed that they could only stare at each other, and give vent to amazed and horrified ejaculations. The discovery stunned them; but presently they awoke to the necessity of action. A burglary must have been committed, and yet no marks of violence were visible any where but on the iron box. Not a lock had been broken, or even forced, and this was what so completely amazed and bewildered them.

The fact was, however, beyond dispute. The Bank had been entered with keys which fitted the locks, the safes had been opened in a similar manner, and it was useless to waste time in conjecturing how this could possibly have been effected. Action—decisive and instant action—was necessary. What required to be done was to discover the robbers and recover the money.

But what a dreadfully hopeless task this seemed! They had no clue—not the slightest. Beyond the violence done to the iron box, no appearance of burglary had been left. How, then, should they find the author or authors of so akilful and complete a robbery?

In a few hours the news was all over Glasgow, accompanied, of course, with many rumors and exaggerations. The currency given to the astounding deed produced a sensation, but for the Bank people something more and better—it brought them information.

First came to the Bank a man in a workman's garb, who stated that, at a very early hour on Sabbath morning, he had been looking from the window of his sleeping apartment, and saw two men seated at the foot of a high wall at the corner of Stirling's road, counting the contents of several bundles; that after he had watched them a while another man joined them; that thereafter the bundles were carefully tied up, and the three men went away together in the direction of the High street.

Scarcely had the tradesman given this information when another man was ushered to the Bank parlor, who was able to throw a little more light on the matter. The new comer was the guard of the Ayr coach, and he stated that between four and five o'clock in the morning he had met three men carrying bundles and portmanteaus, who asked him where they could get a coach to take them to Edinburgh. As he had taken them to Leith's coach-hiring premises in George street, and he understood that they had there obtained what they desired.

Forthwith the cashier and another proceeded to the coach-yard of Alexander Leith, and asked that personage if he had supplied a chaise to the three men for Edinburgh on the previous morning.

'Yes, I did,' replied Leith; 'and he added, pointing to the entrance, 'there is the very chaise coming into the yard now. It has just returned.'

The postboy who had driven the chaise was eagerly summoned, and questioned as to where he had taken his fare.

'I took 'em right into the middle of Princess street,' replied the lad. 'When we had got to the end of Charlotte street, or thereabouts, the three gents stopped me all of a sudden, and told me they didn't want to go any further. They got out of the chaise in a twinkling, held their bundles in their hands, paid me handsome, and cut away up the next street, and that was the last I saw of them.'

They were clearly now on the track of the robbers. Without waiting a moment, Mr. Walkinshaw, a writer in Glasgow, and Mr. Likely, the cashier, ordered a chaise and set off for Edinburgh, prepared to follow the robbers wherever they might find them to have gone. They had obtained a particular and minute description of the three men, for all who had seen them agreed in the account of their appearance, and they were sure they would have no difficulty in tracing them by that. In Edinburgh the scent was lost for a time and several hours were spent in regaining it. At length they discovered that the three men of whom they were in ques had dined in a small public-house in Rosebreet and shortly after had taken their departure in a chaise for London.

With promptest energy Walkinshaw and Likely procured fresh horses, and set off in pursuit. At every halting-place where horses were changed they got news of their fugitives, and found that in every instance they had changed large bank notes.

At Morpeth they were told that the men whom they followed had put four horses into their vehicle. The pursuers did the same, and on they went tracing them from stage to stage—the description never varying, the information always the same.

In due time they reached Wellwyn, and ed the landlord and a waiter standing on the threshold, looking at them and at each other with evident excitement.

In the passage, and before they had been shown into a room, the cashier began to put the usual questions.

The landlord flung up his arms with an eager gesture, and, turning to the waiter, exclaimed, 'Goodness gracious, Henry, you were right, sure enough!'

'I was sure of it,' returned the young man with a significant nod.

'Beg pardon, gentlemen,' added the landlord, as he ushered them into the parlor. 'We half expected you.'

'Expected us!' echoed the travellers.

'Expected a chaise-and-four, at any rate. Didn't we, Henry?'

'Of course we did,' answered the waiter, 'for they travelled in a chaise-and-four, and no sooner were they gone than I told master to have post-horses ready, as we should see another chaise-and-four after them.'

'Ah, you suspected them!' cried Walkinshaw.

'Henry did, from what he saw,' replied the innkeeper.

'What did you see?' asked the cashier eagerly.

'Aye, tell the gentlemen what you saw,' exclaimed the innkeeper, stroking his chin complacently.

'Well,' replied the waiter, 'first and foremost, I thought it queer to see such as them travelling so fast, with a chaise-and-four, for they hadn't the look of gents who could order that style. Then, when I went into the room—this same room—after they had their dinner, to tell them that their horses were put to, I saw the table—that same table gentlemen—covered with banknotes, which they were counting, and the tall, stout man—the pock-marked one, with a red face and the big black eyes—was writing figures down on a piece of paper. I caught a word or two of what they said, and suspected they had been doing a robbery. A packed portmanteau stood on the floor, and the short man told me to bring a hammer and nails, to fix an address on it. When I brought them I wanted to nail on the address, but he took the hammer and did it himself. Then he handed me the portmanteau and told me to send it on with the Stamford coach. After that they gathered up the notes, tied them into a parcel and drove away.'

'I sent it on the coach, sir.'

'What address was on it?'

'Can't say, sir. Don't notice that.'

'Oh, that is most unfortunate. Would you know these men again if you saw them?'

'I should know them anywhere, sir—among hundreds, sir.'

'Then I hope you have no objections to go with us to London, to identify them if we can trace them out. You will be well paid for your trouble.'

To this proposal the waiter had no objections whatever, and neither did his master. So having given his name as Henry Connington, he made ready to accompany them on their journey.

Arrived in London they proceeded direct to Bow-street, and there gave all the particulars of the robbery, and the information they had received on the journey. In the room in which they made their statement there were two men only—namely, the official who formally received it, and a middle aged quiet looking man who sat by himself near the window, and seemed to be paying little heed to the interview.

When Walkinshaw's story was told the Inspector looked towards this silent man and observed—

'Vickery, you have heard all these particulars?'

The man nodded.

'And noted them in your mind?'

'I have,' was the answer.

'Then you will take charge of the business. You see how important it is. Do you recognize the description as applicable to any of your London acquaintances?'

'I'd rather not say anything just yet. The first thing is to get the address of the parcel that was sent by the coach.'

'Exactly; that will give you a clue at once. Gentlemen, this is Mr. Vickery, one of the cleverest detectives in the force. The matter is now under his charge, and I leave you and he together, to take such measures as he thinks fit. He will find the thieves for you if any one can.'

So saying, the speaker vanished by a side door, and they were left alone with the detective, who approached them with an air of quiet assurance. He was a man rather under than above the middle size, firmly made, though not stout; but he had a remarkably piercing eye—an eye that, when he chose to use it, seemed to look right through one. He had, however, the art of veiling it when he pleased, and when he did so a gentler face was not to be met on London streets.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

From the steady, firm and regular beat of the Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action of that organ, demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY 2.

The West Hastings Election Case.

Whilst ever [illegible] the corrupt practices [illegible] ready to gloss over and to offer excuses for their transgressions of the law, the Globe does not extend any charity towards its opponents when circumstances afford an opportunity of assailing them. According to the Grit organ, "Reformers," when caught in acts of the most corrupt character, such as in the London, Lincoln, Chambly, Jacques Cartier and other famous, or rather infamous cases, are but partly to blame. They have either—poor innocents!—been compelled to "fight the devil with fire," or their little malfeasance has been due to "oyer-zeal," or some other flimsy excuse is offered for their departure from the course which the law has laid down for them. But the same charitable mantle is not thrown over the offences of the hated "Tories." They are said to be naturally corrupt, and their disregard of the law is attributed to "inward cussedness," born of adhesion to the demoralizing and corrupting influences of Toryism. This is the invariable practice of our contemporary, and as it has not had many opportunities to exhibit this canting style of late, it makes the most of the developments in the West Hastings election case, of which it says, in an article dealing with the South Wentworth and West Hastings cases:

"Very different from Mr. Carpenter's position is that occupied by Mr. Robertson, the unseated Conservative member for West Hastings. Bribery, corruption, and personation were all resorted to by his personal friends and electioneering agents, and this to such an extent that a special report to the Speaker has been deemed necessary by the judges. It is impossible to believe for one moment that the candidate himself was not cognizant of what was going on all around him. Under the circum stances he must have known that money was spent in the purchase of votes, and that corrupt treating was resorted to for the purpose of improving his chances of election."

A more offensive piece of pharisaical cant or a more unworthy and unjustifiable attack on a highly esteemed gentleman than is contained in the above, we have seldom read except in the columns of the Globe. To believe that Mr. Robertson, as it is boldly asserted by that journal, knew of the corrupt practices which some two or three of his supporters saw fit to indulge in, requires the disbelief of the evidence not only of Mr. Robertson himself, but of every witness examined on the point. The learned Judges who tried the case did not, with all their skill in sifting and weighing evidence, even intimate that they had a suspicion of the wholesale perjury which the Globe now charges, with the object of making political capital for its party.

Should opposition be offered to Mr. Robertson's re-election, or should his opponent in the election of last June desire to again measure strength with him, we have no doubt that the people of the constituency will truly brand the assertions of the Globe by returning Mr. Robertson with as handsome if not a handsomer majority than they did last year.

FAMINE IN PERSIA.—A telegram from Oomiah, Persia, reports that the famine in all that region is increasing daily. Unless strenuous efforts are made to send help from England and America, a great number of the population must perish. There are only two months' supply of food to sustainthe people for the next seven months.

INCREASED SUFFERING IN IRELAND.—The latest news from the stricken districts in Ireland shows that the distress is very general, and is increasing, and frightful suffering is anticipated during the winter. The Society St. Vincent de Paul in France have resolved to have a special collection in its conferences to relieve the distress in Ireland.

THE TAY BRIDGE.—A cable despatch says: "The North British Railway Company have decided at the next meeting of the board that immediate steps shall be taken to re-build the Tay bridge. The wrecked train is rapidly disintegrating, and fragments of cars and pieces of apparel and luggage of passengers are rising to the surface. Numerous additional bodies have been recovered, and are in the morgue waiting recognition by their friends. In several cases recognition has already taken place, and the scenes in connection with them were very affecting.

[illegible]ING FROM CABUL.—A Cabul despatch says [illegible] bul, [illegible] Mahomedans are abandoning Cabul [illegible] ed upon [illegible] some retribution will be visited on the enemy [illegible], as they all sympathise with Cabul, report [illegible] the Hindoos, who remain in from the 15th De[illegible] reign of terror existed [illegible] ber until the city was abandoned by the re[illegible]. The total loss of the enemy in the vicin[illegible] of Cabul is placed at 2,000. The snow [illegible] fast melting.

Visit of the Dominion Ministers.

THE TRIP TO HASTINGS.

The special train which took Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. M. Bowell and party to Hastings arrived at Campbellford about 11:30 on Tuesday evening. Accompanying these gentlemen were Senator Read, Jos. Keeler, M. P., Alderman Robertson, J. W. Johnson, and others. At the station the distinguished guests were received by some of the leading citizens and escorted to the Windsor House, where it is hardly necessary to say, they were comfortably provided for. Before leaving for Hastings the following morning a brief visit was paid to the Trent Woollen Mill Factory, and all were shown through the building by the Manager, Mr. Senior. The mill is at present employing forty-two hands, and preparations are being made to put in additional machinery and increase the staff of employees. It is worthy of record in this connection to state that all the machinery in use at this mill is of Canadian make, having been manufactured in Galt. After a few minutes spent in admiring the magnificent water power at Campbellford, the party proceeded to Hastings. On the journey up, Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. M. Bowell were busy examining maps and surveys of the proposed Trent Valley Canal, which were exhibited by [illegible] member for Northumberland East, who has for a number of years made this and the Murray Canal his pet projects. At Hastings the party were received by the Messrs. Fowlds and other leading residents, and about half an hour was spent in inspecting the locks and water power and other points of interest. Returning, the special reached Belleville about one o'clock.

THE VISIT TO TRENTON AND THE CARRYING PLACE.

After dinner, which had been provided at the Dafoe House, the Ministers proceeded to Trenton and the Carrying Place by special train to inspect the proposed site of the Murray Canal. They were accompanied by Senator Read, J. Keeler, M. P., Mayor Robertson, John White M. P., Aldermen Robertson and Jellett, and Messrs. W. R. Barber, J. W. Johnson and C. Wilkins. The run to Trenton was made in twenty minutes. On the platform of the Station were some forty or fifty of the leading inhabitants of Trenton and vicinity, and as soon as the train reached the Station the Firemen's Brass Band struck up a lively air, and the deputation boarded the train and were introduced to Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. M. Bowell. Amongst the deputation were Messrs. Chas. Francis, Reeve of Trenton; Hugh McQuoid, Reeve of Murray; Thos. Webb, Reeve of Brighton; D. R. Murphy, Wm. Jeffs, Rev. W. Bleasdell, W. J. Gill, Dr. H. W. Day, S. S. Bonter, J. D. Macaulay, D. Armour, T. McCabe, J. N. Lee, L. U. C. Titus, W. Gilbert, W. Webb, ex-M.P.P., J. Eyre, L. A. Purdy, and many others whose names we did not learn. After a short delay another coach was procured and the party proceeded to the Carrying Place via the Prince Edward County Railway, the road having been kindly placed at their disposal by Mr. Haney, the Manager. The first stop was made at Dead Creek, one of the points which have been surveyed for the proposed Murray Canal. The distance between the Lake and the Bay by this route would be about eleven miles, and would lead into Presqu'Isle Harbor. After a brief examination of this locality, which by the way was made under some difficulty, a severe snow storm prevailing at the time, the train proceeded on to Young's Point, which by the survey leads into Weller's Bay, and is the shortest route laid down, being from water to water only about a mile and a half. The third route is by what is called Mud Creek, a distance of about four miles. Of course the inspection was necessarily hurried and was not of that thorough character that was desired, but the hon. Minister of Railways and Canals stated that during next summer he would make another visit to the locality.

Returning to Trenton, the party proceeded to Purdy's Hall, where an address was presented to Sir Charles Tupper by Mr. Francis, Reeve of Trenton. On the platform were a number of the leading residents and the body of the hall was well filled with an intelligent audience. The following is the address:

TO THE HON. SIR CHARLES TUPPER, MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS.

We the undersigned inhabitants of Trenton and vicinity welcome you to Trenton, and thank you for the deep interest you take in visiting a portion of the routes of the Trent Valley and Murray Canals in our immediate vicinity. The Trent Valley Canal scheme is an old one, and some fifty years ago received the approval of the then Government and country, and a large sum of money was appropriated for its construction. The work was commenced, and a large sum expended in building locks, dams, etc., on the Trent River. The troubles of 1837 in this country unhappily put a stop to the progress of this work, and when the troubles subsided public attention set in strongly in favor of the improvement of the River St. Lawrence, from which time the Trent Valley Canal works have been suspended. The scheme is very dear to our hearts, believing as we do that the building of this canal will be not only of much benefit to the locality through which it may pass, but also to the commerce of the Dominion generally. Nature seems to have destined that a large portion of the great grain and other products of the great North West should find its way to the seaboard via the waters of the river Trent. And when we think of the great boon this Canal would be to the trade and commerce of this Dominion, the comparatively small sum required to complete so important a work, the great necessity for the work, and the lively interest you and your colleagues take in every project calculated to benefit and bless the people, we have great hope that the Government of which you are a distinguished member, will not only consider the desirability of this great work, but at no distant day undertake its construction.

The Murray Canal, as it is called, is much desired, as its construction will at once render the Bay of Quinte one great Harbor of Refuge, thereby lessening in a great degree the record of wrecks and consequent destruction of life which unfortunately occur every fall on the northern coast of Lake Ontario. So far back as 1796, a grant of some 6,000 acres of land was made for its construction, which grant was afterwards repeatedly acknowledged and confirmed. These lands have been sold by the Government, and it is confidently believed that the sum realized with interest since accrued will now suffice to complete this desirable work. While the construction of a canal connecting the waters of Lake Ontario with those of the Bay of Quinte would in addition to the important commercial advantages bestowed to the trade and navigation of the country generally, it would afford important facilities for the safe transport of men and munitions in time of war. The construction of this latter Canal we hope to see at no distant day.

Again thanking you for your visit to Trenton and vicinity, we sincerely wish you a safe return to Ottawa, and that you may be spared many years of health and usefulness to the Dominion of Canada.

We also extend a hearty welcome to the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, for accompanying Sir Charles Tupper on his visit to Trenton and vicinity, and the great interest he has always manifested in these projected works, as well as every other work calculated to benefit the country.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER replied in a most effective speech, but owing to the cold atmosphere of the hall it was impossible for our representative to take notes. The hon. gentleman dealt at considerable length with the proposed Trent Valley Canal, which, as the various arteries and channels of communication would soon become choked by the rapid development of the great North-West, would become a public necessity. He paid a high tribute to the Minister of Customs, who was one of the ablest and hardest worked members of the Cabinet. Referring to the Murray Canal, he was only astonished that it had not been constructed long ago, and hoped that at no distant day the Finance Minister would see [illegible] to make the necessary appropriation for the commencement of the work. He referred at some length to the general policy of the Government, and closed a most brilliant speech of about three quarters of an hour in length amidst deafening cheers.

HON. M. BOWELL on being called upon was received with loud cheers. He had been very much gratified with having been the means of bringing his hon. colleagues to this section of the country, and who had an opportunity of witnessing for themselves the vast mineral resources within the bounds of his own constituency, of inspecting the public works at Hastings, and examining the proposed site of the Murray Canal, and he hoped and believed with his hon. colleague the Minister of Railways and Canals, that the Government would shortly be in a position to make an appropriation to commence the construction of the Murray Canal. He referred to the practice adopted by Sir Leonard Tilley and other members of the Government in visiting various portions of the country, examining its industries, familiarizing themselves by personal observation with the wants of the country, and contrasted it with the wretched do-nothing policy of the late Government. At some length he dealt with the commercial policy of the Government, and showed how successful it had been, occupying about half an hour in a most telling and effective speech, and sat down amidst hearty applause.

Speeches were also delivered by John White, M. P., Alex. Robertson, Esq., J. Keeler, M. P., J. Eyre, Esq., and others, and the meeting broke up about six o'clock, after giving three cheers for the Dominion Ministers and a vote of thanks to the Chairman, and cheers for the Queen.

The special reached Belleville on the return trip about 8 o'clock, Sir Chas. Tupper remained at Trenton during the evening, and went to Ottawa by the midnight train.

Supper had been prepared by D. R. Murphy Esq., to which invitations had been extended to the Ministers as well as the Belleville deputation, but as Hon. M. Bowell and the party from Belleville were obliged to leave by the special train, they reluctantly declined. Sir Charles Tupper, however, remained, and with the members of the Reception Committee and representatives of the local press were hospitably entertained at the residence of Mr. Murphy. Sir Charles Tupper was escorted to the midnight train by the members of the Reception Committee.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 2.—Richard Battle, negro, on Wednesday evening met his wife, from whom he had separated, and demanded that she return with him. On her refusal, he placed the muzzle of a shot gun to her mouth, blowing off the whole top of her head. Battle escaped.

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—The Herald's Augusta special says the state house is thoroughly guarded and the utmost vigilance prevails, [illegible] rounded [illegible] military organization has been formed composed of ex-soldiers.

The Sun's Augusta special says the situation last night was less warlike than before for many days.

PANAMA, Jan. 2.—De Lesseps was met at Matachin yesterday by a delegation, and all along the road from Aspinwall to Panama he was received at the stations with the greatest enthusiasm. The Governor of the State of Panama proclaimed a three days' holiday on the occasion. Wild excitement prevails. There will be a bull fight, a grand parade of the troops, with a banquet. DeLesseps says he has made arrangements for the complete verification of the surveys, which will require about 6 months. The work of constructing the canal will then begin. The verification of the surveys has been undertaken by M. Dircks, and the work was inaugurated yesterday afternoon at the mouth of the Rio Grande near Panama, by Dircks and De Lesseps. De Lesseps adheres to his plan of the canal. He says, It is the only practicable plan, and I will carry it through. He says he is quite sure of the money necessary to complete the work.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—460 failures were reported in this city for 1879 with total liabilities of $16,000,000, against 917 failures in 1878 with $64,000,000 liabillties, and 847 failures with $51,000,000 liabilities in 1877.

The dry goods store of Manassah Goldman, Canal Street, was entered by burglars early yesterday morning, and nearly $7,000 worth of silks stolen. Entrance was gained through a hole in the wall made for the purpose.

The fireman, Patrick Clark, who was thrown from the tender while being driven to a fire on 29th Dec., died from his injuries yesterday.

Policeman Hogan, while attempting to arrest one of a party of noisy and drunken roughs early this morning, was set upon by [illegible] gang and severely beaten. Three officers who came to his assistance, were also overpowered and the whole reserve of the 18[illegible] precinct was called out to quell the disturbance. Two of the leaders were arrested. Others were captured but rescued by the mob.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 2.

City and Vicinity.

ON TIME.—The January thaw is sharp on time, but whether it will continue is doubtful.

VITAL STATISTICS.—The following is the vital statistics for the month of December 1879:—Births, 17; Marriages, 21; Deaths, 23.

BETTER.—Messrs. Stanton and Kerr, who were injured on the Grand Junction on Wednesday, showed a decided improvement in their condition yesterday.

CANADIAN ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—The New Year's number of this excellent journal is a first class one. It contains a great variety of seasonable illustrations and its literary contents are equally worthy of commendation.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—As the third of January comes on Saturday, all Public Schools in rural sections will open on Monday, January 5th, at 9 a. m. The schools in Belleville will begin on Wednesday, January 7th, at 9 a. m.

HOME FOR THE POOR.—The benevolent ladies composing the Women's Christian Association having secured comfortable premises for a home for the aged and friendless poor, ask the Christian public to assist them in their undertaking. We hope that the response will be liberal.

ARRESTED.—A telegram from Madoc on the 1st informs us that the party who broke into A. E. Fish & Co.'s store in that village on Saturday night was arrested by Constable Sills, and proves to be a boy about 14 years old, working around town. He confesses the whole and took Sills to the place where he hid the things taken.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' ASSOCIATION.—We observe that Mr. W. P. Niles, of this city, was elected one of the Directors for the coming year of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada, at their annual meeting held in Toronto yesterday. Mr. Niles can now issue the certificates for 1880.

NEW YEAR'S IN THE CITY.—The pleasantest weather which has been experienced in town for some weeks, favored the celebration of the incoming of 1880. As a consequence the streets were early crowded with pedestrians and remained so during the day, whilst the roadways were fully occupied with "rigs" of all kinds, carrying happy looking holiday seekers. There were many callers abroad, and altogether the day was a lively and pleasant one. The Oddfellows' band turned out early in the morning, and serenaded a number of Aldermen and other prominent citizens, and the military turned out, No. 1 Company of the 49th proceeding to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, where they were entertained at lunch. No. 1 Company of the 15th also turned out and marched to Canniston. The members of both companies afterwards met at the rifle range and had some target practice, a number of geese being awarded as prizes to the competitors. The police record shows very little business done, only one or two arrests having been made.

ARRIVED.—The steamship Hibernian, arrived at Halifax at 8:30 this morning.

INLAND REVENUE.—The collections made in the Belleville district during the month of December were as follows: Tobacco $1,535.90; Spirits $7,195.81; Malt $289.89; total $9,021.60. Same month last year $5,588.05; increase $3,463.55. During the half year ending Dec. 31st, 1878, the collections $33,491.36; same term in 1879: $35,844.40. Increase, $2,352.05.

WORKINGMEN'S TEMPERANCE ASSOCIATION.—The following is the list of officers of the above society elected for the current quarter:—Bro. James McKay, President; Bro. Richard Osborne, 1st Vice President; Bro. Adams, 2nd Vice President; Bro. W. J. Diamond, Recording Secretary; Bro. Joseph Maiden, Financial Secretary; Bro. Hugh Walker, Treasurer; Bro. Simon Sheehan, Conducter; Bro. Philip Service, Assistant Conducter; Bro. C. Tuite, Warden.

THE WESTERN ADVERTISER Annul for 1880 (given to each subscriber), besides containing the usual almanac matter, will give the complete election returns; Record of Events for 1870; Postal Guide; Rural hints for every month, by W. F. Clarke; The new tariff complete; Map of Manitoba; and the Northwest; and "The political history of Canada since Confederation," a brilliant piece of descriptive and historical writing, by a leading member of Parliament—the only complete, connected and independent resume, it is claimed, yet given of the period mentioned.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—The annual Christmas Tree of the Bleecker St. Methodist Church Sabbath School brought forth fruit yesterday evening, there was a large attendance of parents and friends to see what the crop of the tree was, and whether it was as plentiful as usual, the crop was such as to satisfy the tastes of all and so plentiful as to send every scholar of the school away satisfied. The scholars presented an interesting programme of singing, recitation, dialogues, &c., and brief addresses were delivered by the Superintendent of the School Mr. Wm. McKeown, the Pastor the Rev. O. R. Lambly, M. A., and Mr. Wm. Johnson, Superintendent of Bridge St. Church Sunday School.

The Grand Junction By-law.

By the failure of the Council to pass the By-law extending the time for the completion of the Grand Junction Railway, it may be that complications may be caused. We have hopes, however, that if the Council pass the By-law at its next meeting the Legislature, taking into account the delays which have occured in the Council because of lack of a quorum on different occasions, will legalize the By-law and thus carry out the wishes of the ratepayers.

Annual Tramp of the Old Belleville Rifles.

VISIT TO THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTION.

The customary New Years' day tramp of No. 1 Co. of the 49th was made yesterday to the Deaf and Dumb Inst. Mr. Matheson, the principal, Mr. Christie and McDermid received the Co., and led the way to the large hall, where the pupils to the number of 230 had assembled. A few evolutions were gone through to the intense delight of the youngsters. The Principal having kindly ordered refreshments, arms were piled and the visitors and their hosts proceeded to the dining-room. After the enjoyment of a cup of coffee, Mr. Matheson proposed the health of the Queen, which was drunk with all the honors. He next proposed the health of the visitors and expressed the gratification he and the officers of the Institution expressed in seeing them present, and he mentioned how great was the delight of the pupils at the visit. The Company had paid the Institution a new years' call for the past two years and he invited the officers to agree with him to make the visit a standing order of the Company. Capt. Harrison and Lieutenant Johnson responded and agreed to the worthy principal's proposal. Capt. Harrison proposed the health of Mr. Matheson and the officers of the Institution, which was duly responded to by the principal, Mr. Christie and Mr. McDermid. Cheers for the Queen brought the pleasant proceedings to a close. The Company returned to their armory about noon. In the afternoon they proceeded to the butts and shot for turkeys.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk Railway for the week ending December 27th, and the corresponding week last year, were:

Passengers, mails and express	$43,251	$40,840
Freight and live stock	126,080	83,372
Total	169,331	124,212

CITY COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 31.

A special meeting of the Council was held at 4 o'clock p. m.

PRESENT.—Messrs. Dickson, Panter, Wallbridge, Hulme, Petrie, Holden, McIninch, Brennan, Lingham, Hayne, Hambly, and Doyle.

In the absence of the Mayor, Ald. Hambly was called to the chair.

The Clerk read the requisition, calling a special meeting for the transaction of general business.

Ald. Dickson held that the requisition should specify the purposes for which the meeting was called.

Ald. Brennan said he considered there were too many technical points raised.

Ald. Dickson moved that the reading of the minutes of the former meeting be dispensed with.

Ald. Brennan moved that the minutes be read.

Neither motion was seconded.

The chairman decided that the minutes should be read.

Minutes of former meeting were read and approved.

Ald. Panter and Patterson came in when the minutes were being read.

Ald. Dickson took the objection that under the notice calling this meeting no business can be transacted; as he contended that no eleven Aldermen of the Council could call a special meeting for general purposes.

Ald. Geen came in.

Ald. Brennan contended that the Council could call a special meeting for special purposes or for general business.

Ald. Holden asked for information respecting the motion respecting aid to the Vincent St. Paul Society as it was sent to the Finance Committee.

The Clerk stated the motion granting aid to the Society was carried and the matter was sent to the Finance Committee by mistake.

Ald. Brennan held the grant was properly passed.

Ald. St. Charles came in.

A letter was read from J. D. Edgar asking that the Council petition the Governor-General in council praying that a Dominion subsidy be granted in aid of the Pacific Junction Railway.

A petition was read from Wm. McAdie stating his inability to pay his taxes, and asking a remission of the same.

A communication was read from the City Solicitor that in the case of Beamish vs. the City resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $25.

A communication was read from W. H. Garratt claiming wrong assessment and want of notice on a hall used by the Masonic Lodge.

A petition was read from Hugh Blair, as solicitor for J. B. Drewry, asking a transfer of the lease of a water lot.

From Alex. McKay, stating that he had paid his share of the security for the lessee of the market, and asked to be relieved of liability for the balance.

From Wm. Watt asking that on account of illness his taxes be remitted.

A number of accounts were read and referred to the appropriate committee.

REPORTS.

The Finance Committee recommended the payment of a number of accounts.

The Committee on Fire, Water, and Gas reported.

Alderman Geen asked what tenders were accepted for posters.

Ald. Brennan said the time of the Council should not be taken up in such matters.

The Clerk said tenders had been received from McCullough & Co. for half sheet posters at $2.00 per hundred and for sheet posters at $3.50 per hundred; and from Mr. Hynes for half sheet posters at $2.25 and for sheet posters at $2.75. That the tender of McCullough & Co. for half sheet bills, were accepted, it being the lowest, but that no tender was accepted for sheet bills.

NOTICE.

Ald. Geen gave notice of motion respecting the report of the Solicitor respecting certain fees.

Ald. St. Charles gave notice of a By-law respecting the removal of snow and ice.

The By-law granting an extension of time to the Grand Junction was being read when Ald. Dickson claimed that proper notice had not been given.

Ald. Holden moved, seconded by Ald. Petrie, that the rules of the Council be suspended to test the feeling of the meeting on the By-law.

Ald. St. Charles said he had been told that the proposed extension would not be acceptable to the Railway.

Ald. Dickson rose to a point of order that it was not the time for discussion on the subject, as the first reading was only a matter of form.

The rules of the Council were suspended and the By-law read a first time.

The yeas and nays being called upon its first reading, the vote stood as follows:

Moved and seconded that the By-law be read a second time.

The second reading of the By-law was defeated by the same division as on the first reading.

Council adjourned.

A Yankee editor, who speaks with the air of a man who has discovered a new fact from experience, says that the way to prevent bleeding at the nose is to keep your nose out of other people's business.

WEATHER REPORTS.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

RAW FURS.—The Montreal Gazette quotes: A few mink, skunk and rat have been received from country dealers during the week, but prices are not as firm as they were two weeks ago. The London sales will soon be heard from, and until then no change of any importance can take place.

HIDES.—Green Butchers' hides in Montreal are selling at $10, $9, and $8 for Nos. 1, 2, and 3. Sheep Skins at $1.20 to $1.30 each, Calf skins 10c per lb.

WOOL.—There is an improvement in the price of wool in the Montreal market, the following are the quotations: Unassorted pulled, 22c to 30c. Superior 31c to 32c.

LIVERPOOL PROVISION MARKET.—Advices of 13th inst. report the cheese market as steady, demand quiet, and holders firm. Buyers of ripe cheese, or medium qualities for immediate consumption, are the most numerous, and these descriptions are exceedingly scarce. In comparing stocks at the end of this month with previous years it should be noted that they consist here almost entirely of one description, viz.:—Fine cheese, held for top prices. We quote choice September makes, 64s to 67s; medium to fine qualities, 56s to 62s. Total shipments from New York to all ports in England and Scotland for week ending today, 42,523 boxes.

THE TIMBER TRADE.—A despatch from Quebec says:—"Recent advices from the North of England, per Cunard mail, state that the improvement in the timber trade keeps increasing. The arrivals of woodladen ships at the northeastern ports during the past week have been very limited, and the importation for the season may now be considered terminated. Telegrams received from Norway and Sweden during the past week state that the winter is exceptionally severe in those countries, and that almost all the ports are closed with ice. Useful sizes in white wood now command exceptionally high prices, particularly boards, which are scarce. The best brands of red wood deals have advanced about 10 per cent. The advance in the price of props and mining timber has also been maintained, and there is now every prospect of higher rates being obtained, as stocks are very small and the demand good."

CHICAGO HOG MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Receipts of hogs, 9,000; moderately active. $4.40 to $4.65 for light; $4.45 to $4.65 for heavy packing; $4.65 to $4.80 for heavy shipping.

Oats quiet; receipts 14,000 bus.; sales 25,000 bus. at 40¼ to 51c. for mixed western and state; 50 to 53c for white do.

Pork firmer, $12.75.

Lard stronger, at $7.90.

A facetious young American lady wickedly remarks that the reason the peculiar equipages seen at watering-places are called dog-carts is that puppies always ride in them.

A GOOD PLAN

The most profitable way of dealing in stocks is by combining your orders and co-operating them as a whole, dividing profits pro rata among shareholders, according to the market, monthly. Each customer thus secures all the advantages of immense capital and experienced skill, and can use any amount, from $10 to $10,000, or more, with equal proportionate success. "New York Stock Reporter" and new circular mailed free. Full information for any one to operate successfully. LAWRENCE & Co., 57 Exchange Place, N. Y.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—A Socialistic congress was held here; at the last day's session yesterday, on the question of nominating candidates for president, after four hours' heated discussion, Caleb Pink, Kings Co., N. Y., A. E. Bishop, Chicago, and Osborn Ward, were elected, and will be referred to the party—the two names receiving the highest number of votes to be candidate for President and Vice-President.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 2.—The Golos protests against the recent attempt on the Czar's life being made an excuse for reactionary measures.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Samuel Plimsoll, member of Parliament and author of the "Merchants' Shipping Act," has declared his intention to make an earnest effort at the coming session of Parliament to secure legislation prohibiting the loading of grain in bulk.

The British barque W. H. Jenkins, from Philadelphia for Hamburg, has arrived in the Downs. She lost five of her crew overboard; she has also been in a collision.

The Bank of England voted $2,500 towards a fund instituted by the Lord Mayor of London for the relief of the distress in Ireland.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 2.—Miss Whittemore, aged 27, fell head foremost into a cistern yesterday and was drowned. Her husband and others had been drinking and were in no hurry to get her out.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Jan. 2.—In sympathy for Ireland a meeting was held yesterday. Ex-Governor Palmer presided. Resolutions were adopted sympathising with the Irish people in their struggle and criticising the Irish land tenure, and approving the efforts of the land league. The subscription realized considerable.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 2.—Jas. Chetson, ex-County Collector, convicted for embezzling $10,000 of the County funds, was to-day sentenced to two years in the State Prison and $500 fine.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 2.—It is rumored that Col. Harrison, ex-Mayor, shot W. H. Adams, a relative, yesterday. No particulars.

LISBON, Jan. 2.—News from Azores represents heavy storms, which caused much damage to shipping.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 2.—The country between the rivers Volga and Don is famine stricken, and many persons have already perished. A prefect of Tzazartin arrived at St. Petersburg to urge contributions for the relief of the people of that place, where famine and typhus fever has appeared.

Many Crops and A Variety of Stock.

It becomes more apparent every day that the land occupier's income must come, not only from one or two large sources, but from a number of smaller ones also.

We must have many crops and a variety of stock, and must learn how to make the most of each and all of them. The times when merely to get a farm was to be on the road to wealth are gone, probably forever. All that can be looked for now is that he who takes a farm may get a fair precentage on the capital he had to commence with, if he follows the road to success adopted by men of all other profession.

The road to success means almost invariable an unwearying attention to detail. Genius, (some one said) is an infinite power of taking trouble; and success means genius well applied. Cereals can only be made to pay by the greatest possible care in choosing the varieties best adapted to the land and markets, and cultivating them with a special eye to get quality. Cattle can only be made profitable by those who condesend to watch their peculiarities, to develop the valuable ones, and to take care in selling that they get market price for all they have to part with. There must be no mean guess work, no rule of thumb; we must learn to recognize the best methods of breeding, feeding and marketing, even though we have to abandon long-established practices.—Agricultural Gazette.

Poultry—Feed Twice a Day.

The best rule, both as to quantity and time, is to give the fowls a full meal in the morning and a second shortly before going to roost. Many persons feed their fowls only once a day, usually in the morning; the consequence is that they go to roost with empty crops, and as the nutriment they have obtained during the day is required to keep up the animal warmth, particularly during the long, cold nights of winter, it cannot be employed in the production of eggs, and thus feeding hens once a day is notfavorable to their fertility. It is necessary, therefore, to feed liberally twice a day, at least, if any large amount of profit be desired from fowls. There is one great advantage dependent upon having fixed hours of feeding—namely, that the birds soon become accustomed to them, and do not hang about the house door all day long, as they do if irregularly fed. They consequently obtain a greater amount of food for themselves, and are less troublesome than they otherwise would be.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding, which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough sabsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, AS CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epileptic Fits

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this, now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

SCANDAL.

A woman to the holy father went,
Confession of sins was her intent;
And so, her misdemeanors great and small
She faithfully rehearsed them all;
And, chiefest in her catalogue of sin
She owned that she a tale-bearer had been,
And borne a bit of scandal up and down
To all the long-tongued gossips in the town.
The holy father for her other sin
Granted the absolution asked of him;
But while for all the rest he pardon gave,
He told her this offence was very grave;
And that to do fit penance she must go
Out by the wayside where the thistles grow,
And, gathering the largest, ripest one,
Scatter its seeds, and then when this was done,
She must come back again another day,
To tell him his commands she did obey.
The woman this penance light,
Hastened to do his will that very night,
Feeling right glad she had escaped so well.
Next day but one she went the priest to tell;
The priest sat still and heard her story through,
And said, "There is something still for you to do;
Those little thistle-seeds which you have sown,
I bid you go re-gather every one."
The woman said, "But, Father, 'twould be vain,
To gather up these seeds again;
The winds have scattered them both far and wide,
Over the meadowed vale and mountain side,
The Father answered, "Now I hope that from this
The lesson I have taught, you will not miss;
You cannot gather back the scattered seeds,
Which far and wide will grow to noxious weeds,
Nor can the mischief once by scandal sown,
By any penance be again undone."

—M. E. C. JOHNSON.

THE SPIDER'S LESSON.

BY JULIA WARD HOWE.

A tyrant on the border dwells
In Austrian black and gold;
Wrought all in silver are his cells,
Fine-spun, a thousand fold.

His dwelling has no dingy roof,
Nor dismal underground;
The sunlight gilds its slender woof
On fragrant bushes bound.

And at his levee, every morn,
Such brilliants do appear
As ne'er in any court were worn
By Christian monarch dear.

No prison dungeon has this watch
Where victims, out of sight,
His cruel jealousy may fetch
And keep in hopeless night.

Yet subtle stratagems he springs
On harmless passers-by,
Winds his soft silk about their wings,
And hangs them up to die.

I come to sweep his work away
With swift, impatient hand;
But here the lesson of the day
He teaches, as I stand.

The tyrant Luxury doth so
Our winged souls entwine,
And binds us fettered in a show,
To mock the free sunshine.

The subtle web afar I'll leave
Of flattering deceit;
The gorgeous spider shall not weave
His fetters to our feet.

The eye that views the heavens of faith,
The hand with justice armed,
Can see the snare that binds to death,
And scatter it, unharmed.

Theory of Prayer.

Prayer is an abiding fact of the moral universe. Man was made to pray, and he has not failed to give attention to the duty. In all ages and nations prayers, as holy incense, ascend to the throne. The Bible teaches how to offer acceptable prayer, and those who have observed its requirements are fully persuaded that the Great Father does in some way answer prayer. The theory may not be entirely clear to our obscure vision; the fact of answers to prayer is a source of abundant consolation. And if unable ever to clear up the obscure part of the subject, the consolatory one still remains as the joyous heritage of the believer, just as the substantial advantages of the senses—sight, hearing, taste—remain, whether we are able to grasp their philosophy or not. In all departments of life the Divine and human answer to each other. Man performs his work in the sowing, in culture, in harvest, and God responds to his efforts, the response being contingent on the putting forth of the human effort. Prayer holds an eminent place in this category of human conditions, and is susceptible of the same explanation as any of the others. That God should answer prayer, is no more mysterious than that He should effect changes in nature on the condition of man's efforts. May not your prayer be as efficacious in changing the mind of God and in producing modifications in the material universe as the instrument you hold in your hand. If planting and hoeing, if mechanical skill and inventive genius, are able to effect changes in the Divine action in both the realms of mind and matter, why should it be thought an incredible thing that prayer should be answered even in the domain of matter?

Of necessity the philosophy of the subject must remain in the region of theory. Reverent speculation on the matter may prove a profitable exercise, but can never be raised to the altitude of certainty. If we concede that the action of God is changed by prayer, we may hold that the change is effected in any one of several ways. The answer to the prayer may take effect in the region of the unknown causes and agencies which we call chance. Law reigns there as everywhere else, but we are ignorant of its movements and secret springs. Again, it may be located amid the causes and agencies lying back of visible phenomena. The slightest change in these mysterious springs of action may produce the most surprising results in the field of outer facts. A slight reduction of the temperature would modify if not destroy, animal and vegetable life. Or answers to prayer may come by means of pre-arranged harmony. God has seen and provided for every want of his children that may arise in all ages. As to his pre-arranged theory, it is no doubt true in regard to prayer in the same sense as in regard to all other human conditions. God has pre-arranged answers to prayer just as He has prearranged cornfields in answer to the labors of the husbandman, and education in answer to the efforts of the scholar; that is, the universe abounds in resources, in possibilities, in germs, as it were ready to burst forth into the actual the moment human conditions supervene. In no other sense are there pre-arranged answers to prayer. The answers may be in the form of material or moral provisions. In the former case they are to be found in the adaptibilities of the natural world; in the latter in the resources of the divine being himself. So that these answers are to be viewed less as externals, as being stored away in the receptacles of the universe against the day of need than as the resources of the Divine being himself. God is the pre-arranged answer to all prayer. The prevision and provision are in Him who has all power, wisdom and grace, and who is ready to bestow upon all who call upon Him. In Him we live and move and have our being. This doctrine of the Divine permanence defines our doctrine of answers to prayer. God is the answer. And this brings us back to the starting-ground in the Gospel.—New England Methodist.

"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." It is not surprising that those who have studied the natural history of the Bible should be very desirous of identifying these lilies. Pliny, speaking of the lilies of Syria, enumerates three kinds—the white, the red, and the purple-colored. Dean Stanley suggests that the name "lily" may include the numerous flowers of the tulip or amaryllis kind which appear in the early Summer or the Autumn of Palestine. He says:

"The only 'lilies' which I saw in Palestine in the months of March and April, were large yellow water-lilies in a clear spring near the Lake of Merom."

It may, however, be possible to approach much nearer to the identification than this. We may suppose, as the contrast is made by our blessed Lord between the lilies and Solomon in his glory, that some lilies of brilliant hue may be intended. Mr. J. E. Smith speaks of a plant, formerly known as the Amaryllis lutea, "whose golden liliaceous flowers in autumn afford one of the most brilliant and georgeous objects in nature, as the fields of the Levant are overrun with them; to them the expression of Solomon in all his glory not being arrayed like one of them is peculiarly appropriate." Dr. Bowring talks of a Syrian lily of a brillant red color, of about half the size of the common tiger-lily. This is supposed by Dr. Lindly to be the Chalcedonian or scarlet martagon lily, formerly called the "Lily of Byzantium," which, with its scarlet turbaned bowers, is indeed a most stately and striking object. This lily is in flower in the season of the year in which the Sermon on the Mount is supposed to have been delivered, and is indigenous to every locality. Dr. Thompson speaks of a lily which he has discovered, and which he calls the Huleh-lily: "This Huleh-lily is very large, and the three inner petals meet above and form a gorgeous canopy, such as art never approaches, and king never sat under, even in his utmost glory. . . . 'We call it Huleh-lily, because it was here that it was first discovered; the botanical name, if it have one, I am unacquainted with. . . . Our flower delights most in the valleys, but it is also found in the mountains. It grows among thorns. Nothing can be in higher contrast than the luxuriant velvety softness of this lily and the crabbed, tangled edge of thorns about it. Gazelles still delight to feed among them; and you can scarcely ride through the woods north of Tabor, where these lilies abound, without frightening them from their flowery pasture."

The Rev. Dr. Tristram discusses the Hebrew word shusan, signifying lily, as found in Hosea xiv. 5: "He shall grow as the lily:" and in other texts in the Canticles and the historic books. He says, "The Arabs have the same word, susan, which I have found the peasantry apply to any brilliantly colored flower at all resembling the lily—as to the tulip, anemone, ranunculus. We may fairly infer from our Lord's allusion, that this lily was abundant near the plain of Gennesareth, where the Sermon on the Mount was delivered, and that it was brilliantly colored, for it surpassed the robes of Solomon in glory. Now, though many plants of the lily tribe flourish in Palestine, none of them give a predominant character to the flora. The only true lily I have noticed is Lilium Chalcedonicum, the red Turk's-cap lily of our gardens, and it is not common. There are, however, many other plants which would, in popular language be called 'lilies.' The irises are many in species, and some of them of wondrous beauty." On the whole we think that this lily may best be identified with the martagon, or Chalcedonian lily. It appears to be comparatively rare now, but the natural history of the Holy Land may have exhibited some variation during the course of the Christian centuries, and it may easily be supposed that they were at one time much more common than they are at present.—Faank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

Girls' Work.

Fortunately for the brave and ambitious girls who prefer to work rather than be a burden upon parents or friends, it is considered no disgrace nowadays for women to earn their own living; and thousands of them do so, and are to be commended for their honest independence. But there is a class of girls just as brave, and just as dutiful, who never leave the limits of their home, but devote themselves to the care of aged parents or younger brothers, unmurmuringly. Yet they are seldom appreciated at their full value. The neighbors often speak of them as good, quiet girls, but not as smart and ambitious as Mr. Green's daughters, who have opened a millinery store in the city, and are making money fast; or the Smith girl, who has earned more than a thousand dollars teaching school. But few can understand how much self-sacrifice and heroism it takes to relinquish all ambitious plans and girlish hopes and settle down at home at duty's call, and perform one's mission faithfully and well, without hope of advancement or reward—and sometimes even of gratitude. Not that they are unhappy; in the path of duty lies the way of safety and joy. But they generally become the "old maids" of the family, and few see their unselfish devotion and patient heroism.

Those who expects the most are liable to the greatest disappointments. A man of numerous desires is of all beings the most dependent. He who contracts and simplifies his wants will secure the greatest amount of happiness.

Beauty of Bethlehem Women.

Were I not already verging into the years that usually bring with them sedateness and sobriety rather than gallantry, I might speak of the proverbial beauty of the females of Bethlehem. I may, however, quote the language of a younger traveller. "Every body," he says, "has heard of the beauty of the females of Bethlehem, but nobody has heard enough." One of this young traveller's companions says, "The girls of Bethlehem are charming!" He had been visiting a family in which were two daughters—one about sixteen, and the other about seventeen years of age. "Such lovely eyes, dark and lustrous, such black, glossy hair, rich and wavy; such teeth, of pearly whiteness; such finely rounded limbs, and every movement graceful! How I wished I could have spoken to them in their native tongue. They showed us the curiosities of their home, and their clever needle-work, with a frankness and modesty which an English lady might have envied." He is sure to say it was an unavoidable accident. I suppose almost everyone has, at some time, when standing near the verge, or passing along the edge of a dangerous height, experienced an almost irresistible temptation to throw himself down headlong. I once heard it suggested that this was the Devil's temptation to our Lord when he took him to the pinnacle of the temple and bade him cast himself down. I have often seen places that are really worse; but I never traveled on any road, and certainly smitten. Ah, well, there is such a thing as love at first sight; whether this be such, the reader can determine as well as I.—National Repository for January.

Gems of Thought.

The head is always the dupe of the heart.

The sense of death is most in apprehension.

There is an heroic innocence, as well as heroic courage.

He who makes an idol of his interest, will make a martyr of his integrity.

It costs us more to be miserable than would make us perfectly happy.

Hope! fortune's cheating lottery; when for one prize an hundred blanks there be!

Power unsubjected to the control of virtue is a poor guardian of civil liberty.

Shame on those breasts of stone that cannot melt in soft adoption of another's sorrow.

Envy is a passion so full of confidence and shame that nobody ever had the confidence to own it.

It is one of the worst of errors to suppose there is any other path of safety except that of duty.

The wise man stands firm in all extremities, and bears the ills of his humanity with a divine temper.

He who has but little wealth, and at the same time would be satisfied with less, is rich enough to be happy.

If you let trouble sit upon your soul like a hen upon her nest, you may expect the hatching of a large brood.

A cheerful temper is like a grain of musk: it imparts its fragrance to everything that comes in contact with it, yet it always remains the same.

At forty years of age a man looks back over his life, and wonders what he did it for, and then turns wistfully towards the future, and keeps on doing the same thing.

He who looks on beauty with a pure affection forgets the loveliness of the body in that of the soul, and rises by means of that earthly beauty to the great artist, to the very essence of loveliness.

We talk of acquiring a habit; we should rather say being acquired by it. Habit is the janizary power in man; passion and principle the antagonist revolutionary powers for evil and for good.

There is one phrase without which half the pleasure of life would be taken away. It is a phrase of irritation to one party, and extreme satisfaction to the other, whenever anything goes wrong. It is, "I told you so."

Love, like light, must always be travelling. A man must spend it, give it away. He may be a miser of his wealth, tie his talent in a napkin, and hug himself up in his reputation, but he is always generous in his love.

A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. A sensual disposition deforms the handsomest features. A cold, selfish heart shrivels the best looks. A mean, groveling spirit takes all the dignity out of the figure and all the character out of the countenance. A cherished hatred transforms the most beautiful lineaments into an image of ugliness.

It is a striking and interesting fact that the city of Philadelphia alone produces annually 6,500,000 yards of carpeting more than does the whole of Great Britain, and that the manufacture of carpets in the United States more than doubles that of the United Kingdom. The importation of foreign carpets declined from $6,000,000 in 1872 to $398,383 in 1878.

From a study of the action of tea, Mr. W. J. Morton has reached these conclusions: As, with any other drug, there is a proper and an improper use of it. In moderation it is a mild and harmless stimulant. Its immoderate use leads to serious symptoms, such as headache, vertigo, ringing in the ears; tremulousness, nervousness, exhaustion, irregular motion of the heart, and dyspepsia. Many of the symptoms of excessive tea-drinking are such as may occur without a suspicion of the real cause.

Although the near approach to the earth of several comets has been known, the least distances of only two have ever been determined with any degree of accuracy. On July 1, 1770, a comet was within 1,390,000 miles of the earth—the closest approach of one of these bodies of which astronomers have any certain knowledge. Its apparent diameter was two and one-half degrees, or nearly five times the apparent diameter of the moon. It is not surprising that the apparition of such a monster should cause a panic of terror among unenlightened and superstitious inhabitants of our globe.

At a dinner party in "town" last August, there were two sisters present, one a widow who had just emerged from her weeds, the other not long married, whose husband had lately gone out to India for a short term. A young barrister present was deputed to take the widow in to dinner. Unfortunately he was under the impression that his partner was the married lady whose husband had just arrived in India. The conversation between them opened by the lady's remarking how extremely hot it was. "Yes, it is very hot," returned the young barrister. Then a happy thought suggested itself to him, and he added, with a cheerful smile, "But not so hot as the place to which your husband has gone." The look with which the lady answered this "happy thought" will haunt that unhappy youth till his death.

Annexation and Independence.

The New York Herald, in its character of the "most enterprising newspaper in America," is seldom lacking a sensation of some kind. Its latest is the reported discovery in Montreal by one of its staff of a powerful feeling in favor of Canadian independence, which this imaginative scribe asserts is not confined to the commercial capital alone, but exists throughout the whole of Canada. In the reports transmitted to the Herald by its correspondent, the names of a number of individuals of more or less political prominence are given as supporters of this alleged movement, and altogether quite a circumstantial narrative is made up—quite sufficient to engage the attention of the public for a day or two, until something else turns up to merit public attention. This game this enterprising paper frequently plays, and occasionally with much success. In this instance, however, denial from the parties whose names are mentioned has speedily followed the publication of the story, and the whole matter is shown to be the skilful concoction of an unscrupulous writer, who has purposely misrepresented much that he has heard from people who condescended to be interviewed by him. To complete the folly of publishing such rubbish, the proprietor of the Herald has addressed a circular letter to many men in Canada of prominence and personal political knowledge, asking information as to the state of public feeling in their locality on the subject of independence. The best way, perhaps, to answer such a query is to refer the questioner to our public records, which show that Canadians have always been loyal to their connection with the empire. The latest manifestations of this feeling were offers by Canadian officers to raise in Canada regiments of soldiers to fight in the cause of the mother country if she became involved in war with Russia, and the dismissal from power in the election of 1878 of a Government whose policy was such as to render us commercially dependent upon the United States.

If the Herald will but examine carefully the Canadian tariff, it will see that discrimination is made—incidentally, it is true, but none the less effectually—in favor of goods which are chiefly supplied to the people of the Dominion from Great Britain, and from all these facts, and from the further fact that the Government which was placed in power to frame a tariff of this nature has the support of four-fifths of the members of the House of Commons, our New York contemporary can draw its own conclusions.

The Toronto Globe, in an article on the same subject, blunders almost as badly as the Herald. It denies the prevalence of a feeling in favor of independence, but asserts that the idea of annexing Canada to the United States is gaining ground. This conclusion is reached on the allegation that a Society for the promulgation of the views of annexationists has been formed in Montreal; but as the Society in question turns out to be of a literary character, our contemporary's "castle in the air" falls to the ground. That there are a very few annexationists in Canada, and a hundred or two residents of the Dominion who favor annexation to the United States is not to be denied; but there are unquiet and discontented spirits in every community, and the few Grits who carry their grumbling to that extent are of but slight consequence—certainly not worthy of being dignified into such prominence as the New York sensation monger has for some days past been been giving them.

AFGHANISTAN.—Affairs are again quiet in Afghanistan. The Military Commission to try the parties charged with being concerned in the attack upon the Embassy has resumed its enquiry.

PROVENCHER ELECTION.—A Winnipeg despatch says :—"The total vote polled in the Provencher election was :—Royal, Conservative, 652; Mallory, Independent, 209; Hamilton, Independent, 121.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH BRAZIL.—A despatch from Washington says :—"The United States Consul-General at Rio de Janeiro reports that the Canadians have made arrangements for a line of steamers between Halifax and Rio. An exhibition of Canadian products is to be opened at Rio de Janeiro next June."

CREDIT VALLEY RAILWAY.—The Credit Valley Railway is now open for traffic to Ingersoll, Orangeville and Elora. The extension from Ingersoll to St. Thomas, a distance of 28 miles, yet remains to be built. Exclusive of rolling stock, the road has cost $20,000 per mile. Bonuses by municipalities have been granted to the extent of $935,000, and Local Government aid has been given to the extent of $3,000 per mile. The bonds of the company are limited to $12,000 a mile.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—The Editor of the Ontario being so unfair as to refuse me the privilege of replying through the columns of his paper, I ask you to place the following reply to him in your columns.

Yours truly, A. L. GEEN.

To the Editor of the Daily Ontario.

SIR.—In reply to your article of the 23rd inst. I have to say :

1st. That your assertion that I am interested (commercially) in the "Free Press," is perfectly untrue.

2nd. That your accusation that I have "seldom called the Printing Committee together" is false, as the minute book of the Committee will prove.

3rd. As to your assertion that the City printing of this year has cost more than before, and that you "can prove" this, I ask you to prove it. I say on the contrary, that posters formerly charged at the rate of $3.40 per 100, are now contracted for at $2.00 per 100 ; that the statement of Receipts and Expenditure cost for its publication in 1878 900 for 500 pages ; this year only 730 per 500 pages was paid.

4. That your statement that my contention at the Council Board has amounted to nothing practical is also false. For example, one point raised by me has been the means of having paid into the City treasury about $700 not in at this time last year, and has probably been the means of arranging a matter which has been a subject of complaint for years.

Again, the Council has invariably adopted my suggestions on questions of printing as of practical value. I have also to say upon this subject that in the early part of the year I visited the offices of the several papers in order to get their prices for certain spaces in their columns, but could get no offer from the daily papers. Mr. Carman for his part stated that he would get the INTELLIGENCER Co. and the Free Press to combine with him, and then that he would not do a stroke of work for the city except at his own prices. In October or November, I again in the interest of the city, made another effort to get offers for spaces, and this time succeeded in getting three squares in the INTELLIGENCER for one year for $85 and in the Free Press one half column for $25 for all city advertisements and notices.

With regard to the question whether or not the Council could by a vote expunge from its minutes a report that had been adopted at a previous meeting, I publish will no doubt accept the dictum of the editor of the Ontario on it before the opinions of Ald. Holden, Dickson and others.

To conclude, I might pretend to be surprised, Mr. Editor, that you so maliciously assail one who, according to your own statement, (see beginning of paragraph No. 3, beginning of this letter) has been so good a friend to your fraternity as to put more city money into your pockets than ever you received before. But in truth I am not at all surprised at your attack on one whom you know has in the faithful discharge of his duty to his fellow citizens been trying (successfully) to save their hard earned money from going too freely into the itching palms of certain printers, and who has been the means of preventing the payment of their accounts until they were examined and cut down (as nearly every account of yours has been) because the Committee and Council (not I alone) considered them exorbitant—yes, Mr. Editor, so exorbitant as to draw from a prominent member of the Finance Committee the just remark that it was disgraceful to send in such accounts as yours.

Yours truly,
ALBERT L. GEEN.

ED. NOTE.—The above communication has appeared in our contemporary the Free Press, over which a short note was appended, saying, that it was refused insertion in the Ontario and INTELLIGENCER.

For our part on Monday last Mr. Geen was promised that it should appear in our columns if it was not libellous. Now far we have strained this point to fulfil our word we leave our readers to determine.

As we do not agree with the tenor of our correspondent's letter, we may be allowed to express our exceptions to a few of its paragraphs.

Mr. Geen asks for "proof that the expenditure on printing this year is greater than before." No person knows better than that gentleman, that no outsider can tell the exact amount until the city accounts for 1879 are published—an occurrence which may not happen for 8 or 9 months, if the new Committee will display the same energy that the old one, so ably presided over by Mr. Geen, did last year. However a fair approximation can be made by taking the expenditure for Printing and Stationery in 1877, which was $989.11, and comparing it with the requirements estimated for by Mr. Geen for like services in 1879, which is $1,300 for printing and stationery.

Now with these two facts before the people we are sure they will allow, that Mr. Carman has had fair grounds for his assertion. As to the assertion of getting posters that were formerly charged at $3.40 per 100 now done at $2.00 per 100, it is almost unnecessary to call attention to a matter so well known as that the price of a poster is regulated to a great extent by the number required, the quality, and quantity of the work on it. Surely Mr. Geen would not wish to impose on the electors such an uncertain standard as this, by which to measure the value of his retrenchment. His statement as to the publishing of the Receipts and Expenditures may be a fairer criterion, yet we submit that 90 cents per page is a low price for the work, and that 73 cents is such a price, that if labor is to have a fair remuneration, would beggar the proprietors of any establishment.

As it was, it took some 3 or 4 months to complete the job, which we suppose was done at odd times when work was slack and the hands would otherwise be idle. The saving on this item was about $13, but at the expense of waiting unnecessarily months for information.

In reference to the obtaining of a certain space in our columns for advertising, the price charged is our advertised rate, and consequently such space could have been attained at any time without tender or bargain at the same price.

To judge a man by the success of his undertakings, is a method too commonly adopted ; we should rather judge him by his endeavors to do right. By our works, we cannot merit salvation ; but by our endeavors to do the will of the Almighty we may obtain it." Mr. Geen is entitled to his share of the credit in having certain payments made quarterly instead of yearly.

There may be other matters which should be placed to his credit, but when Mr. Geen poses himself as an economist, as the almost only saviour of the City's finances, we ask ourselves these questions :

Is it in his own department that he shows the quality ? The answer is, he requires more for 1879 than the expenditure of 1877.

Has he done anything toward regulating the expenses of the Police department ? The answer is no.

Has he endeavored to economize in the Fire department ? A like answer must be given.

Has he endeavored to lessen the expenses of the lighting of the streets ? Yet the same answer must follow.

Has he suggested any cheaper and more effectual method of relieving the poor ? To this also the answer must be the same.

Has the Street Expenditure been lessened by his forethought ? If so we have failed to hear of it.

Then we come down to the saving of $13 on the small job of publishing the city accounts for 1878, done at a ruinous price and at the expense of the detention of the information for months, and the demanding of quarterly instead of annual payment of fines as the great benefits obtained from his two years' services. Therefore all we can say is, that if the electors on Monday next judge him by his works, his chances of re-election would be small, but should they judge him by his endeavors, then indeed it would not only be very small but hopeless.

As to the personalities in his letter we will pass them over, and leave them to the hands of our contemporary the Ontario, in whose columns, if they are thought worthy of remark, they will be fittingly answered.

An Explanation.

MURNEY WARD NOMINATION.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—During the proceedings at the nomination in Murney Ward last Monday, I stated I had been told on what I then considered good authority, that Murney Ward had not got its share of local improvements, and the reason was that as long as Mr. Geen was a representative of the Ward it would remain so. When asked for proof I gave the name of Ald. Panter as my authority. When called upon he (Mr. Panter) positively denied having told me so, and the meeting being very uproarious I found it impossible to make or receive any explanation, and as many of my friends thought that I might have been mistaken in my statement, I will here refresh Mr. Panter's memory by repeating what he said to me in his shop in the presence of Mr. Henry Bonner (who has a distinct recollection of the conversation), viz : "That as long as "Geen was returned for Murney Ward, that "Ward would not get its share of local im"provements, because Geen has no influence "at the Council."

I have since learned that Mr. Panter made the same statement to other electors in the Ward.

JOHN W. LONDON.

Belleville, Jan. 2, 1880.

Having read the above explanation I would say that I was present and heard the conversation above referred to, which is correct as reported.

HENRY BONNER.

Belleville, Jan. 2, 1880.

Belleville and its Prospects.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—We are now on the eve of another election. It now becomes the electors of the city of Belleville to select such men as will carry out those pledges which they have made at the elections now past, which I think they have in a great measure failed to do. The principal one is retrenchment. But to the reverse, they have given to nearly every official of the corporation an increase of salary. Two officials are now paid by the Corporation the very large sum of about two thousand dollars a year, to be paid out of the hard earnings of the working classes of the city of Belleville, who are now burdened down with enormous taxes, which, together with the pressure of hard times, has placed a great many not only of the poorer class but also of the better class of inhabitants in difficulty, who have been scarcely able to support themselves for the want of employment. Now I appeal to the good sense of the people of this city to say by their votes whether it is right to continue those high paid officials in office, when we can so well dispense with their services without being the least loss to the community. If we can by wise decisions, which I think we can, retrench to the amount of three thousand dollars, we will then endorse the sentiments, not only of nine-tenths of the inhabitants, but of ninety-nine hundredths of the population of our city. At the nomination in Foster Ward one candidate said he did not think there was much could be done by the Council last year, and he did not know that there could be much done by the Council this year. The period has now come that we want responsible men, thorough going men, men of practical knowledge and business habits, who must look a little farther than their own doorstep to see if there can be some necessary improvement made for the benefit of the city, and carry out the pledges they made to the electors when elected.

I hope when you go to the poll you will bear in mind the two Aldermen who advocate retrenchment. I have been nearly twenty-two years in Belleville, and during that period I have never seen the time when there was a greater necessity of having good sound men of practical knowledge for Aldermen, on account of the large amount of important matter that must come before them. I will now take a review of the unlimited amount of mineral wealth that lies in the bowels of the earth in our northern Townships, which have for years back been represented as of great value, the reports as to which were taken as moonshine stories for the sake of speculation, but are now known to be facts and realities, which is now about to be developed and utilized and in a great measure for the benefit of the County and the city of Belleville. I go farther and say for the whole Bay of Quinte. The ore, on account of its valuable quality, is being during navigation shipped to western ports to mix with ore of inferior quality, and is now carried away by cars. This is but a small amount of profit out of our mineral wealth. The time is close by when we will see smelting works in front of our city. Then we will ship pig iron instead of ore. I think on account of the valuable quality of our ores, there will be Bessemer steel manufactured here. I think we will not stop at that, as we have such an abundance of good material. There will be iron rails made here, which will find a ready market, instead of importing from England. Iron has risen $3.00 per ton.

Another great improvement in our favor and one of vast importance to the whole Bay country, is the cutting of the canal through the Carrying Place, which will be accomplished in a short time, and will be the means of purifying our Bay water, as there will be a current of water passing out of Weller's Bay in the canal whenever the south-west wind blows. The cutting of the Murray Canal is of more importance than many imagine. When vessels are loaded here, in our present position, they pass down the Bay, enter the Long Reach, meet adverse winds, then down the Bay through to Upper Gap, then up the Lake, if so bound, and then up to the most dangerous coast between Kingston and the head of the Lake, the False Ducks, and Long Point. They have to pass and when arrived there after sailing a circuitous route of 150 miles they are then opposite where they started from, when the canal is opened to vessel when loaded will sail up the Bay through the Canal and Weller's Bay, then through the outlet and in less than 20 miles from Belleville they will be in the Lake. This projected route through Weller's Bay and the Canal without a lock will attract the attention of travellers, as the beauty of the Bay of Quinte is very much spoken of and we may expect to see a fleet of vessels pass through the Bay.

Are we ready for the great and interesting change that is soon to come upon us ? It cannot be imagined that the mouth of our small river can afford dockage for the number of vessels that will come to our port. I propose to build four slips. First, to begin at the shore 30 feet wide run it out to 10 feet water; second, have a space of 30 feet water; third, run another slip out 30 feet wide; fourth another space water 30 feet wide; fifth another slip same 30 feet wide; sixth another space 30 feet wide; seventh, another slip 30 feet wide.

These spaces of water may, if the Corporation think best, all be filled up, and then there will be a wharf 210 feet in length. I propose to fill up these wharves or slips full and solid from the shore to the end. Each slip will provide dockage for four vessels.

I do not think it will be required to burden the people with any more taxes for this necessary improvement. The money that we will save by retrenching and the money uselessly laid out dredging will pay all expenses.

If the Aldermen of the past year and those of other past years had taken an active interest in the affairs of the wharf they would have noticed that a very great imposition was and is practiced on the people coming up on the Bay boats from Picton and intermediate ports to Belleville. They come to Belleville to sell and to buy. As soon as a woman steps on the wharf with a basket of eggs the wharfinger demands wharfage. A man steps on the wharf with a pail of butter, he is served the same way. So it is with every article they bring to market. Then the next tax is market fees. These persons, after selling their articles, may buy a barrel of salt, or a bedstead, or table or some chairs. It is then sent to the wharf, the wharfinger comes again and demands wharfage. If any of these go off at North Port another claim is made for wharfage. That makes four taxes on the people because they come to Belleville to do their business. The people who come across from Ferry Point have a free landing, and should not those who are anxious to come on the Bay boats have the same privilege ? If we wish to build up our city we must afford facilities for the people to come. A number of years past I spoke to our respected friend Mr. Levesconte, who took an active part in municipal affairs. I stated this matter to him, and he replied and said, "I never thought of it, I am glad you mentioned it, I will attend to it immediately." The good man was taken sick and died soon after, so the matter has lain ever since.

If my views of public affairs agree with the opinion of those who have votes in Foster Ward, I will be glad to receive their support.

GEORGE BOULTER.

City and Vicinity.

BARLEY.—Mr. Whittier, of Trenton, has shipped twelve car loads of barley from Consecon to Albany.

SHEEP SHIPMENT.—Mr. Jas. Clarke butcher of this city, shipped yesterday for England 350 sheep.

QUIETED DOWN.—The gayest part of the holiday season is now over, and business has settled down to its usual condition at this season.

THE ELECTIONS.—The municipal elections will take place on Monday. There will be a sharp contest in every Ward except Samson Ward.

CURLING.—The members of the Curling Club have had fine practice during the last few days. The ice was probably never in better condition than it is at present.

FUNERAL SERMON.—The funeral sermon for the late Mrs. J. G. Robinson, will be preached by the Rev. B. Lane in the M. E. Tabernacle to-morrow at 11 a. m.

ATHLETICS.—Messrs. D. C. Ross and J. S. Barnes are in town for the purpose o establishing a school for instruction in fencing, boxing and other athletic sports.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The annual week of prayer will commence on Monday. Services will be held each day at noon in the Lecture Room of the Bridge Street Church, and every evening in the various churches, concluding on Sunday evening in the Bridge Street Church.

AN UPSET.—Nelson Scott, of Stoco, in company with his wife visited this city yesterday. They disposed of what they had for sale and procured some crockery, stoneware, &c., necessary for house-keeping purposes and started homewards shortly before five o'clock. When opposite Corby's distillery shed, the horses became frightened by a dog and sled passing in front of them across the road, and the swerving of the animals caused the sleigh to upset and overturn its occupants. The horses then galloped on and soon freed themselves from the sleigh, but were subsequently re-captured and driven home.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—While the special train conveying the Dominion Ministers and party to the Carrying Place on Wednesday was being switched off to the Prince Edward Railway, an incident occurred which created a good deal of excitement, and came very near resulting in a fatal accident. The brakesman, James Cook, was in the act of coupling the car of the Grand Trunk Railway to one of the Prince Edward cars, and had got between the cars for that purpose. The Prince Edward coach being narrower than that of the Grand Trunk, the buffers of the latter slipped past those of the other, bringing the cars so close together that the brakesman was pinned fast. The engine had uncoupled and gone ahead, and all hands turned out to try and separate the cars and extricate the brakesman. It was not, however, until a railway tie had been obtained, which placed between the ends of the cars, by hard work and good management, the cars were loosened, and the brakesman was liberated. Beyond a little lameness in the hip he was not injured, but it was a "close call," as many of those who witnessed the occurrence will remember for many a long day.

THE CATTLE TRADE.—There are now being fed at the distillery shed of Henry Corby, 186 head of cattle, which will be shipped to Europe in the spring.

BRIDGE ST. CHURCH.—To-morrow morning Dr. Jaques will preach a special sermon to children and in the evening the pastor's sermon will be specially to the men. Covenant service and Sacrament at 2:30 p. m.

HAY AND STRAW.—Mr. Lingham continues to purchase large quantities of hay and straw, which he presses and ships to Boston. Several car loads were dispatched within the last few days.

THE RINK.—Now that other entertainments have been got through with for a time, the skating rink is being better patronized. The ice is in fine condition, and the building is more comfortable than heretofore.

Better than whiskey and quinine for Chills, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

MINERALS IN KALADAR AND ANGLESEA.—A correspondent writes to the Napanee Beaver stating that a valuable discovery of gold has been made on lot 9, in the 2nd concession of Anglesea. On lot 11 in the same township and concession there is a rich bed of magnetic iron ore, and on lot 21 in the 5th concession of Kaladar there is a vein of copper supposed to be rich and extensive.

STOREHOUSE AT SHANNONVILLE.—A meeting was held at Melrose on Dec. 30th, 1879, for the purpose of forming a joint stock Company to construct a wharf and storehouse on the Bay shore near Shannonville. The meeting was in favor of the project and considerable stock was subscribed. The following provisional Directors were appointed:—Isaac Demill, Pres't. Chas. Anderson, Sec'y. Directors—R. L. Lazier, R. Tripp, M. Hill, A. Mather, Jas. O'Sullivan, P. McDougall and W. L. Rose.

POLICE RECORD.—During the month ending December 31st, 1879, the Police arrested 41 persons charged as follows: Assault and battery 5; burglary 3; breaking doors and windows 2; drunk 13; drunk and disorderly 4; disorderly conduct 2; embezzlement 1; false pretences 1; horse stealing 1; infringement of Medical Act 1; keeping house of ill-fame 1; larceny 4; receiving stolen goods 1; Threatening 1; vagrancy 1. 37 tramps applied for and received protection in the Police cells during the month.

COMING.—The "Alvin Joslin" comedy company will give a performance here on Friday evening next. The Portland (Maine) Argus says of them:—"Two crowded houses greeted Mr. Davis in the play of Alvin Joslin, at the Theatre on Thursday, and a more thoroughly amused audience than that of the evening has been seldom seen. The play is an interesting one, and Mr. Davis makes the part of Alvin Joslin a very attractive one. He is meeting with much success, and deserves it."

PIGEON MATCH.—Messrs. Geo. Hoggard and Geo. S. Brown had a return match at pigeons on the 1st inst., the latter having won a well contested match a short time ago. The conditions were: 12 birds each, 21 yards rise; a kill with the first barrel to count 5 points, and with the second barrel 3 points. Sides were chosen; and the following was the result:

Hoggard's Side.		Brown's Side.
Geo. Hoggard	33	G. S. Brown	20
W. Severn	41	T. Nightingale	41
Geo. Cleal	25	James Taylor	28
E. Hayne	15	S. Kerr	5
Geo. Carr	41	T. Darling	8
	178		102

Hoggard's side thus won by 76 points.

Subsequently sides were chosen by Messrs. Boldrick and Sutherland, of Stirling, and another match was shot at five birds each, which resulted as follows:

Sutherland's Side.		Boldrick's Side.
Sutherland	25	Boldrick	0
Nightingal	5	Hoggard	3
Cleal	5	Severn	10
Taylor	3	Palliser	11
	43		26

Sutherland thus won by 17 points.

An important match has been arranged to take place at Smithville on the 22d inst., six from Stirling against an equal number from Belleville, 12 birds each.

News Condensed.

—The rivers Rhine and Main in Germany are overflowing their banks, owing to the channels being blocked with ice, and several towns are inundated.

—The missing foreman in McDonald's tobacco factory, Montreal, Campbell by name, was seen in the streets on the 2d Jan., setting at rest the conjectures on his account.

—The German Admiralty is considering the advisability of blowing up the sunken ironclad Grosser Kurfurst, all attempts to raise her having failed.

—In Montreal on New Years, one of the most pleasing features in connection with the day was the almost universal banishment of the wine cup from the refreshment tables.

—A despatch from St. Catharines says: Mr. Bodwell, Canal Superintendent, is to be removed to British Columbia. His position will be filled by a gentleman from Prescott.

—A firm of Montreal engineers has just sent the parts of a number of wooden houses to Newfoundland, and are making preparations for a more extensive consignment. The houses go in sections.

—Mrs. Mackintosh, wife of the Mayor of Ottawa, was presented on New Year's Day with a silver cradle by the members of the Council as a mark of respect and in accordance with a time honored custom to commemorate the birth of a son during the term of office of her husband.

—On the 2nd inst., Joseph McBride, of Seaforth, a lad about ten or twelve years of age, while attempting to force a cartridge into a revolver, held the muzzle against his abdomen and hammered the cartridge with an old file, when it exploded, passing nearly through his body. The doctors have very little hopes of his recovery.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—The Herald's Augusta despatch says, it appears the idea of forcible resistance to the constituted authorities has been abandoned by the Republicans, but another significant scheme has been unearthed. The "counted out" candidates, as they are called, have all received summonses from some person in Augusta which have the appearance of legitimacy, requesting them to appear at Augusta on the first Wednesday in January, and assist in the organization of the Legislature. The certificates are headed "people's certificates," and bear on the bottom in italics this sentence: "Come, and you will be protected." The object of this move seems to be to set up a rival Legislature, and otherwise prevent a quorum.

Several brokers in New York and Boston who hold and negotiate Maine State bonds, have written to offer them to the Treasurer. They have dropped in value about 3 per cent.

Washington specials:

The Bill upon which the Committee on inter-state commerce have agreed on aims to prevent four things: first, unjust discrimination in freight rates in all inter-state commerce; second, all rebates and drawbacks; 3rd, the pooling of earnings by the different Corporations; 4th, charging more for a car-load of freight for a short distance than for a long distance on the same haul. The bill does not meddle with the question of rates at all. Reagan thinks a Railroad Commission will ultimately be found necessary.

The Sun says there is a growing impression that Hurlbut Seymour is the real candidate for President.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—It is stated that the report of the friends of the late Count Joannes had provided a costly casket and were arranging for his funeral, is untrue. No friends have come forward. As the Count died penniless, the remains will probably be consigned to the care of the authorities.

A cheque signed Oliphant & Co. for $1,000 was found in the constribution box in the hospital on Saturday, together with explicit instructions for its disposition. The cheque yesterday was discovered to be a forgery.

The aggregate subscriptions to the hospital fund received directly by the treasurer, amount to $9,772.

The shoemakers' protective union have agreed to demand an increase in wages of 13 per cent. Every shoe manufacturer in the city and neighborhood has been notified.

The Sun says that coal stocks, though not buoyant, are firmly held, on the expectation that the demand for iron during the year will furnish a large and steady demand for coal, and as last year's yield cannot be increased over that of last year, an increase in price is expected.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

CAPETOWN, Dec. 16.—General Wolseley has telegraphed Sir Bartle Frere not to believe the alarming reports from the Transvaal. He says there was great want of unanimity among the Boers at the recent meeting at which the resolution was adopted in favor of maintaining the demand for the independence of the Transvaal.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—In consequence of the revolutionary agitation having extended to the troops, the Russian military authorities have ordered that henceforth no regiment shall be stationed in the district where it was recruited.

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Count Bachasson de Montalivet, a life Senator, is in a critical state of health. Count de Mortalivet was formerly Minister of the Interior under Louis Phillipe.

ROME, Jan. 3.—Imbriani, Vice President of the Italia Irredentia Committee, has published a pamphlet justifying the action of his party in causing their flag to be displayed at the funeral of Gen. Avezzana, late President of the Italia Irredentia committee, asserting that the ministers had declared to him that the cause of Irredentia was dear to them, but that it was absolutely necessary to prevent Austria from having any opportunity of seeking a quarrel with Italy. Imbriani also affirms that the ministers characterized the military law recently passed by Austria as a constant menace to Italy.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 3.—The large iron shute on the coal docks here fell this morning, Patrick Dunn was instantly killed. Much damage was done to timber.

FARMINGTON, Me., Jan. 3.—Louis Slater, Democrat, counted in by the Fusionists as Representative, returned his certificate to the Governor, believing the reason given for the disfranchisement of Farmington is not sufficient to justify his acceptance.

ATCHISON, Ks., Jan. 3.—The large elevator of F. P. Haley was burned last night. Loss over $20,000.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 3. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, brisk southeasterly to southwesterly winds, cloudy, warmer weather with rain areas.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Indications: For lower lakes and Middle States, to-day cooler, veering to warmer winds, cloudy with rain or snow.

HEAVY BURGLARY.—A despatch from Omemee, Jan. 2nd says:—"The store of Thomas Stephenson of this place was broken into last night, the safe blown open, and notes, mortgages, etc., taken therefrom, valued at twenty five thousand dollars."

MURDERED.—It turns out that Thomas Mulligan, who was found burned to death in his shanty near Sherbrooke, was murdered. Wm. Gray and wife, upon whom Mulligan's money was found, were arrested and since their arrest, Mrs. Gray has confessed. It appears that the body was chopped up, a lot of firewood piled upon it, and that it was set fire to, burning the trunk to an unrecognizable mass.

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says:—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

Special Invitation.

SANFORD'S
RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1847. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly it improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for mine people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith, endorse this my Holy Bible.

Mark Twain at the Barber's

All things change except barbers, the way of barbers, and the surroundings of barbers. These never change. I went to get shaved. The barber shoved up my head and put a napkin under it. He ploughed his fingers into my collar and fixed a towel there. He explored my hair with his claws and suggested that it needed trimming. I said I did not want it trimmed. He explored again and said it was pretty long for the present style—better have a little taken off; it needed it behind especially. I said I had it cut only a week before. He yearned over it reflectively a moment, and then asked with a despairing manner, who did it. It came back at him promptly with a "You did!" I had him here. Then he fell to stirring up his lather and regarding himself in the glass, stopping now and again to get close and examine his chin critically or torture a pimple. Then he lathered one side of my face thoroughly, and was about to lather the other, when a dog-fight attracted his attention, and he ran to the window and stayed and saw it out, losing two shillings on the result in bets with the other barbers, a thing which gave me great satisfaction. He finished lathering, meantime getting the brush into my mouth only twice, and then began to rub in the suds with his hands; and as he now had his head turned, discussing the dog-fight with the other barbers, he naturally shovelled considerable lather into my mouth without knowing it; but I did.

He now began to sharpen his razor on an old suspender, and was delayed a good deal on account of a controversy about a cheap masquerade ball he had figured at the night before, in red cambric and bogus ermine, as some kind of a king. He was so gratified with being so chaffed about some damsel whom he had smitten with his charms that he used every means to continue the controversy by pretending to be annoyed at the chaffings of his fellows. This matter begot more surveying of himself in the glass, and he put down his razor and brushed his hair with elaborate care, plastering an inverted arch of it down on his forehead, accomplishing an accurate "part" behind, and brushing the two wings forward over his ears with nice exactness. In the meantime the lather was drying on my face, and apparently eating into my vitals.

Now he began to shave, digging his fingers into my countenance to stretch the skin, making a handle of my nose now and then, bundling and tumbling my head this way and that as convenience in shaving demanded, and "hawking," and expectorating pleasantly all the while. As long as he was on the tough sides of my face I did not suffer; but when he began to rake and rip, and tug at my chin, the tears came. I did not mind his getting down so close to me; I did not mind his garlic, because all barbers eat garlic, I suppose; but there was an added something that made me fear he was decaying inwardly while still alive, and this gave me much concern. He now put his finger into my mouth to assist him in shaving the corners of my upper lip, and it was by this bit or circumstantial evidence that I discovered that a part of his duties in the shop was to clean the kerosene lamps.

About this time I was amusing myself trying to guess where he would be most likely to cut me this time, but he had got ahead of me, and sliced me on the end of the chin before I had got my mind made up. He immediately sharpened his razor—he might have done it before. I do not like a close shave, and would not let him go over me a second time. I tried to get him to put up his razor, dreading that he would make for the side of my chin my pet tender spot, a place which a razor cannot touch twice without making trouble; but he said he only wanted to just smooth off one little roughness, and in that same moment he slipped his razor along the forbidden ground, and the dreaded pimple-signs of a close shave rose up smarting and answered to the call. Now he soaked his towel in bay rum, and slapped it all over my face hastily; slapped it over as if a human being ever yet washed his face in that way. Then he dried it by slapping with the dry part of the towel, as if a human being ever dried his face in such a fashion; but a barber seldom rubs you like a Christian. Next he poked bay rum into the cut place with his towel, then choked the wound with powdered starch, then soaked it with bay rum again, and would have gone on soaking and powdering it for evermore, no doubt, had I not rebelled and begged off. He powdered my whole face now, straightened me up, and began to plough my hair thoroughly with his hands and examine his fingers critically. Then he suggested a shampoo, and said my hair needed it badly—very badly. I observed that I shampooed myself very thoroughly in the bath yesterday I "had him" again. He next recommended some of "Smith's hair glorifier," and offered to sell me a bottle. I declined. He praised the new perfume, "Jone's delight of the toilet," and proposed to sell some of that. I declined again. He tendered me a tooth wash, an atrocity of his own invention, and, when I declined, offered to trade knives with me.

He returned to business after the miscarriage of this last enterprise, sprinkled me all over, legs and all, greased my hair in defiance of my protest against it, rubbed and scrubbed a good deal of it by the roots, and combed and brushed the rest, parting it behind, and plastering the eternal inverted arch of hair down on my forehead, and then while combing my scant eyebrows and defiling them with pomade strung out an account of the achievements of a six-ounce black and tan terrier of his, till I heard the whistle blow for noon, and knew I was five minutes too late for the train, then he snatched away the towel, brushed it lightly about my face, passed his comb through my eyebrows once more, and gaily sung out "Next."

This barber fell down and died of apoplexy two hours later. I am waiting over a day for my revenge—I am going to attend his funeral.—Mark Twain.

Wit and Humor

Some men cannot stand prosperity. Others never get a chance to try.

A polite philosopher once thanked a lady who had been singing to a party for an hour by saying, "Madam, you have wasted our ... charmingly."

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Belleville, Dec. 18, 1879.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50	$0.38

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

The Fallen Bridge.

The plans for the great iron bridge across the Tay, and the novel and ingenious methods by which the engineers contrived to execute their project, excited universal interest in Europe. The Engineer, the leading periodical devoted to such subjects in England, in its issue of April 4, 1873, contained no other illustrations than those pertaining to this work, and in commenting upon this unusual fact said that no apology was necessary, in view of the importance of this project. The picture of the bridge gives an accurate idea of the boldness of the undertaking because the width of the Tay is shown to be very great at this point, and the height of the bridge roadway above the water seems to be as unusual as that of New York's High Bridge. The other impressions that are formed from looking at the engraving are that the structure is exceedingly slender, and that it is not at all ornamental. It looks very much like a long section of the Third Avenue Elevated Railway spanning a broad sheet of water.

Dundee's growing importance as a manufacturing city increased the need its people felt for a bridge to across the firth by which the North British Railway system in Fife could reach the city. All the freight and passengers had to be transferred by boats across the Tay at great expense and with frequent delays occasioned by the magnitude of the traffic and frequency of storms. The completion of the bridge connected London with Dundee and the northern Scottish town by a direct route, which was a combination of the Great Northern-eastern and Great Western Railroad systems. Twenty six miles was saved between Edinburgh and Dundee, and Dundee became the shipping port for the immense coal fields of Fifeshire.

In 1871 Charles De Bergne, an experienced London bridge contractor, entered into an agreement with the North British Railway Company for the opening of the Tay. De Bergne died soon afterwards, and Hopkins, Gilkes & Company, of Middlesboro', took his place. The engineer was Sir Thomas Bouch. The Scotsman of this city dwells upon a peculiar plan of a manager named Austin, who levelled off the shore of the Tay on the site of the southern end of the bridge, and covered the ground with concrete flooring. On this everything was made before it was put in place in or under the bridge, and the usual scaffolding was done away with. On the other hand, the Engineer lays especial stress on the fact that huge artificial foundations of iron and stone were utilized by the contractors, as has since been done with the East River Suspension Bridge, and that when some cylindrical piles were sunk to support one portion of the structure, they were imbedded by forcing water through them to displace the sand as they worked down to it. This method was adopted in building the ocean piers at Long Branch and Coney Island last spring.

The bridge crosses the Tay one mile and a quarter west of Dundee. On the south side it joins the North British Railroad near Leuchars, and on the north side it is connected with Dundee by means of a tunnel and a shore line of rails. The construction of this tunnel was considered a considerable undertaking. It passes near Magdalen Point, running along the docks, and partly through one of them—the Earl Grey Dock—besides passing beneath one of the main streets of the city. The bridge had three spans of 60 feet, two of 80 feet, twenty-two of 200 feet, two of 227 feet, seven of 200 feet, sixteen of 129 feet, twenty-five of 66 feet, one of 160 feet, and six of 27 feet. The first three spans (60 feet) on the north side are on a descending gradient 1 in 100 feet. The two 80 feet spans are level. The bridge then rises with a gradient of 1 in 353 feet to the centre of the 200 feet spans. Finally it descends with a gradient of 1 in 73·56 to the north shore. On the south side the rails are on top of the girders, as on the New York elevated railroads, and are 78 feet above high water. In the 200 foot spans, 88 feet above the water, the rails were beneath the girders, as is the case with the New York Central Railroad Bridge across the Harlem River, and, indeed, with a majority of the iron railroad bridges in this country. When the 120 foot spans on the northern end of the bridge are reached, the rails again run on top of the girders. It was in the series of 200 foot spans, where the cars were nearly 90 feet above water, and ran beneath the trusses, that the breakage occurred.

From the south side the first five spans are on a curve of twenty chains' radius. The line of the bridge is then continued directly north and south as far as the end of the 120-foot spans; thence the whole of the 66-foot spans, the 160 foot bowstring spans, and the 27-foot spans are on a curve of twenty chains' radius, forming nearly a quadrant of a circle. The length of this northern curve is nearly 2,000 feet. The bridge was north ward, and would not enter the town except for this curve, which brings it into the city alongside the Caledonian Railroad line.

The bridge was building nearly five years and at times as many as 2,000 persons were employed in the works. Its construction consumed 3,600 tons of iron work, 2,600 tons of cast iron work, 35,000 cubic yards of brick work, and 87,845 cubic feet of timber. The contractors estimated the cost at about ten millions of dollars. The builders found the bottom composed of rock in some places, of hard material resting on silt in others, and of sand and covered with silt in others. In that portion along the remainder of the route across the stream. The stream is about 25 feet deep in the channel. Storms hindered the work. Northerly and southwesterly winds sweep with terrific force down the river, and because of its great width and strong tides, the sea is very often heavy. Once a gale blew for three weeks, and all work was suspended until the storm ceased. It was on account of these disadvantages that so much of the work was done on shore. There the great piers were built, and from there they were floated out into the stream and lowered into position by great hydraulic rams. These piers were formed by immense double cylinders of iron, which were let down upon the river bottom. Workmen inside of them excavated the ground beneath and imbedded them in their places. Then they were filled with broken stone and liquid concrete, and the columns of the bridge were built upon them. Near the shore a huge brick wall connected these piers. The brick work of the piers was held together with cement, and this and the concrete became so strong that when two piers, that capsized in the early part of the work, were dragged ashore, they could be broken up only by blasting. The girders spanning the columns were put together on shore and floated out to their places in the bridge. These girders are of heavy wrought iron, braced with angle iron. The roadway is carried by cross sleepers, 12 by 9 inches, placed 3 feet apart; where the roadway runs below the girders it is carried by iron cross girders 5 feet apart, the rails being laid upon 14-inch longitudinal steepers. There are double cylindrical columns under most of the spans, but out on the Dundee end of the bridge, at the curve, the 66-foot spars are upheld by three cast iron piles, two of which are vertical, while the third is a "raker," with a batter of one foot in three, and is placed outside the curve.

When it was built it was the longest iron bridge in the world. Throughout the kingdom many expressions of doubt as to the wisdom of building such a long and slender bridge found their way into the newspapers, and were noticed in the Parliamentary debates of the times.

AS IT APPEARED WHILE BUILDING.

[Scottish American Journal, Jan. 3, 1878.]

A writer in a Leeds paper gives the following account of a recent visit to the Tay bridge :—

"On enquiry at the Dundee end whether admission to the bridge were procurable the writer was shown a paper where it was stated that if he chose to run all risk of personal injury from the 'bogies' occasioning the building the bridge, or from any chance of falling from the poorly protected platform, he was at liberty, and at an outlay of sixpence, to do so * * * Once on the bridge, all idea and appearance of slimness vanish, and the visitor is struck by its strength and stability. Starting from the north shore the bridge takes a sharp curve for about a quarter of a mile to a point immediately over the channel due south. There is a gradual ascent to the central portion of the structure, which, by a peculiar arrangement of the girders, gives a clean altitude over high water of eighty-eight feet. Instead of the rails being carried on top of the girders, as in the greater portion of the bridge, the line here is carried inside the girders. The nature of the work at this point is truly gigantic. From pier to pier the length of the girders is no less than 240 feet, * * * and there are several such spans. This part of the bridge passed, the visitor has arrived at the centre of the structure, from whence he has a magnificent view. Around him is the estuary of the Tay spreading out like a lake. To the north is the town of "Bonnie Dundee," beautifully situated, built on the slopes of the "Law," or hill of Dundee. To the south are the somewhat bleak shores of Fifeshire, with the pretty village of Newport crowning the wooded cliffs of a little bay. Westward the view is closed in by Perthshire hills, while to the east is the fortified castle of Broughty, with the ocean beyond. To-day the river was very calm, but notwithstanding there was a considerable breeze blowing across the bridge. What the sensation must be in a furious gale is what few would care to experience. In order to render the traffic as safe as possible extra rails are laid inside the ordinary gauge in such a way as to remove all chance of a train leaving the metals even in the stiffest gale. Arriving at the Fifeshire end the writer descended to the 'bothy,' where as many as three hundred men have been supplied with bed and food. Here at the outlay of a few pence a substantial luncheon was made of bread and cheese and a plate of good honest Scotch broth. At this end is also the foundry, where much of the iron work was prepared, and the pier where the girders are erected before being floated out to their position. The Tay bridge proper is one mile and seven furlongs in length, but there is a connection at the north end carried over a brick viaduct of considerable length, which at low water is surrounded by the dry sands, so that the bridge has erroneously been stated to be two miles and a quarter long.

Mr. Bodwell's New Year's Gift.

On Wednesday evening last, Mr. Bodwell, who for some years back has held the position of Superintendent of the Welland Canal, received notice from Ottawa that his services are no longer required in such capacity. This action of the Government is no doubt based on the report of Mr. Stark, the Royal Commissioner, who some months ago held an inquiry here as to the management of the canal. That investigation pretty conclusively established the fact that Mr. Bodwell did not possess the practical knowledge necessary for so responsible a position; but also proved that the allegations as to corruption were not founded on fact, and that being the case, and actuated by a desire to deal justly with Mr. Bodwell, the Government, although removing him from canal management, retain him in the civil service, and give him a position as accountant, in connection with the Pacific Railway expenditure, at a salary, it is said, of $2,500 per annum. The new Superintendent, it is said, is a Mr. Ellis, of Prescott, an engineer by profession. Mr. Ellis has also been, as a practical man, having had many years' experience in public works as contractor.—St. Catharines Journal.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

A young man's friends object to his being loose, but somehow they have an equal objection to his being tight.

Local Necessities.

The Toronto Tribune—a Reform journal—has the following kindly reference to the Murray Canal project :—

The Murray Canal project, to connect the Bay of Quinte with Lake Ontario, by cutting through the Isthmus of Prince Edward County, has received favorable consideration from the Minister of Railways and Canals. It would only be about three quarters of a mile in length, and would cost about a quarter of a million dollars. Its advantages to the shipping trade generally, and especially to Belleville, are so obvious that the wonder is the work has not been sooner carried out."

The fact is as stated by our contemporary, the visit of the Minister of Railways and Canals to the site of the proposed canal having apparently satisfied him that the work ought to be undertaken. Consequently the people of Belleville and the district generally look with confidence to its early construction being sanctioned by the vote of Parliament.

Another enterprise which cannot fail to be of great benefit to the Province generally, and to the Bay district in particular, is the extension northward of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, so as to more fully develop the great deposits of iron ore which exist in the northern part of this and adjoining counties. The Provincial Parliament will doubtless be asked at its forthcoming session to grant a liberal subsidy in aid of this most desirable enterprise. As the Hon. Mr. Flint has ably shown, the district has a good claim on the Government which can scarcely be ignored if it be pressed, but so far little or nothing has been done towards that end. The City Council has done nothing in the matter, and our citizens have been equally supine ; but the enterprise is of so much importance that we hope the Council will at least petition for so desirable an object, and that petitions will also be circulated amongst the residents of the city for signature. The desired end may possibly be achieved without any efforts being made to secure it ; but were our representatives in the Legislature backed by petitions from the people their hands would be greatly strengthened.

The proposed extension will very greatly increase the output of the iron mines, and as every ton of ore will be shipped by water so soon as the Murray Canal is opened, the laboring men of the city and the civic finances as well must be benefitted in proportion to the quantity of ore shipped. Besides, the greater the number of miners employed the better for the city, as a large portion of their supplies must be drawn hence. So, it being to our interest in various ways that the railway should be extended, our citizens owe it to themselves to assist as we have indicated in securing that very desirable object.

But a few days now remain before the Legislature will be called together, and if action is to be taken there is no time to lose. Projects of much less importance have ere now been strongly agitated for in Belleville, and there ought to be no lack of energy in pushing our claims in this instance.

EXPORTS OF FISH.—The exports of fish from Halifax to the West Indies, including shipments to Cuba, amounted to 336,295 quintals of dry fish and 90,453 barrels of pickled fish, Porto Rico and Jamaica taking more than half the dry fish and all the pickled except about 10,000 barrels.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.—The Montreal Witness says :—The manufacture of wall paper is it is said, about to be undertaken in this city, the principals in the enterprise being Mr. John Watson and Mr. MacArthur, formerly of Glasgow, but more lately of Toronto.

THE WEST WINCHESTER TRAGEDY.—The examination of Mrs. Robert Brown, of West Winchester tragedy notoriety, was re-opened on Saturday, and, after the testimony of a number of witnesses was heard the accused was discharged, there being no evidence upon which to find a conviction.

SUGAR FOR HALIFAX.—During the year just closed the receipts of sugar at Halifax from the West Indies amounted to 13,514 hhds., 302 tcs and 4,250 bbls., Porto Rico being the main source of supply with 8,463 hhds., 6 tcs and 1,463 bbls., the rest coming from Cuba, Jamaica, Demerara, and Barbadoes.

FIFTY CAVALRY MEN KILLED.—A cable special to the Mail says :—" A despatch from Cabul says there is much excitement in the neighborhood, as the Cabulese are besieged by the country people, who are murdering all stragglers, and have killed fifty cavalrymen, who were out on a foraging expedition. The Kohistan expedition has returned to Cabul after a fruitless mission. General Roberts is short of ammunition."

The Kingston Postmastership.

We learn with much pleasure that Mr. Shannon, the senior proprietor of the Kingston Daily News, has received the appointment of Postmaster of that city, which office has been vacant for some months. All who know Mr. Shannon will acknowledge his eminent fitness for so important a position, and his many friends in Belleville and the district generally will join with us in congratulating him on his appointment. The following graceful and well deserved tribute is paid him by a strong political opponent who knows him well, namely the Kingston Whig :—" We have it from very good authority that Mr. James Shannon, senior proprietor of the News, has been appointed Postmaster, thus filling a vacancy which has existed for about ten months. There can be no question that the appointment would have been made long ago had there not been a diversity of influences at work, and more than one candidate for the office.

We may be permitted to congratulate our contemporary upon his good fortune, the appointment being a New Year's gift of rare occurrence and of still rarer value. Mr. Shannon is eminently qualified for the departmental work which will devolve upon him, and the Civil Service will be benefitted by his addition to it. We say this candidly, because willing to acknowledge merit even if we and our friend have had occasion to differ in our opinion of public questions and men."

The National Policy.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—Walking down Front Street a few days ago, I fell in with two farmers. One had a new pair of boots, extra made by hand, for which he said he paid $4 50. The other remarked that they were dear at that price. The answer was, "Leather has gone up because hides are so dear." In answer he was told "it was the effect of the N. P ; it makes you pay more for your boots." I could not help but smile. Here was a farmer railing out against the N. P. because another farmer had paid (as he thought) 25 or 50 cents more for a good pair of hand made boots than formerly, yet he would take double the price for his beef hides, pocket the money, and think nothing about its bearing on the N. P., because he was the gainer thereby. It is all very well to get double price for beef hides and thereby put $4 per 100 lbs. in his pocket, but to pay the shoemaker 50 cents or even 25 cents extra on a pair of boots was outrageous and showed how hard the N. P. was on the farmer.

This N.P. must be a most dangerous thing. Did it not cause the loss of a shipload of tea coming from China ? and did it not raise the price of tea in England and the States some 6 or 8 cents per lb.? and that raised the price in Canada Did not the N. P. cause the sugar crop to fall short and thereby raise the price of sugar? How are the people to stand the rise in price? If it had not been for the N. P. we would not have been bothered with sugar refineries in Canada to give us pure sugars. We would have had our sugars from New York or Boston, and have had the privilege of eating 40 per cent. of glucose adulteration to get 60 per cent. of sugar, besides a great many other things well adulterated which could be named.

Then again the N. P. is to be blamed for the large harvest. Did it not cause the fields to yield an abundant increase ? Yes, but the price of hay is too low. If the N. P. had not allowed so much to grow it would have brought better prices. Here again the farmers have cause to find fault. Then just look at the low price of Barley. Was it not the N. P. that brought about the ring with Belleville grain buyers, whereby the farmers were shaved out of several cents per bushel not only on their Barley, but Rye? Then again the N. P. has caused bad harvests in England and Ireland, in order to cause a rise in wheat and flour here; so as to make the poor man, the mechanic, the merchant and lumbermen pay more for their bread, and as a set off against which the farmer has to pay extra for his tea, sugar, &c. Now, Sir, have we not all cause for complaint against the N. P. and the promoters thereof ? It must be all Mr. Tilley's fault, but what are we to do?

Then, with all the evils the N. P. is bringing on the people, we find that without the consent of the Globe and other papers of that class the Finance Minister dared to go through the country and examine the various manufacturing and other industries which Sir Richard would think beneath the dignity of a Cabinet Minister. And all this done by Mr. Tilley to obtain information for his new budget speech to come off next February in Ottawa, as also to try and make the people believe the country is prosperous under Sir John A's. rule. But wait a bit till Mr. Blake gets hold of them, and then we shall see what we shall see. What will become of the N. P. then ? Is it not a very wicked thing, and ought it not to be labelled "poison ?" O, these men, were they be the destruction of our Dominion ?

When the Ministers were in Belleville they visited the new establishment of Mr. G. S. Tickell. That it tickled Mr. Tickell to such a degree that, good Reformer as he is, yet he feels well pleased with the visit and more so with the N. P., which is helping his business as against "Yankee competition," and no doubt if necessary would vote to maintain the principle. Still there are plenty of persons who believe the N. P. is "the wickedest thing in the world."

I once read of a little boy who ran in from the garden and said, "Mother, I have found the wickedest thing in the world, I am sure I have, do come and see it ; it must be a Presbyterian." The mother went to see, and found it to be what is called a "1,000-legged worm." The boy had heard his parents say that "Presbyterians were the wickedest things in the world," and he felt quite sure he had found one of them. So with the opponents of the N. P. If the price goes up, it is the doings of the N. P. If the price goes down, it is the fault of the N. P. ; and so the N. P. must be the "wickedest thing in the world." Alas, alas ! what is to become of Canada if the present Government retains power for four years more ! Please, Mr. Tilley, don't go about the country any more, or you will ruin the prospects of the grumblers, and destroy all their hopes of obtaining power.

Yours, &c., &c.,
BILL FLINT.

RETURNING PROSPERITY IN ENGLAND.—Evidences of returning prosperity in commerce are present on all sides. The trade in poultry, game, and turkeys was seldom so large as it has been this Christmas. In the book trade, 5,500 books were printed the past year.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 5.—Parnell telegraphs that he will visit Providence on the 17th.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The Bridge of Invalides has been destroyed by floating wreckage and ice. There is considerable damage in the Provinces around Nancy. 450 villagers were driven from their homes.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—At the anti-rent meeting held in Clarence, County Galway, on Sunday, 3,000 persons were present.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Ward, who was shot by her daughter, took place at Cambridge yesterday. The daughter was brought from jail, and on viewing the remains was deeply affected.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Jonathan Pusey's dry goods store was broken into yesterday from a vacant building in the rear. $5,000 worth of silks were stolen. One of the burglars was caught, and the property recovered.

FALL RIVER, MS., Jan. 5.—Two mill companies were convicted on Saturday on a charge of violating the statute limiting the hours of work for women and children to 60 hours per week. Each were fined $30 and costs. These are the first convictions under the statute.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The Herald's Augusta special says that Eugene Hale, speaking of the decision of the Judges, said yesterday there was nowhere any intimation that the Court acted in a partisan spirit. Speaking of the future policy of the Republicans, he says under this decision the twelve men from the five disfranchised cities must receive their certificates. They will appear to-day to demand them. The Republican representative elect from Farmington will be entitled to a certificate and will formally demand it to-day. The Republican representatives from Skowhegan, Webster, Ashland, Princeton, Fairfield, Searsport, Goldsboro and Newcastle, who were counted out, must when they make the demand to-day receive their certificates. The Republican Senators thrown out will demand their rights and will insist on being here. Hale thinks the decision will afford the Governor an honorable retreat from his position.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 —The Times' Albany despatch says : Hepburn's committee will present a bill which will probably contain a provision for a State Railway commission of three members, similar to that of Massachusetts.

The Herald's Washington special says that Whittehorne, of Tennessee, believes Grant's visit to Mexico is with the purpose of advancing a scheme for annexation, and that plans were arranged at San Francisco, the headquarters of the fillibuster element. He thinks success in this direction would bring him a large and enthusiastic following throughout the Southern States, where the annexation idea is very popular.

An explosion of sewer gas last night shook several houses in 42nd St., blew off the covers of man holes in five sewers, and hurled them great distances. The elevated Railroad was shaken up, and passengers frightened, but no one hurt.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, JANY. 5.

City and Vicinity.

QUIET.—Nothing doing in police circles. The cells were tenanted neither by prisoner nor by tramp last night.

SALE OF LANDS.—The County Treasurer's adjourned sale of lands for taxes will take place at the Court House on Wednesday next, 7th inst., at 10 a. m.

RAIN STORM.—That was a heavy rain storm which prevailed during the whole of Saturday night, and played havoc with the snow, which in places has almost disappeared. The January thaw evidently means business.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The union service commenced to-day with the noon-day prayer meeting in the Lecture Room of the Bridge Street church. This evening's meeting will be held in the M. E. Tabernacle, under the direction of the Rev. A. O. Cosar.

HIGH COURT.—A special sitting of the High Court of Justiciary and Judiciary is to be held at the Police Court to-night. The business will be the trial of libel suits brought by the Poet Gay against the Guelph Mercury and the Belleville Free Press.

NEW OPERA.—Messrs. Sullivan and Gilbert, the authors of "Pinafore," have produced another opera in New York, "The Pirates of Penzance," and it scored a success. The libretto is said to be very funny, and the music fit for grand opera, although not so popular in style as that of "Pinafore. This production will doubtless be heard in Belleville ere long.

SHIPBUILDING.—There is considerable activity manifested in the ship yard at Mill Point, and a large force of men are at present employed. The large schooner Edward Blake, which was ashore at Presqu Isle, is being repaired, as also is the steam barge Sazon, which was cut through with ice in the Beauharnois Canal, and the small steamers Desoronto and Pilgrim.

"ALVIN JOSLIN."—The Montreal Star thus notices the performance in that city of the above play, which is to be produced here on Friday evening next by Mr. C. L. Davis and his company:—"Mr. C. L. Davis appeared at the Royal last night in his own comedy, Alvin Joslin. The house was well filled, particularly in the upper quarters, and the engagement will be a success, as the entertainment is of the character which always draws good audiences to the Theatre Royal. As Alvin Joslin, the old Vermonter, Mr. Davis gives a striking and most laughable portraiture of what is popularly supposed to be a typical New England farmer. Mr. Davis is unrivalled in his own line and kept the house in roars whenever he appeared on the stage. Amongst the other characters in the cast one of the most noteworthy was Joe Baxter, the Bowery boy (Mr. C. W. Allison) who was too good to be keep in the background as much as he was. Mr. Fisher's Theophilus was a most extraordinary made-up, presenting a sephulchral-looking lawyer about six feet in height and thin in proportion. Miss Vern, as Julia Ford, acted as conscientiously, and Miss Leighton's Florence Sutherland was charming."

WALLBRIDGE'S NEW MILL.—Mr. Francis Wallbridge's flouring and grist mill at Shannonville is nearly ready for operation again, having been rebuilt and thoroughly refurnished with new machinery. It will be remembered that this mill was burned in July last, and Mr. Wallbridge has shown commendable enterprise in so soon refitting it for work. The work of rebuilding, which was commenced in August, with the millwright portion as well, has been done under the supervision of Mr. Thos. Earle, who was the original builder of the old mill. It contains three run of stone, and has separate and distinct bins and bolts for custom and merchant trade respectively, while it is so arranged as to keep coarse grains away from wheat. The whole mill is large, roomy and convenient, completely furnished with the most improved machinery, and throughout seems admirably designed to meet the wants of customers and supply the requirements for a large mercantile business. We wish Mr. Wallbridge success, without misfortune or loss in his newly fitted premises.

THE WATER SUPPLY.—Residents of the lower part of Murney Ward complain that persons owning horses in that vicinity water the animals at the public well in front of Mr. Brittona's thereby using up the water which should supply the wants of the people of the neighborhood, who cannot otherwise obtain water for domestic uses without carrying it from a long distance. This practice ought to be stopped, as the river is not far distant and horses ought to be watered there. It is to be hoped that this warning will not have to be repeated.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Sunday forenoon, 4th inst., Mr. S. S. Ellis, who lives near the village of Tweed, went to the barn to feed the cattle and otherwise look after his stock, but not returning for some time one of the inmates of the house went to the barn to call him, when he was found lying on his hands and knees behind the horse with life extinct. From the position of the body it is supposed he fell down in a fit, as it was found that he had vomited after having fallen and no mark was found on him except where in falling his forehead had apparently struck a pole in the barn. The deceased had long been in failing health. He was one of the oldest residents of the township, where he was long engaged in the business of trapping and dealing in furs. Of late years he had been engaged in farming almost exclusively. Of a jovial and cheerful disposition, his merry laugh and ever ready joke will long be remembered by his many friends in the township. His bereaved widow will receive the sympathy of a large circle of acquaintances.

The Elections.

The municipal elections, which took place to-day, although the weather was highly favorable, were not productive of much excitement. Probably the reason for this is that there was no contest for the Mayoralty this year, which reduced beyond doubt the number of votes polled, and withdrew public interest from the contest. In Foster Ward the work was hot, and in Murney, Coleman and Bleecker Wards there was a good deal of bustle. Of course nothing could be known as to how the election was proceeding, but the returns will be given to-night in an extra of the INTELLIGENCER.

Presentation.

On New Year's day the members of No. 1 company of the 15th Battalion (Capt. Henry Bleecker) and the regimental band marched to Canifton, where they were entertained to dinner at Fairman's Hotel by Capt. Bleecker. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were drank, and Capt. Bleecker was presented with the following address:—

TO HENRY BLEECKER, ESQUIRE, Captain of Number 1 Company, 15th Batt., Argyle Light Infantry.

SIR.—We, the members of your Company, desire to give expression to the sentiments of esteem we entertain for you as our senior officer and friend. Since you assumed the responsibilities of the position you now so worthily fill, we have marked with high appreciation the active interest you have taken to make the Company thorough in drill and discipline, a credit to our city, and a source of strength to the military forces of Canada.

During our relations with you, you have spared neither time, pains or money to advance our welfare, individual, moral and military; and you have won our admiration and regard, not only by your skill as an officer, but by your sociability, kindness and integrity as a man.

Should our country ever be invaded by foes from without or disturbed by dissensions from within, we shall feel it an honor to assist in maintaining under your leadership British supremacy and peace on the northern half of this Continent.

We are pleased to notice the efforts which are being made by the Dominion Government to revive and foster a military spirit amongst our people, believing that independently of purposes of defence the country at large will derive material and enduring benefit from the discipline and chivalrous character thereby engendered.

In conclusion we have to ask you to accept the accompanying souvenir as a token of our appreciation of your valuable services and as a mere feeble expression of the admiration and kindly feelings entertained for you by the members of your Company, who all hope you may be long spared to advance them by your instruction and encourage them by your exemplary conduct.

Signed by Sgt. Hambly and Sgt. Turner and Privates Anderson, Morton, Scott, Crothers and Ashton on behalf of the Company.

Capt. Bleecker, who was taken completely by surprise, replied briefly and feelingly, and on their return to town the company separated, well pleased with the day's proceedings.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 5.—Adjutant Baranoff, Russian commander of the gunboat Vesta during the Russo-Turkish war, who was court martialled and dismissed for insulting language in reference to the Ministry of Marine, has appealed against the judgment of the court. It is said that the Minister of Marine has presented a petition for the remission of the sentence and his own resignation simultaneously.

The punishment for carrying on political propaganda among the troops has been raised in consequence of recent disclosures showing activity of revolutionists in the army.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—A very serious affray occurred on Friday between the Royal Irish Constabulary and some peasants of Galway. The police fired on the people but nobody was injured. The Galway company is in a very disturbed condition. Two hundred extra policemen have been drafted there.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Schurz received the following:—Alamosa, Col., 4th Jan., Adams arrived last night. He advises that all Indians be taken to Washington immediately on their arrival here. (Signed.) Hatch, Commissioner.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The Celluloid Works are on fire, and reports it to have exploded. The entire city fire department are out.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5th.—A despatch from Kansas City asserts positively that Jesse James, the notorious outlaw, is dead, Geo. Shepard's shot having done its work. His wife is at the house of Mrs. Samuels, mother of the James boys, Clay Co. A coffin was received at the depot from Joplin, which, it is supposed, contained the body of Jesse.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—A fire broke out this morning in Turner Hall, 4th street, occupied by Wm. Winkle as a ball-room. The building was owned by the Turner Society. Loss $12,000. After the fire Wm. Geib, aged 10, Louis Schmidt, aged 30, Hy. Gehweiler, aged 25, and Teresa Erhardt, aged 25, were found on the top floor all dead. Winkle and wife were badly burned and sent to the hospital. Annie Bauer received internal injuries by jumping from the 4th story window and was badly burned, also an unknown woman had both legs broken by jumping from the top floor.

2nd dispatch—Turner Hall's in 4th street between Bowery and 2nd Avenue. The fire was discovered about 5 this morning. It was known that Winkle, the proprietor, with his wife and employees slept in the building, and before the front doors could be broken open several of them appeared at the upper windows imploring help, even after the doors had yielded the unfortunate inmates could not be reached, as the flames swept up the broad and only stairway. The foreman went on to the roof of an adjoining house hoping to release the imperilled people by means of a scuttle, but there was not a scuttle to the building in which they were confined. A hole had to be cut through the roof, and by this means only were they reached. By this time four persons had been burned or suffocated to death. The fire burned out and inside of the building and the firemen were obliged to crawl through the smoke on their hands and knees to recover corpses that were found within. The origin of the fire is unknown. It broke out in a restaurant on the lower floor and swept up the broad stairway like a flash of lightning. During the night there had been a wedding celebration in the building, but the guests had all departed by 2 a. m.

SOUTH CARVER, Mass., Jan. 5.—Jenkins Manufacturing Company's braid mill was burned yesterday. Loss $70,000.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 5. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh easterly to southerly winds, partly cloudy, mild weather.

FAMINE IN ARMENIA.—A Constantinople despatch says a terrible famine prevails in the districts of Baskaleh and Bayazid in Armenia. The authorities are helpless. It is feared the famine will become general in the eastern frontier of Turkey.

PARICIDE AND SUICIDE.—A highly respected young lady of Lyons, N. Y., entered her father's store on Saturday and shot him through the temple, causing instant death. Then, reloading the pistol, she shot herself fatally through the head. It is supposed that she had a fit of insanity.

ACQUIRING A NEW RAILWAY.—It is reported that the Grand Trunk Railway have acquired, or are about acquiring the International Railway with a view of completing their road and forming a connection with the New Brunswick Railway, thus making an air-line to the Maritime Provinces, and offering serious competition to the Intercolonial Railway.

A POLITICAL PINAFORE.—Mr. Arnold, manager of the Shaughraun Co., has gone to New York for the purpose of engaging a company and securing the necessary wardrobe for a political burlesque Pinafore, which will be produced by Mr. McDowell and his new company for the first time the latter end of this month in Toronto. The opporetta has been written, and is said to be very clever. The characters to be introduced are Sir John Macdonald, Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, Hon. George Brown, Sir Samuel Tilley and other members of the administration, and the representations will be as correct as art will permit.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

CHEESE.—Messrs. Hodgson Brothers Market report of the 20th Dec. quotes,: Cheese, There is a rather firmer feeling in the trade—retailers, who have evidently been holding back as long as possible, having come forward and bought for Christmas stock at prices up to 6c. to 6⅞ for finest September makes. We also note that some wholesale houses, who usually deal principally in English manufacture, are now enquiring after American, and offering up to 6½ to 6⅞ for Cheese to sell—not to hold. There is no doubt that our home makes are about exhausted, and where a few extra choice is still unsold, we hear 8½ to 9c per 120 lbs. is demanded for it. There is a strong enquiry for medium Cheese at 4½ to 5½, but no stock to be had. Total shipments leaving New York this week to England and Scotland, 40,462 boxes.

FOUND DEAD.

TWEED, Jan. 5th.—Mr. Stephen Ellis was found dead in his barn yesterday. He went out to feed his cattle, as well as usual, and a short time after was found dead.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1879, and says:—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

From the steady, firm and regular beat of the Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action of that organ, demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. ly

Hints for the Work of the Month.

From the American Agriculturist for January.

How do You Stand?—One cannot lay out his work to advantage, without knowing precisely how he stands with regard to his business. The beginning of the year is the appropriate time for ascertaining it. Frequently an account of business is kept for a month or two, and then neglected. If it is only to encourage habits of regularity and perseverance, it will be time well spent to keep an account not only of money affairs, but a record of events for every day. This tends to beget promptness and system in every detail of farm work, and in business affairs that foresight and economy which are everywhere the prime essentials to success.

Keep a record of the events of each day's work, and farm life. One of the boys or girls should do this. A book will be needed, ruled with plain lines, on which to make the entries; put down the condition of the weather, the work done, and by whom: purchases and sales made; indeed, anything that may be needed for future reference, or that should be entered in the account book, which will thus become valuable and interesting records of the farm.

Make an Inventory:—Put down every thing you possess, from the farm itself to the small tools and utensils, and value each item fairly. Enter the money on hand, and also every debt owed. The property owned, and money on hand, will be on one side of the account, and the debts on the other. The balance will show just how the the farmer stands. This account will be the Account of Stock.

Purchases and Sales, are entered in the daily record, and from that into a purchase and sale book; except the cash transactions, which go into the cash book.

The Cash Book.—Every payment and receipt of money for purchases, sales, or for wages should be entered in the cash book; this should be done every evening, and before it is forgotten; all these entries are transferred to the ledger to the proper accounts. The work is very simple and easy, and there are farmer's girls who keep all their father's accounts in the most accurate manner.

Hiring Men.—A farmer should try to make work for a hired man, or several if possible. If he can find profitable work for them, he is making money for himself. A few months' wages spent in procuring or making manure, draining, clearing off stone, getting out stumps, or otherwise making the farm more productive, will be well invested.

Keep the Stables Clean; clear out the manure every morning, and scrape or cart off all filth from the animals. The stable should be made so warm that the manure will not freeze at night; a lower temperature will either demand a larger amount of food, or the animals will fall off in condition.

Pile the manure in square and compact heaps; and if it is not frozen when thrown out, it will heat and ferment in the pile; but if once frozen it will be likely to remain so during all the cold weather.

In the Southern States, the work of making compost heaps should go on rapidly this month. Time is needed in making compost; raw mixtures are not fit for fertilizers, until the materials are decomposed. A bushel of lime added to each load will hasten the decay of the materials of the compost heap, and cotton seed, well soaked with water, will soon heat and warm up a large pile of compost.

Cut the Litter.—If the litter is cut into 3-inch lengths, or even smaller, it will hold more moisture, will make better and finer manure, and will keep the animals cleaner than long litter. The gain in the quality of the manure, in one year, the saving in time handling, and increased effectiveness of it, will pay good interest on the cost of a windmill, and a fodder-cutter, to do the cutting. But if the stormy and disagreeable days are chosen to cut up straw for this purpose, an abundant supply can be made. A broad axe can be purchased for $2.50, and with this and a block a sheaf of straw may be cut into 3-inch chaff in half a minute. Two persons, one to hold the sheaf on the block or plank, and the other to use the axe, would soon cut up a ton of straw. Where hardwood sawdust, dry swamp muck, or pine straw can be produced, these make excellent litter and manure.

Economy in Feeding, is a very important consideration. In some cases half the feed used is wasted. Cutting the fodder has proved a saving of one-third to one-half. Where but 10 head of stock are fed, if the feed of one-third or one-half can be saved, it is simply a larger increase of the resources of the farm, and is sufficient to pay the cost of a good cutter and the time expended in cutting.

Watering Stock. The supply of water in winter is a source of trouble. Ice gathers about the troughs and other drinking places; pipes freeze and burst, or become choked, and many other inconveniences occur. These may be avoided by methodical management. Have regular watering periods, twice a day. Fill the troughs from the pumps or cisterns, and drive the cattle to them and see that they drink. When all are supplied, empty the troughs, and either cover them or turn them over. Have no flowing water in the yards to waste and freeze, or become ice-cold for drinking. A cold drink will reduce the milk from the cows 10 per cent or more.

The Milk-Room or Spring-House.—Frozen cream will not make good butter. To prevent milk from freezing, have a small stove in the dairy, and in the spring-house make a covered box over the spring. Where a run from a spring can be brought in pipes, a Cooley creamery can be used during the winter with great advantage; keeping an even temperature equal to that in the summer when ice is used.

Horses.—When not at work the horses need but little grain, if sufficient good hay is given. But as hay is generally dusty, the long hay is wasted in eating, we find it economical to cut and wet the fodder, and give 3 quarts daily of bran or ground feed. The hay saved will pay for the meal, and the increased value of the manure will pay for the labor. The moist feed prevents injury to the horses from breathing the dust from dry hay.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

December 19th, 1878. Yours truly, J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES
SYR: HYPOPHOS. COMP: FELLOWS.

GENERAL DEBILITY

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Ravenna, Mercer Co., Missouri, May, 1879.
The Fellows Medical Manufacturing, Co.

Gents.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

Yet this man followed the dangerous profession of a Bow-street runner—a profession which none but the bravest and firmest-hearted of men could undertake. And in that profession he had risen to the very first rank, none surpassing and few equalling him in expertness, ingenuity, and daring. The more difficult and dangerous the commission with which he was entrusted, the more he relished it. He was never more in his element than when hunting great and desperate criminals, and the business which was now put into his hands was much to his liking. It was the greatest bank robbery which had ever come within his professional experience, and the manner in which it had been executed showed that its authors were at the very top of their profession, and must be criminal whose capture would add greatly to his fame.

'Well, Mr. Vickery,' said Walkinshaw to him, 'we are in your hands, it seems. What do you propose to do?'

'To go first to the Stamford Coach Office,' replied the detective with a smile; and being a man of few words he opened a door, walked out, and motioned to them to follow him.

A coach was immediately procured, and the four having got into it rattled of.

The waiter from Wellwyn, being new to London, did not see the propriety of being driven along the streets in a carriage the windows of which were blinded, and he was in the act of pulling one up to obtain a glimpse of the busy thoroughfare when the detective quietly restrained him.

'You must not do that, young man,' he observed. 'We cannot have the blinds to be drawn down, and I did it on purpose. Suppose any of the rogues we wish to run to earth should pass on the pavement and get a glimpse of you and me seated here together, they would smell a rat in a moment, and get into hiding. Whoever they are, they are sure to know me, and you they will remember seeing at the inn.'

This explanation removed the general surprise, and they sat in semi-darkness until the cab drew up at the office of the Stamford coach, when the waybill of the coach for the previous day was at once submitted to their inspection.

'Is that delivered?' he asked, laying his finger on a particular address.

'Yes,' was the answer; it was delivered yesterday.'

'Was the address all right?'

'No, it seems the name was mis-spelt. The blacksmith's name isn't ——'

'Isn't Scaltop, but Scoltcock,' interrupted the detective quickly.

'You are right. You know the man?'

'Hum!—fancy I do. Good morning. I have found what I wanted.'

And Vickery, having written his address in his notebook, handed back the way-bill and took his leave, the others going back with him to the chaise.

'To Tottenham-court-road,' he whispered to the driver, as he stepped in, and away they went again at the same smart pace.

'Well, I think I know your men,' said the officer, addressing Walkinshaw and the cashier.

'Have you found them from the entry?' asked Walkinshaw, who, as well as the others, was highly excited.

'Not altogether,' replied the detective. 'From the description you gave I had my suspicions, but this address confirms them. You can look at it.'

He held out his note-book as he spoke, and the words written were, 'Mr. Little at Mr. Scaltop's stoverage and locksmith, 96 Tottenham-court-road.'

You know Little and Scaltop, then?' said the cashier.

Vickery laughed. 'Little is an alias, and Scaltop is a misnomer,' he observed. To begin with, Scaltop is Scoltcock, the cleverest maker of skeleton keys in England, and I know he supplies them to one-half of the burglars in London. He's the man who made the key that opened your Bank doors and safes. Then this Mr. Little is the modest name assumed by a notorious housebreaker and highway-man, whose real name is Huffey White. He made his escape from the hulks at Portsmouth not long ago, and we have been on the outlook for him ever since. He had been too close for us till now, and, in truth, I did not expect to come across him till something of this kind brought him once more into notice. The second man of the three who operated in Glasgow I take to be Harry French, another escaped convict, whom we have been trying to lay our hands on.'

'And the third?' said Walkinshaw.

'The third man, I have no doubt whatever, is Jim M'Koul, the cleverest scoundrel of them all. He is the tall, stout, red-faced man that our friend Connington here speaks of—he who seemed the director of affairs at Wellwyn. Of course he was he was the leader of the whole business. Oh, a most clever rascal is this Jim M'Koul, for you must know he has got education, and the others haven't, and that's why he has managed to keep out of our clutches. He ought to have been hanged a dozen times over, if he had got his deserts for the desperate robberies he had committed. But somehow or other, his luck and cleverness have stood him in good stead and never yet have we had proof to convict him. I nearly nicked him seven years ago, but he vanished, and London has been rid of him till now, though I suspect the provinces have been at the expense of that. This time I hope to secure him effectually, and, egad, gentlemen, the thought is refreshing, for, let me tell you, there isn't a detective in the force that hasn't longed to have the honor of placing the darbies on the wrists of Jim M'Koul.'

'But the money!' exclaimed the cashier 'Shall we recover that?'

'Hum!—we'll do it if we can, but we have a cunning fox to deal with, and it will take all our skill to make him disgorge the booty. The size of it will make him ply every art of which he is the master. Twenty thousand! What a magnificent plant! They'll mean to bolt abroad with it, but our advantage lies in getting so quickly on their track. As they cannot expect that we have a clue, our sudden pounce must take them by surprise, and we may nab the cash before they have time to hide it.'

'I hope we shall,' said Walkinshaw, fervently and the cashier echoed the wish from the very bottom of his heart.

Just then the chaise came to a stand, and the driver, opening an aperture, whispered —'Here we are at the corner of Tottenham court-road.'

They got out accordingly, and the driver was directed to wait where he was.

'Now, follow me,' whispered the officer, 'but don't seem as if you were in my company. Close up when I give you the signal.'

He glided on through the crowd, and the others followed, according to the directions they had received.

A policeman was sauntering along the pavement in the same direction, and Vickery, in passing, touched his elbow.

'Evans, he whispered, get two or three from the neighbouring beats, and be at hand at Scoltcock's. You may be wanted.'

Evans, who was well up to his business, never looked at Vickery, but gave a brief intelligent nod, and the detective, seeing he was understood, passed on. For a moment the policeman sauntered forward at the same leisurely pace, then he turned into another street, and in a moment more was holding a conversation with a brother of the force.

Vickery went on, the others following at a short distance behind. At length he stood still, gave one glance back, and beckoned solemnly with his head.

The others went up and joined him.

They were at the entrance to a shop in the window of which was a stovegrate and other articles of iron manufacture; on the side of the door was "No., 96" and above the door, in faded letters, the name "Scoltcock."

It was an innocent enough looking shop, rather dirty and dingy inside, but stovegrates and such like articles have not a very bright look, and the absence of cleanliness was not particularly remarkable. One half of the door was open, no one was visible within.

On the entrance of the group, however the door at the back was opened with a whirring noise, and two little fellows of, it might be, the ages of ten and twelve, made their appearance. A single glance served to show that they were brothers, the likeness between them being so striking. They were equally ragged and dirty, had uncombed mops of hair of the same whity-brown hue, the same preternatural sharpness of countenance, and the same glancing gleaming eyes, which had a furtively cunning look.

'Father in!' asked Vickery, after surveying them a moment with the keenest of his eagle glances.

'No,' answered the eldest, shortly and curtly, eying his questioner the while with evident suspicion.

'Where is he!'

'Don't know.'

'Um! Where's your mother then!'

'Don't know.'

'She's in, isn't she!'

'No, she isn't.'

'And you don't know where she is either.

'No.'

'Oh, come, that won't do. Who is in, then!'

'Nobody but Ben and me.'

'A likely thing that is,' said the detective, forcing his way into the back part of the premises.

The statement appeared to be true, however. The sitting apartment and the two sleeping apartments were nearly unfurnished, and presented no sign of occupants. So far as could be seen, the two children were the only inmates of the dwelling.

The locksmith's workshop was below, and thither they descended by a steep wooden stairs. The forge fire was out, and the ashes were cold and nobody at work.

The boys had followed them to the lower region and watched in silence, but with keen attention, every movement—both eyes and ears seeming to be on the alert to understand the purpose of their visit.

'Look here, young 'uns,' said the detective; 'where is the portmanteau that was brought here yesterday!'

'Don't know; never saw no portmanteau, Did we Ben!'

'Your father was at home yesterday, wasn't he!'

To this question the invariable 'Don't know' was half returned, when the urchin saw that this could not pass, and changed the answer to 'No, he wasn't.'

'Who was in the shop then!'

'Me and Ben.'

'What! all day!'

'Every bit of it. Wasn't we, Ben!'

'The whole blessed day,' said Ben.

'Then you can know about the portmanteau. Where is it!'

'Never saw no portmanteau,' said the boy, stoutly.

Seeing that nothing was to be made by questioning Vickery proceeded to search the premises, and in the darkest corner of the workshop, half covered over with a quantity of old iron, he came upon a square box, which was locked and addressed. He extricated it from the superincumbent mass and bringing it to the light examined the address.

'So' ho!' he cried, 'This is for "Mr. Little, at Mr. Scalop's," likewise, and written by the same hand I have no doubt.'

Seizing a hammer which lay near, he knocked off the lid, when a sight met their eyes which confirmed all former suspicions. The box was filled with skeleton keys, blanks, files, punches, and kindred articles.

'The very identical!' said the detective, in a quiet tone, yet with a certain air of triumph. 'I'll guarantee, Mr. Lisely, that some of these keys will fit your doors and strong boxes. Now, my pippins,' he added, turning suddenly round to the boys, and speaking very sternly, 'you had better trifle no longer with me. Where is the portmanteau!'

The same answer of 'don't know' was returned, but this time more sullenly.

'Perhaps you don't know who I am, said Vickery. 'I am a Bow street officer, and I know as well as you do about the portmanteau that came by the Stamford coach and was delivered here yesterday. And that portmanteau I must have. If you refuse to tell me where it is I'll handcuff you, and take you to prison.'

At this the boys grew terrified, and burst out a crying.

'Who took it away!'

'Mother came and got it,' bawled the eldest boy, at the sight of the handcuffs.

'Well, where are your mother and father living! Tell me that, or ——'

'No. 5, Tower-street, St. George's-field, roared the boy, in terror.

'Oh, oh; within the rules of the Queen's Bench. Just wait a moment, gentlemen.'

He ascended the stairs, and was gone for a minute, when he returned with two policemen. One of them he directed to remain on the premises, and watch the boys, so as not to allow them to leave the place. The other man he ordered to lift the box and carry it to Bow-street.

These orders given, he motioned to Walkinshaw and the others to follow, and when they gained the street they re-entered the chaise, and drove away to Tower-street.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 6.

A Mare's Nest.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Globe has found another mare's nest in the relative prices of grain in Chicago and in that city ; he says :

"On the 22d inst. No. 2 fall wheat was quoted at $1.32½ to $1.33½ in Chicago, and on the same day at Toronto and Ottawa a superior article was only quoted at $1.33, although the latter points had an immense difference in distance from the Liverpool market in their favor as against Chicago."

From which one would infer that wheat is relatively dearer in Chicago than in Canada ; but with characteristic unfairness the Globe does not give the reason for the relative difference in favor of Chicago, as being caused entirely by the fictitious prices of grain there at the present time, caused by the manipulators of the grain rings,—as will be plainly seen by comparing the prices of wheat in Chicago with the price in New York. No. 2 Fall wheat in Chicago was quoted at $1.33, at the same time wheat was quoted in New York at $1.49—or only 16 cents difference,—whilst the freight and charges on wheat from Chicago to New York is 28c. per bushel ; showing that grain is 12c. per bushel relatively dearer in Chicago than in New York. At the same time Liverpool prices were 4c. per bush. lower than New York—which shows the price of wheat in Chicago as 16c. per bushel dearer than in Liverpool.

By the above figures it will be seen that the price of wheat in Chicago at the present time is not caused by the laws of supply and demand, but is ruled by a ring of speculators, and is no basis upon which to gauge the value of grain with us.

PARNELL.—The Irish Catholic Benevolent Union of this city have invited Mr. Parnell to visit Belleville on his coming tour.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY TOTAL ABSTINENCE MOVEMENT.—Mr. W. J. Spicer, Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, who has taken a practical interest in the total abstinence movement among the employees of the company, has issued a circular asking all who have signed the pledge to renew it at the beginning of the year. The movement was started in 1873, and has been in successful operation ever since. Mr. Spicer deserves credit for the interest he has taken in it. It is in the interests of the travelling public as well as of the company that the employees be not only temperate in their habits but total abstainers.

THE TAY BRIDGE DISASTER.—The Tay bridge disaster is still earnestly discussed. The investigation is steadily progressing. How many lives were lost is still a matter of uncertainty. Only one thing alone is sure, that no man escaped from the Frith of Tay. Edgar Gilkes, builder of the bridge, telegraphs :—Present evidence indicates some other forces than tempest were acting with it and caused the destruction of the girder. The velocity of the wind, as registered at Dundee on the night of the disaster was 42. This amount of pressure was quite sufficient to overset the train and guard rails on the windward side, and could not prevent the upper part of the carriages from striking the girders. This might cause damage by destroying the unity of the leeward girder, and another violent gust would bring about complete ruin.

INDEPENDENT FORESTRY BOOMING.—The London Free Press says :—" This benevolent Order, since the changes in its endowment law were made by the Supreme Court, at its session here in October last, seems to have become more popular than ever. The High Court, under the able leadership of Dr. Oronhyatekha, H. C. R., and Col. Attwood, H. S., has instituted five new Courts, with over a hundred charter members, while in the same time 114 new members have been admitted to the Order in the Courts in London alone, among them being some of our leading professional and business men. The Order now pays $1,000, $2,000 and $3,000 in endowments. The late Mr. Bonnet's family are to get $1,000 from the Supreme Court, while that court of which he was a member has contributed for funeral and sick benefits about $40. Dr. Oronhyatekha has been in negotiation for some time back with the R. W. H. C. R. of the Canadian Independent Order, with the view of reuniting the two bodies, and which were brought to a successful issue this week. Court Brant, No. 2, of Brantford, therefore, resumes her old position in the Order, and we have no doubt will soon again be what she was formerly—second to none in the ranks of the Independent Order of Foresters. The Court formed in Belleville last summer, we understand is in a very flourishing condition."

" Will your mother ever marry again ?" he inquired. " Not with my approval," she answered ; " such is my opinion thus far, and not a step-father."

The Hastings Directory.

This work, which has entailed a large expenditure of labor and money, has, after several months of preparation, at length been issued from the INTELLIGENCER job printing office. It contains nearly 300 pages of local information and advertisements, and is, we venture to say, the most complete, the most correct, and the most reliable and authentic County Directory published in Canada. It comprises, in the first place, a complete description of the County of Hastings, including its location, lengthy notes on its manufacturing resources, mineral wealth, character of soil, convenience to the markets of the world and other matters of interest, in addition to an alphabetical list of the residents of the various municipalities, whose status as tenants or freeholders is distinguished, and also the Post Office of every resident is given, greatly to the advantage of business men. The railways are also described, the rivers with their courses are specified, the flora of the region is delineated, the productions of soil and forest are particularized, elaborate descriptions of our gold and iron mines are given, and information is given very fully as to the Free Grant Territories; all this information being supplied by gentlemen who are thoroughly capable of discharging the tasks entrusted to them in a satisfactory manner.

In the way of County information we also have the names of the members of the Senate, House of Commons, Ontario Legislature, and County Council ; the County officers, Inspectors of Public Schools, Division Court Clerks, Agricultural Societies, License Inspectors and Commissioners ; Post Offices ; arrival and departure of Mails ; Loyal Orange Institution, and a synopsis of the most important of the County By-laws, covering many pages.

Following this is a large amount of general information, including the Royal Family, the Cabinet and officers ; the Senate and Officers ; the House of Commons and Officers, with forms of petition to each body ; the Provincial Legislature and Officers ; and the Governments of each of the Provinces of the Dominion, together with general postal information.

Next we have a lengthy historical sketch of the City of Belleville, with its religious, educational, and other institutions, including the Press, Trade, Manufactures, Natural Advantages, City Government, Board of Education, Police Department, Fire Department, Administration of Justice, County Officials, Custom House, Inland Revenue, Post Office, License Department, Weights and Measures, Marriage License Issuers, Banks, Churches and Pastors, Educational, Associations and Societies, Railways, Volunteer Militia. Deaf and Dumb Institution, a synopsis of the principal Bylaws, &c.

The alphabetical directory contains a complete list of the principal residents of Belleville, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, Bridgewater, Carlow and Mayo, Dungannon and Faraday, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, Foxboro, Frankford, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Madoc Village and Township, Marmora and Lake, Milltown, Mill Point, Monteagle and Herschel, Rawdon, Sidney, Stirling, Thomasburg, Thurlow, Trenton, Tyendinaga, Tweed, Tudor, including Wollaston, Limerick and Cashel, comprising all the municipalities in Hastings, and in addition the Township of Ameliasburg and the villages of Rednersville, Roblin's Mills and Rossmore, in the County of Prince Edward, which trade principally if not wholly with this city.

The work is completed by an accurately drawn map of the County of Hastings, which contains plans of the City of Belleville and the Villages of Shannonville, Trenton, Marmora, Mill Point, Stirling, Madoc, and Bridgewater, prepared expressly for this work by Messrs. Evans & Bolger, P. L. S., of this city.

The book is handsomely bound, and as a work of reference will be found valuable in the highest degree, the labor of preparation having been undergone by gentlemen thoroughly acquainted with their special subjects. The intimate acquaintance of the compiler with the locality and with names, &c., has prevented the mistakes with which directories usually abound, and we leave the work to the notice of our contemporaries and the public, satisfied that the task of preparing it has been well and faithfully discharged, and confident that those who examine it cannot fail to pronounce it the best and most complete and most accurate County Directory published in Canada.

A Million People Starving.

Archbishop Lynch, who has recently returned from a visit to Ireland, has published the following letter in the Toronto papers :—

SIR,—Permit me to assure the public that from personal observation there is a wide spread distress in Ireland and in the countries mentioned in the letter of Her Grace the Duchess of Marlborough. Starvation stares the people in the face if they are not succored. The bishops of Ireland testify to the general distress in those countries. There appears to be a vague notion in the minds of some that there is no destitution in Ireland unless the people there die of starvation. There are at least a million of people in that unhappy country who do not get the nourishing food of peasants of their class in the other nations of Europe, and they are certainly worse clothed. I have seen more women and children barefooted in Ireland than in England, Germany, France and Italy together. I visited the schools in more than one city in Ireland and found the children miserably clad. The majority barefooted and hunger clearly depicted on their otherwise interesting countenances. And this is the state of the majority of the poor schools of Scotland. The nuns who taught those schools have assured me that it sickens them to enter the class rooms to teach dear children disheartened with hunger. They curtail their own means to share with them. One said : "Our children are very good, they always share their lunch with their poorer companions, but it shames us to see those poor little ones devour the little bread they get." This want is so general that in a fertile country it is a disgrace to a civilized nation. Such a state of things cannot last long in the 19th century. It is quite true, as has been said, that the lay leaders of the people refuse to beg, but I know it to be rather from national pride and sullenness than because there is no grievous distress. Yours &c., John Joseph Lynch, Archbishp of Toronto.

—The traffic of the Great Western Railway for the week ending Dec. 26, showed an increase of $40.391 over the receipts of the corresponding week of the preceding year.

—Iron ore is being shipped from the Baldwin mines, Ottawa County, to Ohio, by the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway, at the rate of fifty tons per day.

"William" observed a Milwaukee woman to her husband, "Mrs. Holcomb feels pretty badly now, since the loss of her child. I wish you would drop over there and see her. You might say that all flesh is grass; that we've all got to go the same way ; and see if she is going to use her dripping-pan this afternoon."

COLEMAN WARD.—James St. Charles, Amos E. Proctor, and Wm. A. Ostrom.

MURNEY WARD.—Albert L. Geen, Jos. G. Vandusen, and David Holden.

Thus there are six new members in the Council this year.

Argenteuil Election Trial.

THE ELECTION VOIDED.

LACHUTE, Jrn. 5.—The trial of the Argenteuil election case upon the merits was commenced and concluded here to-day before Hon. Justice Belanger. Mr. R. McIntyre of Grenville and Thomas S. Higginson of Ottawa, both Conservatives, gave evidence that Higginson promised to pay McIntyre an old account of $25 to influence him, which respondent's counsel admitted as sufficient to void the election on a strict interpretation of the election law. The election was consequently voided, Dr. Christie, the member unseated, was a Reformer. He will be opposed by Hon. J. J. C. Abbott.

Fearful Explosion.

THREE KILLED AND 20 WOUNDED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—A fearful explosion occurred at ten o'clock this morning in the converting room of the Celluloid Manufacturing Company. Three of the men were instantly killed, 20 of these so burned that they cannot survive. The workmen were in their accustomed places when, without promotion, from some unknown cause, a mass of Celluloid, a highly inflammable material, suddenly exploded, destroying a one story brick building with all its contents. The victims are Wm. Fenter, aged 15, whose body was found in the ruins a ghastly spectacle. Under him lay the disfigured body of Frederick Stiles of Roselle, so charred, it was scarcely recognizable. John Yates was also killed. Spencer Atwood died in 20 minutes from concussion of the brain. Elmore Bogart and Frank Pierce, Newark, were also fearfully burned and taken to the hospital. No hopes of their recovery. Stephen W. Wade, seriously but not dangerously injured. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

News Condensed.

—A number of Canada Pacific Railway engineers will shortly be dismissed.

—The mill property of Samuel Platt, near Goderich, with a number of cows and other animals, was destroyed by a freshet on the 4th inst.

—The report that Hon. Letellier deSt. Just is in a dangerous condition is contradicted. On the contrary, he is in a fair way of recovery.

—Three of the parties who took part in the recent cockfight in Ottawa were on Saturday morning fined $10 and costs each by the Police Magistrate.

—His Excellency the Governor-General gave a skating and tobogganning party at Rideau Hall on Saturday afternoon, which was largely attended. The sport was of the most exciting character.

—Application will be made at the next session of Parliament for an Act to incorporate a company for the construction of the proposed railway between Toronto and Ottawa.

—It if said that the Toronto, Gray and Bruce Railway in connection with their contemplated change of gauge have made an arrangement with the Grand Trunk by which the rolling stock of the latter will run over the new line.

—Mr. Ex-Mayor Medcalf, Toronto, has been prostrated with a paralytic attack, which has partially deprived him of the use of his legs. He is in his 77th year and is otherwise enjoying good health.

I DESIRE publicly to thank my friends for the very liberal manner in which they supported me, at the election in Ketcheson Ward yesterday.

CHANCERY SALE

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say :

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 166 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 20½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without interest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

City and Vicinity.

SALE OF LANDS.—The County Treasurer's sale of lands for taxes will take place at the Court House at 10 a. m. to-morrow.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The meeting for to-night will be held in the Bridge Street Church. Rev. Dr. Jaques and Mr. A. G. Northrup will deliver addresses.

IRON ORE.—Sixteen-car loads of iron ore formed part of the train over the North Hastings Railway this morning. The product of other mines besides the Seymour and Dufferin is now being shipped.

APPOINTMENT.—Mr. John D. Breeze of Bridgewater, has received an appointment in the Inland Revenue Department here. Mr. Breeze will make a thoroughly efficient officer.

PRESENTATION.—The poet Gay was today presented by a few of his admirers, with a beautiful large medal in the form of a horse shoe. What with the result of the trial and the presentation of this medal, the poet seems ten years younger to-day than yesterday.

DOMINION ALLIANCE.—The annual meeting of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, will be held in the City of Toronto on the 15th January. All Temperance workers are cordially invited. Railway certificates can be procured from Mr. Thos. Caswell, Toronto.

SCHOOL ELECTIONS.—Polls will be opened in Ketcheson and Murney Wards—the only divisions in which there is a contest—to-morrow. In the former Ward Dr. Wilson is opposed by Dr. Potts, and in the latter Mr. James Glass has Mr. Stephen Garratt as an opponent.

MAYOR OF NAPANEE.—A selegram from Napanee informs us that Mr. Alex. Henry, of the Standard, has been elected Mayor of that town by a majority of 129 over his opponent. We congratulate our old friend and confrere on his elevation to the position, which we are sure he will fill with credit to himself and honor to the town.

COMMITTED.—The young lad Page, who recently burglarized the branch store of Messrs. A. E. Fish & Co., in Madoc, showed constable Sills, of Madoc, where the stolen were hidden and all have been recovered. The thief was brought before A. F. Wood, Esq., J. P., and committed for trial. He is now in gaol here.

THE "JAPS."—Irving's Royal Jackite-Chy Japanese troupe will appear here on Saturday in a matinee and in an evening performance. Speaking of an entertainment at which they appeared in that city, the Boston Herald says: "Irving's Royal Jackite-Chy Japanese troupe appeared then, as well as later in the evening, in some of their remarkable feats of juggling, balancing, etc., fairly holding the house spell-bound with their skill and daring." Seats can be secured at Reynolds'.

GREAT TRIAL.—A large audience thronged the Police Court last night, on the occasion of the special session of the High Court of Justiciary and Judiciary for the trial of libel suits brought by the Poet Gay against the Guelph Mercury and the Belleville Free Press. The cases, which were tried conjointly before a highly intelligent jury, proved to be most interesting, the Poet's testimony being very powerful and unshaken by a severe and lengthy cross-examination. Able counsel championed the litigants on both sides, and the result was a verdict of $10,000 against the Guelph paper and $5,000 against the Belleville paper. The Poet was rich last night, provided he did not want to use the money right away, but this morning he felt poorer, as notice of appeal was given in both cases.

Irish Catholic Benevolent Union.

The annual meeting of the Society of the Sons of St. Patrick I. C. B. U. No. 21, was held last night in their Hall, Robertson's Block. There was a large attendance. The financial statement was read by the auditors, showing a good balance in their hands to the credit of the Society. Reports were read from various Committees as to the affairs of the Association. Afterwards the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—E. McMahon, re-elected.
1st Vice President—E. H. La Roche.
2nd Vice President—Jos. Turley.
Treasurer—S. Sidley, re-elected.
Rec.-Secretary—H. Holland.
Financial Secretary—W. Coughlin.
Tyler—H. Geary.

John Coughlin was elected delegate to the next Annual Convention of the Union, held this year in Stratford.

Before the meeting adjourned the President addressed the members upon the question now occupying so much attention of the Irish people of tais continent—the relief of the poor in Ireland. It was resolved to invite Mr. Parnell to Belleville to address a meeting. The President stated amid hearty cheers that an Irish Protestant gentleman in Belleville had generously offered $25. towards the distress fund. Steps will be at once taken to enlist the sympathy of Irishmen of all denominations in the proposed scheme. After a number of speeches the society adjourned.

AMERICAN.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 5.—The new Mormon Tabernacle, which has been three years in course of erection, was opened on Saturday by a Conference. Apostle President Taylor attacked enemies of Polygamy severely, and censuring the Nation for opposition to the choice of the institution of Mormonism. Now he wanted to see whether heaven or Uncle Sam was going to prevail, for his part he was going to stick to the Lord.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 6—It is thought that the Governor will appoint as United States Senator, Luke Pryor, Houston's law partner.

BROWNSVILLE, Jan. 6.—George Williams, a colored desperado, attempted to escape from gaol yesterday afternoon. He snatched a revolver from the keeper and shot him twice, he was tripped up and fell down stairs with the pistol in his hand, and from the bottom shot at Henry Oppenheimer, who opposed his flight. The latter shot Williams dead.

NEW YORK, January 6.—Haigh's forgeries amount to a hundred thousand dollars, according to his own confession. Several bankers beside grocers, are now mentioned as sufferers, among them the Park bank, Bowery National bank. Chatham National bank. Anderson & Co., Fitteburg, iron manufacturers, are creditors $125.000. It is stated that Haigh perpetrated extensive forgeries some years ago, but made good the amounts, and was not prosecuted. He suffered by the rejection of $75,000 bills of defective wire by the East River bridge Co., with whom he contracted. It is stated he made several attempts to clandestinely mix this defective wire with perfect material, but the attempt was discovered.

SIR,—As the Ontario Legislature is about to meet for the despatch of business, this is perhaps not an inopportune moment to call the attention of its members to a matter of grave importance, requiring immediate legislation,—the rapid destruction of our forest primeval.

The evil effects upon climate, crops, &c. &c. caused by the destruction of our forests, are now pretty well understood by every one. Even the most casual observer has not failed to notice and deplore its loss, for he sees that our small streams are drying up,—large ones are gradually shrinking—and our country is becoming more and more subject to drought. In fact, all that have paid the least attention to the subject, think that some action should be taken in the matter, and this at once. Various plans have been proposed by which to renew the forest, but as yet no action has been taken, although many of the suggestions and plans proposed deserve serious consideration. But my object in writing to-day is not specially for the purpose of drawing attention to these various plans, or discussing their merits, but for the purpose of drawing the attention of our Legislature to the Assessment law, clause 30, ch. 36, Vic. 32. That clause is doing more to destroy our forest and doing it faster, than the best plans proposed could do to build it up. The clause referred to says the assessor "shall assess uncultivated lands at the same as they would sell for, in the discharge of a just debt." Now mark the effect of those imperative instructions. Wood or forest land is assessed at the same rate per acre as cultivated lands, consequently the farmers who have to pay the same taxes upon their wood land that they have upon their cultivated land ask themselves—will it pay to keep our wood land? and the answer invariably comes, "not if we have to pay the same taxes upon it that we do on our cultivated lands." And the consequence is, down goes the forest, and the proceeds of the sale of the wood yields him a fair percentage upon the value of the land, and it is then in a condition to give him a yearly return. But it is the unfair way in which it is assessed that first makes him think of destroying his last 25 or 50 acres of wood. Thus year after year goes on the destruction of our forests, leaving our country as much exposed as the great prairies of the west. Ask any of the farmers in the front Townships why they are acting like vandals, and they will tell you that they cannot afford to pay the taxes on wood land.

Now I think if the clause referred to was revised, so that we would have to pay only nominal or income taxes, many an acre would be left standing, that under the present law is doomed. I know this from conversation with the many.

Now, Mr. Editor, if anything in this hastily written letter should lead to action in this matter, and the woodman to spare that tree I will have gained my object, and feel truly thankful.

P. R. D.

Thurlow, Dec. 30, 1879.

—Over four hundred villagers have been driven from their homes by the flood near Nancy, France. At Loban Island, Austria, eleven have been drowned by the overflow of the Danube. In Paris still more damage is reported to have been caused by the rise of the Seine.

The whole of the county of Galway is in a very disturbed condition, and an extra force of constabulary have been detailed for the preservation of peace in that region. On Friday an affray occured between some peasants and the police, in the course of which the latter fired on the former, but fortunately no one was hurt.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuacles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

MRS. CAPT NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th.:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—An exceptional transaction in the purchase of gold for export to America was recorded yesterday, £35,000 having been taken from the open market for America. This operation is not regarded as indicating any considerable efflux at present. It is understood that arrangements are in progress for the transmission of a considerable amount of bonds in partial liquidation of liabilities on account of grain and cotton imports.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—A telegram vouches for trustworthiness of communication, dated Koenigsburg, 1st, asserting that the distribution of the Russian army shows a striking convergence towards the western portion of the empire, and that the Russian effective forces are being increased in far greater proportion than to be justified by the object of filling up the vacancies left by the late Russo-Turkish war.

BOONSBRIDGE, N. J., Jan. 6.—At 2 o'clock this morning a freight train broke through Railway river draw, precipitating the engine and six cars into the creek below. The draw is a complete wreck. All hands believed saved.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—A special to the Herald late last night mentions a rumor that the Republicans intend to capture the State Senate by arresting five of the Senators.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The syndicate which recently purchased 150,000 shares of the New York Central with the option of taking 100,000 additional at the same price by Jan. 10th, yesterday decided to take the balance of the stock.

PANAMA, Jan. 6.—Col. Totten, American, has been designated Honorary Engineer of the Canal, Mr. Wright is the only American engineer actually employed on it. The survey began yesterday.

New Expedition against Merv.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph writes: "I have been told on excellent authority that important despatches left the Russian Foreign Office a few day ago for the Russian Legation at Terehan. These despatches contained instructions that the Persian Government should be given to understand that Russia could tolerate the incursion of the Kurds on her territory no longer, and that the Shah's government must take immediate measures to prevent it. I gather from the same trustworthy source that this reclamation implies a threat to occupy the territory of Azerbaidjan, in order to attract the attention of the Persian Government to the north-west frontier. Meanwhile there iu every reason to believe that the danger for Persia lies in the direction of Kuchan, Meschad and Sarahks. With or without the consent of the Shah's government, it is the intention of the Russians to take that route and to proceed along the valley of the Attrek when they next advanced on Merv, which will be early in the spring. A few days will then suffice to take them to their destination, and in the fertile district watered by the Attrek they will have at hand provisions in abundance, even for a much larger force than that they are likely to employ. The expedition is being re-organized as fast as possible, and will advance against Merv in two columns—one formed by troops coming from the Caucasus, the othe other by a force advancing from Turkestan and the Amou Daira. The Commander-in-Chief, General Tergoukasoff, who is an Armenian by birth, is perfectly acquainted with the Persian language and is generally acknowledged to be eminently qualified for the task he has before him. He is the only Russian commander who during the late war received the Russian Order of Merit. This was conferred upon him on the occasion of his brilliant retreat from Alashgerd. In presence of the certainty with which the Russian Government anticipates the capture of Merv for the coming spring they could afford to publish a full account of the first unsuccessful advance. It is becoming more and more evident that Russia's main object in hastening the capture of Merv is to command the all-important position of Herat, the key to Afghanistan and India.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St. John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capcised, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Sxrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. Key, Rev. F. D. Power, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

This Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liner Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.
Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

SYR: HYPOPHOS COMP: FELLOWS'
FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

GENERAL DEBILITY

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Ravenna, Mercer Co., Missouri, May, 1879.
The Fellows Medical Manufacturing, Co.

Gents.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER VII.

It was dusk when the chaise set down about twenty yards from the corner of Tower Street. Ascertaining on which side was No. 5, they glided silently towards it, and found it to be a two-story house, the lower windows of which were not lighted. Two of those above, however, were brilliantly illuminated, and shadows moved to and fro behind the blinds.

They paused before the closed door, and four policemen came quickly from different directions and joined them.

Then Vickery tried the door, but finding it fastened, he knocked.

It was a loud, but not an official knock—loud, in order to reach the ears of those in the room above, but not peculiar, so as to raise suspicion. Presently a light footstep was heard descending the stair within, and a light shone through the key-hole.

A bolt was drawn, and the door was opened by a woman with a candle in her hand—she saying, as she was in the act of giving ingress—

'What a long time you have been; the supper will be quite spoiled by waiting—ah!'

She gave a start on seeing the policeman, and was about to give a loud cry and flee up the stair, when she was caught, and a hand placed firmly on her mouth.

'Follow me, lads—quick,' whispered the detective, gliding with a rapid, stealthy step up the stair, the others keeping close at his heels.

The door of the brilliantly lighted room was opened, and the officers, bursting in, found there two men and a woman.

One of the men at the sight of the officer started up and gazed for a moment in silent consternation, then he uttered a fierce oath, and made a dash towards the window.

But Vickery was on him in an instant, and had him in his grips. Then a desperate struggle ensued, for the man made a most determined resistance. He was strong, his fiercest passions were roused, and he fought with an energy that was reckless in its force.

He was no match, however, for the three strong and equally determined men who were against him, and at the end of a few minutes, the click of the handcuffs proclaimed that he was secured.

The other—a youthful-faced, soft-looking man—made no resistance whatever, but quietly allowed the irons to be fastened on his wrists, though he was excessively pale and greatly agitated.

'Sorry to have to take you away from such a fine supper, Mr. Huffey White,' said the detective to the violent man, who was now seated on a chair, gnashing his teeth with rage.

Vickery's remark had its point in the appearance of the table, which was luxuriously spread. In the centre was a goose smoking hot, on one side of it an immense dish of green peas, and on the other a piled-up platter of mealy potatoes, with all et ceteras, and plates laid for those who were to partake.

'Ay, ay, there's treachery here,' said Huffey White, who seemed overwhelmed with rage and despair.

The detective motioned to Conington, the Wellwyn waiter, to come into the room.

'Is there any one here you have seen before?' he carelessly asked.

'There is,' he replied, the moment his eye fell on Huffey White, and, pointing to him, he added, 'that is one of the men who travelled in the chaise and four, and who counted the notes in our inn parlor. The other men I never saw before.'

'Oh, that is my friend Scoltcock, alias Scaltop,' said Vickery, jocosely. 'He doesn't travel much—he prefers to do business at home.'

'Hadn't we better search the house?' suggested Walkinshaw.

'Our men first,' said Vickery, and a search was instituted on White's person. There was not much money found on him, and nothing which appeared to connect him with the robbery, except a slip of paper which was deposited in his pocket-book. It was a jotting of a number of cash sums, amounting in all to sixteen thousand pounds, and the waiter stated confidently that he had seen the red faced man making the jottings, and hand the slip of paper to White in the room at the inn.

The house was next searched, and under the bed was found the portmanteau, with the address still on it. It was eagerly opened, but contained only shirts. This was a great disappointment to the cashier, who hoped to find it full of the missing bank notes.

None of these, however, were found in the house and every corner and crevice of it was searched most carefully.

'You expect him, I know, for I see six plates laid for supper. If they come, good and well; if not, I shall have him ere long. Meanwhile, you four must go to Bow street.

By 'you four' the detective meant White and his wife, and Scoltcock and his wife, these being the individuals whom he had taken into custody.

Forthwith they marched them down stairs, and deposited them in the interior of the chaise. Another chaise was got, and two officers being left in charge of the premises, the party proceeded with their prisoners to the Police Office, and that night they were lodged in Newgate.

Great would have been the chagrin of Vickery had he known that by being a few minutes later in reaching Tower Street he would have secured the master-spirit of the enterprise—M'Koul. That worthy had appointed to be at Scoltcock's that evening to supper, and had just entered Tower Street when he saw the detective and his party on the other side. He knew Vickery well enough by sight, and his sharp eye also recognized the Wellwyn waiter. So he knew the object of their presence there, and darting into an alley, he went into a tavern, and from a private window there watched them enter Scoltcock's and wait till he saw White, the locksmith, and the two women, brought out handcuffed and carried off. Then he rushed away and lost not a moment in taking measures to secure his own safety and the concealment of the cash, the whole of which was in his possession.

The proverb, 'There is honesty among thieves,' is to be taken guardedly. There is an obvious reason why thieves should observe a certain measure of honesty towards each other. It is for their interest to do so, because they have it in their power to ruin each other by denunciation and disclosure. At the best, therefore, the kind of honesty in question is enforced, and has nothing to do with sentiment or principle. It is an honesty also which gives way when an advantage can be secured safely, and thieves don't hesitate to rob each other when opportunity arrives.

Such an opportunity had M'Koul, and he intended to take advantage of it. He had an immense advantage over his associates in the fact that he was educated, and they were illiterate. He had, therefore, on counting the notes at Wellwyn, made White and French believe that they amounted in all to sixteen thousand pounds, while in reality there were twenty thousand. In this way, therefore, he had secured four thousand beyond his own share; and on reaching London he had prevailed on his companions to allow the booty to remain for the present in his possession. His had secreted it in his own house, but the discovery he had made in Tower Street gave him to understand that the police would soon have his residence searched, and within an hour both it and himself were concealed in a secret retreat in another part of London.

Huffey White lay chafing in his prison cell like a caged wild beast. The four prisoners were lodged in separate chambers, so that he had no one to converse with, and nothing to do but to entertain his own bitter despairing thoughts. In any view of it, his case was desperate. Apart altogether from the bank robbery, he was a doomed man, for his former escape from the hulks was a crime the penalty of which was death. And that, whether his participation in the affair at Glasgow could be proved against him or not, his certain destiny was the scaffold.

This was an appalling prospect, and it made his solitary thoughts gloomy enough. But they were furious as well as gloomy, for he was the only one of the three who had been taken. French and M'Koul had escaped falling into the hands of the police, and were still at large, free to share the immense plunder between them, while he was chained within four walls like a bullock kept for the shambles. At first he entertained the notion that his associates had betrayed him, for he could not otherwise account for the police being so speedily on their track, and as his two companions were out of the way when he was captured, it did look as if they had dealt treacherously towards him. But in the examination before the Magistrates he had been disabused of that impression, for there the various particulars were disclosed by which they had been pursued and discovered, and he saw then that it was but his bad luck to be taken, and their good luck to have escaped. Nevertheless it was with him as with sayage natures in general—his wrath and rage were inflamed against the other two because of their good fortune, and the bitterness of his feelings tempted him to resolve to 'split' on them, and have the consolation of knowing that they who were as guilty as he fared no better than himself.

He lay ruminating thus, when the door of his cell was opened, and the turnkey ushered in a tall woman closely veiled.

She advanced a step or two, but did not speak or show her face till the gaoler was gone. Then she lifted her veil, and White, who was eying her in sullen silence, recognized her as the wife of M'Koul.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Co-Operative Stores in Great Britain.

The history of co-operative stores in Great Britain given recently at the Cooper Institute, New York, by Mr. George J. Holyoake, was a very remarkable one. The movement started in a small, miserable den. It had almost no capital. The working-class stood aloof from it. They at first found fault with the goods furnished, because they did not know what the best goods were. Mr. Holyoake said: "We had to educate the taste of the poor. When we offered pure flour, why the women would not take it. They had never seen it before; they didn't like it; it was not made white by ingredients mixed with it for that purpose. When we offered them pure coffee they thought we were going to poison them. They had never seen it, and the aroma they never knew. We educated the taste of the ordinary common people by supplying them with pure food. They have now on their tables better food than the gentlemen of England, because the latter have no organization such as we have which takes care to get pure food." The goods at the market rates, but better articles, and the purchasers receive returns in dividends paid from the profits. A capital of twenty-five millions has been accumulated, and in this money in hand the co-operators stand in the markets of the world to buy for cash, never on credit. Accomplished buyers, men who have a natural instinct for quality, purchase for the different classes of goods, are busy for the society all over Europe. Two vessels are employed in conveying the purchases in this country to England. "At the end of the first year," said the speaker, "the co-operating purchaser has £6, at the end of the second £10; for the first £5 we give him five per cent, so that at the end of the second year he has £10 and ten shillings interest and so on. He acquires the art of saving, and many a man who has paid no more than threepence admission into our society has now a house of his own. And the best of the system is, that the larger a man's family the more he saves, because he spends more in the store." The profit on sales is ten per cent. on every pound sterling. One-half of this is returned as dividends as above, and one-half is added to the capital. The results attained are really astonishing, and the scheme is eminently worthy of the study of all interested in the welfare of the working classes. —Christian Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 7.

West Hastings.

The writ for a new election for the Ontario Legislature in this constituency has been issued, and appoints Friday, the 23rd inst., as the day of nomination, and Friday, the 30th inst., as polling day.

It therefore becomes the duty of the Conservative party in the Riding to prepare for the event. The probability is that no opposition will be offered to the re-election of Mr. Robertson, in view of the large majority which he received at the election in June last, and of the further fact that public sentiment is now more strongly in his favor than before. Still, it will not do for our friends to be caught napping. They should at once proceed to organize as thoroughly as if a sharp contest were a matter of certainty, and have all in readiness so that, should our opponents succeed in inducing a candidate to take the field, every active supporter of Mr. Robertson may be prepared to do his part in the battle at the polls.

We therefore hope that no time will be lost, but that, fully organized, the Conservative party of West Hastings will be prepared to meet and to defeat decisively any attempt to secure the seat for a supporter of the Mowat Government.

QUICK PASSAGE.—The Allan steamship "Peruvian" made the passage over in seven days, 21 hours, 30 minutes, the quickest time ever made by the Allan steamer from Halifax to Liverpool.

COTTON PRODUCTION.—There are nine cotton factories in Canada, which produce annually 28,600,000 yards of cotton, valued at $3,450,000. This will give about seven yards of cotton per annum to each man, woman and child in the Dominion.

SITTING BULL.—The Winnipeg Free Press says that a letter has been received from Wood Mountain stating that Sitting Bull has moved from Fort Walsh, and is now located about sixty miles south-east of the Fort, and only about one mile from the boundary. Buffalo is plentiful.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.—During the seven months navigation was open the Northern and Hamilton and North Western Railways carried to that city 4,295,992 bushels of grain, 84,934 barrels of flour, 57,160,000 feet of lumber, 106,500 feet of square timber, 39,057 tons of general merchandise, and 29,149 passengers.

PREPARING FOR WAR.—A Vienna despatch says that notwithstanding the peaceful professions of Russia she has ordered the War Office to prepare for the use of the army as many breechloaders as possible. A trustworthy correspondent, who has just returned from a visit to the larger towns of Russian Poland, says these towns are full of troops.

THE SAFETY OF CABUL.—The Times' military correspondent writes that with Gough's 2,000 men occupying the Bala Hissar and dominating Cabul there need be no fear of a re-enactment of the scenes witnessed during the occupancy of Mahomed Jan in December, and the occupation of the Bala Hissar will do much to reassure the city people.

BOOMING.—The Montreal Star says :—"The G. T. R. workshops are now running to their utmost capacity, about one thousand men finding employment there. This is two hundred more than ever before, even in the palmiest days of the company's prosperity. In addition to this, all are making "full time," a few, indeed, are putting in extra hours. The company are experimenting with electric light, with a view to the total abolition of gas. So far the light has been fully up to expectations, though only portions of the workshops have been lighted with it."

ONTARIO AND PACIFIC JUNCTION RAILWAY CO.—The first general meeting of the shareholders of the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway Company was held at Toronto on the 6th inst., for the purpose of permanent organization. The shareholders elected the following directors :—Hon. Frank Smith, President Northern Railway, Toronto; G. A. Cox, President Midland Railway, Peterboro; Edward Gurney, Vice-President Hamilton and North-Western Railway, Hamilton; Jas. Holden, Managing Director Whitby, Port Perry and Lindsay Railway, Whitby; Hon. Alex. Morris, M.P.P. Toronto; James D. Edgar, barrister, Toronto; Adam Brown, merchant, Hamilton; A. T. Fulton, Director, Whitby, Port Perry and Lindsay Railway, Toronto; and Robert Jaffray, Director Midland Railway, Toronto. At a meeting of the Board held afterwards, J. D. Edgar was elected President; Hon. Frank Smith, Vice-President; and Mr. Andrew Green was appointed Secretary.

The Iron Trade.

The annual report of the American Iron and Steel Association, a summary of which has been transmitted by telegraph, gives a highly encouraging account of the trade in the United States during the past year, and speaks very hopefully of the future. It shows that more steel was made in the past year than in any previous year. The advance in prices is also without precedent. The importation of iron ore is five times as large as in any preceding year. There was also an unexpectedly large importation of pig iron and old and new rails. Nevertheless the demand for pig iron, rails and ore was not met, many orders being carried over to the new year, which consumers sought in vain to have filled last year. The total production last year was 1,650,000 tons, against 1,157,000 in the previous year. The improvement in the iron trade is principally attributed to the increased demand for railroad iron, steel wire for fencing, and tanks and pipes for the oil regions. More mills and furnaces will be running this year than last. It is expected after April 1st that the production will be equal to the demand. The importations of iron are likely to be larger than last year. Probably 500,000 tons will be imported this year. These facts are of much importance to the people of Canada in general, and to those of Belleville in particular, for as the price of iron rises in the United States, a corresponding increase must take place in other countries. Hence the opportunity is given for the profitable manufacture in Canada of iron and steel from our native ores, as the difficulty of competing with low priced iron from the United States and Great Britain is removed. The late advance in quotations of iron and steel has been so considerable as to leave, on the most careful calculation, a large margin of profit to Canadian manufacturers under the present tariff, and as Belleville is the most favorably situated place in Ontario for smelting works, the significance of the facts stated above is apparent. Capitalists seem to be very chary of investing in this promising business, but we are convinced that the time will come, and that ere long, when capital will seek investment in the establishment in Ontario of smelting works, for the manufacture of iron and of Bessemer steel, which will of necessity bring in their train rolling mills, foundries, and other manufactories of iron, as well as glass works, which can profitably obtain material from the slag of the smelting furnaces. With the unrivalled advantages which Belleville is able to present to capitalists as a location for smelting works to be operated with coal as fuel, it will be the fault of our citizens if the city does not become what nature has designed it for, namely, the headquarters of the iron and steel manufacturing industry in Canada,—the Pittsburg of the Dominion.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 7.—Two large flour mills of Penny, Packer & Co., were burned last night. Loss $50,000.

UNION CITY, Ind., Jan. 7.—On the C. C. and L. C. road, six miles from here, a bridge, over a swollen stream, gave way yesterday, precipitating the engine and freight cars into the stream. Engineer fatally injured. Fireman and brakeman were killed.

GRAND RAPIDS, M., Jan. 7.—The flood is doing great damage in this region. A million and a half feet of lumber was carried away. Five bridges on the Grand Rapids and Newaygo road were swept away. The dam age to other bridges in this vicinity is $20,000. A number of cattle were drowned and ten dams on one stream were washed out.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Texas and St. Louis Railway Company has petitioned Congress for a reduction of the duty on steel rails from $/8 to $10 per ton. The petitioners assert that the profits of the business became so great that the owners of the mills which control the Bessemer process pool their earnings and pay mills which do not run enormous prices to be idle, in order to reduce the production and increase the price.

The Ladies' Anti-polygamy Society, of Utah, have sent to the House of Representatives a memorial asking the expulsion of Cannon, delegate from Utah. The memorial states that he has four wives and 20 children.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 7.—Four stores on Main Street were burned last night. Loss $18,000. After the fire was under control the front walls of the building fell out, killing one fireman and seriously injuring two.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—There is considerable excitement at Chester over the mysterious disappearance of Miss Mary Ash. The last seen of her was near Dr. Buchanan's office. The Doctor is also missing. The father of the girl alleges that she was decoyed to Philadelphia by Henry Groff and was taken to the doctor's office and is there either dead or dying as the result of criminal malpractice.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The American Union Telegraph Company promises to commence business in a few days. Its field of operations at first will be the New England States.

The report of the Building Department shows that more money was spent in New York last year for new buildings than any year since 1871. Aggregate, $22,000,000.

LAKE DISASTERS OF LAST YEAR.—An exchange says that during the year 1879 the total number of casualties to vessels on the great lakes was 804, and the damage to vessel interests caused thereby was $1,120,400 Of these 345 disasters occurred on Lake Michigan; loss, $439,000. Twenty-three occurred on Lake Superior and Sault River; loss, $37,800; on Lake Huron, Straits, Saginaw and St. Clair rivers 179 occurred; loss, $200,000. There were four disasters on Lake St. Clair, exclusive of the flats; $5,000. The total losses on Lake Erie and Detroit River were 145 vessels; damage, $249,300. On Lake Ontario and Welland Canal, 93; loss, $161,000. On Georgian Bay 15; loss, $26,400. The amount of grain destroyed reached 309,600 bushels. Nineteen new vessels were commissioned, having a tonnage of 13,918, and a valuation of $791,500.

During a dense fog, a large river steamer had to cast anchor. A traveller anxious to go ahead, came to the man at the wheel and asked him why they stopped. "Too much fog; can't see the river." "But you can see the stars overhead." "Yes," replied the helmsman, "but until the boiler busts we ain't going that way."

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say :

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10,560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 20½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without interest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 6.

City and Vicinity.

THE CELLS.—There were but two prisoners and one tramp in the cells last night.

CORRECTION.—Mr. Lawrence Johnston's vote in Coleman Ward was 94, instead of 65, as at first reported.

FOG.—A very dense fog prevailed for several hours last night. It was, in fact, a genuine "Scotch mist."

ON WHEELS.—The thaw has so badly affected the sleighing that many wheeled vehicles are again to be seen on the streets.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—The Council will meet for organization on Tuesday, 27th inst., at 2 p. m. for the purpose of organization.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education will meet to-morrow night, as required by law, to sum up the votes cast in to-day's election.

TEA MEETING.—The annual tea meeting of the C. M. Church at Marmora, on New Year's night was a great success, the net proceeds amounting to $105.

MISS NEILSON.—This great actress will appear in the Opera House on the 6th of February, playing "Viola" in Shakspeare's play, "Twelfth Night."

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The meetings so far held of the union service have been well attended. To-night's gathering will take place in the John Street Church, when the Rev. M. W. McLean and Mr. R. Richardson will deliver addresses.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.—The pews and sittings of this Church fer the coming year were disposed of by public auction yesterday. The sale was very successful, all the pews except twenty-two being allocated, and upwards of $200 realized.

SALE OF FARM STOCK.—Mr. Wilkins, auctioneer, will offer for sale on Thursday, the 29th inst., on the premises of Mr. P. C. Burgess, lot 14, in the 5th concession of Thurlow, all the farming stock and implements. The sale will commence at 10 o'clock a. m.

SCHOOL ELECTIONS.—Voting for the election of School Trustees took place in Ketcheson and Murney Wards to-day. In the latter Ward the contest between Drs. Wilson and Potts was quite intere sting, the former leading considerably at noon. In Murney Ward Mr. James Glass had about six to one of the few votes polled at the dinner hour.

PROMOTED.—Mr. K. Blackwell, who has been Assistant Locomotive Superintendent on the Belleville division of the Grand Trunk, with residence in this city, has, we are informed, received the appointment of Locomotive Superintendent on the Northwestern Grand Trunk, with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Blackwell will receive a handsome increase in salary besides being promoted to a more important position, and we congratulate him on the fact. Mr. Brennan, who will be transferred from Montreal, will occupy the position which Mr. Blackwell held here.

A FINE PICTURE.—Mr. R. M. Roy has completed and has now in the framer's hands, a picture on a large scale of his yacht the Grace, with mainsail, gaff topsail and balloon jib set, running off dead before the wind in a race. The crew are all depicted in position, with the scrutineer looking out of the cabin scuttle, and what makes this part of the work particularly alluable is that all the portraits are photographs, and good ones. The drawing is skirted and correct in every detail, and reflects much credit on its able and ingenious author.

IRON ORE.—Seven cars of iron ore from the Wallbridge mine arrived to-day. We are informed that Messrs. Coe & Mitchell, the lessees of the mine, are now in a position to ship more largely than the railway facilities will permit.

DEBATING SOCIETY.—A debating society under the auspices of No. 1 Coy. 15th batt., was organized last evening, January 6th, to meet every second Thursday in their elegant rooms over the Custom House. The following are the officers elected: Capt. Bleecker, President; Lieut. Biggar, 1st Vice President; Lieut. Hastings, 2nd Vice President; Sergeant Turner, Sec.; Private Pope, Treas.

A WORTHY ENTERTAINMENT.—We understand that Principal Matheson has tendered the services of the pupils of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, and the inimitable pantomimists, Profs. Green and Wallbridge, have volunteered their services for a grand entertainment on next Monday evening, the proceeds to be appropriated to the home for the poor and friendless. Mr. Hanwell, with his usual liberality, has also tendered the free use of the Opera House for the occasion. We earnestly hope that in aid of so noble a cause the Opera House will be crowded to its utmost capacity.

Better than whiskey and quinine for Chills, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

ALVIN JOSLIN.—The "Charles L. Davis Comedy Company" will appear in the Opera House on Friday evening next, in the excellent Comedy entitled "Alvin Joslin." Mr. Davis takes the part of Alvin Joslin, and is ably supported by an excellent company. Emma Vern, as Julia Ford—the wife of a bad man,—proves herself a first class actress. Among the gentlemen, Messrs. Day, Drake, Fisher, and Allison, are particularly good in their respective roles. Fisher is immense in the character of "Theophilus Oglesby Doris," an English lawyer. Among the ladies, Misses St. Clair, Hutton, and Leighton, are worthy of special mention. We learn these facts from a gentleman who recently saw the company in Montreal. He advises all who wish to enjoy a hearty laugh to go and see Davis & Co.

THE ATHLETIC STUDIO.—Prof. D. C. Ross and Mr. John S. Barnes have secured the premises on Cainpbell Street, formerly occupied by the Mechanic's Institute, which they have fitted up in first class style, as a gymnasium. The premises are supplied with several heat developers—an ingenious invention of Prof. Ross—an elevated railway and other apparatus, together with dumb-bells of various weights, boxing gloves, &c. The large room will be for practice in general athletics, such as boxing, fencing and dumb bell exercise, whilst the room formerly the library will be for wrestling and private instruction in boxing. The former chess room will now be the dressing room, and the Secretary's office will be a bath room. The establishment is very nicely fitted, and under instructors so capable as Messrs. Ross and Barnes, ought to prove highly successful. The gymnasium opens to-night with about eighty names on the class books.

MADOC LODGE, No. 48, F. & A. M.—The following is a list of the officers of the above Lodge for the ensuing year, installed on Saturday, Dec. 28th, St. John's Day:

W. Bro. J. S. Loomis, W. M.
" H. S. O'Hara, S. W.
" Jas. A. Orr, J. W.
" T. S. Agar, Chap.

Police Court.

(Before A. DIAMOND, P. M.)

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 7.

DRUNK.

John Hannah and Lewis Welch were charged with this offence. The former was fined $1 and costs and allowed ten days in which to pay, and the last named was discharged.

Aquatics.

COURTNEY AND HIS (?) MONEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Mr. Blaikie to-day received from Courtney $500 forfeit money and duly signed articles of agreement for a race with Hanlan on May 20th, on the Potomac river at Washington, or at such other course as may be mutually agreed upon. Mr. Blaikie will immediately forward articles to Hanlan for his signature, and hopes for a favorable answer from the Canadian.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

CABUL, Jan. 6.—The city is perfectly quiet, and supplies plentiful. An amnesty has been offered the insurgents, except to a few leaders.

Before evacuating Cabul, Mohamed Jan wrote to Roberts, stating that although for the present retiring, the Afghans would not cease hostilities until the English were driven from Afghanistan.

LAHORE, Jan. 6.—A flying column of a thousand men has been formed for service in the Khyber Pass.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

PARIS, Jan. 7.—Jean Joseph, the poujoulat historian and critic, is dead; aged, 72.

DUBLIN, Jan. 7.—The Irish rent agitation entered a new phase, which extended from the rural to the Urban localities. The movement is afoot to agitate for remission or reduction of rents on the part of the poorer householders and tenants in Dublin and other large towns.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—It is stated the introduction bill for a tax on house operations, and the reintroduction of brewing the tax bill announced yesterday by Bundisrath is shortly intended.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Arrived, the City of London.

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 7.—Arrived, s.s. Maas.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—Bismarck has definitely approved of the scheme for granting Government subvention to a Joint Stock Company, which shall buy the factories and plantations of Godfrey & Sons, the Hamburg merchants who suspended recently, and continue their business as the settlements of that firm in Samoa and other south sea islands.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Wm. McWinn, aged 40, was shot while chopping in the woods near his home, near Rensselaer Falls yesterday by an unknown person. He crawled one hundred rods towards his house where he was found dead last night.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—The Pesth Correspondent which denies the reported movement of the Russian army towards the Austrian frontier, is not authority of sufficient weight to justify the acceptance of its contradiction of the detailed reports of the Russian military operations which come from different points on the Austrian and German frontiers. These reports are beginning to excite attention throughout Europe.

A pamphlet has just been issued by a Berlin publisher entitled "Fortifications of the German Russian frontier," wherein the defences of each country are elaborately discussed and the respective advantages of the different plan of invasion on either side, canvassed. The author is evidently a German military man, as the appearance of such a pamphlet under the present circumstances is regarded in Berlin as highly significant.

The writer expresses his belief that the German eastern frontier is sufficiently defended. The German forces can be easily and quickly mobilized and thrown upon important points in sufficient strength even on the shortest notice to hold the Russians at bay on the frontier, until measures of resistance from the interior can be thoroughly organized.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—At 9 o'clock this morning two trains collided on the Elevated Railway on the 9th avenue 60th street. The engines were wrecked, no injury to passengers or employees. The trains were saved from falling into the street by the guards.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh winds, slowly to partly cloudy continued mild weather, with rain areas.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer, partly cloudy, followed by cloudy, rainy.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

AS A MEANS OF PURIFYING THE BLOOD and humors, there has never been anything superior to BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS; and where they are faithfully used, we venture to say that no disease, however aggravated or severe it may be, can long withstand their cleansing, healing and curative storing power.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts—"That from tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

MRS. CAFE NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others of this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

CATTLE.—Sales of cattle are reported on the Montreal market at from 3c to 4½c per lb. live weight. About 6,000 head of cattle are being fed at the distilleries in Canada for shipment to Great Britain in the spring.

HOGS.—A car load of choice hogs was sold in the Montreal market on the 5th at $6.70.

BUTTER.—A cable despatch reports large sales of Brockville butter in London at 100s to 102s per cwt. a car load of butter are being purchased in the Brockville district at 10c to 20c.

CHEESE.—The market for cheese remains firm. 500 boxes of western was sold at 11½c and 11¾c in Montreal, which was considered a bargain.

OLD-TIME FINANCIERING.—In ye olden time, when the old Bank of Albany first opened its doors, a customer made application for a loan of a few thousand dollars. He was perfectly good; so the question that bothered the cashier was not the application's solvency, but the kind of money he should pay him in—the new and pretty bills of the bank or in gold. Being unable to decide so important a question, he called a meeting of the directors. Chairs were drawn to the great fire-place, thirteen clay pipes were lighted, and discussion enued upon the proposition to pay out the new currency. No satisfactory conclusion was likely to be arrived at, until the following speech was made by one of the number:—Gentlemen of the Board, these bills of ours, received to-day, have cost this bank a large sum of money. The engraver, the printer, the paper maker, the incidentals, all have to be paid. The thought of these expenses, so justly incurred, does not stagger me in the least, for the bills are very fine and an ornament to the bank. But, gentlemen, when it is proposed to send these new bills into the far West, there to be traded for cattle, torn, soiled, and perhaps utterly destroyed, I, for one, most solemnly protest. I venture this moment, gentlemen, to assert the opinion that should you be so unwise as to allow these new bills to be sent north and west beyond Lansingburg, Schenectady, and away the other side of Utica, (as I understand this man proposes to take some of them), you will never see them again as long as the Bank of Albany has an existence on a name.

The idea of sending out the bills was forthwith dismissed and the gold was duly paid.—Troy Times.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease Catarrh in the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I have ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations, and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address C. A. SNOW & CO.,

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep them, for American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

☞ Purchasers should look to the Label on the Pots and Boxes. If the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are log put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantage offered.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrecy and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid during the time a member becomes totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period,

The tables of rates have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Fee.	Death of Member's

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly wonderful.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE:

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully,

A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, it is perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

December 19th, 1878. Yours truly,

J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to decline and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent cough symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding, and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last June I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he found it two months and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Yours truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am yours gratefully,

LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 24, 1878.

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS,—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our own families, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Signed,

J. E. GALLAWAY, M. D.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your valuable remedy. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried; as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; she now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR:—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,

LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

'This is a bad business for you, Huffley,' she said in a tone of pity and sympathy.

'Cursed bad job,' rejoined White. 'What does Jim say of it? Of course he's glad of it, for he'll get the larger share of the plant. He'd better have French scragged too, and then he'll bag the whole.'

'Oh, dear, no. Jim does not treat his pals in that way. He was within an ace of being taken as well as you. He was just coming to Scoltock's door when he saw the peelers, and knew the game was up. He had no way of warning you, and it would have been madness to show himself, so he scrieved it, and is all right for the present.

'And the money too, I suppose?' snarled White.

'Yes; he has the thick paper all snug.'

'And of course you and him mean to bolt to America, while the hangman makes a tassel of me.

'Indeed, Huffley, you think too bad of Jim. He ain't a man to do anything so low. He has done nothing but mope about you ever since he saw you took, and hasn't been able to eat or drink for thinking what could be done.'

'Gammon!' growled White. 'I always knew Jim was too clever for me. But look you here, if I haven't got his brains, I'm not a rat to die in a hole without a squeak.'

'You'd split, would you?' said the woman, with one flash of her piercing eye.

'Oh call it what you like; but I've no notion of dangling alone. Jim was as deep in the business as me, and he has as good a right to swing for it.'

'Hear to you now,' said the woman, reproachfully. 'There has Jim been wearing the flesh off his bones in thinking how to help you, and you ready to peach on him.'

'Gammon, I tell you. He knows he can't help me, and it is cheap pretending to think of it. He knows I can blow the gaff, and he wants to sweeten me to hold my tongue till it is past the power of wagging.'

'I tell you no!' cried the woman, vehemently. 'Jim has no thought of the kind. And he does think you can be saved, and has sent me here to see if you haven't thought of the same thing.'

'What thing?' demanded Huffley, with more animation than he had yet shown. 'I have thought of nothing. I see no way to get out of the scrape, for the business at Portsmouth will do me, if nothing else. What has Jim thought of?'

'He has thought of something that you once told him about. Havn't you a hold of some kind upon his Lordship?'

White leaped from his bench the whole length of his chain.

'By Jove, I had forgotten that!' he exclaimed. 'What a cursed fool I have been not to remember it. Of course I have a man able to help me at this push, for he is hand and-glove with the Secretary. Glad, that idea has put new life in me. I'll miss acquaintance with the hangman yet, or—Bah, he'll never dare to refuse. No, I may safely count on his help.'

'Your secret must be a powerful one, Huffley, that you are so cock-sure of his Lordship bringing you off.'

'Valuable!' roared White, 'I should rather think so. Perhaps you'd like me to tell you what it is?'

'I've no objection in the world,' laughed the woman.

'Aha! but I have, so you needn't pump me. I'm glad Jim thought of it though.'

'And yet you thought so badly of Jim!'

'Well, hang it, it looked as if I had cause. A man living in this hole with a halter round his neck don't feel sweet to a pal that's going at large at his expense. But, I say, can you go with a message to his lordship? His house is in Grosvenor Square, and it's like he'll be in-town now. If not, word must be got to him at the Hall, and my message will bring him from the other side of England.'

'No need for going to the Hall. I made it my business before coming here to know that his Lordship is in town.'

'Then you'll take my message to him?'

'What else am I here for?'

'All right,' said Huffley, sitting down again, and wiping his perspiring face with his sleeve. 'Tell him I am here, that my neck is in danger and that I must see him. Mind say must: he'll understand. Now go to him at once, for I cannot rest till I've seen him.'

'Oh, I'll go fast enough, but if he won't come?'

Huffley's face blazed up in wrath.

'If he doesn't come,' he said through teeth almost clenched, 'then I'll know that you and Jim are playing traitors to me, and will blow the Glasgow business all to shivers. He will come if you give him my message. Don't send it by a lackey, but see him yourself.'

'How horrid suspicious you are,' remarked the woman as she turned to go on hearing the turnkey coming to let her out.

'Yes,' rejoined White. 'People do get suspicious, and all the evil comes up in them when they are chained up in a place like this. Remember my last word: if his lordship don't come Jim's life ain't worth a sixpence.'

'Now, ma'am, time's up,' said the harsh voice of the turnkey at the open door, and the woman took her leave.

'It's just as Jim and I thought,' she muttered, as she moved away from the door of the prison, and mingled with the crowd. 'Huffley meant to peach because he had got scragged. If it could only be managed, my way would be to have him hung out of the road, but it wouldn't be safe to try to dodge him, so we must drop this plan and work through his Lordship. Jim wouldn't be safe else.'

She turned into Oxford street and walked on westward till, in the afternoon, she reached Grosvenor Square, and walked to and fro before one of the largest mansions in that aristocratic locality. She knew how difficult it would be for her to get speech of the nobleman to whom she had come to see, and as she walked to and fro she pondered the best means of accomplishing that object. She could think of no other way but to go boldly to the hall door and request an interview.

Acting on this resolution, she ascended the steps and gave a vigorous stroke with the knocker, when almost instantly, the stately door was opened by a magnificent creature in plush and lace, whose corpulent frame absolutely stiffened with indignation when he saw the appearance of the person who stood there.

'Well, I'm sure, if this isn't impudence past expressing! You've mistaken the door, stupid. That's the way for you, down the haeria.'

And, with a lofty gesture, the irate footman was about to close the door in her face, when the woman advanced a step into the hall, and lifted her veil.

'I have not mistaken,' she said; 'I wish to see his Lordship.'

'What!' exclaimed the footman, drawing himself up with a look of horror. 'See his Lordship!'

'Yes—he is within, I suppose?'

'Well, I never. Oh, the woman must be mad, or—or drunk.'

'Have I the look of being either the one or the other. Have a care—I am not one to be insulted, even by a nobleman's flunkey.'

The creature in plush and lace was nothing less than paralyed by this address, his rigid form quivered by the excess of his indignation. his face grew purple, and he could scarcely gasp for rage.

'You handacious hindividual,' he articulated spasmodically, 'hif you don't go away, Hi shall be under the necessity of sending for the police.'

'I tell you I have come to see his Lordship, and see him I must.'

'Himpudent hindividual! the thing is himpossible. His Lordship could not see a person like you; you had better go. There is the carriage; his Lordship is going hout.'

'Then I shall wait till he goes, and see him here.'

'You'll what!—wait in the hall! Oh, this woman must be a lunatic. Here, Simmons, go and bring the police.'

'What's the row?' cried a younger footman, making his appearance from the lower regions, gloved and coated, ready to take his place in the rumble of the carriage.

'This here hawdacious woman is agoing to force herself into his lordship's presence and refuses to go away.'

'My eye,' he suddenly exclaimed, 'if that isn't Mother M'Koul, of Clifford's Inn Passage.'

'Simmons,' exclaimed his superior and senior, 'do you know the hindis'dual?'

'Well, hif I must say it, Biggs, I 'ave seen her in her establishment. You take it!'

'Oh monstrous!—and she to be standing in the hall, hand his Lordship coming out! Go away, you orrid woman—go away.'

'Not till I have seen his Lordship; I am determined on that.'

'Simmons, will you go for the police?' shouted Biggs, frantically. 'Oh, 'eavens! if there isn't his Lordship on the stairs.'

'What's the matter, Biggs?' asked a calm voice overhead, and a tall man with a grave and lofty air, slowly descended the marble steps.

'Oh, my Lord' stammered Briggs, in dismay, 'it wasn't my fault, but this 'orrid woman forced herself into the hall, and would'nt go away. I was just sending Simmons for the police.'

'I wish to speak to your Lordship,' said the woman with a bold, unabashed air.

He looked at her a moment and proceeded—

'To speak with me!' he haughtily and coldly rejoined.

'Yes, my Lord—on business.'

'Business! You cannot possibly have business with me!'

'Your pardon, my Lord, I have. I am charged with a message to you.'

'A message—and sent with you. Oh, it is some mistake.'

'No mistake at all, my Lord. You are Lord Eagleheart, are you not?'

'I am.'

'Then the message is for you; and if you will give me a moment's interview in private I will deliver it.'

'Certainly not,' returned his Lordship, with haughty coldness. 'I can have nothing to say to a person of your appearance. Be good enough to depart, and never again subject me to such annoyance.' He waved her aside, and was about to step out to the carriage, but the woman did not move out of his way.

'The message I bring is from Huffley White,' she said, in a steady voice, and regarded him with a keen look.

His Lordship drew back all of a sudden, and his countenance changed in expression, something very like alarm appearing on it.

'Oh, indeed,' he said, with an effort, and after a momentary pause, during which he directed what seemed an alarmed look up the staircase. 'The man you name was once in my service, and since he has sent you, I—I will hear the matter. Step this way. Simmons, when her Ladyship comes down, request her to wait a minute in the carriage,' and, to the unmitigated amazement of Biggs and Simmons, his Lordship stepped into a small parlor, near the open door of which he stood, and motioned to her to follow him.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 8.

Ontario Legislature.

The first session of the fourth Parliament of Ontario was commenced on the 7th inst. The formal opening did not take place, as the Speaker had not been elected, and Lieut. Col. Charles Clarke, the member for Centre Wellington, was chosen. The new Speaker is favorably spoken of by both sides of the House, and his election will prove generally satisfactory. From the Parliamentary Companion we learn that Col. Clarke was born in Lincoln, England, on November 28th, 1826. He was educated at Waddington, Lincolnshire, and is Lieut. Col. commanding the 30th Battalion Wellington Rifles. Mr. Clarke is also an ex-pressman, having edited the Hamilton Journal and Express between the years 1848 and 1850 and the Elora Backwoodsman for some years. He was Reeve of Elora for several years, and was first returned to the Legislature in 1871.

How Manufacturers Damaged Themselves.

Under the above heading the Globe commences an article in a recent issue as follows :

"If we leave out of account the one sugar refiner, the four cotton manufacturers, and a few other protected monopolists, the tariff will be found to have left our manufacturers in a considerably worse state than it found them. Most of them are now pretty well acquainted with the fact, and indeed many of them foresaw the end from the beginning, and therefore worked strenuously against the N. P. Others made light of the duties on their coal, iron, tools, and raw material, thinking that as they would get increased prices themselves the increased cost of production was of little account. Many seemed to expect of Sir John that while keeping his promise towards themselves he would find some method of cheating everybody else, and these find the duti s that are hostile to them to be decided burdens, while their own protection affords them no benefit. The whole of the manufacturers who voted for the N. P. have now a good opportunity for thinking over and getting an abiding sense of their folly."

This is quite of a piece with much that has appeared in the same journal with respect to the policy of the present Government, abounding as it does with misrepresentation, mistatement and suppression of the truth. Why say one sugar refinery and four cotton manufacturers, when the fact is that there are two sugar refineries and no less than nine cotton manufactories ? It really does seem as if the Globe cannot candidly state a fact when it has an object in view. That object in the instance under notice is to belittle the manufacturing interests of the country—a policy which the Grit organ and the Grit leaders have constantly pursued, with the object of carrying out their fanciful theories, and so making Canada commercially dependent on the United States. But the die is cast ! that "policy" has been shelved, and there is now really no ground for farther misrepresentation, which is in this case perhaps due to force of habit.

We are quite content to leave the whole subject to the consideration of the manufacturers who voted for the N. P., satisfied that, with very rare exceptions, they are pleased with the effect of their action, and that the accessions to their numbers from amongst those who opposed the present beneficial tariff will far more than counterbalance the defections from amongst them. The Globe and its party will not derive much comfort from the verdict of the manufacturers.

LUMBER TRADE IMPROVING.—A Quebec report says :—"It is reported that one of the largest milling establishments in this district has just concluded the sale of the whole or a large portion of its manufacture of pine deals for the coming season to a London firm. The prices have not transpired, but are thought to be in the neighborhood of $1.04 for first quality, and two-thirds and one-third for seconds and thirds respectively. There is a brisk enquiry for pine deals in this market, and prices, if not the highest ever touched, are within a fraction of those realized in 1873. Some large transactions have also taken place in spruce deals at better figures than for some years back, and altogether the prospects of this trade are very satisfactory.

THE TAY BRIDGE.—Her Majesty the Queen passed over the Tay Bridge on the 20th June last. This fact alone renders Her Majesty's interest in the recent disaster all the greater. In the building of the Tay bridge a warning was given that seems not to have been heeded. On the first day of February, 1877, a storm carried away a pier and two immense iron girders, each of which weighed two hundred tons. The engineer that bridged the Tay is now engaged on a similar structure over the Frith of Forth, which is near the Edinburgh end of the same railroad that crosses the Tay. It is to be hoped that the new bridge will never give the world such a tragedy as the one that occurred a few days ago.

What none of us ever drank from—the tap of a drum.

Exports to the United States.

Value of declared exports for the years 1878 and 1879, from the Consular district of Belleville, Canada :

	1878.	1879.
Qr. end'g Mar. 31.	$ 20 281.39 $	42,279.47
" June 30	199,145.58	101,822.02
" Sept. 30	473,258.82	92,366.99
" Dec. 31	387,809.45	406,996.34
Total,	$1,074 495.24	$643,465.22

	1878.	1879.
Barley,	$648,609 18	$329,718.05
Rye,	78,139.18	91,412.20
Lumber,	244,736.71	139,874.15

For the above statement we are indebted to Col. Prince, United States Consul for this district. It will be seen, from the brief statement which follows the general return, that the principal decrease is in the value of barley, the price of which, as is well known, receded from the abnormally high —we might truly say speculative—rate of last year to figures somewhat below the average three years. The quantity of grain exported to the States having decreased but little, whilst the shipments continue coastwise increased considerably, and the prices realized for the best qualities of barley sold for use in Canada, as well as for the rye shipped coastwise for home consumption, were better than for the same articles sold to the United States. The N. P. created a home market for our rye, and the probability is that that market will be enlarged and improved through the same agency, greatly to the profit of our farmers.

RUSSIA'S DESIGNS. — The suspicious movements of Russian troops upon the western frontier of the empire are attracting the attention of Europe, and especially of Germany. A pamphlet has appeared at Berlin in which the whole question of a possible attack is discussed, and the Russians are warned that they will find an invasion of Germany rather a different undertaking to an invasion of Turkey.

MONTREAL TELEGRAPH CO.—The annual report of this Company has been issued, and is a most satisfactory one, indicating that the business of the country is improving. The number of messages (not reports) has increased by 41,696. The miles of poles are 177½ in excess, and those of wire 239½ in excess of last year. Increase of offices, 50. The gross revenue was $6,867 less, and the expense $7,630 less than last year, the net profit was, therefore, $142,861, against $142,097 in 1878, an excess of $764. The receipts for messages (the Company's main business) have increased, and any decrease in the gross revenue is due to falling off in rents of offices, interest, &c., while expenses show a large diminution. The increase was entirely in the last two months of the year, and, but for the lowering of the tariff the financial result would have been more favorable. The balance of contingent fund left for next year, after deducting expenses, is $144,468 as against $171,482 last year, the diminution being due to expenses incurred in constructing new lines, etc. Assets, about $2, 302, 734, liabilities, $2,087,467. Excess of of assets. $275,267.

An old man, a pensioner, named Thomas Tennent, was found dead in his bed at his home, in London, East, yesterday. He was of advanced years and of dissipated habits. An inquest was not deemed necessary.

LETTER FROM THE RESPONDENT'S SOLICITORS.

With reference to contested elections this important letter is published in a Quebec paper :—

VALIN V. LANGLOIS,
4 Great Winchester street,
LONDON, E. C., 15th Dec., 1879.

SIR,—The petition for special leave to appeal came on for hearing on Saturday, and after a long argument by Mr. Benjamin on behalf of the petitioner, their lordships, Lord Selborne, presiding, refused to grant leave. We cabled you on Saturday to this effect. The principal, in fact the only ground relied upon by counsel for petitioner, was the difference of opinion amongst the judges of the lower Courts as to the Election Act of 1874 being constitutional or unconstitutional, and the desirability of having this point decided by her Majesty in Council, so as to put an end to the conflict of opinions. Lord Selborne, in delivering judgment, said that there was nothing before their lordships to lead them to suppose, neither did they think, that the judges who refused to act would fail to assent to the unanimous finding of the judges composing the Supreme Court, and that, therefore, there seemed no special reason why leave to appeal should be given. His Lordship then went on, contrary to our expectation, to consider whether the Act of 1874 did infringe upon the rights of the Provincial Legislature, under section 92 of the Act of 1867. After complimenting Mr. Benjamin, and expressing his opinion that even if an appeal had been allowed, and the point been fully argued, at hearing, it was doubtful whether anything more could have been said on the subject, his Lordship said the Committee were of opinion that the Act of 1874 was constitutional and within the powers conferred upon the Dominion Parliament by the Act of 1867 ; that that Parliament having power to appoint a new Court for election matters had done so by nominating the different Courts specified in the Act, or any of the judges thereof, to constitute that Court ; in fact, that the distinction between the Act of 1873—which has not been disputed—and the Act of 1874 was little more than this, viz., that by the former any of the judges of the different Courts were formed into the Election Court, and by the latter Act the Courts, or any of the judges thereof ; moreover, that the care which was taken in prescribing the mode of procedure clearly showed that the Court constituted was a new one, for had the Act merely added to the jurisdiction of the old Courts, all these special rules would have been unnecessary.

Yours truly,
BISCHOFF, BOMPAS, BISCHOFF & Co.
To J. Langlois, Esq., Q. C.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—The announcement is made in your issue of yesterday that Mr. Parnell has been invited by the "Irish Cath. Ben. Society" of this city, that is, by a few young men. This is not. I think, as it should be.

Mr. Parnell comes to the country the representative of a suffering people—a people at the verge of starvation exaggerated by the grinding exactions of a favored few, the landlords. He comes, as I understand his motive, to solicit material aid for the fording over the present distress, and to ask the moral assistance of the citizens of this country towards the removing the cause or at least the generally supposed cause, of the periodical famines which afflict his unhappy country.

If the gentleman comes here, I submit that he should be the guest of the city—that the invitation come from the City through the Mayor. But then, I understand his time is limited, and that he cannot visit the principal cities of the Provinces, much less the smaller ones. Therefore I would suggest that action be taken by the charitable and the philanthropic,—that the Mayor be requested to call a public meeting of our citizens, foe the purpose of discussing the most possible or most appropriate means of raising funds to be forwarded to the Duchess of Marlborough, or some other accredited person, for the immediate relief of the suffering districts. This course, Sir, I consider will meet the views of all the charitably inclined and the well disposed towards the sufferers, will prove more effectual, and redound more to the credit of the city. Charity knows no bounds, and should not be circumscribed by the limits of any Society, no matter what its title. The appeal is made to our common humanity, ignoring creeds and sects, and ought to be responded to with the view of relieving the distress of our fellow beings, charity apart. Charity will no doubt be the moving spring to open the purses of our rich citizens, and a sum will be realised worthy of the good name of Belleville.

Your views, Sir, are respectfully called for by

PHILANTHROPIST.

AS A MEANS OF PURIFYING THE BLOOD and humors, there has never been anything superior to BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS ; and where they are faithfully used, we venture to say that no disease, however aggravated or severe it may be, can long withstand their cleansing, healing and restoring power.

A WORD OF WARNING. To protect the public, and prevent them from being imposed upon by the worthless counterfeits and imitations of our MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER, we have paper in which the words "LANMAN & KEMP, New York," appear in pale letters when a leaf of the little pamphlet is held up to the light; and whenever Florida Water is offered for sale wrapped in a pamphlet that does not have this water-mark or stamp in it, then it is counterfeit, and should be rejected.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

MRS. CAPT NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th.:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

City and Vicinity.

CORDWOOD.—Three cars of cordwood arrived by the local railways yesterday.

OPERA HOUSE.—The Alvin Joslin comedy company to-morrow night.

THE WEATHER.—The thaw continues, and the "Probs" give promise of its further endurance, with rain areas.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The meeting tonight will be held in the Baptist Church, under the direction of Rev. A. Schuster.

ATHLETIC CLUB.—A meeting of the Athletic Club is to be held in Carman's Hall this evening. All members are requested to attend.

AN INCREASE.—The Customs returns for Napanee for the half year ending Dec. 31st 1879, show an increase in duty collected of $1,256.60 over the corresponding period of 1878.

BONUS CARRIED.—The By-law granting $5,000 to the Napanee, Tamworth and Quebec Railway, was carried in Newburgh, on Tuesday, by a majority of 60. The vote was: for the By-law 72; against the By-law 12.

OPENED.—Messrs Ross and Barnes opened their gymnasium last night with a good attendance. Exercises of various kinds were indulged in, and several names were added to the list of pupils. The institution bids fair to achieve much success.

MAYOR'S DINNER.—Alex. Robertson, Esq., the retiring Mayor, will on Monday night entertain the members of the Council, Corporation officials and ex-Mayors at dinner at the Dafoe House. The Council of 1879 will hold its final meeting on that night.

GYMNASTICS.—The directors of the Mechanics' Institute have engaged Mr. E. W. Johnston, the famous athlete, to take charge of their gymnasium and give instruction to the members. Mr. Johnston will give an exhibition—open to members and the press only—to-night.

FIRE.—Shortly before 6 o'clock last night fire broke out in a house on the west side of Pinnacle Street, near Dundas Street, occupied by Mr. Ryan. An alarm was at one given, and the firemen turned out with praiseworthy promptitude, but the fire, which had taken in a partition, was extinguished with a few pails of water, so their services were not required.

HELPING THEIR COUNTRYMEN.—The St. Charles T. A. Society of Tyendinaga, have resolved to add their mite to assist the suffering poor of Ireland, by donating a fine piano, worth $300, to be drawn for in this city. The tickets are but $1 each, and the object of the donation is so good a one that we have no doubt the public will subscribe for them liberally. Due notice will be given of the date of the drawing.

HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY.—At a regular meeting of the Quinte Hook and Ladder Company No. 3, the following officers were elected for the coming year:—John Urquhart, President; Samuel Jones, 1st Vice President; Secretary, R. McPherson; Treasurer, J. Kennedy; Foreman, H. Thompson; 1st Assistant Foreman, T. Parsons; 2nd Assistant Foreman, W. Meadows.

SABBATH SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.—The fifth anniversary in the new Church of the Kingston Road Canada Methodist Sunday School was celebrated in the church on the evening of the 7th inst. There was a large attendance of parents and friends, and the exercises were of a pleasing and interesting character, consisting of singing by the children of the school, recitations of dialogues, &c., readings by Messrs Markell and McCammon, solos by Mr. A. Wensley, and an able and impressive address by Mr. R. Luttrell. The proceedings were closed by a short address from Mr. Wm. Wensley, Superintendent of the School, and the singing of the national anthem by the pupils. The meeting broke up at about 10 o'clock, all going home highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

PRESENTATION.—Last night the employees of Mr. Henry Corby, jr., visited that gentleman's residence and presented to Mrs. Corby a handsome liqueur stand, accompanied with a neatly worded address. The affair was entirely impromptu, and Mr. Corby replied on behalf of Mrs. Corby. The guests having been entertained, the party separated with mutual feelings of esteem and good-will.

The School Elections.

The Public School elections which took place in Ketcheson and Murney Wards yesterday, resulted in the re-election of the old members.

MURNEY WARD.

In this Ward the opposition to Mr. Glass, who is one of the most useful members of the Board, was very properly stamped out by an overwhelming majority. The figures were:

Glass	71
Garratt	7
Majority for Glass	64

KETCHESON WARD.

In the early part of the day the contest in this Ward promised to be severe, as Dr. Wilson led but by 5 votes during the first hour; but thenceforward the votes began to come in more largely in his favor, and the result was the bad defeat of Dr. Potts, whose previous canvass did not seem to help his cause. When the polls closed the vote stood:

Dr. Wilson	88
Dr. Potts	39
Majority for Wilson	49

We congratulate Messrs. Glass and Wilson on their re-election by majorities so handsome.

BODY-RAISING.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 8.—Two weeks ago Saturday, Mrs. Margaret Tumay, wife of a wealthy bookbinder of this city, who has been ill 5 months was taken with spasms and the only food she has taken since is 2 ordinary white beans. She is possessed with a hallucination that she has no stomach, which she believes has been rotted away by dyspepsia and until a week ago was growing rapidly thinner and weaker. Since then the physicians note no appreciable change in her condition. During most of the time she is kept unconscious by morphine The unfortunate woman is reduced to a skeleton and wishes to die.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—The "Railway Age" publishes an interesting article on Railway foreclosure sales during 1879. It gives a list of 65 roads sold, mileage 4,900 miles, representing one hundred and sixty three millions bonds and debts and eighty millions capital. The stock being $243,000,000 of the capital investment affected. In 1878 there were forty eight roads reported sold, in 1877 fifty-four, and in 1876 thirty. The total for the last four years is one hundred and ninety seven roads, with mileage 16,500, and capital investment $972,000,000, which has been bought at the auction block. This is about a fifth of the entire railway mileage and capital of the United States. A very few new foreclosure suits have begun during the year, showing that the era of bankruptcy is ended. Only six roads being placed in the hands ofreceivers, against twenty-seven in 1878, thirty-eight in 1877, and forty-two in 1876.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 8.—President Porter will not withdraw his resignation unless every recommendation by the Sanitarium who visited Memphis be carried out. He says if the most important sanitary work is to be neglected I will not be responsible for the consequences, and if we should have fever next summer by reason of this neglect, I could not make a successful appeal for money or supplies. Unless the privy vaults are filled up, Memphis will not be safe from the return of yellow fever.

Many prominent Memphians have telegraphed, urging him to withdraw his resignation.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 8.—Another body interred in Oakwood Cemetery on Monday noon, was removed by resurrectionists the same night. The excitement over these wholesale grave robberies is intense. It is evidently the work of the medical students. The bodies removed were mostly those of colored persons, and the colored legislators here are becoming excited, and threaten to cut off the usual appropriations for the medical College.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The Herald's Utica special reports an interview with Seymour. He says there is every reason to hope for a success of the Democratic ticket in the coming presidential election.

The Herald's Augusta, Me., special says the Republicans feel that Eugene Hale made a fatal mistake in qualifying in the House; they abuse him accordingly. It is believed that numbers of Republicans will qualify to-day, so that they may be strong anough to demand the yeas and nays, and so filibuster as to keep the fusionists from electing the Governor until the contested cases are decided.

A Long Island Dutchman, in reading an account of a meeting in New York city, came to the words, "the meeting then dissolved." He could not define the meaning of the last, so he referred to his dictionary, and felt satisfied. In a few minutes a friend came in, when the Dutchman said, "Dey must have very hot weather in New York. I red an account of a meeting vere all the peoples had melted away."

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

THE GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

TORONTO, Jan. 8.

The first session of the fourth Legislature of Ontario was formally opened to-day by the Hon. D. A. McDonald, Lieutenant Governor, with the following speech:

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly.

I have great pleasure in meeting you on this, the first occasion of the Legislative Assembly being convened since the general election of the past year.

The deep interest manifested in the opportunity then afforded for a full discussion of public affairs, and the quietness and order with which the elections were everywhere conducted, were striking proofs of the intelligence and public spirit of the people of this Province.

I am happy to be able to congratulate you on the beneficial effects upon the country arising from last year's abundant harvest, and in the fact, that an increased demand for certain classes of farm produce has indicated some tendency to a revival in that long depressed industry.

I had the pleasure last summer of paying an official visit to the Thunder Bay district and to the territory declared by the late award to be part of the Province of Ontario; and between Lakes Superior and the Lake of the woods. And I have reason to believe that my visit was not without public advantage in directing your attention to the reports relating to the resources of this and other sections of the northwestern and northern portions of the Province, received from the stipendiary magistrates appointed under the provisions of an act of last session, and which will be laid before you.

The existence of gold deposits in the islands of Lake of the Woods, has lately attracted much attention and should this circumstance, as is anticipated, occasion a considerable influx of population to that locality during the ensuing spring and summer, some additional measures for the preservation of peace and order may be necessary.

Correspondence has taken place between my Government and the Government of Canada respecting the award of the boundary arbitrators. I trust that at the approaching session of the Dominion Parliament the award will receive from that body legislative recognition.

The attention of my Government has recently been directed to the duty of bringing the management of the Reformatory for boys at Penetanguishene more thoroughly in harmony with the original design and intention of such an institution. The system it is proposed to pursue is modelled on the improved method, adopted at the most successful establishments of this kind elsewhere, and with the view of substituting for penal discipline a treatment and influences of a strictly reformatory character. A bill will be submitted to you for this object, and your assent will be asked to an appropriation to cover some necessary outlay in connection with the changes contemplated.

The Ontario Agricultural College has been so far a success as to justify in my opinion legislation providing for its permanent management. I trust a measure framed with that object will meet with your approval.

The intimate connection between the prosperity and advancement of the agricultural interests of Ontario and the welfare of all other classes of the community is universally recognized. You will be asked to provide for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the various matters affecting this great industry, and especially to ascertain by what means increased efficiency may be given to the efforts of the Government and Legislature in its behalf.

Experience in the working of the Free Grant Acts has shown that the absolute relinquishment of the rights of the Crown to the pine timber upon the issue of the patent has encouraged a wasteful treatment of our pine forests, and has been attended with loss to the revenue without corresponding benefits to the locatee. You will be asked to consider a measure designed to protect the public interests in these respects.

The depressed condition of the agriculturists of Great Britain leads to the expectation that a considerable immigration of farmers and farm laborers to Canada may be anticipated during the present year. Care will be taken by my government to place the claims and advantages of the Province of Ontario favorably and prominently before that portion of the population of the united kingdom.

In view of the satisfactory results that have attended the past efforts towards the fusion of law and equity procedure in this province, you will be invited to consider a measure which, by consolidating the Superior Courts of Law and Equity and providing for the adoption of a uniform and improved system of practice and pleadings, will complete the work of assimilation.

Some extension, with due safeguards, of the jurisdiction of the Division Courts, appears to be called for by public opinion, and a bill to effect that object will be laid before you.

From proceedings in the Dominion Parliament at its last session, the early abolition of the Dominion Insolvency law appears to be imminent, and in view of that event it may be desirable that a measure for the equitable distribution of the property of execution debtors should be placed on the statute book of Ontario without delay.

The frequent serious accidents, attended in many instances with loss of life, to brakesmen employed on railways, suggest the importance of some legislation, making it the duty of Railway Companies to provide some means by which the danger of this necessarily perilous vocation may be diminished. I invite your earnest attention to this subject.

Certain of the statutory exemptions from the municipal taxation hitherto granted have been felt to be a grievance in some of our municipalities. A bill on this subject will be proposed for your acceptance and at the same time you will be asked to consider some other changes in the incidences of local taxation.

The requirements of the Legislature and Public Departments have long since outgrown the accomodation afforded by the buildings erected at a time when the population of Ontario comprised little over 200,000 souls, and when the business transacted was proportionately limited. Along since as 1872 and again in 1877 the Government architect called attention, in his reports to the Commissioner of Public Works, to the necessity, on the grounds of health, safety and economy, for the erection of a new Legislative Chamber and public offices. For some years it has been necessary to secure a hired house for the business of two of the Departments, while that of a third is transacted at a distance of nearly a mile from the main building. Meanwhile large sums have been unsatisfactorily expended in repairs incidental to deterioration effected by time. The public records, of great value, continue to accumulate in great peril from insufficient security against fire, and increased inconvenience has been experienced year by year, owing to the want of the space demanded for proper departmental arrangements. The report of the architect, with plans and estimates for the construction of new buildings on a more eligible and more healthy site, will be laid before you. The value of the present site for other purposes will materially reduce the cost of the new structure, while the proximity of material and labor available at this time for such undertakings. It appears to me therefore to be worthy of your very serious consideration whether the erection of an edifice commensurate with the needs of the public service and creditable to the Province should be longer delayed.

The annual reports of the several Departments will be submitted for your information.

In connection with the report of the Minister of Education, it is satisfactory to observe that the improvements introduced within the last two years into the system of training teachers through the agency of the Normal and County Model Schools, have been attended with the best results to the great cause of Public School education.

The public accounts of receipts and expenditure will be laid before you. The estimates for the current year will on an early day be presented for your approval. They will be found to be framed with all due regard for that economy which is consistent with the demands of the public service.

I trust that in this, the last session of the Legislative Assembly during which I am likely to occupy the position of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the work accomplished may be of so permanent and useful a character as to leave in the minds of all who are engaged in or identified with it a feeling of true and lasting satisfaction.

The Greatest Remedy Known

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

Daily Intelligencer.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capsized, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

OF
VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft, thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10,560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without interest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers,

it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

FOR ANY BANK,
Are on sale at the Intelligencer Office

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

TAKE NOTICE.

APPLICATION will be made at the next Session of the Dominion Parliament for an Act to authorize and empower the Corporation of the City of Belleville to build and construct a Roadway and footpath across part of the mouth of the River Moira, extending from the new Ferry Slip at the junction of Dundas and Front Streets, to the north-east corner of the Island in the mouth of the Harbor, lately occupied by H. B. Rathbun & Son, and for other purposes in connection with the same.

By order,
R. NEWBERY,
Clerk of Municipality,
City of Belleville.
Dated at the City of Belleville this 18th day of December, A. D. 1879.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophoaphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

The Rowland Hill Memorial fund now amounts to £5,100.

The Duke of Edinburgh has purchased Morris Castle, near the Queen's Palace of Osborne, for £80,000.

It is reported that Lord Napier, of Magdala, will be recalled from Gibraltar and sent to Ireland as Commander-in-Chief.

A Scarlet Fever epidemic exists in the district of Wigan just now. The disease broke out in the township of Aspull, which adjoins Wigan, but soon spread to the borough and to the surrounding townships. In Aspull alone between six hundred and seven hundred persons have been attacked, and here, as elsewhere in the district, there has been a large number of deaths.

Two men were killed by the fall of two houses recently in London. The jury returned a verdict of culpable negligence against the contractor and his foreman for not carrying out the instructions of the district surveyor while the houses were being altered, and recommended that serious cases under the Building Act should be tried by a Magistrates' Court, assisted by a practical assessor, and builders convicted should incur heavy penalties.

A painful sensation was caused at a funeral at the Leicester Cemetery recently, by one of the bearers dropping down dead. Last week Miss Ada Bruin, daughter of Councillor Bruin, was drowned while skating on the ice, and one of the bearers at her funeral was a middle-aged gentleman named Joseph Blockley. After the service at the chapel, the procession had just started for the grave when Mr. Blockley suddenly fell down on the snow, and when he was lifted up life was found to be extinct.

Recently the lords of the Admiralty prohibited the wearing of flannel jerseys by naval seamen beneath their outer garments on the ground that by the regulation uniform the throat and chest were left bare. the outcry against this by the men during the severe weather is endorsed by the naval surgeons, who point to the increasing sick lists. The Lords of the Admiralty have issued permission for wearing jerseys during the winter months if on a pattern approved by the Admiralty. Earnest hopes are expressed that this approval will not be delayed until summer.

The Victoria Cross has been conferred on Captain (now Major) Edward Pemberton Leach. R. E , for having, in action with the Shinwarris near Maidanah, Afghanistan, March 17, when covering the retirement of the Survey Escort, who were carrying Lieutenant Barclay, 45th Sikhs, mortally wounded, behaved with the utmost gallantry in charging, with some men of the 45th Sikhs, a very much larger number of the enemy. In this encounter Captain Leach killed two or three of the enemy himself and he received a severe wound from an Afghan knife in the left arm. Captain Leach's determination and gallantry in this affair in attacking and driving back the enemy from the last position saved the whole party from annihilation.

The Birmingham coroner recently held inquests upon seven young children who had been burned at their respective homes, and died after admission to the General Hospital. In each case a verdict of accidental death was returned. The coroner said the jury had seen the bodies of the seven children at the deadhouse, and the sight was the most horrible picture that could be imagined. Not one, however, out of a dozen, or perhaps out of fifty children who were burnt died, and the amount of frightful suffering which took place within the town would be appalling if the matter was considered. The Legislature had made regulations in the interest of public health—some wise and others fantastic. He would suggest that an effort should be made to get introduced in the Attorney-General's Bill for the Codification of Criminal Law a clause providing that if a child were burnt owing to the want of a fireguard, the father being able to afford one, their neglect should be a penal offence. The jury concurred with the opinion of the coroner.

Eastwell Park, the residence of the Duke of Edinburgh, is leased by him from the Earl of Winchelsea. It is a very commodious mansion, standing on the largest, and perhaps loveliest, park in southern England. In Northamptonshire, Lord Winchelsea has a magnificent old seat, Kirby Hall, once the home of the renowned dancing Lord Keeper Hatton, which has been suffered to become a ruin, the only habitable portion being tenanted by peasants. Lord Winchelsea might be taken as the prototype of Thackeray's Earl of Bareacres, his finances being so slender that a few years ago a charwoman and her husband got a summons out to obtain payment for $6 for work done. The footman endeavored in vain to eject the summons server, who succeeded in getting possession of two chairs, which were sold by auction. The previous year Lord Winchelsea's eldest son, who subsequently enlisted as a private, was sent to jail for contempt in taking no notice of a summons for a debt of £24 for horse hire. Were his lordship to die the estate might recover. as his grand son (his eldest son is dead) would have a long minority, which does wonders in redeeming an encumbered English estate.

London has no Baron Haussman to raze whole colonies to the ground and replace them with new buildings, but in the place of such a prince amongst builders there are numerous persons who are constantly buying property and clearing away the existing old buildings. Amongst the old spots recently marked for destruction is a curious nest of houses situated in White Lion court and Wycher court, and including Nos. 17 and 18, Wych street, Strand. This relic of old London, so close to the modern buildings now rising in the Strand, cannot boast of any association with kings and queens and noble ladies, but is of interest as being the resort of the notorious Jack Sheppard, "the prince of cracksmen," with whose deeds and misdeeds Mr. Harrison Ainsworth has made everyone familiar. It was in White Lion-passage, now known as White Lion-court, that the inn of the White Lion stood, and there in the tap room Jack Sheppard was wont to nightly meet his professional friends and acquaintances. The interesting pannelling, staircase and other old woodwork make the interior as curious as the exterior. In Wycher Court Jack Sheppard served his apprenticeship with Mr. Wood, the carpenter. It was in White Lion Court that the meetings of the Fetter Lane Baptist congregation were held after the destruction of the building in Penn Place, Fetter Lane, in 1788. Wych street, it may be mentioned, retains a portion of its old name, Via de Aldwych, the ancient designation of what is now Drury Lane, of which it is a continuation.

Irish News.

It is announced that the sum about to be expended on the improvements of the Shannon will be about £500,000.

In the Linen Trade of the North of Ireland matters still possess an encouraging aspect, and the signs of a revival in business continue.

In a house in Rutland Square, Dublin, no less than 964 sovereigns were found recently in one of the mansions on the north side of the square by a locksmith.

Deaths from drowning have been unusually numerous throughout Ireland, with parties skating or sliding. The frost is reported intense, but evidently not waterproof.

Michael Ball, farmer and bailiff on the estate of Lord Vaux, of Harrowden, near Mullingar, who was shot in the back by an assassin, has died from the effects.

Mr. Drinkwater, contractor, of London, has telegraphed to Clare, ordering the dismissal of all hands, excepting fifty employed on Fergus slob reclamation, owing to the Government having declined to agree to Mr. Drinkwater's proposal of a preliminary advance.

Want is noticeable among the crows in Ireland as well as the people, from the fact that a farmer shot three wild ducks on the River Barrow recently. He had no way of retrieving them, the ice being too thin to bear his weight, but they did not remain long there until several crows came along and greedily devoured them.

At a meeting of the Home Rule League in Dublin, Messrs. Brooks, Parnell, O'Leary, and Shaw, members of Parliament, present, Mr. Parnell stated he had had a conference with Mr. Shaw, and the result was that the League should be active to secure the return of as many Nationalists to Parliament as possible at the next general election, any difference of opinion between himself and Mr. Shaw on the subject having been arranged satisfactorily. Mr. Shaw corroborated the statement of Mr. Parnell.

The anniversary of the Manchester executions was celegrated in Bandon recently. Owing to the evening being very wet, comparatively few accompanied the temperance band to the Kilbrogan graveyard, where there is a very neat stone memorial cross erected to the memory of Allen, Larkin, and O'Brien. The anniversary of the Manchester executions was celebrated in Cloyne with a torchlight procession, numbering about 600 strong, and marched four deep through the principal streets. At Mallow, on the anniversary of the Manchester martyrs, prayers were offered up at all the masses for the repose of the souls of Allen, Larkin, and O'Brien, and in the evening the local band turned out and paraded the principal streets of Charleville, playing "The Dead March in Saul," accompanied by a vast concourse of people.

Scotch News.

The parish of Banchory is remarkable for persons attaining long lives. Last week three of the parishioners whose united ages amounted to 277 years, passed away. There are still several very old persons in the district. Two are over 95 years of age, and both hale and hearty; and there are four whose ages range from 80 to 90—two of whom may be seen any day following regular employment.

At Edinburgh recently a prisoner, John Murphy, while being sentenced by Lord Young, was addressed as follows :—"Although you are only twenty-five years of age, there are six previous convictions of theft against you. You seem to have begun early. Twelve years ago you had five years in an industrial school, ten years ago you were sent to a reformatory for five years, in 1873 you had six months' imprisonment, in 1875 you had twelve months' imprisonment, in 1875 you had fifteen months imprisonment, and in 1878 eighteen months' imprisonment; so that since your childhood you have been chifly in gaol. I must now send you into penal servitude; but I know not whether I am justified in making it the shortest period allowed at law, and I sentence you to five years' penal servitude."

A sad case was recently witnessed in a Dundee Court. A young lad named McFarlane was sentenced to undergo twenty days in prison for assaulting his mother. In the cross-examination the following evidence was given by the lad's mother. Assessor—Is your son a sober lad? Witness—He's not a teetotaler. He struck the glass out of my hand and said, "You are not going to drink Jessie's wages to-night," and I said "What have you to do with that?" Then he struck the back of my hand, and broke the glass. John Ross, husband of the last witness, also stated that he saw the accused kick his mother. Assessor—Were you the means of supplying the whiskey? Witness—No; there was drink in the house, but I do not know who paid for it; it was the women among themselves. Assessor—And you drank at the expense of the women? Witness—I drank one glass.

AS A MEANS OF PURIFYING THE BLOOD and humors, there has never been anything superior to BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS; and where they are faithfully used, we venture to say that no disease, however aggravated or severe it may be, can long withstand their cleansing, healing and restoring power.

A WORD OF WARNING. To protect the public, and prevent them from being imposed upon by the worthless counterfeits and imitations of our MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER, we have paper in which the words "LANMAN & KEMP, New York," appear in pale letters when a leaf of the little pamphlet is held up to the light; and whenever Florida Water is offered for sale wrapped in a pamphlet that does not have this water-mark or stamp in it, then it is counterfeit, and should be rejected.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 9.

The Ontario Government's Programme.

Our Ontario rulers have given, as usual, a very lengthy "speech from the throne," though that with which they have opened the fourth Legislature is not so barren of matters of general importance as most of those which have preceded it under the same auspices. It may be that Mr. Mowat has become tired of the reproach which has been cast upon him of being "a Reformer with nothing to reform," and that he has determined to depart from the "rest and be thankful" policy which he has consistently pursued. Of this we shall be able to judge better hereafter, when his measures shall have been submitted to the House, and when their character has been seen—that is, if some of the announcements are not mere decoy ducks, put forth to garnish the bill of fare for the time being, and to be laid aside for future action. Such has been the frequent practice of Grit Governments, and the present occasion may quite probably form no exception to the rule. We shall see.

Of the minor measures promised in the speech, there are : An Act for the better preservation of the peace in part of northwestern Ontario, to which territory our title will probably be determined at the next session of the Dominion Parliament. Then there are to be measures for altering the system of management in the Penetanguishine Reformatory ; to provide for the permanent management of the Agricultural College ; to amend the Free Grants Act. These are all measures of public interest, and will require careful legislation, whilst the proposition to appoint a commission to inquire into matters affecting the agricultural interest and the announcement in relation to placing the claims and advantages of the Province before the farmers and farm laborers of Great Britain are suggestive of favoritism and jobbery, and will require the careful attention of the opposition. There are several well-known needy hangers-on of the Government, always ready to do odd jobs which are well paid for, and if by these means it is sought to provide employment for them at the public expense, we shall look to the Opposition to show up the matter in its true light.

The proposed fusion of the Courts of Law and Equity is an idea borrowed from Mr. Macdougall, just as is the idea of the Act providing for the safety of brakemen to be credited to Mr. Wills, which gentlemen introduced measures on these subjects. These bills, as emanating from members of the Opposition, were, with that narrow partizan feeling which has ever characterized Mr. Mowat's Government and the party which he leads, rejected. Now the Government have adopted those gentlemen's perceptions and will doubtless in the future claim credit for the origination of measures which their opponents created, and which public opinion has forced them to take up. This is especially true of the Act regarding brakesmen, the discussion in the press of the necessity for which has beyond doubt caused our rulers to take action on.

The promised measure with relation to tax exemptions stands in much the same position as those mentioned in the last paragraph, the difference being that Mr. Mowat, when the former bill on the subject was defeated, promised to take the subject into consideration. If those who favor a law with provisions of wide extent are hopeful of their wishes being gratified, they are likely to be doomed to disappointment. The subject is a very difficult one to legislate upon, and the Government will not be wanting in excuses for presenting a measure of small scope.

The proposals to extend the jurisdiction of the Division Courts and to provide for the equitable division of the estates of execution debtors are matters of much importance, and seem likely to be beneficial.

As to the erection of new Parliament buildings, the language of the Speech leads us to fear that the good advice of some of their friends will not be heeded. "The erection of an edifice "commensurate with the needs of "the public service and creditable to the "Province," is language not calculated to impress one with the idea that economy will be observed ; but we will reserve comment until the amount of the appropriation to be asked for is known.

In conclusion, we hope that the Ministerial measures will not be delayed as they were last year, but that our legislators will at once proceed with the work before them, and not have the session drag along until public attention is diverted from their proceedings by those of the Dominion Parliament.

GRAND TRUNK RECEIPTS.—The total receipts for the week ending January 3rd were $160,021 as against $137,707 for the corresponding week last year. Increase, $22,314. Miles open, 1,784.

—The Duke of Marlborough, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, passed through Queenstown, on Wednesday, and was received with dogged silence by the people.

—Mr. McLaren, the great lumber merchant, is suing the Canada Central Railway Company for $150,000, damage to lumber caused by fire from a locomotive. The trial is now going on in Toronto.

—Mr. James Shannon was on the 8th inst. appointed postmaster of Kingston, and Mr. George A. Burnham, of Toronto, Assistant Post Office Inspector, Mr. A. R. Barnham has been performing the duties of the office since the retirement of Mr. Stevens.

—It is stated that application has been made to the Pullman Car Company, for plans and specifications for the construction of a car, for the exclusive use of H. E. the Governor-General, and H. R. H. the Princess Louise.

—It would be interesting if some one would make a calculation of the time spent by the average elector and canvasser in Ontario, in all the various elections from Reeve to M.P. If eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, our people certainly pay it.

—Mr. Wragg, the Company's Engineer, writes to the Globe that the proposed arrangement between the Grand Trunk and Toronto, Grey & Bruce Railway Companies in connection with the change of gauge of the latter is not a practical amalgamation, but merely for interchange of traffic as between all independent railway companies in the Dominion.

DINNER TO MR. CHAPLEAU.—A dinner was given to Hon. Mr. Chapleau, the new Premier of Quebec, at Montreal on the 8th inst. There was a brilliant gathering of leading Conservatives of the Province present, and several of the Dominion Cabinet Ministers were present. It was a magnificent ovation.

POLICY TOWARDS IRELAND.—The British Government has changed its policy towards Ireland, and has decided to prosecute relief works on an extended scale. Discontent continues to prevail in several counties, and process-servers have met with such open opposition that the police have been called to protect them against violence.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.—The Credit Valley Railway Company have been trying for over a year to obtain an independent line into the city of Toronto, and claimed the right to use the old Ordnance property. The Grand Trunk and Northern Railway Companies have been resisting this claim, and the case, which was before the Courts for some time, was settled on the 7th inst., in favor of the Grand Trunk and Northern Railway Companies.

WATER, NOT WHISKEY.—In October and November last ten barrels of alcohol were shipped from Toronto, consigned to Hargrave & Co., Halifax. They were all placed in a bonded warehouse. On Monday morning, the locker noticed that around about the bungs of these packages was ice, as if something had oozed out and congealed with cold. Thinking this was singular for alcohol to become thus frigid, he reported the circumstances. An investigation ensued, when it was found that the whole ten barrels contained pure water. Herein is a mystery, which has not yet been cleared up. As what point was the whiskey syphoned off, and who put in the water ?

A MEMORIAL CHURCH.

THE MARINE MUDDLE.

WHOLESALE BRIBERY

A $315,000 DEFAULTER.

DEATH ENDS HIS CAREER.

A DISCARDED LOVER CUTS HIS THROAT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 9.—The building of a memorial church in this city, which is the birthplace of Dr. Channing, is contemplated. The residents of this city have already subscribed $30,000 conditionally upon $200,000 more being raised outside.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The Herald's Augusta special says that the bribery cases will come up in the House to-day, when Clark will make a speech declaring that he was approached by prominent Republicans and offered $1,000 and his choice of two positions under the U. S. Government, to stay away from the House ; and asserted his reply was that Blaine had not enough money to buy him up. He will ask for a committee of investigation. A member of the Council said in an interview last night, "I could have made $20,000 by changing my policy in this matter." He also hinted, and the same intimation came from other sources, that even the Governor himself had been indirectly approached with pecuniary inducements, but it is impossible to verify the statement. These and all other previous charges of corruption will be closely investigated, as soon as a complete organization is effected.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The Finance Committee of the Produce Exchange at their last meeting ordered that $31,500 deposited in one bank be removed to another. The Treasurer, Benj. C. Bogert, promised to sign the check yesterday, but when called upon in the afternoon could not be found. Just before the Exchange closed yesterday it was made public that Bogert had been proved a defaulter to the amount of $315,000. Bogert died suddenly at the residence of a friend in this city yesterday and it is thought he committed suicide. He had been treasurer of the Exchange ever since its organization, with the exception of a single year. He was a highly respected merchant and possessed the confidence of the community. It is supposed he used the money of the Exchange in his private business.

The officers of the Bremen steamer Weser, which arrived yesterday, report that while at sea, a young man named Carl Heinrich committed suicide in his cabin by cutting his throat. Before he died, he confided to a passenger that he had committed suicide because he had been discarded by his intended bride.

Weston has accepted O'Leary's challenge ; he names $50,000 as stakes, and prefers London being neutral ground, and will walk 142 consecutive hours. He says he is ready, and the sooner the better.

The Excise commissioners have prepared a list of 863 places where liquor is sold in this city without a license.

H. H. Honore, jr., brother-in-law of Fred. Grant, and Jesse R. Grant, son of the General, have formed a copartnership in the general produce business. Both were formally admitted yesterday to membership in the produce exchange.

Arrived, State of Nevada, from Glasgow.

HORRIBLE MURDER.—A despatch from Ottawa says :—"Information has just been received of a horrible murder which occurred at Maniwaki, about 100 miles north of this city, on the Gatineau. Full particulars have not yet been received, but it is said that a man named Brisbois quarrelled with his partner, and literally chopped him to pieces with an axe. The murderer has escaped."

ANNEXATION AND INDEPENDENCE.—Sir Francis Hincks hits the nail on the head in a letter published by him on the 7th, on the question of annexation and independence. He maintains the views which he stated lately in the New York Herald, and asserts that annexation could only be accomplished after a civil war. He thinks the present position of Canada an enviable one, and any attempt to give effect to the principles of independence or annexation would lead to civil war.

SUPPOSED MURDER.—On the 7th inst., Mrs. Plebbs, living with her mother Mrs. Gaveley lot 19, 4th concession Markham, was shot in the lungs by a man named George Earnest. Mrs. Plebbs was separated from her husband, and was somewhat intimate with Earnest. On the night of the 7th inst., Earnest on approaching the house where Mrs. Plebbs lived he saw her standing on the stoop, and is said to have raised the gun, and pointing it at Mrs. Plebbs, said in a stern voice, "Mary, I'm going to shoot you," and pulling the trigger, fired the contents of one barrel into her side. The poor woman screamed, and staggered back into the door, fell fainting and bleeding on the kitchen floor. Earnest, on the other hand, claims that the shooting was accidental ; that at the time he was getting over a fence in front of the house, and that seeing her he called out to her to be careful and get out of the way, as she might be shot ; that the next moment he stumbled against the fence, the trigger came in contact with a board and exploded one of the barrels. He has been committed to gol. Mrs. Plebbs was not expected to recover.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 9.

City and Vicinity.

ERRATUM.—Jas. Duncan of Rawdon received 347 votes, not 347 as appears in the returns as published.

LADIES' ACADEMY. — This institution will re-open on Monday, the 12th inst. See the advertisement for particulars.

THE LENTEN SEASON.—Lent begins on the 11th day of February, that day being Ash Wednesday, and terminates on Sunday, March 21st.

RUNAWAY.—A horse belonging to Dr. Murphy ran away last night. The result was some damage to the dash-board of the cutter to which the animal was harnessed.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The meeting of to-night, which will be the last of the week-night meetings, will be held in St. Andrew's Church. It will be conducted by the Rev. Alex. Turnbull and J. G. Campbell, Esq.

THE PROSPECT.—The Oswego Palladium says :—"Vessel men are said to be 'feeling about' for vessels, and mariners here think there will probably be considerable vessel property change hands, this spring. They consider the present outlook for marine business in 1880 very favorable."

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board met last night and as required by law counted the votes cast in Wednesday's election and declared the result. In consequence of the failure to elect a representative in Coleman Ward, the Board ordered a new election for that Ward, the nomination to be held on the 15th inst.

OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Charles L. Davis and his company will produce the new play "Alvin Joslin" at the Opera House to-night. Three hours' laughter is promised.—It is so long since a company of Japanese have visited Belleville, that the clever troupe who are to appear to-morrow night ought to be largely patronized.

THE "SENTINEL-STAR."—The two Conservative papers hitherto published in Cobourg, namely the Sentinel and the Star, have been amalgamated under the title of the Sentinel-Star. As the field was rather too limited for the two previously existing journals, their union will be beneficial to the proprietors and to the party. The first issue of the Sentinel-Star gives evidence that it will be a live and progressive local paper. Mr. E. H. Fogarty is the editor.

A SPLENDID YACHT.—The large sloop yacht of which we made mention several weeks ago as being in course of construction at Trenton by Capt. Cuthbert, is now, we learn, well advanced towards completion, so far as her hull is concerned, being all calked and completed, except the cabin, upon which the workmen are now busy. The dimensions of the vessel and spars are as follows: Hull.—Length of keel 54 ft. 6 in.; length over all 58 ft. 6 in.; breadth of beam 16 ft. 6 in.; length of centre board 16 ft.; draught of water aft 4 ft. 6 in; draught forward 2 ft. Tonnage measurement 55 tons. Spars—Bowsprit out board 23 ft.; mast 56 ft.; topmast 27 ft.; main boom 53 ft.; gaff 34 feet. The frame is of oak, and rock elm and pine planking 2 inches thick; covering board, deck frames and mast partners oak; deck plank pine 1¼ in. wide and 1¼ in. thick, bent around in the shape of the yacht; fastenings all of galvanized iron. The cabin will be handsomely panelled with ash, walnut and grey elm, with gilt mouldings and will have 6 ft. head room. The starboard stateroom will be 12 feet long and fitted with two double berths, and painted white. The port stateroom will be 9 feet long and similarly finished. There will be well room and water closet on port side, a forecastle with two berths, lockers for provisions, ice locker for meats, lockers for dishes and cooking utensils, and the forecastle will be fitted up as a pantry and kitchen. The yacht will thus be first class in every particular. She is 1 ft. shorter and 1 ft. less beam than the famous Annie Cuthbert (now the Greyhound, of Chicago), champion of the lakes, which was also built by Cuthbert; and being of superior model to that famous flyer, is tolerably certain to prove her superior in point of speed. This splendid yacht will fly the colors of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, and we hope will carry them to the fore in many a well-contested race.

ATHLETIC CLUB.—The meeting of the Belleville Amateur Athletic Club in Carman's Hall last evening was well attended. A number of new members joined. The prospects of the club are very bright and its members last evening felt quite enthusiastic. The meeting adjourned until next Tuesday evening, when the Constitution and By-laws will be presented for adoption.

HOME FOR THE POOR.—The entertainment which is to be given in the Opera House on Monday night for the benefit of the home for the poor and friendless will, we hope, net a goodly sum for that deserving institution. The programme comprises pantomime by Profs. Green and Wallbridge and the pupils of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, and music by several leading amateurs of the city. Tickets can be obtained at Reynolds' book-store. The entertainment is under the auspices of the Ladies' Association for the "Home for the Friendless," and we trust will be largely attended.

NORMAL SCHOOL.—The following students from this part of the Province are attending the Normal School at Ottawa:—Ladies.—Mary E. Creeper, Madoc; Eliza Robertson, Sidney; Emma Jane Powell, Plainfield; Ida Leavens, Picton; Jessie E. Mair, Napanee; Annie Condon, Hastings; Martha J. Brown, Alberton. Gentlemen.—Edward S. Roy, Picton; Paul Kingston, Harold; Wm. Moore, Plainfield; Thos. Walmsley, Milford; Walter J. Cody, Belleville; Milliard Maybee, Loughboro; Alfred E. Platt, Picton; Wm. G. Amour, Hastings; Fred W. Barnett, Loughboro; E. W. Henderson, Bath; Harry F. Sharpe, Hastings.

ROSE BELFORD CANADIAN MONTHLY.—The January number presents the following table of contents:—A Christmas Carol, by Charles Pelham Mulvany, M.A.; Canadian Life in the Country Fifty Years Ago, I. by Canniff Haight; Jean Ingelow and her Poetry, I. by Felix L. Max, Toronto; Stanzas for Music, by F. Blake Crofton, Truro; Charlotte's System, a Story, by Mrs. Francis Rye, Barrie; Greetings, a Poem, Selected; The Diary of Samuel Pepys, Esq., Concluding paper, by the Rev. J. S. Stone; To the New Year, by Gowan Lea, Montreal; Burns and Ferguson, by David K. Brown, Toronto; Ballads of Fair Faces, V. by C. P. Mulvany, M. A.; The Future of Morality, by W. D. LeSueur, B. A., Ottawa; In a Studio, A Poem, by Fidelis; Under One Roof, Chaps. XLVI-XLVIII, by Jas. Payn; The Higher Law, A Poem, by Kate Seymour MacLean; Round the Table; Book Reviews; The Month's Scrap Book, CAUGHT IN THE ACT.—Shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, Sergeant Snider and Constable Cook observed a loaded sleigh being driven out of the gangway at Wilkinson's hotel, adjoining the lower bridge, which is under seizure for debt. Suspecting that all was not right, the officers stopped the sleigh and questioned the driver, a boy, whose account of himself was so unsatisfactory that they detained him until Mr. S. C. Edwards, who was in charge of the premises, could be got. Mr. Edwards informed the police that the goods had been stolen from the hotel, and directed the arrest of the boy, who gave his name as Frank Bradford. The prisoner professed to be quite deaf and stupid last night, but this morning he showed that his senses were really sharp. He was brought up in the Police Court, but was acquitted, as the law does not provide for such a case. The officers are, however, entitled to credit for preventing the attempted robbery of the estate.

A BRAVE ACT.—The Ottawa Citizen has the following, which will be read with pleasure by the many friends of the Captain whose brave exploits are thus graphically narrated:—"A North-West gentleman, writing to a friend in this city, describes an incident worthy of mention. He says: "Shortly after the arrival of the force at the place now called Fort Macleod, Capt. Crozier (then sub-Inspector) was sent by Col. Macleod with ten men to arrest a most desperate character (a negro) named Bond, for murder, and who had, for a length of time defied all authority. After riding all night he, with his men, arrived about daylight at the wretch's cabin, and captured him most cleverly, thus effectually putting a stop to the negro's career of crime. On returning to Fort Macleod with the prisoner, Capt. Crozier perceived the terrible Whoop-up-gang of outlaws, who had been the terror of the whole Nor'West (and had robbed and cheated the poor Indians year after year) preparing to leave Whoop-up with their ill-gotten gains, and although four of his horses had given out, Capt. Crozier attacked the desperadoes with only six men, made prisoners of the whole gang, and confiscated all their goods, consisting of horses, waggons, large quantities of furs, rifles (sixteen shooters,) buffalo robes, &c. Such an exploit is worthy the recognition it deserves. Less courage, less decision, and less bravery, have been rewarded with the thanks of the public, and even decoration."

The only time in life when woman seems to be truly happy is when she camly sits down and attempts to trim a new bonnet with old trimmings. She seems to be truly happy, but what a Vesuvius is at work in the heart!

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—It is stated that the Bishop of London signed letters of request, to the Dean of Arches, Court of Canterbury, in a fresh suit against the Rev. Alexander Mackonochie for the deprivation of Mackonochie's rights of priesthood.

DUBLIN, Jan. 9.—The Home Rule League have resolved to hold a public meeting on the 21st to consider the state of the country.

CAPETOWN, Jan. 9.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Paul Kruger, president of the committee appointed at a meeting of Boers on the 10th ult., which adopted a resolution to maintain the demand for the independence of the Transvaal and instructed Paul Kruger to summon the Volksraad.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A Vienna correspondent in discussing the Imbrianne affair says nobody suspects any real intention on the part of Italy to pick a quarrel with Austria, but the matter excites distrust which in the long run, must tell on the relations of the two states.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The authorities of the French Cable Company deny the report that the syndicate which controlled the shares of the Company had thrown them on the hands of the contractor in consequence of the discovery of a flaw in the contract. They say that as soon as the cable is laid so as to make a connection between Brest and England their cable, which is in perfect working order, will be opened for traffic, certainly not later than the first week in February.

BOSTON, Jan. 9.—An Augusta special says that the feeling of doubt and distrust has increased, and the military power, though no troops were called out, is becoming unusually conspicuous. Gen. Chamberlin is in constant consultation with the civil authorities and is gradually becoming an important figure. Gen. Brown of his staff arrived from Portland this morning, and other old army officers are expected to day. A conference at Blaino's house lasted till a late hour this morning.

This morning when the House met, no Republican was in the hall, an l Locke was the only one in the Senate. This gave a clue to the Republican policy. As soon as the reading of the journal was finished, Swan, of Machanic Falls, rose to a question of privilege, and gave his story of an attempt to bribe him. The name of the accused party is Wallace R. White, of Winthrop, a republican lawyer.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 9.—Arrived the Algeria.

BRISTOL, Jan. 9.—Arrived, the Olympia.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 9. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk easterly to southerly winds, cloudy warm weather with rain areas, followed to-morrow by strong westerly to northwesterly winds and colder weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer, cloudy, rain.

Police Court.

FRIDAY, Jan. 9.

VAGRANCY.

Edward Fagan was sent to gaol for two months.

LARCENY.

Frank Bradford, charged with stealing goods under seizure, the property of Wm. Wilkinson, was acquitted.

The case of Lattimer vs. Vandervoort was further enlarged until Monday, for judgment. Bail was continued.

Seasonable Topics.

An Irishman says he can see no earthly reason why women should not be allowed to become medical men.

It is said that Edison's light will burn under water as well as above it, and there is no longer any need of feeling around in the dark for fish.

Wizard, thou of Menlo Park,
With thy incandescent spark,
While thy lamp holds out to burn,
Knowest thou who may return?

If you have a strong desire to convert the heathen, you needn't go out of your own street, perhaps not out of your own house, for a good opportunity.

The "best boy in school" occasionally hankers to throw a paper wad.

A great many people are anxious to introduce a new religion into the world who have never given the old one a fair trial.

A tongue that delights to give good cheer is an inestimable blessing, but a tongue that tattles is worse than live coals in the hand.

A man who had $65 stolen from him received a note with $25, saying: I stole your money. Remors nawe at my consheens, and I send some of it back. When remors naws agin I'll send you sum more.

We have never seen a man bewailing his ill-fortune who was something of contempt for his weakness. No individual or nation ever rose to eminence in any department which gave itself up to childish complaints.

Soft as silk, with golden hair,
Bright as stars were her eyes of blue.
Truly I loved my lady fair;
Truly my lady loved me, too.
Did it break my heart when my love lay dead?
Why, bless your heart, she didn't die;
Time wrought a change as it onward sped;
She loves another—so do I.

Hungerford Council.

TOWN HALL, Dec. 29, 1879.

A special meeting of the Council, held in the Town Hall for the purpose of giving the By-law for granting the sum of $10,000 bonus for the building of a Branch Railway from some point on the Belleville and North Hastings Railroad, its third reading. All the members present.

A petition was handed in by the Deputy Reeve, signed by David Hewitt and twenty-four others, praying Council "Not to pass said By-law, as your petitioners believe it is illegal."

Moved by the Deputy Reeve, seconded by T. Sherry and resolved, that the petition of David Hewitt and others be received and filed.

Moved by Francis Murphy, seconded by Jas. Clare, and resolved, that N. S. Appleby, the member for this Riding in the Local Legislature, be and is hereby authorized to have claused twelve of the By-law granting aid to the construction of the branch Railway to the village of Tweed changed in the Act to be brought before said Legislature by striking out the words "before the day" and in place thereof insert the words "within one year from the day" in place thereof.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request thank you all on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

MRS. CAPT NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th.:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. ly

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life had been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, after taking only thirty short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for any people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

THE NEW YEAR'S DAY IN GOTHAM.—SWINDLING EXTRAORDINARY.—BOGUS BANKERS BY THE DOZEN.—SUBSCRIBE FOR THIS PAPER AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR AWAITS YOU.—FASHION GOSSIP, &c., &c.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3, 1880.

New Year's day was so light and balmy that one almost wondered why the ladies did not take advantage of leap year privilege and do the visiting, instead of being obliged to remain housed all day. As it was, the beautiful weather was apparently conducive to hospitality. It seemed as if the latch-string of every house was out. On no preceding New Year's day was the custom of receiving so generally observed, and as a natural sequence, everybody visited everybody. The warm southern sun even tempted out those who have not made calls for years, preferring the glow of a parlor fire to the inclement weather outside. The streets were thronged with people. Those who did not receive were out enjoying a promenade. The thoroughfares bore a holiday appearance. Fifth Avenue particularly seemed to have been transformed into an immense drawing room, where flashing uniforms of military and naval officers and shining dress suits shone resplendent amid handsome toilets. But for the carriages the illusion would have been complete. The calling continued until a late hour, and the pedestrians hurrying from house to house were met even as late as 9 o'clock, while it was near midnight before the sound of wheels entirely ceased on the fashionable avenue.

There is a great excitement and intense interest among brokers and stock speculators, over the exposure of certain broker firms, charged with swindling their customers by what is known as the combination scheme. The method of doing the business is as follows: The firm advertises for country customers to put up from $10 to $100 as part of a combination which was sure to realize handsome profit by investing in stocks. The investor was generally informed by circular that the combination made a turn of certain stock whereby he was benefited $50 or $60, which was put, into the investment account, and a request was made for more money. The speculation being regarded too good a thing to let slip, the next circular informed him that an unfortunate turn in stocks had swallowed up both the profit and capital of the combination. The Stock Exchange were aware of these schemes over a year ago, and commissioned a firm of lawyers to investigate the swindle, and they have obtained evidence which induced the Postmaster General to stop all letters and money orders directed to Allen, Jordan & Co., Lawrence & Co., Barnes, Garrison & Co., and Adams, Brown & Co. These parties issued circulars, with which they flooded different parts of the country; they employed a large number of girls to write and mail these documents. It is estimated that a single firm spent over $40,000 annually for advertising. The post office records show that they received thousands of letters and money orders each week, and it was found that the most effective way of reaching them would be through the Post office department. With that end in view the lawyers collected evidence that would be satisfactory to the Postmaster General. They then called in the aid of the post office officials here, and with Anthony Comstock concluded the cases. One of the lawyers engaged in the matter said this afternoon that four of the firms are practically under the management of a man named Buckwalter, who was formerly owner of the alleged firms of Lawrence & Co. and Adams, Brown & Co., and was half owner in the firm of Allen, Jordan & Co., and Barnes, Garrison & Co., but in September last he sold out his interest to two men, one of whom was half owner with him in two of them. It is estimated that Buckwalters' income amounted to $22,000 a month, and as there are many more men in the business, the enormous amount of profits may be estimated.

In New York fashion and culture have been divorced. It looks even as if they had never been married. We read of the days when Washington Irving, Julian Verplanck and J. K. Paulding were young men of fashion. We learn too that William B. Astor sought the illustrious friendship of Madame de Stael and Madame Recamier before accepting the life long duty of nursing a great fortune. Now-a-days, however, but few of our young men of fashion care for culture or literature. The word "culture" is to them simply a slang expression, and a pretext to laugh at Boston. The great realm of learning is to the majority of New Yorkers of less importance than Delmonico's cafe or the foyer at the opera.

The gayeties of the winner commenced very early. The epidemic of weddings having set in, dinners, teas and balls follow weddings "wherever they go." Commercial brightening-up is of course felt first in the great commercial metropolis. The age has come out of sage green and gone into brilliant scarlet. Women's dress is now uncommonly splendid. The gold, silver and copper brocades, which are really stuffs for priests, vestments, the great use of gold thread in all decoration, the vivid feathers and birds and eccentric tricks in bonnet fashions, all point toward dash, extravagance and display. It is like the sixteenth cetury in Venice, only without a Titian or a Paul Veronese to paint the portraits of the women.

AUGUST.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St. John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capcised, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

DR. GILES—My Dear Sir: During the recent cold weather, on coming from my house to the court room, my foot slipped and I fell heavily, striking my back against a large stone. Was lifted up and carried to the house. My wife applied your Liniment all over my spine, and next day was able to resume my duty on the bench. I am, very truly,

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

CHANCERY SALE
OF
VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commerced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Signed. J. E. GALLAWAY, M. D.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

TWO LOVES AND A LIFE.

To the scaffold's foot she came,
Leaped her black eyes into flame,
Rose and fell her panting breast—
There a pardon closely pressed.

She had heard her lover's doom—
Traitor's death and shameful tomb;
Heard the price upon his head;
"I will save him," she had said.

"Blue-eyed Annie loves him too;
She will weep, but Ruth will do.
Who should save him, sore distressed,
Who, but she who loves him best?"

To the scaffold now she came;
On her lips there rose a name—
Rose, and yet in silence died—
Annie nestled by his side.

Over Annie's face he bent,
Round her face his fingers went;
"Wife," he called her—called her "wife,"
Simple word to cost his life!

In Ruth's breast the pardon lay,
But she coldly turned away;
"He has sealed his traitor's fate—
I can love and I can hate."

"Annie is his wife," they said.
"Be it wife, then, to the dead,
Since the dying she will mate;
I can love and I can hate."

"What their sin? They do but love;
Let this thought thy bosom move."
Came the jealous answer straight;
"I can love and I can hate."

"Mercy!" still they cried; but she:
"Who has mercy upon me?
Who? My life is desolate—
I can love and I can hate."

From the scaffold stairs she went,
Shouts the noonday silence rent;
All the air was quick with cries;
"See the traitor! See, he dies!"

Back she looked with stifled scream,
Saw the axe upswinging gleam;
All her woman's anger died—
"From the king!" she faintly cried—

"From the king. His name—behold!"
Quick the parchment she unrolled.
Paused the axe in upward swing—
"He is pardoned!" "Live the king!"

Glad the cry, and loud and long.
All about the scaffold throng,
There entwining, fold in fold,
Raven tresses, locks of gold:

There, against Ruth's tortured breast
Annie's tearful face is pressed,
While the white lips murmuring move:
"I can hate—but I can love."

Sunday Reading.

Living by Cheating.

A man has something to sell. He proposes to obtain for it, not what it is worth, but what any person can be deceived and persuaded to give; and the man who knows how to deceive and beguile his neighbour into paying twice the value of an article, is held to be keen and shrewd. In the long run, it may be fairly questioned whether any bargain is a good bargain for the seller unless it is also a good bargain for the buyer.

The man who undertakes to do business on the principle of deceiving and cheating, will do well to remember that it is not wise to take too narrow a view of these matters. If of fifty men in a community each contrives in the course of a year to cheat each of the others to the amount of fifty dollars, pray tell us how much better off any of them will be at the year's end! Each of them has gained twenty-five hundred dollars by his own rascality, and lost twenty-five hundred by the rascality of his neighbors. But most of them expect to gain, but do not expect to lose; they regard themselves as very "smart," and in this opinion no doubt they are correct; but they make the very common mistake of supposing that because they are wise everybody else is foolish. The keenest of them in the course of a lifetime find their match, and perhaps lose in a day everything which they accumulate through years of craft and guile.

All business done upon this basis of deception, cheating, and rascality, is every way unsatisfactory. It ruins many, it really helps none. The long lane of crookedness turns at last, and turns down hill. The only safe and proper way to do business is to do it honestly; and if men are unwilling to do this, much as they think they gain, they will find in the end that their loss is greater. Absence of honesty causes loss of confidence; loss of confidence causes financial panics and disasters; swindling, stealing, and defalcations rob men of their rights, and send them out into the community as tramps and beggars; enemies to society, and tempted to revenge their real or fancied wrongs wherever they can find opportunity; and finally come anarchy and revolution, in which the ill-gotten gains of generations go down in seas of fire, and blood, and desolation. The remedy for panics is confidence; the foundation of confidence is honesty and integrity; and the foundation for honesty and integrity is the fear of the Lord, which is the beginning of wisdom.—Common People.

Walking with God.

The difficulty which most people have in religion is to bring the thought of God into their daily lives. His very greatness makes it hard to connect him with homely, every day matters. We net some sense of him in church, or in the prayer-meeting, or in rare hours of exalted feeling. But when we go into the busy world, where most of our life is spent, God fades away into heaven that is that is farther off than the blue sky above our heads. This is a great loss to us. It is neglect on our part of our highest opportunity. God walks with us, in closest nearness, at every moment. There is in him, if we could learn to take it, a provision of helpfulness, of sympathy, of sufficiency, for every step in the whole round of daily life. The very things that seem insignificant and without spiritual meaning are set round us by God as a part of our education. And if we habitually recognize his presence in them, all the incidents of business and our household care and daily walk would become threads of gold, holding us in the sweetest and noblest friendship with our Heavenly Father.

Law should be the death which spares no one.

Individual Duty.

However much we must rely, in our efforts for good, upon mutual help and upon organization and social machinery, the reformation of society and of the individual must ever depend on the exertions of individual will, working in a lonely way, and reliant, for its best labor, upon itself as helped by its God alone. The most imposing combination of men is strengthless unless it rests, at last, upon some independent power of mind. From an autocracy to a democracy, no aggregation of numbers can bring any strength to it, work unless is is moved by the influencef in one of its members or in a thousand of them, of a spirit which would be willing, if need be, to go forth single-handed in all the bravery of an individual struggle.

Charles Kingsley has strongly emphasized the essential nakedness of the most favored souls. Alone we must make our most important decisions in life, and alone we must go to the grave. The Germans call one of their greatest authors "the only," because they find none but himself with whom to compare him. In a true sense the humblest man or woman may be called by the same title; and just as man rises in intelligence and in power for good, so does he perceive more and more clearly that God has made him a being who must, in large measure, do his own work in his own way, subject only to the Maker of all. From the upbuilding of the Christian church down to the performance of the humblest of life's labors, we are never absolved from the duty of individual development and individual influence.

Some of the ignorant and superstitious oriental religions forward, as the greatest of human prizes, the ultimate absorption or destruction of the separate soul in some vast and incomprehensible impersonality. A similar eternity is all that modern pantheists and materialists have to offer. But this is not the idea of the Christian faith. Tennyson, speaking of the work of nature unilluminated by faith exclaims:

"How careful of the type she seems,
How careless of the single life."

But Christianity reads these lines just the other way. For the individual, Christ was born into the world; to him, as an individual, Christ calls; and for him, if he rejects his Saviour, the whole work of salvation is a failure. Over one reclaimed sinner all heaven rejoices; and on his single work, perhaps, may depend the welfare of tens of thousands whom he will never see. If the history of the world at large is the history of the work of individuals, still more is the record of the Christian church one long story in God's dealings with the separate individualities who enter his service. Whether we look at men's labor for others, or at those for the building up of their own character, we find both the call and the promise made to the individual, even though the call be as wide as humanity, and the promise extend to the latest generation.

Most people profess to know the vast extent of one man's possible power, and dull must be the mind that cannot narrate a long series of wonderful results growing from the labors of single, self-reliant wills. Most people, too, are ready to acknowledge that they have a personal duty and opportunity,—a duty to God and to man, and an opportunity possessed by nobody else. But too often faith is weakened by a dull acceptance, as though it were a truism, of that which ought to be a constant vivifying influence upon one's own life. Nor until we know all that God knows can we estimate to the full the power and the sacredness of some one life which may seem the humblest in the world. If every Christian, save a single believer, were this very day to perish from the face of the earth, God could renew his church as easily as he cares for it now. There have been darker days in religious history than this day would be, were there but a singe christian to see its light. For that christian the promises of the Bible would be just as true as they are now, and his trust ought to be as firm and unwavering as though he could see about him the whole company in heaven and earth. A modern pagan uttered a truth whose far-reaching power he little understood, when he wrote:

"Though the many lights dwindle to one light,
There is help if the heavens have one."

By the right contemplation of the power of individual influence, and of the positive duty of personal independent development there can come nothing but strength to our faith and speed to work. The most individual of men have not been the must egotistic or the most foolhardy. They have not spent their time in wicked self-examination or moody introspection. They have, like Paul, felt themselves to be God's own messengers and representatives, and yet the humblest of his creatures. They have simply perceived their duty to themselves and to others, and have tried to follow it whithersoever it led. They have remembered that to God the man is more than the machine, the soul more than the tribal relation. They have looked beyond any gregarious advantage, or the temporary glitter of numerical majorities. They have felt in their hearts the strong powor of the maker himself, and so have perceived, with Athanasius, that one man with God is a majority. And thus have they wrought the better for him whom they serve, for their fellows, and for themselves. They have remembered that one that fears God and eschews evil, is greater in God's sight than a legion of those who prefer the fellowship of men to that of a pure heart,—even though we have to endure as many woes and temptations as the lonely sufferer in the land of Uz. — Sunday School Times.

The Cup of Sorrow.

On classic cups and vases we have sometimes seen devices carved by the cunning hand of the sculator. So around the cup of trial, which God commends to the lips of suffering Christians, are wreathed many comforting assurances. Here is one of them "All things work together for good to them which love God. Here is another like it: "As thy day is so shall thy strength be." Afflicted friend, turn thy cup of sorrow round, and you will see engraved on it these precious words: "As one whom his mother comforteth so will I comfort you." Turn it again and read: "My grace is sufficient for thee." The whole cup is encircled with the words of love. But it requires faith to read them. They are invisible to selfishness and blind unbelief. And God sometimes washes the eyes of his children with tears, in order that they may read aright His providence and His commandments.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

If we knew how little others enjoyed, it would rescue the world from one sin; there would be no such thing as envy on earth.

All gaming since it implies a desire to profit at the expense of another, involves a breach of the tenth commandment.

The Reliable Man.

The reliable man is a man of good judgment. He does not jump at conclusions. He is not a frivolous man. He is thoughtful. He turns over a subject in his mind, and looks at it all round. He is not a partial or one-sided man. He sees through a thing. He is apt to be a very reticent man. He does not have to talk a great deal. He is a moderate man, not only in habits of body but also in mind. He is not a passionate man; if so by nature, he has overcome it by grace. He is a sincere man, not a plotter or schemer. What he says may be relied on. He is a trustworthy man. You feel safe with your property or the administration of affairs in his hands. He is a brave man: for his conclusions are logically deduced from the sure basis of truth, and he does not fear to maintain them. He is a good man; for no one can be thoroughly honest and truthful without being good.

Careless Marriages—An Evil o Good Times.

When a tree bears very full the fruit is apt to be inferior, and some of it defective. There is hardly any good with which some portion of evil is not blended. Thus the prosperous times which are upon us bring with them their own peculiar temptations and dangers. Among these, to the young is the greater liability to hasty and careless marriages.

When times were hard the expenses of housekeeping constituted an obstacle to marriage which in many cases is removed now. It is always so easy to get married, and it is at present, comparatively speaking, so easy to support a family, that this relation, to last for life or to end prematurely in misery, is too likely to be entered into with too little consideration.

Marriage is honorable; marriage is wise; but marriage cannot be the source of lasting happiness save where it springs from a deep and unchangeable affection, founded upon a thorough acquaintance of the parties with each other. Of all relations it is the one into which persons should not carelessly enter. The number of marriages is greatly increased by the prosperous times; but not so certainly the changes of marital happiness.

Silent Sermons of Country Life.

Nature is always teaching. Country life, to the observant, is full of instruction. Morning and evening, the broad light of noon-day, and deep night, with its starry hosts, Spring and Autumn, Summer and Winter—all are eloquent preachers to him who will listen.

Early this season there was a violent storm of wind and rain. When it was over long rows of trees, in a vicinity which fell under our notice, could be seen, with some uprooted and nearly all bent to an angle. Only here and there, at long intervals, would be one left standing perfectly erect.

The explanation lay in the fact that most of the trees were shallow rooted. Only a few had struck down and taken deep and strong and wide hold of the ground.

So it is with men. The great mass commence life with fair prospects. As long as the sunshine of prosperity lasts they seem to be getting on well enough. But when assailed by the storm of temptation—which sooner or later comes to all—they are not strong enough to resist it. Some bend; some break; some are completely upset and destroyed. The few who are impregnably rooted in principle stand strait and unmoved.

This is a very short sermon, but long enough to last a life time for those who will heed it.

The Meanest Man.

The Boston correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press tells this story: I once heard Mark Twain tell his inimitable story illustrating how mean men could be, and it struck me as being one of the funniest and most pointed tales I ever heard. It was in substance that a poor laborer was at work blasting in a ledge, when a blast exploded, and he was blown out of sight into the air. He was blown so far skyward that he was gone fifteen minutes, at the end of which time he came back and went to work. The company, however, were mean enough to take fifteen minutes out of his wages. The absurdity of this story would bring a smile to the gravest face, especially if told by the Hartford wit. That company might, indeed, be taken as a criterion for meanness, but now they must yield the palm to a Boston firm, whose actions are without parallel, and are exciting unfavorable comments in all parts of the city. The firm alluded to carry on the clothing business at the North End, and in their employ are thirty-five girls, more or less. Just before Thanksgiving, the girls, prompted by the best of feelings, conceived the idea of making the two members of the firm a present. The hat was passed around among them and $22 was obtained, which was expended in two albums. The afternoon before Thanksgiving was selected for the time to make the presentation, and the whole business was done in approved style and seemingly to the satisfaction of all concerned. The sequel follows: When the next pay day came around each girl had the pay of half an hour, the time occupied in making the presentation, taken from their wages! Here is a theme for Mark Twain. Let him bring all his sarcasm and wit to bear upon these apologies for men, who, it should be stated, are not fair specimens of Boston merchants. If a more exasperating case of human meanness can be related, one based upon facts, Boston would like to know it.

Gems of Thought.

Fidelity is the sister of justice.

When firmness is sufficient, rashness is unnecessary.

I fear God, and, next to God, I chiefly fear him who fears Him not.

The difficulty is not so great to die for a friend as to find a friend worth dying for.

Humanity is never so beautiful as when praying for forgiveness, or else forgiving another.

Socrates being asked the way to honest fame said, "Study to be what you wish to seem."

He who receives a good turn should never forget it; he who does one should never remember it.

A single bad habit, in an otherwise faultless character, as an ink-drop, soileth the pure white page.

Nothing is more dangerous than an imprudent friend; better is it to have to deal with a prudent enemy.

To be perfectly just is an attribute of the divine nature; to be so to the utmost of our abilities, is the glory of man.

They who live under a tyranny, and have learned to admire its power as sacred and divine, are debauched as much in their religion as in their morals.

The Parliament Buildings for Ontario.

The Hamilton Times—an influential organ of the Mowat Government—gives the Ontario Ministry the following sensible advice anent the project for the erection of new Parliament buildings in Toronto :—

"From what has already transpired, it may be anticipated that the Speech from the Throne to be delivered on Thursday next will allude to the necessity of new Parliamentary and Departmental Buildings. We presume there are few who will question the truth of the assertion that such improvements are needed in the public interest, and we believe the province will sustain a measure to that end, providing its chief feature be rigid economy, a fact to which the Government are fully alive. There is no doubt that the room where the Assembly sits is far from being what it should be, even on the scores of safety and health, while it cannot be denied that the offices occupied by the Ministers are ill-arranged, overcrowded, and, so far as the public records are concerned, positively unsafe. Two of the Departments have actually been crowded off the premises, and are to be found in hired buildings in the city. Clearly this is not as it should be. Still it does not justify the laying out of large sums of public money to provide the necessary outfit for the Assembly and for the Departments.

"If the citizens of Toronto are laboring under the impression that the province will sanction the erection of a gigantic and stately block of buildings in order to beautify their city, we can tell them they are the victims of a dreadful hallucination. To satisfy the people who pay the taxes, the buildings must be free from architectural frippery and gimcrackery. They must be plain and unpretentious to a fault, if display is to be secured at any additional outlay over that required for a comfortable room for the Assembly to meet in, and for sufficient and safe offices for the departmental clerks and records. This is the feeling in the country, and so deeply is it rooted that the Government will find that the most popular plan will be to keep the expenditure down to the lowest possible point. If the present site realizes from $250,000 to $300,000, a very large sum will have been secured. To this might be added $100,000 or so, but a total expenditure exceeding or approaching half a million of money in all, would be more than unfortunate. Indeed, if the Government could see their way to putting up the necessary structures for the money realized from the sale of the site, they would find at the next general election that popular opinion endorsed their exemplary economy. We trust and believe that the Estimates will show that the sum to be voted is one that can be defended at all points."

We hope that the ideas expressed by the Times, which coincide with those previously given by the INTELLIGENCER, will prevail. But as economy has never been a characteristic of "Reformers," except when in opposition, we fear that the organ's good counsel will not be heeded, unless, indeed, the fear of popular disfavor and expulsion from office at the close of their term may have the desired effect.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.—A despatch from Ottawa on the 9th says :—"Changes will be made by Order-in-Council in the Regulations concerning Weights and Measures. The changes will relate to two complaints that have been made. Greater conveniences and more liberal treatment will be extended to the manufacturers of weights and measures, as regard the stamping of measures on or off their premises; and iron weights of smaller sort than half a pound will be permitted on condition that the metal is soft enough to admit of official marking."

SAULTE STE. MARIE RAILWAY PROJECT.—A deputation from the Montreal Board of Trade had an interview with Sir Charles Tupper in Montreal on the 8th in reference to the Sault Ste. Marie Railway. At the close of an address showing an intimate acquaintance with the subject, Sir Charles said he had great faith in the management of railways by private individuals or companies, and thought the Government would give such assistance as they could afford to any company that would undertake the work, and the Ontario Government no doubt would also do something towards its construction. Sir Charles also explained that the high rate of freight at present ruling in the Pembina branch was due to the fact that the road was still in the hands of the contractors.

"Don't be afraid to praise your servants when they deserve it," remarks an exchange but the minute the husband tries that on the hired girl she has to hunt for another situation.

Shipment of Timber.

We learn that Mr. Luttrell, Superintendent of the local Railways, made a contract yesterday for the shipment of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty cars of square timber from Hastings hither. The timber will be delivered on the wharf here, rafted on the ice, and will be ready for being sent forward to the Quebec market on the opening of navigation. The advantages derived by the shippers via the Grand Junction Railway are, that the rapids and falls of the Trent, which injure timber greatly in the drive, will be avoided, and that the timber will reach market a month or six weeks earlier than it could possibly do otherwise. This is of much importance, as there is now a rising market for timber for England. We are glad to see that the road is thus beginning to fulfil the intention with which it was constructed, namely to secure the transportation of the timber and lumber products of the district. With the completion of the line to connection with the Midland, it is now quite evident that the whole vast timber product of the district lying between Belleville and the Georgian Bay, so far as it could reach the Midland Railway, would be shipped to Belleville and rafted here. The reasons for this are obvious, and in addition to the advantages which shippers along the Trent derive, those who now ship via Port Hope would avoid the dangers of the lake, and consequently be put to much less expense for rafting and towage than they now are. We therefore hope that no obstacle will be thrown in the way of securing the completion of the road to Peterborough and thence to direct connection with the Midland at Omemee, in which case the highly beneficial scheme outlined by Mr. Bell, Grand Trunk Solicitor, at the public meeting held recently, will be carried into effect.

The Ontario Legislature.

FRIDAY, Jan. 9.

The only business transacted was the adoption of the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne after speeches by the mover and seconder and by the Attorney-General and the leader of the Opposition.

The Address was moved by Dr. McLaughlin, member for West Durham, in a brief speech. Mr. Waters, of North Middlesex, seconded the address in a speech of some length.

Mr. Meredith criticized several of the propositions of the Government and Mr. Mowat replied.

DUFFERIN ELECTION.—The contest on the 9th in Dufferin for the Legislature resulted in the election of Mr. Wm Jelly, Opposition, by a majority of about 300 over Mr. Thomas Dull, Ministerial. The polling showed that of the three Opposition candidates Mr. Jelly was by far the strongest, the vote standing as follows :—

Jelly	767
McGhee	399

Majority about 250. Mr. Henderson was nowhere, and the other candidates practically retired before polling day.

The Wesleyan chapel, in the City Road, London, has been nearly destroyed by fire. Wesley himself laid the foundation-stone on the 1st of April, 1777, and the edifice was open the following year. In it his remains lay for several days after his death ; and in the ground behind it he was buried. It consisted of a principal chapel and galleries capable of accommodating 2,000 persons, and of a smaller structure known as "John Wesley's Morning Chapel." The latter was entirely consumed, and the back of the larger chapel. In this portion of the building stood the communion table, surrounded by elaborate monuments, among which were the tablets and memorials in honor of John Wesley, Charles Wesley, Dr. Coke, the Rev. John Fletcher, Vicar of Madeley, Adam Clarke, the commentator, and many others. All these have seriously suffered, but not to the extent that might have been expected, considering the great heat to which they were exposed.

When you speak evil of another you must be prepared to have others speak evil of you. There is an old Buddhist proverb which says," He who indulges enmity—is like one who throws ashes to windward, which come back to the same place and cover him all over."

A GENERAL HANGED.

MASKED ROBBERS AT WORK.

PENNSYLVANIA POLITICS.

A Counterfeiter Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—The Irish Relief committee yesterday telegraphed $2,000 to Dublin for relief of the sufferers in Ireland.

HILLSVILLE, Carroll Co., Va., Jan. 10th.—General Webb was hanged here yesterday for the murder of his father-in-law, Joshua Nester, June 20th. The victim was a respectable farmer aged 86, and Webb's motive for his murder was to obtain through his wife possession of property which would descend to her on the old man's death. He shot Nester in the latter's house from a piece of woods near by.

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 10.—On Thursday night 8 masked robbers entered the residence of Jacob Nishley, a miller aged 60, living at Conestoga Creek, 5 miles from this city, and demanded his money or his life. Nishley fearing violence gave them $150, all he had in the house. The robbers received this with loud cheers and thanked him for his kindness. They then ransacked the house and on leaving struck him on the head with a club. He was found unconscious yesterday and is in a critical condition. No arrests.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 10.—Great indignation prevails here because Gov. Hoyt yesterday appointed Stanley Woodman, Democrat, judge of the 11th Judicial district in preference to ex-Senator Payne, Republican, an applicant for the position. At Kingston, the late home of Gov. Hoyt, a club marched in procession to its headquarters and tore down a large transparency that adorned the front of the building because it bore the Governor's picture, and trampled it in the mud amid cries of derision and disgust. The club is composed of wealthy and prominent Republicans.

GREENVILLE, Miss., Jan. 10.—A man giving the name of W. Stanley was arrested here yesterday for assault. An investigation of his baggage disclosed $400 in counterfeit coin. When arrested he made a fierce resistance, and is evidently a desperado of the worst type.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Naftal, who is accused of setting fire to his clothing store, Red Bank, causing a disastrous conflagration, surrendered yesterday. He protested his innocence and wept like a child.

The business of three more firms engaged in swindling through pretended stock operations, have been stopped, and the delivery of all mail matter to them prohibited by the Post Master General. The names are Baxter & Co., T. Potter, Wright and Benedict & Co. All of these firms made considerable money out of this business. Richard B. Baxter, of Baxter & Co., is reported to be very wealthy and now enjoying himself in Europe.

Instead of $31,500, which should have been on deposit at the bank in which the defaulting Treasurer of the Produce Exchange kept account, only $300 was found yesterday. The total amount of Bogert's defalcation thus far disclosed is $35,000. His property has been attached to satisfy claims of over $60,000 made by the Merchants' Exchange, of which he was a director.

The Sheriff yesterday seized the property of Van Alspyne & Smith, manufacturers of house trimmings, on judgment of $14,000. Liabilities of the firm $75,000. B. N. Smith & Co., manufacturers of piano legs, are involved.

Schaefer and Sexton will play a match game of billiards for $1,000 and Collendar emblem to-night.

Duties amounting to over $8,000,000 were collected at this port in December, being an increase of over $2,000,000 over December '78.

Russell Sage said yesterday that Jay Gould's plan to build an opposition line from Toledo to Buffalo had been tabled, because a satisfactory arrangement had been made with the Lake Shore road to receive all freight offered by the Wabash Railroad.

A German engineer has discovered on the site of ancient Pergamus (now Bergama), in Asiatic Turkey, over two hundred statues and pieces of sculpture belonging to the best period of Greek art. These works are mainly from a temple to Athena on the site of the Acropolis. They include the alter, a colossal Laocoon, figures of Eros, of two reclining females, of many Roman ladies, of satyrs and tritons, together with a highly ornamental frieze and case of a pedestal supporting a statue of Zeus, and adorned with representations of the deities of the elements.

A certain little Pharisee who was praying for his big brother had a good deal of human nature in him, even if he was only six years old. He prayed, "O Lord, bless brother Bill, and make him as good a boy as I am."

The captain of of a coasting schooner, finding a Yankee boy, who was a green hand, eating some ham and eggs which he had stolen from the ship's stores, called out to him, "Here, you lubber, I'll have none of that !" "Waal, Cap'en," quietly responded the boy, "that suits me. I don't think I could spare you any of it, any how."

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

City and Vicinity

OPERA HOUSE.—The Japs will appear to-night.

HOME FOR THE POOR.—Remember the entertainment in aid of this worthy charity on Monday night.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board will hold its final meeting on Tuesday night at the usual hour.

IN APPEAL.—The appealed case of Gay vs the Guelph Mercury will be heard on Wednesday night next in the City Hall.

SOCIAL.—The Bridge St. Methodist Social will be held on Tuesday evening next, instead of Monday.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.—A sermon on the sin against the Holy Ghost will be preached (D. V.) to-morrow evening in the B. C. Church by the Rev. A. Schuster.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Charles Francis, ex-Reeve of Trenton, is to sail from New York next week on a visit to England and France, and on his way back he will visit his ancestral home in Ireland.

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The concluding meeting of the series will be held in the Bridge Street Church to-morrow night, at 8:15, when the Rev. Messrs. Willoughby, Locke and Lane will officiate.

CITY COUNCIL.—The final meeting of the City Council of 1879 will be held on Monday night. The Council of 1880 will meet on Monday, the 19th inst., at 11 a. m. for the purpose of organization.

COLEMAN WARD.—The name of Mr. Hayne, ex-Alderman, is mentioned as a probable candidate for School Trustee in Coleman Ward. Nomination on Thursday next.

ATHLETICS.—Mr. E. W. Johnston, now of this city, accepts the challenge of Thomas Lynch, of New York, and will meet him in Toronto. Mr. Johnston shows that he means business by depositing $200 in the hands of Mr. Plummer, of the New York Sportsman.

THE FISH TRADE.—Considerably activity is now manifesting itself in this business and a large trade is being done in this locality. Along the bars on the bay there are villages of fish shanties and the catch of the various classes of the finny tribe are large.

RACING.—Owners of speedy horses here, about to be fitting them for the coming ice races, a number of which are already advertised to take place. There are now few flyers now owned here, but there are a number of green ones which bid fair to attain a front place in the ranks of the trotter.

RAIN AND WIND.—Those who had occasion to be on the street last evening were in anything but a pleasant mood during the continuance of the storm of wind and rain which prevailed. Rain fell in torrents and the wind fairly howled so that pedestrians were made to feel unpleasantly damp and generally uncomfortable.

L. O. L. 437.—The following is the list of officers of L. O. L. No. 437, Queensboro, for the ensuing year:—F. J. Thompson, W. M.; Victor Delyea, D. M.; S. Wiggins, Chaplain; W. J. Wiggins, Secretary; Robert Reid, Treasurer; L. D. Clothier, D. of C. Committee—W. J. Blakely, Charles Hicks, Wm. Clark, Byard Bradshaw, John A. Blakely.

MATINEE.—The entertainment in the Opera House this afternoon was largely patronized and gave general satisfaction.

PERSONAL.—Mr. T. S. Cooper, Assistant Superintendent of the G. T. R., made an official visit to this city yesterday, and made a general inspection of the company's works here.

GENEROUS.—The Manager of the Japanese Troupe extended an invitation to the pupils attending the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, to witness the matinee exhibition of the company in the Opera House this afternoon.

REFORM MEETING.—At a meeting of the Reform Association of West Hastings, held this afternoon, Mr. Thomas Holden was nominated for the Legislature. It was not known at the time of our going to press whether Mr. Holden would accept or not.

A NEW COMPANY.—A new company—whose headquarters are in Youngstown, Ohio—has been formed for the purpose of iron mining in this locality and the ore will be sent to the town above named. Mr. H. S. McMinn is now operating the mine for the company.

ANOTHER.—A team of horses, the property of Mr. Wm. Ketcheson, of Sidney, whilst tied in the Dominion House yard this morning, became frightened by the falling of a bunch of shingles from an adjoining erection, and ran on the market. Through the efforts of some parties they were stopped before any damage was done.

RUNAWAY.—By the unhooking of a trace, Dr. Burdett's horse became frightened this morning and ran away. Unfortunately for the doctor he was in the cutter to which the horse was attached and when the horse became uncontrollable the doctor was thrown out of the cutter and fortunately escaped injury. The vehicle was badly smashed and is now for sale at less than wholesale rates.

L. O. L. No. 1183.—The following are the officers elected for L'Amable L. O. L., No. 1183, for the year 1880:—J. R. Tait, W. M.; Josiah Moore, D. M.; William Easton, Chaplain; J. B. Cleak, Secretary; J. A. Smith, Treasurer; George Pain, D. of C.; John Walker, sen., Ellis Stimers, E. Bowers, G. Bowers, and J. Walker, jr., Committee.

THE GATLING MINE.—We understand that active operations will probably be commenced at this mine next week. A large number of miners have been at work for some time past opening out new shafts, and getting ore ready for the crusher, and it is expected that the mill will be running in a few days. From the character of the ore got out we may expect rich returns from this mine before many days.

CORDWOOD.—Very large quantities of cordwood are being received over the local railways, the shipments being made on both roads at many points, all the way from Canifton to Madoc on the one line, and as far as Hastings on the other. The heaviest shipments have been made from Hoard's Station, Rawdon. The wood is carried at very low rates, and the effect has been to lessen the price of cordwood to our citizens by $1 per cord.

WHAT IS DOING.—Two cars laden with gold ore were shipped from this city yesterday to Detroit, Michigan, where it will be smelted. This is the first shipment of this kind that has been sent from this locality.—Ten cars of iron ore were yesterday forwarded to Buffalo, N. Y., where it will be smelted.—One car of turkeys and sheep were sent from this city yesterday to Boston, Mass.

"ALVIN JOSLIN."—This so-called "comedy," was produced at the Opera House last night by Charles L. Davis and his company, before a numerous audience. A more absurd hodge-podge was never placed upon the stage, the comedy being compounded of slang, impossibility, improbability and—more of slang. The company struggled to the best of their ability with the parts assigned them, and succeeded in pleasing the boys of the gallery and making everybody laugh, either at or with them, according to taste.

WILLIAMS v. COREY.—This case came on for examination of witnesses and hearing before V. C. Blake, in Toronto on the 9th. Mr. Moss and Mr. Machar (Kingston) for the plaintiff; Mr. W. Cassels and Mr. E. G. Ponton (Belleville) for the defendant. The suit is brought by the plaintiff to recover the price of a cargo of grain shipped by him from Toledo to the defendant at Belleville. The grain arrived in a damaged condition and the defendant refused to pay the price or to honor a bill of exchange drawn upon by the plaintiff, alleging that the grain was shipped at the risk of the latter. The plaintiff maintains that he was not the owner of the grain, but was merely a commission merchant acting as agent for another party, and as such was not responsible for the condition in which the grain arrived. The case was to be be continued.

Municipal Elections.

TUDOR.—James McGregor, Reeve.

MADOC TOWNSHIP.—Peter Vanleek, Reeve and John Caskey, Deputy Reeve, by acclamation. The result of the voting was as follows:—W. Thompson, 222; A. McInroy, 148; Joshua Broad, 133; C. English, 94.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A despatch from Calcutta says that particulars of the proceedings of the court-martial in Cabul on the Afghans who were implicated in the attack on the British Residency on the 3rd of September last show that the whole of the fifteen men who have been executed were connected in the massacre of Major Cavagnari and his staff, in the murder of the wounded soldiers, or had taken part in treacherous attacks upon the British. All the other prisoners were released. General Roberts has communicated with Mahommed Khan at Ghazni.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan 10.—The Invalide Russe says that Server Khan and Iskah Khan, cousins of Abdul Rahman Khan, the pretender to the Afghan throne, who were residing at Samarind, have fled across the frontier.

THE LONDON, Jan. 10.—A Paris correspondent, discussing the probability of the appointment of M. Cholomel la Cour, a Republican Senator, as ambassador at Berlin, to succeed Count De St. Vallier, says:—"Nobody will suppose that the presence of a Radical Ambassador at Berlin would benefit France. The London Times thinks that a party like the new Cabinet to give proofs of prudence of patriotism by keeping at Berlin an ambassador, who at least compromises it."

The Catholic Bishop of the Diocese of Achonry, Ireland, in acknowledging the French subscription for the relief of the distress in Ireland, dwells on the pitiful condition of his flock, and declares it is painful to have to stoop to cut his hand towards America and France rather than to flourishing England, which yearly receives millions from Ireland as taxes.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—The announcement was made this morning that George C. Lissan, Secretary of the Germania Fire Ins. Co., is a defaulter to the amount of about $2,000, and the belief exists that other money may have been collected from policy holders, of which no return has been made. Lissan has not been seen for some time.

CHESTER, Pa., Jan. 10.—The new iron steamship Louisiana, built by Jno. Roach & Son, left here this morning on her trial trip for New York. She will ply between New York and New Orleans.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—President Winton, of the New York Mutual Life Insurance Co., denies the published statement that he is about to resign.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—The Journal of Commerce in its review of the dry goods trade, says that in domestic goods for the first week of the year the volume of sales actually charged are largely in excess of those for the corresponding week last year. This feature in connection with small stocks resting with agents gives much steadiness and firmness to prices.

Bank statement: Loans, decrease $590,000; specie, increase $3,191,000; legal tenders, increase $1,374,000; deposits, increase $4,908,000; circulation, increase $64,000; reserve increase $3,338,000.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 10. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, winds gradually shifting towards the south and east, partly cloudy weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Indications: For lower lakes and Middle States, to-day, partly cloudy weather, light rains, higher followed by slightly lower temperature. To-morrow cold and fair.

Seasonable Topics.

In Chicago at some of the fashionable barber shops a customer receives a check bearing a certain number of his turn. He may go away and return to claim the place marked on his ticket.

If we are ever caught in a shower of prosperity, remember we can find shelter with some poor neighbor, on whose thresh old we might allow some superfluous drops to fall.

—They had a "good-sized" snowstorm along the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad the other day, and this is the way the Fargo Argus raves about it:

He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now lustily proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

TURKEYS—50c to $1.00.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

WHEAT.—Several large sales of No. 2 spring wheat in Chicago have been made at $1 for delivery during the present winter.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.—The cheese market remains firm with cable at 68s. There is an improved inquiry for butter in Montreal, where the price rules from 17c to 23c, according to quality.

CATTLE.—There is a good enquiry for first rate cattle in the Montreal market. The Gazette quotes: Firsts, 4c to 4½c; seconds, 3½c to 3¾c; common stock, 2½c to 3c.

LUMBERING.—The late thaw has been very injurious to the lumbering interests in this district, as but a small proportion of the winter's cut is landed, and the thaw has had the effect of destroying the roads to such an extent that few teams remain in the shanties, as drawing is almost an impossibility in the present state of the roads.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—Flour, receipts 820 brls.; sales 300 brls.; market quiet at unchanged prices. Quotations as follows:—Superiors $6.30 to $6.35; extras, $6.15 to $6.25; spring extra, $6.05 to $6.10; superfine, $5.65 to $5.75; strong bakers, $6.30 to $6.60; fine, $5.25 to $5.40; middlings, $4.40 to $4.50; pollards $3.20 to $3.35; Ontario bags $2.95 to $3.05; city do. $3.25 to $3.30.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a grateful heart speak of the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy

Better Luck Another Year.

BY THE LATE W. GILMORE SIMMS.

Oh ! never sink 'neath Fortune's frown,
But brave her with a shout of cheer,
And front her fairly—face her down—
She's only stern to those who fear !
Here's "better luck another year!"
Another year !

Aye, better luck another year !
We'll have her smile instead of sneer—
A thousand smiles for every tear,
With home made glad and goodly cheer,
And better luck another year—
Another year !

The damsel Fortune still denies
The plea that yet delights her ear :
'Tis but our manhood that she tries,
She's coy to those who doubt and fear,
She'll grant the suit another year !
Another year !

Here's "better luck another year !"
She now denies the golden prize ;
But spite of frown and scorn and sneer,
Be firm, and we will win and wear
With home made glad and goodly cheer,
In better luck another year !
Another year ! Another year !

Doing a Favor.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Early yesterday morning a poorly dressed and seedy looking person about fifty years old entered the post office and proceeded to warm his hands at one of the registers. He made no inquiries about mail, and after he had been loafing around for two hours a policeman got his eye on him and asked:

"Say old man, have you any business here ?"

"Well, no," was the reply.

"Any work to do ?"

"No; I kinder thought I'd lay off this winter."

"Any friends here?"

"No."

"I think you are vagrant," continued the officer as he took another look at him.

"Mebbe I am," sighed the old man.

"And I think I'll take you down."

"Well, I'll go along."

The officer escorted him down to the station-house, registered his name and then proceeded to search his pockets. Each one panned out a "wad of money," making a total of $1,600.

"Why didn't you tell me you had this money ?" demanded the policeman.

"Why didn't you ask me ?"

"Didn't I say I took you for a vagrant and you didn't deny it, either ?"

"Well, I didn't know anything about your city laws," quietly replied the old man. "I've got two married daughters, and I came in to buy each of 'em a $600 piano for New Year's but if it's agin any of your laws I'll take the next train for home. I'm gittin purty old, and I don't want no fuss with anybody."

"Well, you might have saved yourself all this trouble," said the officer as he escorted him to the street.

"Don't mention it," was the answer. "If I took any trouble on your account, it's all right, and you needn't thank me. I'm always willing to oblige anybody who can appreciate it. Purty cold day isn't it ?"

What a contrast there sometimes is between the adjective and its adverb ! For example, the one who is constant in love, and the one who is constantly in love.

The Great Master.

"I am my own master !" cried a young man, proudly when a friend tried to persuade him from an enterprise which he had on hand ; "I am my own master !"

"Did you ever consider what a responsible post that is ?" asked a friend.

"Responsible—is it ?"

"A master must lay out the work which he wants done, and see that it is done right. He should try to secure the best ends by the best means. He must keep on the lookout against obstacles and accidents, and watch that everything goes straight, else he must fail."

"Well."

"To be master of yourself you have your conscience to keep clear, your heart to cultivate, your temper to govern, your will to direct, and your judgment to instruct. You are master over a hard lot, and if you don't master them, they will master you."

"That is so," said the young man.

"Now, I could undertake no such thing," said his friend. "I should fail, sure, if I did. Saul wanted to be his own master, and failed. Herod did. Judas did. No man is fit for it. 'One is my Master, even Christ.' I work under his direction. He is regular, and where he is Master all goes right.

A short time since as a regiment, headed by its band, marched by, a little boy standing at the window with his mother said :— "I say, ma, what is the use of all those soldiers who don't play ?"

A little girl, who had fallen out of bed, said at first :—"It was because I slept too near the place where I got in." Then correcting herself she said: —"No; it was because I slept too near the place where I fell out."

"The scarcity of money is keenly felt at Constantinople," says the correspondent of a London paper. "It is said that sometimes there is not a single para to be found in the palace, and yet Osman Pasha has discovered how to obtain his 42,000 francs per month. He places a stout Sergeant before the entrance to the Finance Minister's room, with orders to confiscate every sum ariving until the amount he requires is made up. The grossest corruption prevails in every department of State. The Inspectors of Finance are expelled by the respective Pashas in whose favor depredations are carried on."

Two young folks were talking about mistakes in courtship, when Uncle Job broke in with the declaration "that there was not any such thing, for," said he, "nobody ever makes any mistakes worth mentioning in courtship. It's after the courtship's over and the lovers have been maried that the hurtful mistakes begin." "Well uncle," said one of his pretty nieces, "what's the moral of all that?" "The moral?" exclaimed Uncle Job. "What's the moral? Why, I suppose the moral is, keep on courtin'!"

La Chute de Montmorency !

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capsised, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons ; for those of small means as well as for the rich ; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society :—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach ; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice ; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1875, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks ; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime : and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose ; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this ; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible : I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR ;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully, LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name ; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

The Madoc Mining District.

(From the Monetary Times.)

The new impetus given to railway construction, in different countries, and the consequent demand for rails is the chief cause of the rise in the price of iron. According to the Manufacturer's World (Philadelphia) about sixty-five thousand miles of new railway are now under construction or likely soon to be ; of which more than fourteen thousand miles are in the United States. Under pressure of the new demand, steel rails, in England, now command nearly double the price they brought a year ago. The rise in the price of iron was first most conspicuous in the United States ; where the means of production, previously very much in excess of requirement are, for the time, being very generally called into activity. The demand for Canadian ores has, for some time, been greater than it was possible, with available appliances, to supply. But this defect promises soon to be remedied.

New life and activity have been given to mining enterprise in North Hastings. Several iron mines are being developed, though smelting is not yet carried on near the mines. The ore is exported to the States to be treated. Sometimes it is used to mix with the iron ores of Pennsylvania ; and it is expected that alone it will be found suitable for making Bessemer steel. The following list of leases of lands containing iron ores which have been made in North Hastings, will give some idea of the progress of development now taking place.

North half of Lot 18 in 2nd Con. Madoc, leased to A.M. Wilcox of Cleveland, Ohio, for 30 years, at a Royalty of 25c per ton.

West half of 8 in 17th Con., Madoc, leased to A. M. Wilcox, of Cleveland, Ohio, for 30 years, at a Royalty of 25 cents per ton first ten years ; second term of 10 years 30 cents, third term of 10 years at 35 cents.

West half of 12 in 4th Con. Madoc, leased to Messrs. Andrews & Sons, of Youngstown, Ohio, for 30 years, at a Royalty of 25 cents per ton.

The above lots contain magnetic ore of superior quality.

Rear 49 acres of lot 10 in 6th Con. Madoc, leased to Messrs. Andrews & Sons, of Youngstown, Ohio, for 30 years, (contains Hematite ore) at a Royalty of 25 cents.

Lot No. 2 in 2nd Con. Madoc, leased to C. J. Pusey, of New York, for a term of 10 years, at a Royalty of 25 cents per ton.

East quarter of 12 in 5th Con. Madoc leased by C. J. Pusey for 10 years, at a Royalty of 25 cents ; called Seymour Ore Bed. These last lots contain magnetic ore of a fine quality.

Lot No. 9 in the 6th Con. Madoc, leased to H. Cameron, and by him sublet to Messrs. Andrew & Sons, of Youngstown, Ohio, U. S., and contains a fine magnetic ore, and is leased for a long term.

The whole of the ores extracted from these mines will go to the United States, the greater part of them to Youngstown, Ohio. For some time to come the pressure on the car accommodation will probably be severely felt, as it is expected that this traffic will require forty cars a day to accommodate it. Five mines are expected to produce 500 tons a day. The others, under lease, will be opened in the Spring ; explorations on additional lots are being made with a view to working.

Outside of mining districts of North Hastings, iron mines are beginning to be developed. The Baldwin mine, a few miles from Hull, is producing 300 tons a day. The ore yields 67 per cent., and is almost entirely free from sulphur. It is shipped to Cleveland to be mixed with local American ores, the union of the two kinds producing an excellent article. The explosive used is Volney powder, which somewhat resembles dualin, but contains a larger amount of glycerine.

This method of disposing of the ore leaves only one profit, which is in the shape of a royalty : but it has the great advantage of being a certain profit, the thing most wanted in the beginning of a mining industry. If the development of those iron mines depended upon the ore being smelted in the country, it is not probable that much, if anything, would be done at present. Smelting in the districts where the ores are found will follow in due time ; in the meantime owners of mines run no risk, and have nothing to do but to see that they get the amount of the stipulated royalty.

The gold mines of North Hastings give a better promise than ever before ; but none of them have passed the crucial experimental stage. In the past there is a record of disappointment, which may be more attributable to inexperience than to the nature of the mines. A company has to pay for experience, and we only hope that the lessons are worth the money. But if we are to succeed in this line we shall have to borrow from the proper and more certain experience of other countries. Mr. Theo. B. Comstock, who is prospecting in Colorado, in a letter to the Engineering and Mining Journal, gives some hints that may be useful to intending investors in gold mines. He lays down what appears to be a sound rule, that investors should never be guided in their purchases by anything but actual development. When the owner of a mine wishes to "bond" his undeveloped property, Mr. Comstock says, an honest engineer would advise him to keep his claim and develop it according to a plan suggested, if he has the means of doing it ; if he has not, and must sell, the engineer would say it is worth to-day a certain sum, which is sure to be very much less than the owner asked for it. The chances are that the owner tries in vain to sell, refusing to take present value. If he does sell, the purchaser probably leaves himself wholly without the means to develop the property, in which case he is no farther advanced than the previous owner was. Mr. Comstock, whose wide experience is of the greatest value, says there is scarcely any criterion by which eastern investors can safely class mines brought under their notice, on which some work has been done, except the combined knowledge and integrity of the promoter. The promoter may err for want of knowledge, or mislead by a want of good faith. Investors may be too suspicious as well as too confiding. If a person wishes to get the requisite knowledge himself, he will not find the task a light one. "Experience of the right kind," says Mr. Comstock, "is not gained by a mere residence in a mining district, nor yet by the holding of a multitude of mining claims. The requisite knowledge comes only after years of patient study and comparison not only of books and of cabinets, but of wild nature in her varying moods, as displayed in and on the numerous gorges and gulches, canons, cliffs, hills and mountains." And "even all this laborious investigation gives one but an outside view of the intricate problems of cost and returns, as exemplified anew in almost every mining enterprise." Nothing is so suspicious and so confident, by turns, as ignorance when the mysteries of mining have to be dealt with.

It is obvious that development alone is not a sufficient guide. A rich pocket may yield abundantly, as happened in the Acton copper mines; but the limited extent of the pocket, the richness of which had raised such high hopes, caused a disastrous collapse. And if we may believe the evidence given in the case of Silver Islet, something of the same kind occurred there. The extent and probable yield of the vein form an important problem which must not be lost sight of.

We shall have to learn how the financial part of mining operations is successfully carried on in other countries. It would generally be a mistake for each mining company to erect reducing works of its own at too early a period. The best plan is at first, to get the ore tested elsewhere; and go to the expense of costly reducing works only when the profitable nature of the mine and its probable extent have been established. Different financial plans are followed in different mining districts of the States. In California and Nevada the custom has been to issue shares subject to assessment and as the mines progressed, or the necessary areas of erecting new buildings, stamps and other fixtures were made while in Colorado and Arizona it is usual to raise, at the outset, sufficient capital to sink the main shaft to open drifts upon the lode, and to provide the stamps or furnaces. Where this has been done, and a small working capital provided, the stock is issued without the liability to future assessment. When mines are paying reasonably well, part of the profit ought to be reserved to recoup the capital. Besides, whatever plan may be adopted, the Boston Economist argues with good show of reason, it is necessary, in mining operations, to have a reserve to fall back upon, in case of some unforseen casuality. An instance is given in the experience of the St. John Del Rey gold mine, one of the richest in Brazil, worked by an English company. When the mine had been worked ten years the timber supporting the roof was burnt ; and a reserve of $800,000 enabled the company again to get at the buried treasure by sinking a new shaft. The mine now sends to the proprietors $50,000 or $60,000 a month from a yield of only $13 to the ton. This valuable mine has never yielded more than $15 to $20 to the ton. The average product of the Colorado gold mines, in 1879, was $93.73 per ton. Some of the Madoc mines are known to be richer than this ; though hitherto the difficulty has been to separate the ore from the sulphates. Many well-informed persons believe that Professor Chapman some time ago discovered a means of getting over the difficulty ; and when his patent, now tied in some way we do not understand, becomes free, his method will be put to decisive test. It is claimed that there has already sufficient experience of its working in Europe to establish its success. In that case, our Madoc gold mines would without question be of considerable value.

The Result of Attachment.

Court was in session, and amid the multiplicity of business which crowded upon him the deputy sheriff stopped at the store of a beautiful widow on the sunny side of Pinnacle St., by the way, had often bestowed melting glances on the deputy aforesaid. He was admitted, and soon the widow appeared. The confusion and delight which the arrival of her visitor occasioned set off to great advantage that usual the captivating manner of the widow M——

Her cheeks bore the beautiful blended tints of the apple blossom, her lips resembled rosebuds on which the morning dew still lingered, and her eyes were like the quivers of Cupid, and the glances of love and tenderness with which they were filled resembling arrows, and only wanting a fine beau (pardon the pun) to do full execution. After a few commonplace remarks :

"Madam," said the matter of fact deputy, "I have an attachment for you."

A deep blush mantled the cheeks of the widow with downcast eyes, whose glance was centred on her beautiful feet, half concealed by her flowing drapery, gently patting the floor. She, with equal ardor, replied :

"Sir, the attachment is reciprocal."

For some time the deputy maintained an astonished silence. At length he said :

"Madame, you will proceed to court at once !"

"Proceed to court !" replied the lady, with a merry laugh. Then, shaking her beautiful head, she added, "No sir, even if it was leap year I would not take advantage of the license therein granted to my sex, and, therefore, would greatly prefer that you proceed to court."

"But, madame, the Justice is waiting."

"Let him wait. I am not disposed to hurry matters in such an unbecoming manner ; and, besides, sir, when the ceremony is performed, I wish you to understand that I prefer a minister to a Justice of the Peace."

"Madam," said he, rising from his chair with dignity, "there has been a mistake here. My language has been misunderstood. The attachment of which I speak was issued from the office of Esquire C——. It commands me to bring you before him to answer to a charge of contempt of court in disobeying a subpœna in the case of Brown vs. Jones."

A PHRENOLOGIST told a man that he had combativeness largely developed, and was of a quarrelsome disposition. "That isn't true," said the man angrily, "and if you repeat it, I'll knock you down."

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, JANY. 12.

The West Riding.

A general meeting of the Reform Association of West Hastings was held on Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Ontario Legislature. Five gentlemen were nominated, namely Messrs. Thos. Holden, J. J. B. Flint, and S. B. Burdett, of this city; Geo. H. Gordon, of Trenton ; and E. G. Sills, of Sidney. Mr. Gordon sent a telegram declining the proffered honor, and the three city nominees also declined, although Mr. Holden was strongly urged. This left Mr. Sills as the dernier resort, but that gentleman asked time to decide, and will give his decision on Wednesday. The prospects are not flattering for any possible candidate in the Government interest.

The Iron Interest.

An important article from the Monetary Times, on the subject of the Madoc mining district appears, in other columns. Our contemporary is evidently fully impressed with the importance of the mineral deposits in the district, and speaks of them in hopeful terms, especially of the iron mines. It incidentally advocates the erection of smelting works in the district, which it confidently anticipates will come in due time, but it is scarcely correct in saying that the export of the ores to the United states leaves but one profit, namely the royalty. The benefits to the country include the employment of labor in the mines, on the railways, at the wharves in Belleville and on the vessels employed to transport the material. Besides, there are the profits accruing to railway and vessel owners, thus giving employment to Canadian capital as well as to Canadian labor, and other incidental advantages.

We have also a letter from the Hon. Billa Flint in reference to the erection of smelting works in Belleville, the careful perusal of which we recommend to our readers. That venerable but still public spirited citizen has taken hold of the matter and is endeavoring, with his usual energy, to arouse his fellow ratepayers to take action in the premises. It is to be hoped that the present apathy will not long continue, but that arrangements may be made at an early day for the prosecution of an enterprise which is of vital importance to our city, and promises to yield a handsome return to those who invest their money in it.

RAILWAY RECEIPTS.—The traffic receipts of the Great Western Railway for the week ending January 2, 1880, were $93,465.94, compared with $70,149.44 for the corresponding week last year, an increase of $23,316.50.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR THE N. P.—Mr. D. B. McLennan, the Grit candidate for Cornwall, who, we are informed by a correspondent of the Mail, pledged his adherence to Mr. Mackenzie and his policy during the last campaign, comes out not only as a staunch supporter of the National Policy, but also as an independent supporter of the present Government! Could a more favourable verdict than this be taken for the N. P. ?

PAPER FROM GRASS.—A recent discovery is the making of paper from common grass. The product is said to be a very fine article of great strength and length of fibre, possessing tenacity, softness and flexibility, and it is claimed for it that it is even softer and more transparent than the paper made from linen. But while new ways for making paper are being discovered, the uses to which the article itself is being put are rapidly multiplying.

HORRIBLE MURDER.—A telegram from Manitwaki on the Upper Ottawa says : "A horrible murder was committed some fifty miles above this place a few days ago. A man named Brisebois and another formed a partnership some six months ago for the purpose of trading in furs, and from what facts are to hand it appears they were on their way to this place when Brisebois took an axe and killed his unfortunate partner. Brisebois has made his escape, and has probably gone to Ottawa."

MEAT FROM AUSTRALIA.—Frozen meat from Australia is to be the next novelty on the English market. The success of the American experiment has encouraged a similar trial at Sydney, a steamer, the "Strathleven," fitted up with a refrigerating chamber, being now on the way to England from Sydney and Melbourne with about sixty tons of meat. There is, of course, no reason why the refrigerating process should not suffice for three months as well as three weeks, in so far as the mere preserving of the meat is concerned, and should the experiment be successful Australia will prove a strong competitor with America in supplying John Bull with his beef.

Political and Other Notes.

The Ottawa Citizen scarifies the Globe on account of one of its most recent blunders, in accusing the Finance Minister of having "re-imposed" the duty on malt. The Citizen says :—"Of course, after the above statement our readers will be prepared to learn that the Finance Minister, instead of 're-imposing' the duty in spite of the Globe's patriotic protests, has actually halved it, by an Order-in-Council. And he actually left the duty last March as he found it when he took power. After this the Globe's impudent assertions and disgraceful personal abuse look very strange in the eyes of honest people."

The Republicans of Maine have had the same game played on them as their leaders carried out in stealing the Presidency from Mr. Tilden in the Presidential election of 1876; but they do not bear it as well as the Democrats did. Canadians generally condemn both proceedings, but there is a feeling abroad that the retribution serves the Republican party right.

The St. John (N. B.) Daily News discusses the forthcoming Dominion elections in Cornwall and North Lanark—the former vacant by the unseating of Dr. Bergin (Ministerial) and the latter by the death of Mr. Galbraith (Opposition.) The conclusion come to by our contemporary is that Dr. Bergin's re-election is tolerably certain, despite the proverbial fickleness of the constituency, and that Mr. Jamieson, the Conservative candidate, will redeem North Lanark, as his opponent, Mr. McDonnell, has not the same personal popularity as the late respected member for the constituency.

A cable despatch of the 8th informs us that "Lord Derby, in speaking at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, on the competition of America, complained that Americans did not face the English in an open manner, but fight intrenched up to their eyes behind their protective tariff." The Canadian people, through their representatives, have fortified themselves against this unfair system, and it may be that the mother country will have to take similar action ere long. Matters are certainly tending in that direction, as "Uncle Sam" will not voluntarily relinquish the advantage which he possesses.

The Mail pays its respects to Mr. Blake re his compulsory voting scheme, as follows : The franchise is a public trust ; ergo voting is a public duty ; therefore it should be made compulsory. That is Mr. Blake's reasoning and it does not lack force. But the representation of a constituency in Parliament is equally a public trust ; ergo the duties of a representative should be fully and faithfully discharged ; and as voting on public questions is the most important of these duties, therefore voting by members should be made compulsory and shirking punishable by heavy penalties. Will the hon. gentleman incorporate this corollary in his scheme ?

The Grit papers are making the most of a small decline in shipbuilding at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, during the past year ; but they do not speak so loudly concerning the increase in the same line at St. John, N.B. In Maine the total tonnage shows a heavy decline, the figures for the past three years being : 1877, 76,308 tons; 1878, 41,060 tons; 1879, 35,416 tons. Now let our Grit friends give the returns from Britain, France, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, and let us see if there has not been a decline all around, due to the overdoing of the carrying trade. Our belief is that there has been, and that Canada has suffered less than other centers of the shipbuilding industry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—In your issue of 3rd inst., you stated that the city could have secured a space in your paper at any time. I would ask Mr. Shepard if he has not twice declined or refused me a space, once in presence of Ald. Hayne.

Yours truly,
ALBERT L. GEEN.

The above communication having been shown to me, I can say that if Mr. Geen asked Mr. Shepard for one, two, three or more squares in the INTELLIGENCER at published rates, and was refused them by him,—I say if, because I have not seen Mr. Shepard since the above was placed in my hands,—the Board of Directors of the INTELLIGENCER Publishing Company were unaware of it, for whenever the matter of the City printing came before them, their general opinion was that such printing should be done at the same rates that we did like printing for others. I can further say, had notice of the fact been given to the Board by Mr. Geen, I feel certain that such a refusal of Mr. Shepard's would have been overruled, The Board never saw any reason for tendering, but at a solicitation from Mr. Geen they ordered their advertised rates to be submitted to him, which was to them unaccountably accepted.

THOS. WILLS,

DUFFERIN.—Complete returns for Friday's election are :—Jelly (Con.) 1207 ; Jull (Grit) 775; McGhee (Con.) 455.

BILLIARDS.—In the contest between Sexton and Schaefer at New York on Saturday night, for the Collender emblem and the championship at the new game, the latter won by 600 to 585 points.

DEATH OF PROF. MACKERRAS.—The death of Prof. Mackerras, of Queen's College, Kingston, is announced as having taken place on the 9th inst., at the age of 47 years. His health has been poorly for some time, and his death was not altogether unexpected. He was very much beloved by all who knew him. He leaves a wife and three children.

KINGSTON MILITARY COLLEGE CADETS.—A cable telegram of the 10th inst. says : "The War Department have agreed to an arrangement by which successful candidates at the Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, of which Lieut. Col. Hewitt, of the Royal Engineers, is commandant, will be enabled to enter annually for appointments to commissions in the British army, and instructions have been forwarded to Canada to that effect."

THE BOERS IN ARMS.—A Capetown telegram says ex-President Pretonius and Adam Bok have both sailed for Capetown. A Boer named Rasmud will be arrested for treasonably corresponding with Secocoeni. Armed Boers have interrupted telegraph communication. A collision is possible at any moment.

Iron Smelting Works in Belleville.

MR. EDITOR.—I saw Mr. McCorquodale today, and had a conversation with him about the blast furnaces below Quebec. He stated that the syndicate who held the works would bring them here and put them up in complete working order for $110,000 ; that the works would turn out 60 tons of pig iron daily. The parties would want $30,000 down, $30,000 when the works were completed and in working order, and for the balance they would take stock, or for the greater part of it.

I asked him why the company did not work the furnaces where they are ? He said the ore was not good, it was strongly "titaneous," and would not work well.

Now taking for granted that Mr. McC. is correct, 60 tons of pig iron at a net profit of $10 per ton would be $600 per day ; $3,600 per week, or for 50 weeks in the year $180,000 net profits ; but supposing iron should fall from $26 per ton to $20, and leave a margin of profit of $4 per ton, you have $240 per day, $1,440 per week, or for 50 weeks $72,000. So whether you take it [at the higher or lower profit, where will you find a better paying business ?

I do not wish it to be understood that I am recommending the taking of the proposed machinery and plant set forth by Mr. McC. It strikes me we can do better, as we have all the material for building, &c., and it no doubt might be better to start smelting works on a less extensive scale, as stated in my former letter, as working on a smaller scale would give capital to increase the capacity of the works, and save a large amount of outlay on the start.

I am informed that there is another party, from whom I expect to hear soon, who would be willing to put in part of stock to build the works, and run the same, and make the iron for a company, and at the same time would start a glass factory in connection with the smelting of the ore, and use the slag that comes from the ore for making glass, under a new process. I trust shortly to get the information, which shall be laid before the public.

Mr. McC. informed me he was on his way to Kingston, where it is the intention to start smelting works. It seems the people of the "limestone city" are waking up to the necessity of doing something in the way of manufacturing iron, and not to let the ores slip through their fingers and go to the States to enrich American manufacturers. I trust they may succeed ; the more smelting furnaces the better. Will the Belleville people wake up on this iron question, or will they sleep on and take their rest as heretofore, and let the opportunity pass, and let the "tortoise win the race while the hare has been sleeping" ?

Yours, &c., &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

Belleville, 8th Jan., 1880.

A gentleman in the cab line, on the arrival of a party of Quakers, at the terminus, spotted them, and thought to do a neat and tactful thing ; so he said to the eldest broadbrim, "Will thee have a carriage ?" Of course the delighted party hired the cab. "Has thou thou's baggage?" he next inquired. They all got out again.

"Rose, my dear," said a mother to her daughter, "if you are so stiff and reserved, you will never get a husband." "Ma," replied the young lady, "unless the poets tell fibs, a primrose is not without attraction."

Bulkins, in referring to the time his wife complimented him, says the coal-fire needed replenishing, and she pointed towards the fireplace with a commanding air and said, "Peter, the grate."

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

PITTSTON, Pa., Jan. 12.—Miss Hopkins, a handsome young lady of 18, while alone in the house on Saturday morning, was assaulted by two tramps, gagged, arms pinioned, then cruelly outraged by both. Her condition is critical. No arrests.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—A special from Fresno yesterday says the line of totality of the eclipse of the sun passed ten miles north of that place. The weather was clear. At 3:53 the obscuration became total. The last ray of the sun disappeared, a corona of clear white light entirely encircling the moon flashed into view, brilliant at the edge of the moon and paling towards the outward limit of the halo. During the observation horses showed signs of extreme uneasiness, and the fowls of the neighboring ranches sought their roosts. The thermometer stood 28 deg. during the totality.

BELLEVILLE, Ind., Jan. 12.—Wm. Willikin and Henry Crane were fighting about dogs on Saturday, when Edward Willikin came to the assistance of his father and fatally stabbed Crane. He escaped.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—The body of Theo. Jones, who was buried at Logan County recently, was found on Thursday to have been removed by ghouls. The coffin had been smashed in, a hook inserted in the jaw and the body dragged in mud half a mile. Pieces of flesh were found all along the route taken. $700 reward has been offered for the perpetrators. The students from the Columbus Medical College are suspected.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The officers of the overdue steamship which arrived from Europe yesterday, all report a remarkably stormy passage. The storm was, from all accounts, one of the most severe and of the longest duration which mariners have experienced for many years.

A boy named Price, residing in Orange, was kicked in the mouth by a playmate yesterday. The kick knocked a tooth down his throat, from which he choked to death in a few minutes.

Capt. Adams Hannaford, of the brig Restless, who was lying sick in the cabin yesterday, rushed on deck and suddenly threw himself overboard and was drowned. It is believed that he was demented by sickness.

Wm. Winckel, another victim of the fire at the Turnhall, of which he was lessee, died from his injuries yesterday.

Eighty-seven men, who were witnessing a cock fight early yesterday morning, and forty-five birds were captured by four policemen. Many of those arrested were respectable residents of West Chester County and New Jersey.

HYDE PARK, Pa., Jan. 12.—Much damage was done by the caving in of the Oxford mine on Saturday night. Several valuable houses on Scranton Avenue were badly shattered. Large fissures appear in the streets. The cause of the caving in was the removal of the anthracite pillars which should have been left to support the roof.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, JANY. 12.

City and Vicinity.

CITY COUNCIL.—The Council of 1879 will hold its final session to-night.

POLICE.—There have been no prisoners in the cells since Saturday night. Only three tramps.

TO-NIGHT.—Remember the entertainment for the benefit of the home for the poor, which will take place in the Opera House to-night.

MAYOR'S DINNER.—After the session of the Council to-night, Alexander Robertson, Esq., the retiring Mayor, will entertain the Aldermen, ex-Mayors, city officials and representatives of the press at dinner at the Dafoe House.

OFF.—The pigeon match which was to have been shot at Foxboro between representatives of Belleville and Stirling, for $50 a side, is off, in consequence of the Stirling party who made the match being unable to get a team of six together.

GOLD QUARTZ FROM SHEFFIELD.—Four sleigh loads of quartz from what is known as the Thornton Mine in the township of Sheffield, passed through Madoc village on the 10th inst., for the Dean & Williams mine, to be crushed there. The quartz at this mine has been tested and found to yield $20 per ton.

EXPLANATION.—Mr. Jos. C. Foster, of Sidney, who was a candidate for the local Council, wishes us to state that he resigned on Saturday preceding the election, but that the fact was not known at all the polls. Thus he is credited with having received a number of votes, whilst he was not really in the field.

SCHOOL POPULATION.—The Stirling News-Argus says:—"Mr. Finch finished the school census last week, with the following result for the union section: Number of children between 5 and 7 years of age, 50; between 7 and 12, 107; between 12 and 16, 98; between 16 and 21, 138. Total, 393, or an increase over last year of 12. The number between 5 and 16 is 255."

THE WEATHER.—Under the influence of the long continued mild weather, the snow has all but disappeared from the face of the country, and business has suffered in consequence. A strong southerly gale, with rain, blew during the greater part of the night, but as the wind shifted to northwest this morning, it seems quite probable that the wishes of those who desire colder weather are about to be gratified.

A GOOD SHOW.—Irving's Royal Jackitt-Chy Japanese troupe, who gave an entertainment in the Opera House on Saturday night, made a highly favorable impression. The feats of the Japanese were wonderfully clever, whilst the variety performances of the Whitneys, Lester Howard and Lizzie Hunter, and the "contortionism" of Mr. Matt Green were much above the average in point of merit.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At the annual meeting of L. O. L. No. 110, Stirling, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: James Montgomery, W. M.; James Coutts, D. M.; R. J. Craige, Sec.; Thos. McKee, Treas.; John McCaw, Chap.; Wm. Rodgers, D. of C.; Robt. Rodgers, John Paddy, John McCaughen, Arch McGee and Adam Johnston, Com.; Walter Martin and Wm. Rodgers, auditors.; Thos. McGowan, tyler.

A HINT.—The following notable hint to advertisers is going the rounds of the press at present:—"Keep 'em alive, we mean advertisements. Make them look fresh. Don't advertise snow-shovels in July or linen dusters in December. Keep up with the times. Advertise seasonable goods. In all large establishments there should be a man specially detailed to look after the advertisements. Let that be part of his business and duties. All heavy advertisers have people who do nothing else. The systematic advertisers make most money out of it. Don't skim this paragraph over and then forget it. We are talking for your own good. Change your advertisements often, and make them attractive."

GYMNASIUM.—The Mechanics' Institute gymnasium will be opened to members to-night, under the management of Mr E. W. Johnston, who will give an exhibition of his skill. Several improvements have been made, and the gymnasium is now in excellent order.

PERSONAL.—The Trenton Advocate says:—"Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Murphy celebrated the fifth anniversary of their wedding on Wednesday evening last, when quite a large number of their friends were present and spent a very enjoyable evening. We hope that they may both live to enjoy very many happy returns of the anniversary."

NEW IRON DEVELOPMENT.—Within the last few weeks a new iron mine has been opened on what is known as the Cameron property, about three miles from Madoc, and half a mile from the line of the Railway. It is worked by Mr. McMinn, who represents the Andrews Co. of Youngstown, Ohio, and who gives employment to a considerable number of men. The first shipment from this mine was made on the 6th, consisting of about sixty tons, and shipments now take place from this mine daily.

THE DEAN AND WILLIAMS MINE.—During the last two weeks the mill at this mine has been crushing gold quartz, reducing in the proportion of about four tons to one. This concentrated ore is now being shipped in bags to Wyandotte, Michigan, where the precious metal will be extracted from the ore. One car of ten tons was shipped on the 8th Jan., and another car was shipped on the 10th. As a large force of men are now employed at this mine, weekly shipments of this concentrated ore are expected to take place during the month.

OBITUARY.—We regret to have to announce to-day the death of one of our most esteemed citizens, Mr. H. K. Lyon. His death does not come unexpectedly, as he has been confine t to his house and bed for a number of weeks. Mr. Lyon was born in Elizabeth, New Jersey, on the 14th March, 1818. He came to Belleville and went into business with his brother, the late Mr. Samuel Lyon. He shortly after married the eldest daughter of the late Mr. Benjamin Ketcheson, (after whom Ketcheson Ward is named) became a British subject, and since then has continued to live in Belleville. He united with the Methodist Church in March, 1843, and has been for a long number of years an official member of it, and by his consistent life and devotion to religion, brought others to respect him and the religion he professed.

ECLIPSES IN 1880.—The year 1880 will have four eclipses of the sun and two of the moon, as follows:—A total eclipse of the sun January 11th, visible to the western quarter of North America and the Pacific Ocean. An annular eclipse of the sun July 7th, visible to the southern half of South America. An unimportant partial eclipse of the sun December 1st, visible to the eastern portion of North America and to the North Atlantic Ocean. A total eclipse of the moon June 22nd, visible to the western edge of North America. A total eclipse of the moon December 16th, visible more or less to the whole world. There also will be an occultation of Mars March 17th, visible to the eastern portion of North America. It is leap year. Lent will begin February 11th. Good Friday is March 26th and Easter Sunday March 28th. Christmas will come on a Saturday.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The number of The Living Age for the week ending January 3d has the following valuable contents: The letters of Charles Dickens, Fortnightly Review; "He that Will Not when he May," by Mrs. Oliphant; The Development of the Color Sense, Macmillan; St. John's Eve, by the author of "Patty"; First Impression of the New World, by the Duke of Argyll, Fraser; A Deadly Feud, a Tale from France by Rudolph Lindau, Blackwood; The Literary Calling and its Future, by James Payn, Nineteenth Century; A Hindu Almanac, Saturday Review; Some Victims of French Diplomacy, Pall Mall Gazette; together with the usual poetry and miscellany. This number begins a new volume (the 144th) of this standard weekly magazine. Two new serial stories, one by Mrs. Oliphant, and the other by Mrs. Parr, the author of those thoroughly charming stories "Dorothy Fox" and "Hero Carthew," have been recently begun in The Living Age, from advance sheets, and the publishers present to new subscribers for 1880 the six numbers of 1879 which contain the opening chapters of both these serials. The present is therefore a favorable opportunity for subscribing. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,400 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, including the extra numbers of the latter, both postpaid. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

MOHAMMED JAN OCCUPYING GHUZNI WITH A STRONG FORCE.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A Cabul despatch says that Mohammed Jan, with Musa Khan, son of the ex-Ameer, occupies the fortress of Ghuzni with a strong force. Mohammed is said to have twelve guns, and a serious struggle is anticipated in case of attempting to dislodge him.

In reply to a communication from Roberts he is declared to have exhibited no disposition to listen to a proposition looking to compromise. Mohammed is believed to have been reinforced by several thousands of Shere Ali's regulars, from whom the cannoneers probably obtained. He has assumed political as well as military authority, and is collecting revenues in the name of Musa Khan, whom he pretends to regard as the rightful reigning Ameer, though temporarily kept out of his capital by the British. He has sent emissaries to Turkestan commissioned to stir up the people there to engage in immediate warfare upon the British as a common enemy. The probabilities are said to be that on account of his high reputation as a soldier and commander he will have no inconsiderable success in raising men to join him at Ghuzni or begin hostilities on their own account from a home base. It is not believed that Roberts will hezard an advance on Ghuzni before spring. The rumor that Abdul Karan is raising a force in Kohistan for Mohammed Jan is regarded as well authenticated. The fact that while Ghuzni is understood to be a most important centre of military operations of the insurgents, and is the strongest fortress in the country, no efforts are proposed towards its capture, is held here to be significant of the existing situation of the British in Afghanistan.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

CANDAHAR, Jan. 12.—The leader of the Herati troops has been decoyed into the city and put to death by Ayoob Khan.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The Russian press and various Continental special correspondents now freely discuss the probabilities of the British occupation of Herat.

General Martinez Campos is said to intend quitting Spain. His act is construed as to the expectation of political troubles.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The Russian budget for 1880 shows an exact balance between the income and expenditure of the Empire, each being 660,000,000 roubles.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Arrived out, the Argosy, Ethiopia and Baltic.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 12.—Capt. W. G. Wilkinson, band leader at the National Soldiers' Home, shot his wife and then himself during the night. Both are dead. Cause domestic troubles.

KEENE, N. H., Jan. 12.—Tebo & Cargell's woollen mills at Ashuelot were burned this morning. Loss $17,000.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 12.—The fears that the Republicans intended to take possession of the House this morning prove to be entirely without foundation. There is no excitement whatever. In consequence of the announcement that Jas. D. Lamson, President of the Senate, would assume the duties of Governor, Gen. Chamberlain states he shall positively refuse to recognize his claims; and furthermore, he will recognize no Governor chosen by the Legislature as at present constituted.

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—By a peculiar combination of circumstances, a sudden breaking of the bell wire on board the S. S. Lancaster in harbor yesterday morning, came very near resulting in a terrible disaster to the passenger train on the New York and New England Railway. The Lancaster, a large iron vessel heavily loaded with coal, was approaching the railway bridge when the Pilot rang to stop the engine, but the wire broke and the engineer failing to receive the signal the vessel kept on, striking the bridge with great force and badly twisted the timbers. The bolt which locks the draw was broken and the railroad tracks upon the bridge were bent about 18 inches from their proper position. No one was near the scene at the time and the Sunday morning inward passenger train was approaching but a few hundred feet away, and when but a train's length from the bridge the engineer noticed the disconnected rails. He reversed his engine and applied the air brakes, bringing his train of five cars to a stop 15 feet from the bridge. Had the train passed over it would have plunged into the water at the side of the track, and the loss of life would have been great. The engineer is deserving of great credit for his watchfulness in discovering the accident almost at the instant of its occurrence, and for his prompt action for the protection of the lives of the passengers. The cars were unloaded and the passengers walked to the depot.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 12.—On the assembling of the Senate this morning, President Lamson sent a letter announting that he had assumed the duties of Governor. The committee on Gubernatorial votes reported the following votes thrown at Sept. election: whole number, 138,807; necessary for choice, 69,404. Davis had 68,770, Smith 47,649, Garcelon 21,844, Bradbury 263. These are constitutional candidates.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The steamship Arragon, which left Bristol on December 19th, and which was rumored to have been lost, arrived this morning.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 12. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh northerly to westerly winds, partly cloudy and colder weather, possibly snow flurries in some localities.

The man who invented the gas-meter achieved the nearest approach to perpetual motion that we will ever see.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the other Muscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

MRS. CAPT NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th.:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lunge, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now fully proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

WHEAT.—During the past few days 67,000 centals of wheat was delivered at Liverpool, 46,000 of which was American.

CATTLE FAIR.—The monthly cattle fair held at Guelph, Ontario, on Wednesday last, was thinly attended, owing to the bad state of the roads. Good cattle were brought up briskly at $3 50@$3.75 per cwt., live weight.

BUTTER PROSECUTIONS.—A number of cases were before Justice Wandell at the Fifty-seventh street Police Court, New York, on Wednesday, upon complaint of the Association for the Prevention of the Adulteration of Butter, for violating the statue prohibiting the sale of oleomargarine unbranded.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.—The Montreal Gazette of the 10th says:—There is a continued fair enquiry for butter with additional results and we have now to report sales of 110 packages of good Peterboro' at 20c; 60 do. good Townships at 21c; 300 Townships at 21c, and 500 Kamouraska at 17½c. This last sale was made prior to the one we quoted yesterday. The warm weather is having an unfavorable effect upon the New York market, and it does not improve matters here. The cheese market remains firm, but the only business at the moment refers to sales of small lots to the retail trade at 13@14c.

QUEBEC TIMBER TRADE.—A Quebec correspondent telegraphs: A further sale of spruce deals was made on Wednesday last by Mr. John Roche, the purchaser being Mr. Powis, of the firm of Bryant, Powis & Bryant, who also was the buyer of the Montmorenci manufacture, of which you were advised a few days since. The prices offered were $36, $28 and $20 per Quebec standard hundred ex wharf, the quantity about 150,000 to 175,000 Q. S.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 25 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known my case can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I feel well of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith set this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

Comparative Value of Wood.

It is a great convenience to know the comparative value of different kinds of wood for fuel. Shellbark hickory is regarded as the highest standard of our forest trees, and calling that 100, other trees will compare with it for real value as fuel for house purposes, as follows: Shellbark hickory, 100; pignut hickory, 96; white oak, 84; white ash, 77; dogwood, 75; scrub oak, 73; white hazel, 72; apple tree, 70; red oak, 67; white beach, 65; black birch, 62; yellow oak, 60; hard maple, 59; white elm, 58; red cedar, 56; wild cherry, 55; yellow poplar, 54; butternut and white birch, 43; white pine, 30. It is worth bearing in mind, that in wood of the same species, there is a great difference according to the soil on which they grow. A tree that grows on a wet, low, rich ground will be less solid and less durable for fuel, and therefore of less value than a treee of the same kind that grows on a dry and poor soil. To the ordinary purchaser, oak is oak and pine is pine, but for house use the tree grown on dry upland, and standing apart from all others, is worth a great deal more.

Many Crops and a Variety of Stock.

It becomes more apparent every day that the land occupier's income must come, not only from one or two large sources, but from a number of smaller ones also.

We must have many crops and a variety of stock, and must learn how to make the most of each and all of them. The times when merely to get a farm was to be on the road to wealth are gone, probably forever. All that can be looked for now is that he who takes a farm may get a fair percentage on the capital he had to commence with, if he follows the road to success adopted by men of all other profession.

The road to success means almost invariably an unwearying attention to detail. Genius (some one said) is an infinite power of taking trouble; and success means genius well applied. Cereals can only be made to pay by the greatest possible care in choosing the varieties best adapted to the land and markets, and cultivating these with a special eye to get quality. Cattle can only be made profitable by those who condescend to watch their peculiarities, to develop the valuable ones, and to take care in selling that they get market price for all they have to part with. There must be no mean guess work, no rule of thumb; we must learn to recognize the best methods of breeding, feeding and marketing, even though we have to abandon long established practices.—Agricultural Gazette.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capcised, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

CHANCERY SALE
OF
VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

ORANGE CERTIFICATES, handsomely got up, for sale at the INTELLIGENCER Office.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

SYR. HYPOPHOS. FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES COMP. FELLOWS.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Signed. J. E. GALLAWAY, M. D.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

'Simmons,' gasped Biggs, staring at the closed door of the room into which his Lordship and the woman had gone, 'would you 'ave the goodness to hinform me if my heyes 'aven't deceived me? Is it a positive fact that his Lordship hand that howdacious woman 'ave gone into that 'ere parlor?'

'Of course they have, stupid. Didn't you see them?'

'I himagined I did; but as the hoccurrence was so unprecedented and dreadful, I was in 'opes my heyes and hears had proved false. I need not say, Simmons, that hafter such an event I must quit his Lordship's service.'

'Hulloa, you ain't a going to give notice, are you?'

'Hi must, Simmons—Hi positively must. Hi 'ave a character to sustain, and hafter his Lordship doing a thing of that kind, my respectability would be—a—compromised by remaining in his service.'

'It looks a rum go, of course,' returned Simmons, 'but what of it? You ain't responsible for what his Lordship does—are you, Biggs?'

'Responsible, Simmons? no, I should think not. But has I 'ave said, I 'ave a character to maintain.'

'Yes, and you have a wife and four children to maintain: and had better think twice before you give up your snug berth.'

'Ay, that's the rub, Simmons, that's the rub, as I 'eard Armlet say hupon the stage. A consideration hof domestic claims may compel me to hignore the himmoral proceeding, but I can only say, Simmons, I stand haghast at it.'

'What is there to stand aghast at?' asked the less ceremonious Simmons. 'Didn't you hear her say she brought a message from some one for his Lordship? But hof course it is queer for a message to come to him by Mother M'Koul.'

'You 'eered the name, did you, Simmons?'

'Huffey White, and whoever that may be, his Lordship said he had once been in his service.'

'Hi am hin a position to say, Simmons, that such an indiwidual 'asn't been in his Lordship's service since his Lordship was married. But hof course you know that, Simmons, without me telling you.'

'No, I don't. How should I?'

'Simmons!' exclaimed Biggs, with an air of lofty indignation, 'aren't you perfectly aware that Hi 'ave been hin his Lordship's service since his marriage?'

'Yes, in course I know that.'

'Well, haint that a sufficient hintimation to you that such han himproper person as this 'Uffey White, who sends a message by a habandoned woman, could not possibly be a fellow servant of mine?'

Simmons gave a low whistle, and passed out to the street to chat with the coachman, while Biggs stalked majestically to his large leathern chair in the hall, and ensconced himself with the air of a prince, waiting in this attitude till the extraordinary interview between his Lordship and the woman should terminate.

That interview was brief but important. Lord Eagleheart having preceded the woman into the parlor, motioned to her to close the door, then he regarded her keenly and anxiously.

'What,' he demanded, 'is the nature of your communication?' and as he spoke the woman's sharp observation detected the painful tightening of his Lordship's lips.

'Huffey White is in Newgate, and he desires you will come to him without delay.'

'In Newgate!' repeated his Lordship. 'Have his restless habits landed him there? Foolish, infatuated fellow. For what is he incarcerated—rioting, most likely?'

'Something worse than that, your Lordship. If nothing is done for him, he will be hanged.'

'Hanged!' exclaimed Lord Eagleheart, in a tone of horror 'Good gracious! what has he done.'

'He escaped from the hulks some months ago, and now he is taken for bank robbery?'

His Lordship held up his hands in speechless surprise. 'I feared Huffey and become unsteady,' he cried, 'but I imagined nothing so dreadful as this. What connection of his are you?'

'Ah, I see. By friend you mean associate. Now tell me the particulars of the charge. You know all about it, of course?'

She did not know all, but she knew a good deal, and she told him what she could. To his horror and amazement he learned for the first time that Huffey White had been for years one of the most notorious and desperate highway robbers in England, and the woman, watching his face as she made her revelations, noticed there a perturbation greater than could possibly be caused by hearing of the criminal career of an old servant.

'Enough,' he said, with a shudder. 'I never dreamed of this; but I will see him.'

'To-night?'

'Yes, to-night.'

'That is well, my Lord! Huffey told me he knew you would come.'

He gave her a long, searching look, which she boldly and steadily met. Each was striving to read the mind of the other, but both failed.

Then his Lordship opened the door and she went out.

In a few minutes more, Lord and Lady Eagleheart, with their two children, were seated in the carriage on their way to the theatre.

CAAPTER VIII.

LORD EAGLEHEART PAYS A VISIT TO NEWGATE.

A large and fashionable audience had assembled in the Drury Lane Theatre to witness one of the grand efforts of John Kemble and Mrs. Siddons. The interior aspect of Old Drury half a century ago was very different from the gaudy display of our modern theatres There was nothing like the dazzling gilding and the gorgeous color which met the eyes of the present play-goers. On the contrary, the decorations were rather of a sombre character, and the house had somewhat of a dingy appearance. It was splendid acting that managers trusted to in those days, and not scenic display or sensational situations. And truly when such performers as Kembles, Keans, O'Neil, and Siddons, trod the stage, no meretricious ornament was needed as attraction, and the highest ranks nightly patronized the theatre to an extent of which modern managers have no experience.

On the night in question, the boxes were full from side to side, and as the grand Shakespearian creation was represented with a reality and power which would have satisfied the great Dramatist himself, every face was turned towards the stage with concentrated attention, and lords, and ladies, as well as the occupants of pit and gallery, sat silent and motionless as if under a spell.

Lord and Lady Eagleheart sat in the front of their box with their two children —a boy and a girl—between them. Lovely little children they were, about the respective ages of five and six—too young, of course, to understand the play, but not too young to sit for a time in wonder and awe at the majestic delineation; and when a childish restlessness came over them they were transferred to a back seat, where her ladyship's own maid took charge of them.

It is with their aristocratic parents that we have at present more immediately to do, and let us devote a sentence or two to a description of them. Lady Eagleheart was young and beautiful—nay, queenly looking in her grace and mien; but as one looked at her attentively, a shadow of pensiveness was discernable in her fair countenance. The face, though very lovely in feature and expression, was not without a tint of sadness, and to a keen eye gave token that she had not been altogether a stranger to sorrow. It did not, indeed, seem as if her ladyship was at present enduring suffering, for at that moment her features were placid and still, and her whole soul seemed absorbed in contemplation of the tragic scene which was being enacted.

Lord Eagleheart was a man of sterner face and harder nature. He, too, was young —little, if anything over thirty—and his was perhaps the only countenance in the theatre which indexed a preoccupied mind. His appearance was that of a man of a strong mind and firm purpose—a high forehead, dark penetrating eyes, a full sized aquiline nose, a small compressed mouth, and a somewhat sharp chin constituted the formation of his highly aristocratic countenance in which there was haughtiness, and an expression tending to severity, though at the same time it gave an expression of a capability of feeling, and even of tenderness. The feeling and tenderness were, however, under thorough restraint. His lordship was without doubt a man of strong will, who could subdue not only those about him, but himself, to whatever [illegible]

To-night while all others were spellbound by John Kemble, he was restless, troubled, and ill at ease; and at the end of the second act he bent his head towards Lady Eagleheart and whispered—

'I must leave you for a little on business, I may be some little time gone, but beg you will wait my return, even if you have to sit all the afterpiece.'

'Business to night, Charles?' said her ladyship, in surprise.

'Yes, love. I did not remember it when engaging to accompany you to the theatre. If I could delay it till to-morrow I would, but as it is of importance to be attended to, I must ask you to excuse my absence. But I daresay you are too interested in the play to miss me much.'

'I always miss you when you are gone, Charles,' she sweetly replied, 'but since the business is important, I will not seek to detain you.'

'I will return at the earliest possible moment,' he rejoined. 'I wish a moment's conversation with Lord Sidmouth, and then I shall be off.'

Saying which, he rose and left the box, entering the next minute another box at the opposite side of the theatre, where sat a tall, bald-headed, elderly gentleman by himself.

'What, all alone, to-night, my lord?' said Lord Eagleheart, after warm and cordial greetings had been exchanged.

'Yes; we had an early adjournment, and instead of going home, or to the Club, I took the opportunity of seeing Kemble. He is splendid to-night.'

'Great as he always is,' rejoined the other. 'But the truth is, I am too much annoyed to give him my undivided attention. I have a disagreeable visit to pay, and require some help from your lordship in the matter. I have to request from you a line which will give me admission to Newgate.'

'An admission to Newgate?' echoed his listener, in unmitigated surprise.

'Your lordship is amazed, as indeed you may be. But a few words will explain. I received a message this evening from a fellow who was in my service some eight or ten years ago, informing me of his incarceration, and requesting to see me. Of course he wishes me to intercede in his behalf, and as I found him faithful while in my employ, I am desirous of seeing him. The hours of visitation being past, I will have a difficulty in gaining access; but of course,' he added with a smile, 'the mandate of the Home Secretary will be an open sesame.'

'Of course,' returned the other, 'I am only too happy to oblige you in the matter. But must you go to-night, and leave both her ladyship and the play half done? Wait till to-morrow—do.'

'I fancy not. The message urgently implored me to come to night, and through questioning the messenger, I understand the charge is a serious one—bank robbery.'

Lord Sidmouth started. 'Is the man you mean called Huffey White?' he asked, in astonishment.

'That is my man.'

'Bless me! was that fellow at one time in your lordship's service? Why, he has become one of the most daring highwaymen in England. He has already been sentenced to transportation, and escaped from the hulks.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

All doctors recommend people to go to sleep lying on the right side. This is all the better if you are a little deaf in the left ear and dont get home till late.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 13.

Our Exports.

Our local Grit contemporary has become quite facetious over our remark that the "N. P. created a home market for Rye," and says :

"How is it, then, that we exported to the United States, during 1879, rye to the value of $13,273.02 more than during the preceding year?"

To which we reply that the reason we shipped more rye in value this year than last was simply because there was more rye grown to ship, which does not prove there was less rye used for local consumption. For the increase in quantity the advocates of protection claim no credit. Although there was $13,273.02 in value of rye more shipped this year than last on account of the increased price of rye last season over 1878, the same has been the case in all kinds of grain except barley, as the following comparative statement of the price of grain on Sept. 6, 1878, and now will clearly prove:—

Sept. 6, 1878.	Jan. 9, 1880.
Wheat 90c to $100.	Wheat $1.25 to $1.30.
Rye 55 to 56c.	Rye 75 to 80c.
Oats 32 to 33c.	Oats 35 to 36c.
Peas 62 to 63c.	Peas 65 to 70c.

The Globe says on the same subject :—"In face of the fact that rye is now five cents a bushel cheaper in Toronto than in Chicago, the Belleville INTELLIGENCER dares to say :—'The N. P. created a home market for our rye.'" It may be that the difference between the Toronto and Chicago markets is what the Globe says it is, though the quotations do not show it ; but on the 9th rye was quoted in Chicago at 79c cash and in Belleville on the same day at 80c, which shows that Toronto is a poor market for rye. The fact, however, that a Windsor distiller purchased in this market last year some 15,500 bushels of rye to use instead of the western oats and rye which he had previously imported, shows that our statement that the N. P. did create a home market for our rye.

To Alderman Geen.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—In your issue of the 3rd inst., you stated that the city could have secured a space in your paper at any time. I would ask Mr. Shepard if he has not twice declined or refused me a space, once in presence of Ald. Hayne?

Yours truly,
ALBERT L. GEEN.

In answer to the foregoing, I beg to say that an application was made to me, as Printer and Publisher of the INTELLIGENCER Co., and to whom all such matters have hitherto been referred, for one or more squares in the advertising columns of the INTELLIGENCER for the use of the Corporation of the City of Belleville, at the commuted rates charged to merchants, and that I refused to quote such rates and for the following reasons :

When Mr. Geen or Geo. Ritchie & Co., or any other merchants contract, for one or more squares for a year at the advertised rates, it is to advertise their specific business, drugs or dry goods as the case may be. If Mr. Geen wished to substitute for his drug advertisement, a farm for sale, or a tea meeting in St. John's Church ; or George Ritchie & Co. desired to replace their advertisement by advertising something distinct from their business, they would be charged regular advertising rates for such transient advertisements. And then these business men have a continuous advertisement in the paper for the year. The City Council have a score of different things to advertise —they can have no continuous advertisement, and are no more entitled to the commuted rates than would be the County Council of Hastings, or the Dominion Government, or any firm of lawyers, who from the nature of their profession have a dozen different class of advertisements. As well might Mr. Geo. D. Dickson, or Messrs. Bell & Ponton, who are both large advertisers, ask and obtain a contract for a square or two squares, and use it for advertising their Chancery sales, their mortgage sales, their farms for sale, and other class of advertisements, as for the City Council to do so. But when the commuted rates were established, it was never intended to have them apply to transient advertisers, nor to Corporations whose advertisements come under this class, for it will readily be seen if that course were adopted, a large source of revenue would be cut off. When I refused Mr. Geen to give him a square or more for the City Council at the commuted rates, I consulted the practical heads of the establishment, and they sustained me.

W. A. SHEPARD.

THE LEGISLATURE.—Several petitions were introduced yesterday, the Committee to strike, the Standing Committees was appointed, and the House rose after a very brief sitting.

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY, Jan. 12.

The Council met at 8 p. m.

PRESENT—Alex. Robertson, Esq., Mayor, Messrs. St. Charles, Lingham, Brennan, Geen, Vandusen, Farley, Robertson, Hambly, Doyle, Holden, Hulme, Wallbridge, Petrie, Procter, McIntosh, Panter, Dickson, Hayne, Patterson, Jellett.

The minutes of last meeting were read and appro ved.

PETITIONS, &c.,

The following petitions, &c., were read.

From the Ontario and Pacific Junction Railway, from last meeting.

From Doran & Co., for reduction of taxes on unoccupied premises.

A number of accounts were presented.

REPORTS.

Of the Printing Committee on an account submitted to them.

Of the Fire Committee, on sundry accounts; that there had been few disastrous fires during the year, and thanking the Mayor and their chairman for their services.

Of the Street Surveyor that the expenditure on streets had been as follows : — Bleecker Ward $1,680; Baldwin $874 39 ; Samson $1,168.51 ; Ketcheson $803 ; Foster $1,294.08 ; Coleman $1,884.75; Murney $1,932.58. Total $9,337,51 ; that hardwood plank be used for bridges and cedar shingles for sidewalks.

Of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of sundry accounts and salaries, and that the petition of Alex. McKay be not entertained.

Of the Court of Revision, on sundry petitions submitted to them.

Of the Harbor Master, calling attention to the state of the harbor, stating that much more dredging is required on the west side of the river, and that the wharves on the island are decaying very fast ; that the harbor revenue for 18 9 was $2,061.53 on imports and $1,215 on exports, showing a decrease of $410 on the whole as compared with the previous year, there having been a slight increase on imports. The decrease on exports was caused by alteration in the harbor tariff.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Petrie asked what amount had so far been expended on the piers ?

Ald. Patterson said about $680.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. St. Charles introduced a By-law for the removal of snow and ice opposite the property of non-residents.

Ald. Dickson asked did Ald. Holden intend to introduce a By-law for the appointment of High School Trustees. He understood this was to be done at the first meeting in January.

The Mayor said this had usually been done at the first meeting of the new Council.

Ald. Holden said he had looked into the matter and decided that it could legally be done by the new Council, which had been the practice heretofore.

The Solicitor sustained this opinion.

MOTION.

On motion of Ald. Geen the report of the Solicitor re fines and fees was referred to the Finance Committee.

BY-LAWS.

On motion of Ald. Holden, Council went into committee on the Grand Junction By-law Ald. Hulme in the chair.

On motion of Ald. Holden, Mr. Bickford was heard.

Mr. Bickford stated that the Bank of Montreal refused him further accommodation until the debentures for the $25,000 due on completion of the road to Hastings were issued. [illegible] proceed with the work otherwise.

Mr. H. Cameron, Q. C., after reciting the circumstances as to the division of the bonus, and as to the efforts made to obtain bonuses in Peterborough and Otonabee, said they saw now a reasonable prospect of getting the required aid. Mr. Bickford was willing to wait for the payment of the whole sum till the completion of the road to Peterborough, but Mr. Yarker, the manager of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto, had yesterday called on him and positively refused to accede to that arrangement, and refused to make any further advances. His (Mr. Cameron's) opinion was in favor of the proposed arrangement, but Mr. Yarker positively refused, saying if the $25,000 were paid he would advance as much as they wished, and allow the completion of the arrangement with the Grand Trunk for the permanent operation of the road, which would be entered into on completion to Peterborough. They were sorry that this difficulty had arisen, but they could not prevent it ; and as the road to Hastings only was of comparatively little value, and Sir Charles Tupper said the route was the natural, best and shortest to the North-West, he asked them to develop it by carrying out the agreement made by the Council to pay half the bonus on completion of the road to Hastings. They had carried out their agreement as far as possible, and he believed if the debentures were issued the road would be completed to Peterborough and in operation by the 1st of October next. He would assure them that not an inch of the road would be built beyond Hastings unless the time were extended. The Grand Trunk would not build the road, and would have nothing to do with it until it was completed to Peterborough. Under these circumstances he asked the Council to carry out the agreement which they had made.

Mr. John Bell, Q. C., said that the Grand Trunk had no money to build the Grand Junction, and if they had the money they had not the power to expend it in that way. Their funds were to be devoted to the work of which he had spoken at the public meeting. They were ready to operate the road if it were completed to Peterborough, but if we had to wait till the Grand Trunk advance $25,000, it would not be for a long day. If the terms asked by Mr. Cameron were granted, the Grand Trunk would at once enter into an agreement to work the road with headquarters in Belleville. If the road was not built under present auspices, it might be at some future time, but it would not be in the interest of Belleville, as it would be worked from some other point. As a ratepayer, he urged the Council to meet the views of the contractors as far as seemed reasonable.

Ald. Holden said, notwithstanding all that had been said, he was of opinion that the only By-law which the Council should pass was that introduced by him at a former meeting. That By-law embodied the views of the ratepayers. The people had granted the money conditionally on the completion of the road to Peterborough, but the Council, without reference to the people, had divided the bonus. The contractors now asked an extension of time, and as the law gives the Council the power to extend the time, he believed it should be done on the conditions of the original By-laws. By passing the present By-law, it put the onus of refusing on the contractors, and in any event it would do no harm ; he thought the argument that the line would be built without the bonus was of no account. They should carry out the views of the ratepayers, and if the road was not built to Peterborough there would not be any money payable. He did not like to take upon himself the absolute refusal of the bonus voted by the ratepayers. He believed it to the interest of the city to avoid litigation, and he believed the By-law afforded a reasonable means of getting rid of the litigation. Had there been dissatisfaction with his course in moving the resolution at the public meeting and introducing the By-law in the Council, the ratepayers in the Ward which he represented—the heaviest taxpaying Ward in the city—would have manifested it on the election day, as the matter was fresh in their minds. His opinion was still that the By-law would be accepted, and he moved the second reading of the By-law.

Mr. Bickford asked of the Council that they should not pass the By-law in its present shape, as it bound them to go to Peterborough, and would prevent their getting a bonus from that town, which would be applied on the construction of the road to Omemee. Otherwise there would not be secured for Belleville a direct connection with the Georgian Bay, and the road would lose much of its value to the city.

Ald. Robertson contended that the agreement under which the contract had been entered into had been fairly carried out. This had been his position and it had been endorsed by the ratepayers of Baldwin Ward, as well as had Mr. Holden's in Ketcheson Ward. We had the road—we had the assurance of the strongest Railway Company in the country that the line would be operated vigorious, ly, and thus the road would be of the benefit which it was intended it should be, if completed to Omemee. He moved an amend, ment to the effect that the $25,000 be paid and the balance on the completion of the road to Peterborough by Jan. 1st, 1881, and for the issue of the debentures for the $25,000 due on completion and equipment of the line to Hastings.

Ald. Dickson contended that the Corporation were ready to carry out the only honest agreement which the ratepayers had ever made, namely that which the contractors had declared they would not accept. It seemed strange that, considering the press had reported the result of the public meeting, the manager of the Bank of Montreal in Toronto had not expressed disapprobation until the day before the final meeting of the Council ; nor had the authorities of the Grand Junction expressed themselves officially upon it. The people had been with them in resisting the legislation was now said to be the agreement, and what obligation was there now on them to perpetuate that which had been forced upon them ? The conditions of the contract had not been carried out, and they were now free from them. He contended that our financial position was not such that we could add $25,000 to our liabilities, and that we had given enough to the Grand Junction. Our property was assessed too highly and so much beyond its proper value that we were actually paying 24 cents instead of 19½ mills on the dollar. He believed that we ought not to give this $25,000 if there was a reasonable prospect of getting the road without it, and he saw no reason for putting that sum into the pockets of the contractors. In his belief the road could be built to Peterborough in any case, because the capital now invested in it would not be allowed to remain unproductive as it must be if not extended any further. Neither, did he believe, could the road be operated from the centre at Peterborough, [illegible] Midland. For these reasons he opposed the By-law.

Mr. Bickford said the $25,000 would not go into his pocket, as the cost of the road would be far in excess of the amount of bonuses. He would rather let his investment in the railway lie as it is than expend $300,000 more in completing the line without the assistance which he sought.

Mr. Kelso was also heard and argued against the position assumed by Mr. Dickson. He urged that the Council should meet Mr. Bickford frankly on the basis which he stated. In his belief if the road were completed, it would have all the square timber trade of Northern Michigan as well as of the Georgian Bay district.

Ald. Dickson said it was strange that the advantages to the City were always presented, but never those which would accrue to the proprietors of the road.

Ald. Robertson's amendment was then put and lost.

Ald. Robertson moved for the extension of time, as asked by the Company.

The Mayor said he had been requested by Mr. Northrup, chairman of the trustees, to hand over the debentures alleged to be due, which he had signed and placed in the hands of the Treasurer to await the action of the Council.

After a few further remarks by Ald. Hambly, Geen, Holden and Petrie, the amendment was put and lost.

Ald. St. Charles moved, seconded by Ald. Patterson, the six months' hoist.

Ald. Holden urged that the motion was out of order, as two clauses had been noted on.

The proposed amendment was withdrawn, and Ald. St. Charles moved that the Committee rise without reporting.—Lost.

The second reading of the By-law was carried, and the Committee rose and reported.

The yeas and nays were taken on the adoption of the report, as follows :—

NAYS.—Messrs. Geen, Patterson, Panter, Proctor, St Charles, Dickson.—6.

Ald. Holden moved to suspend the rules for the passage of the By-law.—Carried.

The By-law was passed and numbered 442.

The Council at this time adjourned until Thursday evening, when they will meet to complete the business of the year.

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew told this story at the recent New England dinner : In the Berkshire hills there was a funeral. The woman who mingles curiosity with pity was there with the mourners. To the afflicted, in a melancholy voice, she said : "When did you get your new eight-day clock ?". "I ain't got no new eight day clock," responded the bereaved woman. "Why, what is that in the corner ? Ain't that an eight-day clock ?" persisted the curious visitor. "No, that ain't a clock, that's the deceased. We stood it on end in the corner to make room for the mourners."

A Michigan newspaper says it is permitted by etiquette in that State for a bride to be married without gloves, it being supposed to be typical of the manner in which she will handle her husband when she gets better acquainted with him and proceeds to regulate her household.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 13.

City and Vicinity.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education, as constituted for 1879, will hold its final meeting to-night.

GRAND JUNCTION.—The annual general meeting of the stockholders in the Grand Junction Railway Company is to be held at their offices, Pinnacle Street, on Tuesday, February 3rd, at 2 o'clock p. m.

BOXING.—John King, of Toronto, wishes to have a boxing match with Prof. D. C. Ross, of this city, under the Marquis of Queensbury's rules, for from $200 to $500 a side. King's weight is only 130 pounds.

RECOUNT.—A recount of the ballots cast in the recent election for Deputy Reeve in Ameliasburg is to take place. Mr. Morgan Jellett is acting for Mr. Samuel Reddick, the petitioner, who was declared defeated by 4 votes.

WARNING.—Those who have occasion to drive on the ice in the vicinity of Nigger Island should exercise the greatest caution, as the glacial surface in that locality abounds with air holes and an unexpected bath on account of an undercurrent there might lead to fatal consequences.

FREE LECTURE.—President Jaques, of Albert College, will deliver the opening lecture of the Hilary term in the College Chapel to-morrow night, at 7 o'clock. Subject: "The Peaks, Parks and Plains of the Great North-West." Admission free. The public are invited.

THE FISH TRADE.—Competition is said to be the life of trade, but an over-indulgence in it is not always profitable to those who engage in it. Such is now the rivalry among those engaged in the fish trade that the price of fish has advanced to 4½c, greatly to the delight of the many fishermen who now while away the fleeting hours in their shanties on the ice.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.—One car load of concentrated gold ore was shipped from this city to Detroit yesterday. Twelve cars of iron ore were at the same time sent to Buffalo, N. Y. Bad sleighing and bad roads affect railroad traffic as well as ordinary business, and the consequence is a falling off both in freight and passenger traffic, which it is expected will considerably increase as soon as the condition of the roads improves.

HOME FOR THE POOR.—The entertainment for the benefit of the home for the poor and friendless, given in the Opera House last night proved a great success, the attendance being large and the performance excellent. Profs. Greene and Wallbridge and the pupils of the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb presented a pantomime with artistic and mirth-producing skill; but as our citizens saw them on a similar occasion some years ago, it is unnecessary to speak of their performance at length. Several musical selections were given by local amateurs, and the entertainment gave great satisfaction to all present.

M. I. GYMNASIUM.—The opening of the Mechanics' Institute Gymnasium took place last evening with a very encouraging attendance. Mr. E. W. Johnston, the noted athlete, under whose management it now is, gave an exhibition in swinging Indian clubs, the dumb bell exercise, jumping, kicking, and demonstrated his ability in acrobatic exercise by somersault throwing, &c. The gymnasium is now supplied with all the paraphernalia necessary for such an institution, and with such a capable and proficient instructor as Mr. Johnston, those who have an inclination or taste for gymnastics or athletics will have an excellent mentor.

FRACTIOUS WEATHER.—The "cold dip" which Vennor predicted would come about the 9th or 10th, not having put in an appearance, he calls the weather fractious, and ventures further predictions as follows:—"The thermometer at 9 a. m. yesterday (Sunday) morning recorded 4° above zero and at 9 p. m. the mercury was 1° above freezing point viz., 33°. Such a sudden rise within a comparatively few hours is certainly very remarkable. During the same space of time the barometer fell (reading roughly) from 30° 40 to 29° 85, but this fall was not attended by either snow or rain during the hours mentioned. The weather outline between 9 a. m. on the 10th and 9 p. m. on the 11th, as mapped, presents the form of an acute or narrow V, one side of which represents a dip of about 27° (27° to 0°) and the other a rise of 33° Such ups and downs have characterized January up to the present date, and as this present feature is likely to continue, we may look for very irregular weather, with sudden and not always agreeable changes up to the close of the month. In February I shall not be surprised should the mercury, from a zero standpoint, take a 30° plunge in a most uncomfortable direction, but this I do not anticipate during the remainder of the present month."

COLD WEATHER.—Whilst we sometimes suffer from the cold here, the residents of Manitoba have found the weather there much more severe than we are accustomed to. A former resident of this city now residing in Palestine, Manitoba, writes:—"The weather has been very cold here for the last four weeks, rainging from 25° to 54° below zero; when it gets down among the fifty's look out for your nose. There have been three or four persons frozen to death here this winter."

The Mayor's Dinner.

After the adjournment of the Council, the Mayor and Aldermen proceeded to the Dafoe House, where they after a short interval sat down to a sumptuous spread which did honor to the establishment. The chair was occupied by His Worship, the host of the evening, and the vice-chair by Mayor-elect Patterson. Amongst those present, in addition to the Corporation and officials, were the Rev. Vicar General Farrelly, Thos. Wills, Esq., Collectors Webster and Hamilton, P. P. Lynch, Ex-Mayors Henderson and Foster, Capt. Cummins, Drs. Stewart, Hope, Burdett and Potts.

The substantials having been disposed of, the usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and drank with enthusiasm, several songs being sung in response. At the conclusion the vice-chairman proposed the health of the Mayor, which was heartily drank and received with three cheers and "a tiger."

Mayor Robertson, in response, said that in retiring from the Council he thanked all the members for the kindly feeling always manifested towards him,—and he had to thank the Aldermen and all the civic body for their assistance in the discharge of his duties. He regretted severing his connection with the civic board, but he left as his successor a gentleman who would ably fill the position. A reflection which filled him with sadness was that not one gentleman who sat with him when he entered the Council now survived. He trusted that during this year all would discharge their duties well that the most would be made of our position, and that we should derive full benefits from our natural resources. He would always endeavor in the future, as in the past, to do all that he could for the benefit of the City and of the country as well.

The health of the ex-Mayors was next drank and replies made by ex-Mayors Dr. Hope, G. E. Henderson and W. A. Foster, the former giving some interesting reminiscences of Belleville and its municipal government in past times, from 1839 onwards.

Ald. Robertson proposed the health of Ald. Patterson, the Mayor elect.

Mr. Patterson, in reply, alluded to his long connection with the Corporation, saying that the most pleasant years in his experience had been the last two years, owing to the courtesy and fairness of Mayor Robertson, who had discharged his duties ably and well. He felt almost a dread at the thought of attempting to fill Mr. Robertson's place, but it would be his desire to perform his duties well and impartially, and he trusted that he should have the assistance of the Councillors in the discharge of his duties. If he could by any means emulate the virtues and abilities of his predecessor, he would feel that he had filled his office acceptably.

Vicar-General Farrelly made a happy response. He said that Mr. Robertson was one of his first acquaintances when he came to Belleville nine years ago, and that gentleman had treated him so kindly, that he had respected him ever since. All he then knew of Belleville was that the Orange Grand Master lived here, and he was advised not to come here; but he found the Grand Master not only not so thundering a fellow as he had feared, but he wished that more were like him. He had learned to love, respect and esteem the gentlemen of Belleville, and he loved the city, for there was no bigotry here, and the people were most generous and liberal. They had elected as members of their Council five members of his flock, which was nearly one-fourth of the Council, whereas the Roman Catholics numbered but about 2,000, or one-sixth of the population. He hoped that Belleville would go on and prosper, and become the great city of Ontario. When we had such men as Mr. Robertson to lead us—men who had respect for all classes—we would have a prosperous city. He hoped he would never prove himself unworthy of the esteem of the people of this city.

The proceedings were continued at some further length, a most enjoyable evening being passed by all.

THE REASON WHY.—Mr. Fellows, in his "Medical Monthly," gives reason for the peculiar action of his Hypophosphites in the cure of diseases, which seem to be borne out by facts. From tonic action of the Sympathetic Nerve all the Organic Nuscles are strenghtened and the patient overcomes his malady simply, pleasantly, and rapidly.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 13.—Warrants were issued yesterday for the arrest of Wm. Allenbaum, of Plymouth, Wesley Williams, of Plains, and a man called "Big Yank," charged with the murder of Wm. Keating in 1872. It is alleged that Keating was beaten to death and the body burned with brush. Allenbaum has been arrested.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 13.—The nail manufacturers in this city yesterday advanced nails to $5 with the usual discounts.

DENVER, Jan. 13.—Owing to the threatened Indian troubles a council of the Legislature of New Mexico on Saturday passed a bill authorizing a force of 1000 militia and appropriating $100,000 to fight the Indians. The bill will probably pass the House to-day.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13.—Ulysses Johnson who committed an infamous outrage on Elizabeth Riddle, aged 13, in October last and fled to Virginia, was jailed at Elliott City yesterday.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 13.—A letter from the Deputy United States Marshal says that the Moonshiners on Butler's Creek in Wayne County have organized under an oath to kill any revenue officer or marshal who goes into their locality. They killed W. A. Fowler for guarding Deputy Collector Davis and his friends. The revenue officers will not dare to go after the wild cat concerns in that region without sufficient force to overcome any resistance.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 13.—Abner Barnaby, clothier, has failed. Liabilities $50,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The Sun's Augusta special says it is understood that the Republicans will take no further action until the decision of the Court. Gen. Chamberlain says he shall not recognise any body until the decision is made. He regards them all as simply members elect unorganized.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Bogert, the late defaulting Treasurer of the Produce Exchange was formerly County Collector for Bergen County, N. J. Freeholders are now investigating his accounts, as there is reason to fear that he robbed the County by over issue of bonds amounting to $51,000.

Hy. Vandazen, a coachman, yesterday asked Eliza Hopp to marry him. Under the advice of her parents she refused, whereupon he drew a razor from his pocket and cut his throat fatally.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Ex-Empress Eugenie will embark with a small retinue for the Cape of Good Hope on the 26th of March. Arrangements will be made to expedite the voyage so as to enable the ex-Empress to arrive at the scene of the Prince Imperial's death by the 1st of June, the anniversary of that event.

CAPETOWN, Jan. 13.—The arrest of Pretorius, present foreman of the Republic of Transvaal for high treason, caused great excitement among the Boers.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A Vienna correspondent says that new developments in Russia may be very significant of what may happen ten years hence, but persons conversant with Russian military affairs do not think Russia is preparing for some great action in the immediate future. The work of organization and introducing a standing order of battle in time of peace, which was greatly disturbed by the Turkish war, entails moving about of troops and material—movements very apt to be construed into something quite different from their real intentions.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 13.—At quarter to two this morning the Committee submitted the series of questions which it was voted to submit to the Court. The questions are lengthy and not complete, both branches adjourned at 2:15 until Saturday at 2 p. m. The acting Gov. Lanson will issue orders to-day instructing the militia not to obey the orders of Gen. Chamberlain.

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 13.—This morning Thos. Newman, colored, accidentally set fire to the buildings at Cameron's furnace. Newman was burned to death. Loss $2,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Gas generated in the oil tank at Pratt's Astral Oil Works, caused a terrific explosion which sent the oil flying in all directions. Three men were slightly injured, and all narrowly escaped drowning in the oil. No fire.

RICHMOND, Jan. 13.—The thermometer fell 36° between sunset yesterday and sunrise this morning. The first snow fell to the depth of three inches during the night.

NEWARK, Jan. 13.—The coroner's jury in the case of the Celluloid explosion says the accident was the result of experiments by the experts of the Company, in their knowledge of properties and materials, which had not passed beyond the dangerous shoals of experiment. The management is censured for their imprudence in allowing such experiments in a room filled with workmen, and with such imperfect means of escape. Edward Dowd, the seventh victim died this morning.

THE TROUBLES IN IRELAND.—The distress in Ireland is steadily growing worse. In the district of Skulebog 500 men on the brink of starvation obtained four cartloads of bread on the 12th by an urgent representation of their extremity. In Cork bread riots are feared, and the magistrates are asking for additional police. In the collision which took place on Saturday at Knochvicard, county Mayo, several women were wounded with bayonets and swords. The men had incited them to resist the serving of processes. A large force of constabulary is now concentrated at Maam, county Galway, to protect the men who are to-day to serve ejectments over the property of the late Earl of Leitrim. The people are reported to be decided to resort to extremes. The district is most excited and disturbed. The police and people are daily growing more exasperated with each other.

MRS. CAPT NORMAN, of Millbridge, Ontario, writes, Aug. 17th.:—"ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM cured my son of a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He took no other medicine, the balsam acted wonderfully, taking away the fever, at once operating on the bowels, sending matter up from off the lungs, in appearance dreadful beyond expression. There are several others who reside in this neighbourhood, and have been cured by ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, who would give certificates if asked."

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.—There is, probably, no family medicine so favorably and so widely known as DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. It is extensively used in India, China, Turkey—and, in every civilized country on earth, not only to counteract the climatic influences, but for the cure of bowel troubles, Cholera and Fevers. It is used internally for all diseases of the bowels, and externally for wounds, burns, bruises, &c. Sold by druggists generally.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—A correspondent at Cabul reports Mahommed Jan as having surrounded Ghuzni with a strong force, killed Governor Abdul Kadir, and looted the city. He is now endeavoring to raise the tribes to attack the British. Priest Mooshi Alum has severed his connection with Mahommed Jan in consequence of the behavior of the insurgents in looting Cabul.

CABUL, Jan. 12.—Cold weather and exposure cause much sickness among the troops. There are 180 cases of pneumonia.

LAHORE, Jan. 12.—A Persian correspondent writes that Herat and Balkh regiments of Afghan are preparing to march to Ghuzni to join Mahommed Jan in January.

CATTLE.—A number of choice cattle have been purchased in the Montreal market for shipment to Britain, at $4.25 to $4.40 per 100 lbs.

THE IRON INTEREST.—The American Manufacturer says:—"Prices of pig iron are bounding upward again, and some of the more thoughtful iron makers are feeling uneasy. They fear that values are going to reach a point from which they will drop with a thud one of these days. It was thought some time ago that the English market would regulate ours, but this is proving a delusion, as prices there are bounding upward to as giddy a height as they are here. In other words, instead of the English markets controlling ours, the reverse is the case. The cause of the whole trouble is a scarcity of ore. If all the American furnaces were in blast they could meet the enormous demand; but many of them cannot blow in for want of ore—and we notice by our late English exchanges that the same is true with respect to many furnaces in Wales. Now, if ever, it is time for the development of ore properties."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—The letter of "Philanthropist," in your issue of the 8th inst., is quite as misleading as to the object of Mr. Parnell's visit to this continent, as the agitation of which Mr. Parnell is now the acknowledged leader.

"Philanthropist" must have read few of Mr. Parnell's and his associates' speeches, or he would know that the root of the present Irish agitation is—like others which have preceded it under various names—hatred to England, and its inevitable result, sedition and rebellion.

So far from Mr. Parnell being officially invited to this city, it is to be hoped that throughout Canada he will be received with as little attention as possible, and thereby be taught that Canadians have no sympathy with Irish agitation. Suffering humanity has always met a kindly response from the citizens of Belleville when properly laid before them, but the divine attribute of charity should never be mixed up with political charlatanism; therefore if anything is to be done for my suffering countrymen let partyism be avoided, and let us do it of our own free will, but not from excitement, begot of pride and hatred.

Butter Making.

Butter making begins with the cow; one cannot make the best butter from a poor cow. There are cows from which the best dairymen and dairywomen will fail to get good butter, especially in the winter time. One may be sure of success if he has a good pure bred or grade Jersey or Ayrshire or Guernsey cows, and some native cows will make equally good butter. But some will not, and the best of them are improved by a cross of either of the above pure breeds. The dairyman, then, who would excel in producing fine butter in the winter time, should weed out from his herd every cow whose cream is white or specky, or apt to become bitter, or that may sometimes foam in the churn. He should also have fresh cows, for the cream from a fresh cow will be of a much higher color than that from a farrow cow, or even from one that has been milking three or four months. Having made a selection of cows, the next thing in order is to feed them on the right food, to secure firm, hard, yellow butter, having the waxy grain and high nutty flavor so essential.

The food has a most important effect on the quality of the butter as well as the quantity, and both the selection and the quantity of food given deserve consideration. A few tests of foods made by myself personally, without any intervention of a hired man, and in which the feed was given, the cow milked, the milk weighed and skimmed, and the butter churned and weighed by my own hands, may be given. In February last my cow, Minnie, was fed upon the usual ration of 10 pounds of meal of corn, oats, and wheat bran ground together; to this were added six pounds of palm nut meal daily. February 1st to 7th the cow gave 164 pounds of milk, which produced eight pounds of butter; February 8th to 14th the milk was 191½ pounds and the butter 9¾ pounds; February 15th to 21st the milk was 194 pounds, and the butter 10¼ pounds; February 22nd to 28th the milk was 198½ pounds, and the butter was 12 pounds; the meal was discontinued because the butter deteriorated in quality somewhat.

A test with cotton seed meal gave the following results: A two-year old Ayrshire cow, Bolivia, fed previously on ten pounds of corn, oats, and bran meal daily, was given four pounds of cotton seed meal. The yield was as follows:

	Milk.	Butter.
Nov. 1 to 7	126 pounds.	5¼ pounds.
" 8 14	129 "	7¾ "
" 15 21	128 "	7¾ "

The color of the butter and flavor were very much improved by the cotton seed meal. The last mentioned yield of butter is still maintained.

After very thorough and long-continued tests of every kind of feed attainable, I prefer the following rations and kinds for the production of the best quality of butter.—Ten pounds of meal made of corn, oats and wheat bran or middlings, with four pounds of cotton-seed meal, given half in the morning and half in the evening with cut and wetted hay; at noon a feed of dry hay. If roots are at hand, I would give a peck of these instead of the hay at noon. A handful of salt daily sprinkled on the feed is indispensable; the want of it will be discovered in the churning.

If the quantity and quality of the butter depend upon the cow and the feeding, the milking may easily spoil all. This should be done in the most cleanly manner. It is impossible to keep cows perfectly clean and a stable entirely free from odor, unless all the income is expended in the attention that would be needed. But yet the milk may be kept clean if the stables are cleaned out and freshly bedded before milking, and the cows are carded and brushed off and the udders wiped with a clean cloth. Some impurities, such as loose hair and dust, will get into the milk in spite of all care, but these may be kept out of the butter. An excellent milking-pail, which I have recently tried, strains the milk perfectly, from every hair and speck of dust; it is easily kept clean and promises to be very durable. The strainer may be made of one, two or three thicknesses of wire cloth, and can be unscrewed for washing.

Upon the setting of the milk depends the quantity of the cream raised, as well as the quality of the butter. The difference between deep and shallow setting is too small to be perceived by the most careful tests, excepting as regards convenience. The deep can system is convenient under certain circumstances, and in some is indispensable; but I prefer shallow setting when all other things are equal. All these things are equalized and more by the Ferguson Bureau Creamery, which is the most convenient shallow pan system I have met with. This consists of a closet with shelves for the pans inclosed by glazed or wire-gauze doors, a place below for the cream and butter, and one agove for ice. The temperature may be maintained the year round at any desired point; the milk and cream are thoroughly aired and exposed to light; and the closet may be kept in any place that may be desirable. For usefulness and labor saving I have met with no more effective plan than this. But with whatever system of setting is used, the requisites for first quality butter are purity of air, sufficient ventilation, moist but not damp atmosphere, and freedom from any odor whatever, with a temperature not below 45 and not over 60 degrees. The cream skimmed every 36 hours, should be stirred in the cream jar each time that fresh cream is added, and should be kept as purely as the milk.

There is a dispute respecting the churning of sweet and sour cream. Sweet cream will make delicious butter, and preferable for immediate sale; but this will not keep so well, nor has it that ripeness of flavor and peculiar nuttiness which butter made from sour cream possesses. Sour cream butter may be kept for a year or more, and may improve with age to some extent for a few months, while sweet cream butter should be eaten in a week after it is made. Thus it depends upon the manner of disposal, if one should churn sweet or sour cream. But the acidity of the cream must not be excessive. In the winter if kept at a temperature of 50 degrees, the cream may be churned once a week; if kept longer there may be trouble in the churning.—Henry Stewart in Rural New Yorker.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St. John's gate along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the leap, plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was carried, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found [illegible] Montmorency carries before it the [illegible] of river front and [illegible] it away forever, and so do Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhage, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10,560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample land and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without interest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

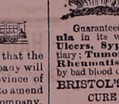

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

ORANGE CERTIFICATES, handsomely got up, for sale at the INTELLIGENCER Office

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully. D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully, LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

'So I'm told. I heard nothing of him from the time he left me until to-day, and was astounded to hear of his doings. Beyond a certain restlessness of disposition, and a reckless daring, I saw nothing in White to prognosticate such a villainous career.'

'He has reached the end of it now, however,' said the Secretary. 'This bank robbery in which he is concerned is the most audacious thing on record. The scoundrels have bagged no less a sum than twenty thousand. If the cash can't be recovered it is questionable if the bank will be able to stand it.'

'But has the cash not been got?' asked Lord Eagleheart.

'Not a farthing of it. According to the report I have received from the police, the leader of the gang has not been taken, and it is thought he has the money. I have given instructions that every possible effort be made to track and capture him, and that no stone be left unturned to regain the cash. The robbery has thrown Glasgow into a panic already, and if the booty is not returned and the perpetrators signally punished every large town in the Empire will become excited. As to White, he cannot escape the gallows; for, apart from the Bank robbery, the penalty of escaping from the hulks is death, and the country will be well rid of such a pest.'

'Still I must see him,' rejoined Lord Eagleheart. 'And as I sent him a promise by the messenger that I would visit him to-night, if your lordship will be good enough—'

'To give you a line to the Governor of the prison? Oh, certainly. It is extremely kind in your lordship to respond to the fellow's appeal—pity he is so undeserving of such consideration.'

The Secretary opened a red morocco case which lay on the seat beside him, and finding there writing materials on paper bearing his official stamp, he wrote a few words on one of the sheets, and folding it, presented it to Lord Eagleheart with a bow. The third act of the play having now begun, his lordship, on receiving the paper, was about to bid adieu to the Secretary, when the latter, locking up his case, rose also and accompanied him from the box.

'Is your lordship also leaving so early?' asked the other, on looking round and seeing the Secretary close behind him.

'Oh, dear no,' was the reply, accompanied with a smile. 'I am going to discharge a most pleasant and acceptable duty—I mean to keep Lady Eagleheart company till you return. Now don't look glum, and don't be jealous. An old fellow like me, even if insane enough to make the attempt, has no chance with so fond and devoted a wife as her ladyship is known to be. So your lordship need not be under the slightest uneasiness.'

'I am only too delighted to think that Charlotte will have the honor of your distinguished company, my lord. But pray oblige me by not mentioning to my wife the errand on which I have gone. Ladies have such a horror of a prison that the thought of me having gone there to see a burglar might alarm her. Besides I should not like her to know that White has gone so fearfully to the bad.'

'I understand—I quite understand, my lord,' answered the Secretary. 'Since you have such consideration for an old servant, although he has turned out a rascal, I cannot be surprised that you have such thoughtful care of Lady Eagleheart's peace of mind. Trust me, my lord, her ladyship shall not learn from me whither you have gone, or what errand. Only you are certain to disappoint the rascal's expectations, if he cherishes any hope of you bringing him off. To an offender of his stamp no mercy can be shown.'

Here the gracious bow was exchanged between them, and the Secretary hurrying into Lord Eagleheart's box, the latter traversed the corridor, and, emerging under the piazza, folded his arms and strode away along the street.

A different expression was on his lordship's face now. The restraint was lifted from his features, and these showed a natural and undisguised reflection of the inner thought and feeling.

'Consideration!' he muttered, with something like a bitter and scornful laugh. 'By my faith, but his lordship credits me for more than I possess. Consideration for White because he was once in my employ! Egad! if the knave did not possess a secret which gives him the power to ruin me he might rot in Newgate or toil in the hulks for me. And as for making exertions to save him from the gallows, it would be the greatest relief to me to know that the hangman had put it out of his power to injure me. It is this, and this alone, that takes me to see him now; and the scoundrel presumes on his knowledge of the old affair in daring to send me such a message. The terms of it are a sufficient indication of this. I must come to him. So ran his language. This tells me that he means mischief if I don't get him out of the scrape. God! to require to act nearly if I would not have the fabric of my wealth tumble to pieces. But can he ruin me even if he tried? 'Tis nearly nine years since, and proof of his story would be difficult, if not impossible. Shaw would it not have been better if I had paid no attention to his summons, and defied him? What power has he—a convicted felon—to exert against me? Who would believe the impossible story—told, too, by a man at the foot of the gallows? I've a great mind to go no further.'

Lord Eagleheart had turned into Oxford Street when his reflections had reached this point, and there he sauntered to and fro, with his head bent, and his arms on his breast, pondering the matter. Further reflection did not by any means tend to settle him in the resolution to which he had half come. He had not the courage to take that defiant course which his bolder nature tempted him to follow. He could not disguise from himself the fact that Huffey White—felon though he was—could betray and ruin him, and the thought was at once galling to his pride and a minister to his fears. It was a humiliating position for such a great and haughty man as Lord Eagleheart, but it was the penalty he had to pay for a former sin—a sin committed years ago, but following and dogging him with all a sin's inevitable pertinacity. It mattered not that he was a Lord—possessor of title and rank. These things do not exempt the doer of an evil deed from its consequences. No kind or degree of social position or circumstances can induce the law of moral rectitude to forego the exaction of penalty for its violation. Now, Lord Eagleheart had at one period of his life violated this law by act of gross iniquity. Under a great temptation he had fallen, and done a deed which was cruel, heartless, unnatural, and monstrous. That deed was committed in connection with Hufley White, and to his aid and help. So long as this his associate and instrument proved faithful, his lordship had no fear of detection; but what trust can be put in fidelity of a partner in guilt? The moment the latter feels it to be his interest to reveal the crime which had been committed there is no tie strong enough to secure his secrecy. And so the violated law finds one means or another to avenge itself, and the man who is induced by a show of advantage to do a grievous wrong discovers, sooner or later, that he is in the meshes of his sin.

Lord Eagleheart found it to be so now, and the result of his cogitations was that he procured a hackney coach, and ordered the driver to convey him to Newgate.

Arrived at the prison, he had no sooner given his name, and produced the mandate of the Home Secretary, than access was at once afforded him to the cell in which Hufley White was confined. A turnkey led the way, carrying a light in his hand, and having opened the door and ushered in the visitor, he set the light down on the floor, and retired.

Not a word was spoken either by his lordship or the prisoner in presence of the jailor, but White from his lair in the corner looked up from under his shaggy brows with something like a sullen, dogged scowl, which his visitor returned with a steady searching look.

This attitude they maintained till the jailor's retiring footsteps faded away in a distant passage, then his lordship spoke.

'White,' he observed, 'this is a dreadful place to find you in. When you left the Bank six years ago, I little expected that it would come to this.'

'Nor I, my lord,' answered White, 'but by a cursed chance here I am, and the question for me is, how to keep my neck clear of the hangman's loop. As matters stand it will cost me one, but I am in hopes your lordship will get me free. You have been so long in coming that I began to think Mother McKeal hadn't found you out, or that you refused to come.'

'I told her I would come,' rejoined his visitor.

'Very likely, but I haven't seen her since, and so I could not know. Yet I was pretty sure you would come too—for the sake of the past.'

These words White uttered in a different tone, and with a significant look which did not escape Lord Eagleheart's keen penetration.

'Of course you have a right to count on me visiting you at your request,' said his lordship. 'We always got on very well together, and your leaving me has turned out a bad business for yourself. It was not with my approbation, you remember. I did all I could to keep you in my service.'

'So you did, but I had no mind to stay. Life at the hall was too tame for me. Action, adventure, enterprise, was what I wanted, therefore I left.'

'Yes, and I am told you have run a desperate career since. The woman whom you sent gave me a notion of it.'

'Ay, well, it has been something of a stirring kind,' replied White, with a careless sullen. 'But this is a light fix now. It is not my nature to ask help from any one so long as I have an inch of room to turn in for myself. So I never troubled you till now. But this is a mess past my mending, and so I have sought your help. As I said before I knew you would come.'

'Yes' rejoined his lordship. 'Of course you knew I would not refuse the request of one who had once been my valet.'

'But my lord, do you put it on that footing,' said White, with hasty bluntness, 'it was not on your goodness I counted, but on your fears. Had I had been nothing more than an old valet you would not have been here to night.'

'Oh, you know well enough what I mean, and it's no use wasting time. When the hangman's rope is dangling over one's head he doesn't feel in a silken mood. It's hanging over me now, and I can't set to work too soon to get from under it. So in a word, my lord, on the strength of your business I look to you to save my neck. Nay, don't start or look scared; there are no eavesdroppers here.'

'I am not sure of that,' said his lordship in a whisper. 'It would be well at anyrate to speak lower, since you have begun to talk so imprudently.'

'Imprudently!' echoed White, with a bitter laugh. 'I only want to come to a speedy understanding, and so I make my demand—you must get me off. Do you promise?'

'I will do all that I possibly can, but—'

'No buts,' cried White, fiercely. 'If you don't choose to save me from hanging, the border marriage and what followed it will come to light. You know what that means for you; but I may as well make it. It means disgrace, and something more—it means beggary; aye, and even more than that for the law will take hold of you about the infant.'

'Hush, for God's sake, don't speak so loud,' said his lordship, with undisguised alarm, 'there may be listeners at hand.'

'Stuff. There is no such thing. The sharpest ears in London couldn't catch a syllable of what we are saying. Now, my lord, you understand me.'

'I find you very unreasonable. I tell you I am willing and perfectly ready to exert all the power I have in your behalf, and this does not satisfy you.'

'No, it don't. What good will your exertions do if they don't free me from the rope? That is what I want, and nothing else. If you don't keep me from the gallows, I'll send you to the hulks—that's all.'

'Well, but this is monstrous of you, White,' remonstrated his lordship. 'Would you take revenge because of impossibility?'

'There's no impossibility in it,' retorted Hufley.

'I know well enough you are hand and glove with those who can pardon me if they choose. No doubt you'd like to see me swing, for then there only man that's dangerous to you would be out of the way, and if I was fool enough to be satisfied with your promise to do what you could, I should find myself some fine morning dancing on nothing. But I know a thing or two beyond that, and won't trust my neck to such a hazard.'

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 14.

"A Bad Lot Entirely."

Under this heading the St. Catharines Journal shows up in neat style a number of the inconsistencies of the Globe, as follows:—The National Policy is still troubling the Globe. According to the reasoning of that journal ,(1) the manufacturers of Canada control ,the Government ; (2) the manufacturers are making enormous sums at the expense of the people (3;) the National Policy is a delusion and a snare; (4) the manufacturers are being ruined by its working: (5) that prices are advancing and profits growing less ; (6) that it is madness to dream of competing with England and the United States ; (7) that it is disloyal to legislate against English manufacturers ; (8) that the exclusion of American goods will ruin the country and foster the idea of annexation ; (9) that the National Policy is leading us on to independence ; (10) that the Tories are disloyal ; (11) that there is great dissatisfaction in the country ; (12) that there is no dissatisfaction, and the statement to that effect by the New York Herald is a falsehood ; (13) that the country cannot afford to build the Pacific Railway ; (14) that without the Pacific Railway the country cannot be developed ; (15) that there should be rigid economy in the national expenditure ; (16) that there should be prodigality in expending the Ontario surplus for the benefit of Toronto ; (17) that any condition is preferable to our present one under a Tory government and a national policy ; (18) that our condition cannot be improved by any change in the mode of Government ; (19) that the people enjoy the fullest freedom ; (20) that if any man dares to express his feelings on annexation or independence, such a man is worse than a horse thief ; (21) that ruin stares us in the face if we go on as at present ; (22) that the Tory press is venal ; and (23) that the only reliable journal is the Globe. We might go on and add to this pyramid of consistent inconsistencies, but forbear ; we have given enough to show that the Tory party, the Government of the day, the manufacturers, and the people generally, are individually and collectively a very bad lot.

Iron Notes.

A new and very valuable Iron Magnetic mine, judging from the specimen shown us a few days ago, is now being opened up on lot 2, in the 2nd concession of Madoc. A gang of men have been at work for some time getting out ore, and preparations are being made to ship 2,000 tons this winter. It not only promises to be rich but of vast extent. It is owned by Messrs. Pusey, Wood and O'Hara.

A firm in Youngstown, Ohio, have been working for some time past what is known as the Sexsmith Iron mine in the 7th Concession; lot 8, in Madoc, two miles and a half from the line of railway. It proves thus far to be a large deposit of superior magnetic ore, and a considerable quantity is being delivered on the line of railway preparatory to shipment.

School Census.

The following is a summary of the return made by the School census enumerator to the Board of Education :

Number in Foster Ward	.....	169
" Sampson Ward	.....	208
" Ketchenson Ward	.....	197
" Baldwin Ward	.....	279
" Bleecker Ward	.....	265
" Coleman Ward	.....	311
" Murney Ward	.....	453
Total	.....	1882

The total number who have not attended any school during the past year, between the ages of 5 and 16, was 224.

Number between 7 and 12 years who did attended less than four months, 4.

Number between 7 and 12 years who did not attend any school, 19.

School population of the city 1882. Of these 1505 attended the Public Schools, 61 went to Select Schools, 92 to the High School, and 224 did not attend any school.

THE CHICAGO STRIKE.—The strike in the Chicago stock yard is beginning to look serious. Yesterday a number of Union men assaulted the non-Union men at work, and were marched to the police station at the point of the revolver. It is feared that all the strikers will join in the trouble and cause bloodshed.

AN INDEPENDENT OPINION.—The Montreal Star sets the Globe down as a Liberal paper. This has exasperated the Toronto Telegram to express itself in the following complimentary language :—"The Globe is the mere mouthpiece of George Brown. To call the Globe a Liberal organ is to belie history and confound facts. It is not even Reform. It is Grit; pure, unadulterated, three-ply, back-action, dyed-in-the-wool Grit.

Board of Education.

TUESDAY, Jan. 13.

The Board met at the usual hour.

PRESENT—Messrs. W. A. Shepard, (Chairman), Johnson, Jas. Macoun, Peck, A. Divmond, Northcott, Hudson, Van Allan, Wensley, Tennant, Glass, Wills, Newbery and Tracy.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A letter was read from T. B. Bentley, complaining of an insult alleged to have been offered to his daughter by Miss Templeton her teacher.—Referred to Committee on School Management.

Also a memorandum from the High School Inspector, and the report of the census enumerator, which were referred to the same Committee.

The Inspector read his summary of the monthly reports for December, showing an average attendance in the Public Schools of 1032, or 84 per cent. of the total number on the roll. Only four of the teachers sent monthly reports to parents, and he wished the Board to decide whether these reports were to be sent or not. In his opinion they should do so.

Mr. Wills moved that the notice of motion given by Dr. Tracy be discharged.

Mr. Johnson thought this was not in accordance with the courtesy usually extended to members of the Board. It was his intention to move the resolution.

Mr. Wills thought it would be better to discharge the notice, as it would come up at the meeting of the new Board. The question of courtesy did not arise at all, and he did not think the motion could be moved in the absence of Dr. Tracy without the consent of the Board. However, he did not insist on pressing his motion.

Mr. Diamond moved to allow the notice to stand until next meeting.

Mr. Johnson asked Mr. Diamond to withdraw his amendment, as it was desirable to have the rules altered, as was necessary, in order to commence the year aright.

Mr. Peck contended that if the two amendments proposed were carried, the Finance Committee would be virtually abolished, and the School Management Committee would have the whole control in its hands.

Mr. Diamond and Mr. Wills withdrew their resolutions.

Mr. Johnson moved to alter the date of the meeting for organization in each year from the first Tuesday in February to the third Tuesday in January ; to give the Chairman a second or casting vote in case of a tie caused by his own vote ; that it should require seven members instead of three hereafter to call a meeting ; to strike out rule 22 ; to alter the rule so as to pass without reference to the Finance Committee appropriations passed in Committee of the Whole; to empower the School Management Committee to fill all vacancies and recommend the payment of salaries ; and to alter the name of the Finance, Assessment and Salaries Committee by leaving out the word "salaries."

The Board went into Committee on the resolution. Mr. Diamond in the chair.

The proposed amendments were discussed singly.

As to the first Mr. Peck contended that it deprived the High School Trustees of their powers, as they would not be in their places when the Board was organized.

Mr. Johnson said the High School Trustees would be appointed on Monday next, the day before the meeting of the Board. The rule as existing was unworkable, as it required the Committee to report on all matters under their charge one week only after their appointment, whereas the proposed amendment would give them three weeks.

Mr. Wills argued that the intention of the law was that the high school Trustees should be appointed at the first meeting of the new Council, and he suggested that the day be changed to the fourth Tuesday in January, as the third Tuesday might fall before the third Monday, and the Board ought to be complete before being organized.

Mr. Johnson said he was willing to accept the suggestion.

Mr. Peck contended that as the term of office did not commence until the first of February, the Board could not be filled until after that date, as the members elect could not take their seats, hence the time named in the By-laws for organization was fixed upon.

Mr. Diamond suggested the amendment of the rule as to the time at which the Committees should report.

Mr. Peck would have no objection to that.

Mr. Johnson said he saw the force of what Mr. Diamond said, and was willing to accept his suggestion, which would reach the end he had in view.

The first amendment was then dropped. The second was lost. The third was carried, the fourth was discussed at great length and lost ; the sixth was taken up and discussed at length, Messrs. Peck and Wills contending that the question of the payment of salaries should be referred to the Finance Committee. Mr. Johnson argued that, the School Management Committee being best informed from their inquiries as to the qualifications and character of teachers, of their value to the Board, ought to have the nomination of their salaries. Mr. Glass was willing to accept the amendment.

The clause was carried, and the fifth and last clauses were also carried.

Mr. Wills moved that the Committee rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Mr. Johnson moved that the Committee rise and report the amendments passed, to be embodied in a By-law.—Carried.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Mr. Johnson subsequently embodied his resolution in a By-law, which was put through the various stages and passed.

Mr. Diamond moved, seconded by Mr. Johnson, and Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and the same is hereby tendered to W. A. Shepard, Esq., Chairman of this Board, for the able and courteous manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of this Board, as well as for the deep and intelligent interest he has at all times manifested in the cause of public education in the city.—Carried unanimously.

The Chairman briefly thanked the Board for the kindly expressions contained in the resolution. If he had been successful in discharging his duties satisfactorily and efficiently, it was largely owing to the forbearance of the members and the generous aid they gave him. He trusted that the business of the coming year would be characterised by the same harmony and good will which had prevailed during the past.

The Board adjourned sine die, after confirming the minutes.

A man who had $65 stolen from him received a note with $25, saying : I stoled your money. Remove naws at my conshene, and I send some of it back. When reuons naws agin I'll send you sum mors.

Weights and Measures.

The new regulations in regard to weights and measures appears in Saturday's Canada Gazette. The following are among the provisions.

1st. For the first verification and stamping of weights, measures and weighing machines at the place where they are manufactured, the fees may be paid at once, or payment may be postponed, at the option of the manufacturer on certain conditions.

2nd. Articles verified and stamped may be taken for use in trade or may pass from the premises of the manufacturer to the premises of the dealers in such articles, or from the premises of one dealer in such articles to the premises of another, but

3rd. Such articles as are accompanied by a certificate bearing a red stamp, or which are not accompanied by any certificate wherein they are identified, will be subject to reverification and to the payment of fees on the first occasion on which they are found in use for trade purposes by an inspector or inspector's assistant.

4th. When a manufacturer of weights or measures or weighing machines desires to remove any of the products of his manufactory to the premises of any dealer in such articles without submitting them for verification, may do so on the following conditions : They shall bear the name of the maker and a consecutive "shop number," or some other marks by which the articles may be identified. If packed the packages shall bear the shop number or other marks by which the articles may be identified, the name of the manufacturer, and the word "uninspected." The manufacturer shall notify the Inspector of the Division from which the uninspected articles are sent of such removing on a form which will be supplied by the Department. Nothing in the supplementary regulations in any of the previous regulations, is to be construed as preventing the importation, manufacture or the removal of and setting up, before they are verified; of dormant scales or weigh bridges of any description coming within the requirements of the law but which cannot be used nor properly verified until they are placed on a fixed foundation but the use of such weighing machines for trade purposes is illegal until they have been verified and stamped.

FLOODS IN ST. KITTS.

A SAD SUNDAY FOR THE MOTHER OF THE ANTILLES.

TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

Houses, Trees, Crops and Sugar Plantations Destroyed.

MANY PEOPLE DESTITUTE AND CRYING FOR HELP.

[SPECIAL BY TELEGRAPH TO THE MAIL.]

HERALD OFFICE,
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

News has just arrived of terrible floods on the Island of St. Kitts, by which two hundred lives have been lost, property to the extent of $250,000 destroyed, and the whole Island laid waste. The land sweeps up from the shore slowly at first through a rich, fertile and cultivated soil, and then mounts abruptly towards the central mass, the rugged peak whereof is known by the name of Mount Misery. The elevation of this summit is nerely 4,000 feet, and it overhangs the brokenwalls of an old crater, the last remnant of an inner cone that has been washed away. The mountain is clothed with pasture and savannahs, and all its skirts, in the rich valley of BasseTerre, is the arable portion of the Island, which is mainly devoted to sugar.

The island itself is known as the "Mother of the Antilles," is 23 miles long, 5 miles broad, and covers an area of 67 square miles. The flood occurred on Sunday last. The temperature had been unusually high for the time of the year. The winds were blowing from the south at early morning. Towards noon they changed to the north-east, and the temperature fell suddenly. The streams on the mountain side rapidly became torrents; converging in a gulch at the foot of Mount Misery, they rose over their banks and poured down on the arable land in a resistless stream. The inhabitants were at once alive to the danger. There was a general stampede towards the coast, the confusion was terrible, blacks and whites, natives and English, all made for the nearest point of safety. The torrent rolled on into the town of BasseTerre, among the newly-built houses and public edifices, carrying with it roofs, trees, timbers and branches of trees. The land slips added to the terrors of the scene.

Sugar fields were levelled to the ground, or torn up in masses. Deep gullies were washed into the roads, sugar houses, and dwelling places were borne bodily away, and the waters rushed headlong to the sea with their freight of drowned cattle and human beings. The scene was pitiful. The whole population of the Island does not exceed 25,000, and of these 200 perished, and many of the rest were homeless. The people huddled together on the roofs, fell with terror. The authorities went immediately to work to relieve the distress, but the task was too great for them. Large quantities of provisions, and all the sugar ready for shipment had been swept away. Earnest appeals have been made for help.

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

TUESDAY, Jan. 13.

Amongst the petitions presented today were several from High School Boards, asking for an increase in the amount of the Legislative grant for High School purposes.

Mr. Calvin obtained the first reading of a Bill to amend the Municipal Act, and Mr. J. M. Gibson of one to amend the Division Court Act. The latter, it may be remarked, has reference only to the city of Hamilton, being intended to authorize the holding of the Courts for both divisions of that city in the Court House. which can at present be used only for the one in which it is situated.

The only Government motions were one for the appointment of a Library Committee, and one for a vote of credit pending the bringing down of the ordinary estimates for the year.

In answer to Mr. Creighton the Attorney-General stating that the question of introducing, during the present session, a measure relating to the constitution of County Councils was under consideration.

On motion of Mr. Lauder a return was ordered of all Commissions of Enquiry issued by the Government since 1867.

On motion of Mr. Dereche the House ordered the usual general election return showing the population of each constituency, the number of voters, and the number polled for each candidate. On motion of Mr. Metcalf a return was ordered of the students in attendance at University College, from 1875 to 1879 inclusive, with a statement of the College finances.

The Reports of the Inspector of Division Courts and of the Inspector of Prisons and Asslyums were brought down, after which the House adjourned.

Jay Gould.

The greatest financial magnate in America, if not in the world to-day, is Jay Gould, of New York. Although still a young man he is a self made man. The following short sketch of his life is from the New York Sun :—

Mr. Gould comes from a Puritan stock that emigrated into the wilderness of Delaware County, in this state, in the year 1789. He was born upon the farm (where his father was) in the town of Roxbury in the year 1835. Upon this farm he remained until he was 16 years old, and during that period he went to a district school. With the aid of his devoted sisters he procured his education, and at the age of 18 compiled a history of Delaware County that was so complete that no historian has since attempted to improve upon it.

Previous to his arriving at his majority, he had, by actual survey, published maps of Delaware, Ulster, and Albany Counties in this State, and of several counties in the State of Ohio.

From these enterprises, organized and carried out by this young farmer's son, he had accumulated a few thousand dollars. Col. Zadock Pratt, at that time the great tanner of the day, saw in young Gould the elements of a great man, and with him conducted the tanning business successfully for several years. As Mr. Gould developed in experience, he saw greater fields of usefulness for him, and, about the year 1860, he went to New York, comparatively a stranger, and without anything pertaining to fortune.

This gentleman, a stranger, without any great influential power, either pecuniary, social or political, without a commercial or financial education, but an organizer, and, to a great extent, the executor of his own plans, has developed, at this early age of forty-five years, the greatest man of his day.

To his credit, from boyhood he has abstained from tobacco, wines and liquors.

He is a kind-hearted gentleman, diffident in manners from childhood, but warm and devoted to his friends, and to them he is only known as such.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

City and Vicinity.

SCHOOL ELECTION.—The nomination of candidates for the position of Public School Trustee in Coleman Ward will take place to-morrow at noon.

SKATING.—The surface of the Bay was alive yesterday afternoon with skaters, who found good ice and plenty of scope for the exercise of their favorite amusement.

SPECIAL SESSION.—A special session of the extra-judicial High Court of Appeal will be held in the City Hall this evening at eight o'clock to hear the libel case of Gay the master Poet vs. the Guelph Mercury.

CELLULOID LINEN.—This new article, made up in cuffs and collars, are for sale at Fish's. They can be worn for an indefinite time, all the washing they require being simply to wipe them off with a sponge. Call and look at them.

WHEAT.—Mr. Cockburn, of Campbellford, is sending here for shipment in the spring 10,000 bushels of choice fall wheat. The grain arrives at the rate of one car load of 500 bushels per day, and is being stored in Campbell's elevator.

COUNTERFEITS.—The Kingston Whig says:—Some of the counterfeit Dominion Bank bills have reached the city, and the imitation of the genuine bill is so good that it can scarcely be detected. It is a little blurred—the best ground for identification.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. W. Pringle, general agent for Sprague's Georgia Minstrels, was in town to-day arranging for the appearance of the company which he represents. They will give a performance in the Opera House on the night of Wednesday, the 21st inst.

FREE LECTURE.—Prof. John Macoun, M. A., F. L. S., of Albert College, will deliver the opening lecture of the Hilary term in the College Chapel to-night, at 7 o'clock. Subject: "The Peaks, Parks and Plains of the Great North-West." Admission free. The public are invited.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Correspondents will bear in mind that unless their names accompanies their letters, no notice can be taken of them. The name need not necessarily be published, but is a guarantee to the Editor of good faith and that the statements contained in the letter are vouched for.

FOR KINGSTON.—Capt. Cuthbert and Mr. Ross Cumming took the late express last night for Kingston, whither they went to purchase canvas for the large sloop lately described by us, for a new yawl about 30 feet keel and 10 feet beam, which Cuthbert has built for Messrs. Murray and Duggan, of Toronto, also a new and larger suit for the Surprise.

PERSONAL.—Mr. George H. Pope, who is engaged in superintending Messrs. Lingham's cattle shipments from Boston for England, arrived here on Saturday night and left to-day on his return to "the hub." Mr. Pope reports business very brisk, and states that his employers are now shipping from New York as well as from Boston, the anchor line steamers carrying their consignments from the former port.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.—We have received, but regret that we cannot find space for, a lengthy and interesting account of a surprise party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Reed, in Thurlow on the 7th inst. The event was taken part in by the sons and daughters of the aged couple, with their wives and husbands and children, to the number of forty-eight in all. A number of presents were made to the parents, and an address was read to them by Mrs. Barlow, their youngest daughter. This notable family reunion was of a most pleasant character, and was heartily enjoyed by all who took part in the day's proceedings.

TO BE REBUILT.—We are glad to learn that Messrs. Wood & Ross are making preparation to rebuild the grain warehouse lately destroyed by fire at the Madoc Station of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway. The new building is to be larger than the old one, being 36x75 feet, with 25 feet posts. It is to have a capacity of 30,000 bushels, and the work of building will be gone on with at once.

FIRST FRUITS.—One of the first fruits of the Hon. Mr. Flint's last letter on the establishment of iron smelting works in Belleville, a summary of which appeared in the Mail of yesterday, was the appearance here this morning of a gentleman engaged in the manufacture of glass bottles. He proposes to erect a factory here, provided smelting works are put up, and to use the slag for the manufacture of the glass. It is to be hoped that ere long steps will be taken to establish smelting furnaces here, whether for the manufacture of iron or of Bessemer steel, or both.

THE JOHN STREET CHURCH.—At the meeting of the Toronto Presbytery in Knox Church in that city on the 13th, the Clerk read documents from the Kingston Presbytery respecting the call from the John-Street Church, Belleville, to Rev D. Mitchell, of the Central Presbyterian Church, Toronto. The congregation guaranteed a stipend of $1,500 per annum, and were unanimous and eager in their desire to secure Mr. Mitchell. The call was left over till next meeting, the Central Church to be summoned in the meantime to appear before the Presbytery for their own interest on that occasion. Rev. Mr. Milligan will cite the congregation to this effect next Sunday morning.

ICE BOATING.—This fine and exhilarating winter sport is rapidly coming into favor in this part of the country. At Trenton the best fleet in Canada is now owned, consisting of seven boats, nearly all of which possess wonderful speed, whilst in Belleville there are as yet but two ice boats. One of the Trenton craft is credited with having run 12 miles in 11 minutes, and it is well attested that a few days ago the run of three miles across the bay in was made 4 minutes by a Trenton boat which was carrying a doctor on a visit to a patient. The sport has been enjoyed under exceptionally favorable circumstances this season, the snow having gone and left the ice clear and smooth. A large crack in the ice near Baker's Island has hitherto prevented any of the Trenton fleet from visiting Belleville, but this obstruction will shortly be overcome, and then it can be seen what our neighbors have done in the way of ice sailing.

THE MADOC HOUSE.—Madoc village has long needed a roomy, comfortable hotel, and particularly since the influex of strangers into the northern townships has that want been felt. Mr. Simmons, who has always kept a good hotel, but has been cramped for room, has just completed extensive additions and improvements to his hotel, by which it has been made one of the most convenient and comfortable public houses in the back country. The addition consists of a brick building 33 feet front, the same depth of the old building, and three stories in height. The lower flat is divided into a large Commercial room, an office for Capt. Mitchell, and a billiard room. In the second story of this new part there are two parlors and a sitting room, all very finely furnished, and three good sized bed rooms, also well furnished. In the third story there are a parlor and nine bed rooms, completed and furnished as comfortably as could be desired. The other parts of the old building—dining room, hall, reading room, as well as the sitting and bed rooms, have all been repainted and thoroughly renovated, and made to look as good as new. An office is being fitted up which will contain the latest improvements. With this addition to the old building, accommodation is now had for over thirty gents, and judging from the large number of strangers constantly coming and going, there will not be any too much room. Mr. Simmons sets a good table, and with the additional comforts of a good bed and quiet room, he will no doubt do a large business.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A Dublin correspondent says that the presence in London of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Chief Secretary for Ireland, will afford the Government a seasonable opportunity for consulting on the present condition of the country. It is hoped the result will be the adoption of such measures as will effectually preserve the peace now very seriously threatened. The danger is at present limited to the west, where there is constant appearance of a sanguinary conflict.

Extensive strikes of cotton operatives at Bolton, Burnley and Ashton-under-Lyne, are imminent, in consequence of the masters refusing to grant an increase of 10 per cent.

ROME, Jan. 14.—The Vatican's organ, in a long leading article, advocates home rule for Ireland.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 14.—Plucker & Co.'s furniture manufactory, and the storage-house of Buckley's spoke works were burned. Plucker's loss is $40,000.

PETERSBURG, Va., Jan. 14.—A large meeting of Catholic Irish citizens was held last night, and appointed a Committee to arrange for a mass meeting to aid the Irish sufferers.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan.—In the House to-day, the Committee on elections reported that Hale, of Ellsworth, and Butler, of Vassalboro, are to be unseated and Fusion members to take their places, also a Fusion member from Lewiston to be admitted.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14.—The arguments in the Hayden case began this morning. Judge Harrison opened for the State.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.—The Journal's special from Skowhegan says that yesterday at the annual meeting of the First National Bank for the choice of directors, Wm. Philbrick, its first cashier and since a leading director, was denied re-election by the stockholders. Philbrick is an insurance commissioner, and planned the movement by which more than 500 Republicans were disfranchised and a Republican candidate for representative, who received more than 250 of a majority, was defeated.

The Stuyvesant bank failed ten years ago. The Assignee now announces that he will pay all depositors a dividend of 3 cents on the dollar.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 14.—A. Perry Peck, Northampton, a trial Justice for 15 years, who held many offices of trust and was generally respected, left town because of $7,000 shortage in trust funds held for his brother-in-law. The money is said to have gone to help relatives in distress. Efforts are being made to induce Peck to return. It is feared he is insane.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14. — Telegraphic communication with Portland, which was interrupted for a week, has been restored. Despatches state that on the 9th inst., middle Portland was visited by the severest storm known since the settlement of the country. A little rain accompanied the gale. Damage to property in the city $75,000. While the gale was at its height, Bremen Hall, a large two story wooden building, was prostrated and four men caught under the ruin. Harry P. Heinrich was instantly killed.

In East Portland the new Catholic church is a complete wreck and a number of new buildings were blown down.

Reports from the interior give accounts of heavy damage and business will be stagnated for some time. Trains will be delayed for several days. The lines between here and Dalles are buried under fallen timber so deep that new lines will have to be constructed.

At Umatilla the gale attained for a short time a velocity of 80 miles per hour. A number of houses were blown down, but so far as known with little loss of life. Great numbers of cattle are reported killed from falling barns and trees. Two men, Mason and Kaudle, were frozen to death on Saturday near Young Station on the Northern Pacific Railway.

At Tocenter, Washington territory, a tree was blown against a school house, demolishing it. Twenty children were in the building; a son and daughter of John W. Bartlett were instantly killed, and another daughter dangerously injured.

Several houses at Garrison were prostrated, but no lives lost.

Much damage was done at Salem, a portion of the roof of the State House was torn off.

The body of Jacob Swanger, aged 60, was found horribly mutilated in his cabin, Washington county, on Friday morning, evidently murdered with an axe for money.

ST. THOMAS, Jan 14.—News has just arrived of terrible floods on Sunday on the island of St. Kitts. 200 lives were lost and property to the extent of $250,000 destroyed. The whole island was wasted. Streams on the mountain side rapidly became torrents, and converging into a gulch at the foot of Mount Misery, there poured down upon the arable land in resistless streams. There was a general stampede towards the coast. The torrent rolled on into the town of Basse Terre among newly built houses and public edifices. The waters rushed headlong to the sea with drowned cattle and struggling human beings. The whole population of the island does not exceed 25,000. The people huddled together on the roofs wild with terror. The authorities went immediately to work to relieve the distress. Large quantities of provisions and all the sugar ready for shipment had been swept away. Earnest appeals are made for help.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The Committee of the Bergen County board of free holders yesterday reported $50,000 over issued county bonds hypothecated by Bogert, the defaulting Treasurer of the produce exchange and the former County Collector are genuine.

The Tribune says that several stock holders of the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute, disapprove of the recent compromise of the County's suit against Tilden and other Treasurers. The defendants paid $400,000 to the stock holders' claim, and a million could have been easily collected. It is proposed to upset the settlement and to recover the balance of $600,000.

Mrs. J. J. Astor sent out recently 100 homeless children to homes in the west and south at an expense of $1,500.

The Louisana lottery tickets recently seized by the police were opened yesterday. They do not contain the $100,000 prize number.

A coal train on the Erie road ran into an oil train during a blinding snow storm at Southfield yesterday. 18,000 gallons of oil were burned, setting the woods on fire.

The wife of ex-collector Arthur died on Monday night.

James Williams, one of a gang of three arrested for passing forged cheques on the Phoenix National Bank, created a sensation in court yesterday by turning State's evidence.

The creditors of J. Lloyd Haigh, the forger, met yesterday, representing claims aggregating $600,000. Haigh proposed to have his business carried on by trustees, and thus pay all his indebtedness.

A verdict of $15,000 was rendered yesterday against the Third Avenue horse RR., in favor of William H. Schultz, whose son was badly injured by being thrown from a car by a conductor.

Jno. C. Freund, editor and proprietor of the Musical and Dramatic Times and the Music Trade Review, disappeared on Saturday. It is believed he has gone to Canada, about $60,000 indebtedness.

WEATHER REPORTS.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Belleville, Jany. 14 1880.

The grain market during the past week has been quiet with small receipts, caused by the state of the roads. The only change to note is the fall in the price of rye of 5c per bushel, caused by the fall in foreign markets. Oats are wanted for home consumption at 40c. With heavy receipts the price would drop.

Dressed hogs are not plentiful, they find ready sale at $5 50 to $6 00 per 100 lbs.

Dressed beef is plentiful and ruled if anything lower on account of the warm weather, as housekeepers do not care to purchase beef by the quarter in such weather.

Butter is scarce and sold yesterday up to 25c per lb.

A buyer arrived this morning in search of eight or ten car loads of choice apples.

FALL WHEAT—$1.25 to $1.30.
SPRING WHEAT—$1.20 to $1.30
BARLEY—No. 1, 60c; No. 2, 50c.
RYE—70c to 75c.
OATS—35c. to 40c.
PEAS—65c. to 70c.
BUCKWHEAT—50c.
Clover seed—$4.50 to $5.00.
MUTTON—4c to 5c per pound.
HAMS—9c. to 11c.
DRESSED HOGS—$5.50 to $6.00.
DRESSED BEEF—$3 00 to $4.00.
BUTTER—Roll, 18 to 20c.
BUTTER—Tub, nominally 16c to 17c.
EGGS—15c. to 20c. per dozen.
HIDES—$8 00 to $8 50
SHEEPSKINS—$1.40 to $1.50.
WOOL—25c per lb.
LARD—8c to 10c.

TALLOW—Rendered, 6c to 6½c.
CABBAGE—40c per doz.
POTATOES—70c to 75c per bag.
APPLES—45c to 75c per bag.
FLOUR—Wholesale, $6.00 per bbl.
FLOUR—Retail, $6.50 per bbl.
HAY—$6.50 to $7.00 per ton.
CHICKENS—20c to 30c per pair.
DUCKS—30 to 50c per pair.
GEESE—35 to 40c.
TURKEYS—50c to $1.00.

Cheese Stock.

Estimates of the cheese stock held on 1st of January, 1880, are as follows: In New York City, 194,758 boxes; in New York State, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Ohio, 154,000. (As to the last figures some in the trade express doubts). In Liverpool 63,510, and in London 70,300 boxes. The stocks, as stated on January 1st, 1879, were as follows: New York City, 396,467; Liverpool, 180,000; London, 70,000 boxes. As will be seen by the above statement, the cheese stock is much less this year than last, so we will have good prices for the next few months, and commence the next season under very favorable circumstances. If the producers of cheese will only exercise a little judgment and make nothing but fine goods, they will reap a good reward during the year 1880.—American Dairyman.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT
Proprietors.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

Outlawry.

HUNTING MURDERERS IN THE WILDS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Already particulars have appeared of the murder of Agent Ussher, at Cache Creek, B. C., the escape of the murderers, and their subsequent butchery of a settler named Kelly, at Stump Lake. Preparations were promptly made by the authorities for the pursuit of the outlaws, and on the 13th ult. the steamer Manor sailed from Victoria with volunteers, arms, and ammunition to be used in the capture of the three desperadoes. The steamer arrived safely at New Westminster on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Here Superintendent Dodd heard that news had been received from Kamloops, and transmitted to the Hon. Attorney General, Victoria; via Matsqui, to the effect that it was unnecessary to proceed further, as the murderers had surrendered.

Instructions were then sent back to have a preliminary trial of the desperadoes take place at Kamloops, after which to forward them under strong guard to New Westminster for safe keeping until the Assizes.

When the murders became known settlers in the district in which it occured were roused into action for the capture of the perpetrators. Bands were soon formed and placed on the track of the outlaws. They being half-breeds, it was at first feared that the Indians might so far sympathize with them as to assist them in their escape, if not to fight for and with them. This proved to be a groundless apprehension for the Indians showed that they were willing to assist in the capture of the murderers, and did so assist. The desperadoes were surrounded in an old log building near Douglas Lake, where they defended themselves for three days against those sent to effect their capture. Several times propositions were made back and forth for the surrender. An Indian would take a note and go up to the building, and pass it through the loop holes to the bandits, who would write an answer. One proposition was to the effect that if the besieging force would let them and their horses out, with five hundred yards start, they would ride towards Kamloops, and not fire upon their pursuers, their own anxiety being to get to Kamloops and kill Mara.

Later on Clapperton wrote them if they would lay down their arms they would be protected; if not, the building would be fired and burned over them. Their note in reply was: "Burn it and be damned."

Several attempts were made to fire the building, and at length seeing the uselessness of the struggle, or becoming faint-hearted, they threw out a signal of surrender, and agreed to lay down their arms to J. T. Edwards if he would agree to take them into Kamloops unshackled.

This was agreed to, when they came out one by one and gave up their arms, when, greatly to their disgust and a great deal of profanity, the special constables seized and firmly bound them, and started them for Kamloops, where they arrived on Sunday evening.

The following details of the death of Ussher, and other particulars concerning the outlaws, are from the New Westminster Guardian:—"They (the constables) were armed with revolvers and mounted on horseback, as it was supposed the men to be arrested were twenty miles from Kamloops. On the way they met a man of the name of Shumway, whom they asked to accompany as a guide, he being familiar with the locality. Shumway demurred, but at last consented on consideration of his being allowed to call at Mr. McDonald's, where he knew he could borrow a rifle, as he was wholly unarmed. Unfortunately the party met the McLeans and Hare before reaching McDonald's house, quite unexpectedly. The outlaws immediately threw down their hats and coats on a signal from the elder McLean, and took their positions behind trees whence they fired upon the approaching constables. Ussher received a shot in the head, which appeared to have dazed him, as he dismounted and ran forward to grapple with young Hare, who was armed with a knife and pistol, leaving his revolver in the holster of the horse. He is said to have seized Hare, when a struggle ensued; when Ussher and Hare fell, Ussher was underneath. The youngest McLean then approached, and Ussher cried out, "don't kill me!" but the wretch fired two shots at Ussher's head, both taking effect, and, of course, killing him instantly. It is supposed that Hare must have disfigured Ussher with his knife, as the face of the dead man was cut and slashed, the nose being entirely removed. Constable McLeod received two shots, one of them passing through both cheeks and the other striking him in the knee. Palmer and McLeod fired several shots from their revolvers, one of Palmer's shots striking Allan McLean in the side; they then rode off; a number of men went out the following day and brought in the body of Ussher, which was stripped. It appears that one of the McLeans was married to the daughter of the Chief of the Nicola Indians quite recently, and this gave rise to the story that the McLeans had been joined by the Nicola Indians. But when a strong body of whites went out a few days subsequently, accompanied by some Kamloops Indians, the Nicola Indians joined them, and they were thus enabled to surround the murderers in their lair. We have no particulars of the capture of the McLeans and Hare, but we learn that they wounded one white man, Stevenson, and two Indians, before they surrendered. The murder of poor Kelly, which occurred soon after that of Ussher, was a most cold-blooded atrocity. He was employed by Pete Fraser, and was out, as usual, tending his flock of sheep, when he was overtaken by the McLeans and Hare. He was a quiet, inoffensive man, and wholly unarmed. It is said there was some grudge against him for something that he had said or done to one of the McLeans. The murderers afterwards called at Palmer's house, but the latter was luckily from home. Allan McLean told Mrs. Palmer that he had an account to settle with her husband; they took tea, sugar, and other articles. They then called at several other dwellings, taking all the firearms and ammunition they could find, and carrying off groceries and other articles to their place of concealment.

La Chute de Montmorency!

No one visits the quaint old City of Quebec with its hilly slopes and many churches, without riding to the Fall of Montmorency. It is a jolly ride, through old St John's gate, along well wooded roads, through French villages, by the side of stacks of lumber piled up along the river, to go to the falls. The quaint hotel which ends the route, where anxious boy guides wait for jobs; the walk inside the fence with the music of the water plunging over the cataract, and the atomized spray which now begins to moisten you, as you near the steps whence you view the deep plunging torrent, make the excursion pleasant, and pays for the cost. A family drove over the bridge their wagon was capsized, and people say that not a particle of wagon, horses or men were ever found in the basin below. Montmorency carries before it the offal of miles of river front and casts it away forever, and so do Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills carry off the obstructions from the human system and leave it clean.

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold. They are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

Medford, Mass., Sept. 18, 1879.

Mr. Giles—Dear Sir: I have used your Iodide Ammonia Liniment and find it the best remedy I ever used. For a sprain or callous there is nothing equal to it. My wife sprained her ankle last Saturday evening; I used the Liniment as per directions; the second application was a perfect cure. Some of my friends started last night for Johnson Co., Kentucky; they have taken several bottles with them. I have used it on my horses and it works like a charm. I am going to Kentucky next month—farming. If you have any works treating of horses and other animals, please send me two or three copies, and oblige, Yours respectfully,

Chas. W. Forbush.

Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Trial size 25 cents.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

THE CANADA CENTRAL RAILWAY Company will make application to the Parliament of the Dominion at its next session for an Act extending the time for completing the Railway authorized by its Charter and Amending Acts, and empowering it to construct a railway Bridge over the river St. Mary's, at or near the Sault Ste Marie, and a branch Railway from the existing line to Madoc or Tweed, in the County of Hastings.

WILLIAM CASSILS,
President.

CHANCERY SALE

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness, or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

GENERAL DEBILITY

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Ravenna, Mercer Co., Missouri, May, 1879.

The Fellows Medical Manufacturing, Co.

Gents.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine; I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

LAME BACK WEAK BACK.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is every where recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, CORNS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

'This comes of your mad wickedness, White,' he at length broke out. 'Had you been content to remain honest and industrious you might have been at this moment in a safe and respectable position. But you would follow the bent of your wicked inclinations, and the consequence is that you have drawn ruin on both yourself and me.'

'It's not a bit o' use to preach,' said White, in a dogged and sullen tone. 'What's done can't be undone, and it don't fit you very well either to come the parson. Who was it that first showed me the example of dishonesty? Wasn't it yourself? And all the difference between us is, that I have been found out and you haven't. Haven't you robbed as well as me? Haven't you been living on robbery for the last six years and a-half? Haven't your horses and carriages, and mansions, and the broad acres that bring in your thousands and thousands every year, got by robbery? I have done nothing like that. Bless your soul, all that I have done is but a mite to that, and yet you lecture me like a curate about my dishonesty and wickedness.'

This was what in slang phrase is termed, 'giving it him hot.' The pride of Lord Eaglehead could ill stand being addressed in such language—its poignancy being, of course, caused by the fact that it was pointed and barbed with truth. White's scornful and tempting sentences did constitute a pretty summary of his Lordship's conduct, described certainly with a plainness of language which put it the ugliest and most disagreeable light, but with a correctness not to be denied.

Lord Eaglehead was stricken dumb, and just because he could not deny it he was more chafed and angry. What a humiliation for a man of his rank to be addressed in such language by a felon who stood within the very shadow of the gallows—compelled to bear it in silence, and forbidden by his guilty conscience to say that it was false. Verily, his sin was now threatening to find him out.

He bit his lip till the teeth nearly entered the flesh, and kept pacing to and fro, his whole frame shaken by the contending feelings of rage and fear. At length he gulped down his rising choler, and strove to speak calmly.

'You misrepresent that matter, White,' he said. 'I was guilty of no robbery. Prudence dictated the necessity of suppressing a certain fact. I did suppress it, and reaped the benefit—that's all.'

'Oh, that's all, is it?' returned White, with a sneer. 'Taint likely, though the law will say that's all. But mayhap you have forgotten that there was more than one fact suppressed. You didn't only suppress the toll marriage, but you suppressed the child, and the law calls the suppression of the fact a hanging or a hulking matter, as the case may be.'

'You were as deep in that business as I,' said his lordship, turning pale and ghastly.

'Not quite,' coolly rejoined Huffey, 'You were the principal—and I was but your instrument.'

'Still the law holds you equally criminal and for your own sake you dare not make any revelation.'

'For my own sake!' burst out White, vehemently. 'What difference can it make to me? I am as badly placed as is possible. Bless you, they can't hang a man twice.'

'No more will they believe such a tale told by a convicted criminal,' cried his lordship goaded to frenzy by his harassing position. 'You have no proof to substantiate it, and it will be looked upon as the wicked invention of a desperate and abandoned man. Pooh! I have been too easily frightened.'

'You know better than that,' said White with pointed significance. 'But if you think so we can try it. Farewell, my lord, in two days the thing will be blown over all London.'

'I was too hasty, White,' said his lordship, cooling down rapidly. 'But you drive me into a corner, and take unfair advantage. I have told you that I will do my very utmost in your behalf.'

'And that utmost will obtain what I want,' added White. 'Let them send me back to the hulks if they will—I care little for that, for I have still a chance—but if they hang me I have none.'

'Then, if I succeed in saving you from the scaffold—even though you should be sent to the hulks—you engage to keep silent?' exclaimed the other.

'Of course I do. Bless you, my lord, I haven't the smallest wish to injure you. It's only to save myself that I play this card. And I'll engage for more than that—I promise to play it only once and never again. If you manage to get me sent back to the hulks, of course the first chance I have I'll bolt again. If I am taken after that I'm in for hanging again, but I'll not be not apply to you that time. I'll take my bad luck like any plucky cove of them all, and die without saying a word to hurt you. Mayhap you don't think that promise is worth much, but you might know by this time, my lord, that what I say I stick to, be it good or evil.'

'Then you shall escape the scaffold this time,' cried the other, in the tone of one who had taken a sudden resolution. 'I will make a personal request, which the Government cannot refuse.'

'Then it's all right,' cried Huffy, his illfavored countenance assuming a cheerful expression. 'I knew you would do it if you set yourself to it, and that's why I put on the screw. And now that the matter is settled, may I make so bold as ask how her ladyship is?'

'Her ladyship's health is quite good. But it would grieve her much if she came to know the career you have run. And upon my soul, White, I am amazed at you. A fellow with your talents ought to have done very differently.'

'Did my lady ever get to suspect any more about the child?' asked White, paying no heed to his lordship's observation.

'No; she was told that it died.'

'Yes, I know that; but she didn't seem as if she was content to believe it. Leastways, she took on most awful about allowing it to be taken away. And then she insisted on seeing the woman who nursed it, and the grave where it was buried. To tell you the truth, my lord, it was as much on her ladyship's account that I left the hall as anything else. I couldn't bear to see her grief; and when she made such piteous appeals to me to tell her where I took the infant I couldn't stand it. So I thought it best to be off.'

'It's a subject never mentioned between us now,' said his lordship. 'Till the birth of the next child she never ceased to importune me, but after that the boy she had seemed to make up for the boy she had lost, and now she never alludes to the painful subject. But tell me, White—for I never could force myself to ask you before—what did you do with the child?'

'I took it among the hills, and left it there,' was the answer.

'You took it among the hills and—left it!' said his lordship slowly. 'Did you leave it—alive?'

'Alive! Yes; and gave the fifty pounds to the parties as took charge of it.'

'Did they know—did they suspect anything?' asked Lord Eagleheart with feverish eagerness.

'Nothing,' was the answer.

'And have you seen them since?'

'Never.'

'Nor the child?'

'Nor the child. He may be dead for anything I know.'

His Lordship heaved a long sigh, but whether of relief or regret it would be difficult to say. He asked nothing further, but stood in silent abstraction by the wall till the Jailor came to let him out.

Then he took leave of White, assuring him that he would see him again soon, and a minute or so thereafter he stood on the outside of the gloomy walls of Newgate.

CHAPTER IX.

JIM M'KOUL DOES A CLEVER STROKE OF BUSINESS.

'My dear Eagleheart, it is impossible.'

These words were spoken in an official chamber in Westminster, in which sat an elderly and a younger gentleman alone. It was the elderly gentleman who uttered the words and repeated them.

'My dear Eagleheart, it is impossible.'

'Nonsense, Sidmouth,' replied the other. 'Nothing of this kind is impossible with a Home Secretary. You have but to advise His Majesty to clemency and the thing is done.'

'True: and therefore the greater responsibility attaches to the giver of the advice. This man, Huffey White, whose pardon you ask, is one of the greatest criminals in England. The safety of the country absolutely required that he should take its course. Were he to be pardoned, the most disastisfaction would be justly produced. In fact, as I have already said, the thing is impossible.'

'In other words you have resolved to refuse my request, said his lordship, in a cold tone, and with clouded brow.

'Nay, nay, you are the last man to whom I should think of refusing anything. Were it a matter personal to yourself I should grant it, however difficult: but this man has positively no claim on you at all. The circumstance that he was your valet nine years ago is no reason why he should ask you to interfere in his behalf. It is extremely kind and good-natured of you, no doubt, to take such interest in the fellow, but your duty to the community is far greater than any feeling this man ought to over-ride. He is thoroughly undeserving, I assure you, for a criminal more dangerous and incorrigible is not known to the police.'

'I do not ask you to set him free,' rejoined his lordship. 'I only request that he will not be executed, but returned to the hulks. That is surely no great exercise of clemency.

'Far greater than you imagine, my lord. Had escape from the hulks been the only offence with which he is now charged the difficulty would have been less, but he is a principal in this audacious bank robbery, the magnitude of which has thrown all bank directors and shareholders into a panic. Conviction for that offence alone is death, so that he has incurred the penalty in a double sense. No, my lord, positively we must let the subject drop, for the law must take its course.'

'Very well, my lord,' said Eagleheart, rising with an air of lofty displeasure. 'This is the first boon I have asked of the Government, and it will be the last. From henceforth the Opposition shall have my determined support.'

'God bless me, Eagleheart, you don't mean that!' cried the Home Secretary, in amazement.

'Most assuredly I do.'

'For the sake of this worthless wretch you would estrange yourself from our party?'

'Last night I promised White that he should not be hanged. I never doubted that my influence would be sufficient to enable me to make the promise good. It mortifies me to find the contrary, and since my connection is held in such small esteem my succession can be a matter of no great moment. Good morning, my lord.'

'Oh, stay; this won't do, you know. If you are resolved to make this the consequence of refusal, we must devise some means to oblige you. We could not afford to lose the influence and support of Lord Eaglehead still less could we afford to incur his opposition.'

His lordship bowed and maintained an appearance of coldest gravity, though secretly his satisfaction was extreme. He was quite aware that an extraordinary thing must appear for him to set such importance on the pardon of White, but as he could not possibly indicate the paramount reason he had for gaining his point, he left the Secretary to wonder as he might in the matter.

'Now my lord, it is but fair you should assist me out of the dilemma,' cried Sidmouth, with a forced laugh. 'The Bank people are urging the police, with frantic eagerness, to recover the money for them, and if we quash proceedings by returning White to the hulks they will raise a storm about it which we could not get over. As the price of White's life, the cash must be restored. It is known to be in the possession of M'Koul, who must be got to deliver it up. If this is done, the difficulty will be smoothed away.'

'I will see White again and tell him so,' returned his lordship, and after a little more conversation, the conference was broken up. * * * * *

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 15.

The West Riding.

An adjourned meeting of the Reform Association for West Hastings was held yesterday afternoon, at which Mr. E. G. Sills, who had had the matter of the proffered candidacy for the Ontario Legislature "under consideration," announced that he had decided not to undertake the hopeless task of defeating Mr. Robertson. The nomination was thereupon tendered to Mr. J. J. B. Flint, and that gentleman reserved his decision until this afternoon.

The Trent Valley Canal.

This scheme appears to meet with much favor in Montreal, judging from the following remarks of Alderman Nelson, who was one of the deputation to Ottawa on the subject, in his report to the City Council of Montreal on the 12th inst. He said that they found Mr. Scott, the first engineer, advised what had previously been told them, and said $3,000,000 would be ample to carry it through, while he thought it might be done for two and a half millions. It was proposed to make the locks 33 feet wide, and that would allow barges carrying 15,000 or 20,000 bushels of grain to pass through, and as grain had at present to be transhipped at Kingston, the one transhipment would be sufficient, as the only one necessary with the canal would be at Georgian Bay. On the Erie canal, the locks were only 10 feet in breadth, but they were 6½ feet deep, while in the Trent Valley they would only be 5 feet deep, the extra breadth giving them the space. The course of the canal would make the journey, as before stated, 400 miles shorter to Montreal, and it was in the interest of the country generally that the canal should be built at a cost not to exceed $5,000,000. They allude to the Ottawa Valley canal, but the cost would be very much more, five times as much. The Trent Valley canal would serve them for ten years, although they would require both as the North-West developed. The Trent Valley would be very much exposed to the States if ever there should be a war with them, but he did not think there was the slightest need to fear that these two great countries ever would be at war.

A HEAVY VERDICT.—In the case of McLaren v. the Canada Central Railway, which has been going on for some days past in the Assize Court in Toronto, a verdict for the plaintiff was returned awarding $100,000 damages. The defendants have intimated their intention of appealing.

MILITARY.—It is once more rumored that recruiting for the British army will be shortly commenced in Canada. It is also reported—in this case, too, not for the first time—that Lord Alexander Russel, who was in Canada with the first battalion of the Rifle Brigade, will succeed Sir Selby Smythe as Commander of the forces.

GOOD WORDS.—Archbishop Lynch, in the course of his lecture on Sunday evening, remarked :—"The question of annexation, which is now occupying public attention in this country as well as in the United States, is a very serious one, and as I have been a missionary priest for a long time in the Union, and travelled through that country in all directions, I feel it a duty which I owe to my people to warn them against any project of the kind. After love of God comes love of country, and teachers as well as parents and guardians should imbue the minds of the rising generation with this feeling. Our system of Government is the best in the world; therefore retain it by every means in your power. Should you be suicidal enough to voluntarily become subject to another nation your doom is irrevocably sealed."

HOW DISEASES ARE PROPAGATED.—Professor Tyndall asserts that diseases are propagated, not by effluvia or sewer gas, but by solid particles discharged into the atmosphere by currents of air or gas. This he proved by the following experiment :—He cut up a piece of steak, steeped it in water, heat it at a little above the temperature of the blood, then strained off the liquid. In a short time this liquid became turbid, and when examined through a microscope was found to be swarming with living organisms. By the application of heat these were killed, and when the solution was filtered he obtained a perfectly pure liquid, which, if kept perfectly free from particles of dust, would remain pure for an unlimited period; but if a fly were to dip its leg in fluid containing living organisms and then into the pure liquid, the whole would be swarming with animalcules in forty-eight hours.

Political Notes.

The Hamilton Times tries to make a point against Mr. Thomas White, M. P., by accusing him of having changed his opinions on the trade policy in 1874. Supposing this to be the case—which we by no means grant—Mr. White had probably as good or better reasons for so doing than had his accuser for doing likewise at a later date. If the editor of the Times will examine the files of his journal for January and February, 1876, he will find some very able editorial articles in favor of protection —one of which was reproduced in the INTELLIGENCER. This temporary charge of base was made for political reasons—an election being then in prospect—just as the Times says Mr. White's alleged alteration of opinion was brought about. It does not require a very large stone to injure the Times' house beyond repair, as the material is too thin to offer much resistance.

The same paper says the Government because of their allowing a special drawback of five cents per bushel on corn the product of which in starch is shown to have been exported. It says :—"And now the corn duty—that tax which was to confer so many benefits on Western Ontario farmers has been rendered next to useless to serve the purpose for which it was intended. * * * * This is another blow at the farming interests, for the benefit of a few privileged individuals." But the Times confutes its own argument and shows conclusively how purely partizan and humbugging are its attacks on the Government and professed regard for the farming interests, by saying :—"Well, the tax was given, and it was expected that all would be happy. Of course, it was lost sight of that, as a crop, Indian corn can never be a specially profitable one to a Canadian farmer. It is too severe upon the land, which is specially used up unless well manured, and farmers are not inclined to pay much for fertilizers." How, in the name of common sense, the Times can condemn the partial repeal of a tax which it professes to regard as burdensome and of no use to the farmers because it would induce the growing of a crop which would speedily use up their land, as "another blow at the farming interests" it would require the services of a Grit logician to make out, as the positions are utterly irreconcilable. But common sense is not an ingredient in the editorial utterances of Grit newspapers on trade matters. The tax on corn must, it is quite clear, either have been bad and detrimental to the farming interests, in which case the Times should have hailed its modification as a blessing. Or, the tax must have been a good one, and the Government, entitled to credit for its enactment in the first place, to blame (from the Grit point of view) for modifying it so as to help another industry. Certainly, the tax could not be a curse and a blessing at the same time, as the Times would have it. Our contemporary can take the choice of these positions, and then the true question as to the allowance of the drawback can be discussed.

The London Free Press says :—"Vick, of Rochester, N. Y., has issued his well-known annual for 1880. It is not only an elegant publication, profusely illustrated, but it overflows with information useful to flower lovers. Referring to Canada it says : 'There is a duty on Seeds sent from the United States to Canada. We have made arrangements to pay all duties and postage on seeds at a Canada port, so that our customers will have no trouble or expense.' That is how the N. P. works in the case of seeds. Mr. Vicks pays the duty, which our Finance Minister at once proceeds to pocket."

Ameliasburg Agricultural Society.

The Annual Meeting of the Township of Ameliasburg Agricultural Society was held on the 8th inst., when the annual report was presented, showing receipts $561.05, expenses $597.06 showing a balance due the Treasurer of $35.01, which on motion of Wm. Delong seconded by W. A. Peterson, was received and adopted.

The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year :

John G. Peck, President.
Elijah Sprague, Vice-President.
Edward Roblin, Secy-Treas.

R. W. Herman, Albert Huff, A. L. Sager, John A. Howell, E. Carnike, Jacob Wood, Doc. A. J. File, David Gibson and E. Delong, Directors,

John Sprague and Wm. E. Delong, Auditors.

The returning President, G. H. Sprung, was unanimously recommended as a Director for the County Society.

On motion it was resolved that the Society do forward the Farmer's Advocate during the ensuing year to all the members in the county.

On motion it was decided to open the Society in addition to its own county the counties of East and West Hastings and East Northumberland.

It was resolved that in future the Society's show be known by the name of the Ameliasburg Central Fair, and that the exhibition be held as usual on the second Saturday in October, and that the Directors take into consideration the advisability of holding the Fair on two days.

The Society have enlarged the grounds, having now nearly seven acres enclosed with a good substantial board fence 7 feet high, with a large opening to Roblin's Lake, giving the exhibitors and visitors all the privileges of an abundance of water; and have at a large expense fitted a driving track of one-third of a mile, which will compare favorably with many of the driving parks in the country. They have also cattle sheds erected and in contemplation, that will eclipse the accommodations at many of our County Fairs. The officers are determined if possible to excel their last exhibition, which was a grand success for the old Ameliasburg Cattle Show;—and having come out in the new dress of the Ameliasburg Central Fair, the officers are looking to a great future, and will be glad to furnish any information necessary.—Com.

—That was a calm, a beautiful, and a fitting death of the bishop of Guilford, England, Dr. Utterton, who, having preached a Christian sermon full of the beauty of charity and the promise of mercy, descended from the pulpit to the chancel, read the prayer for the church militant, placed the elements on the communion table, and sank on his knees in prayer never to rise again. There is an oft iterated prayer against sudden death, but to the venerable laborer in God's vineyard what ending could be better than that of the bishop of Guilford?

"Boy, may I inquire where Robinson's drug store is?" "Certainly, sir," replied the boy respectfully. "Well, sir," said the gentleman after waiting awhile, "where is it?" "I have not the least idea," said the urchin.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—When the ratepayers voted a bonus of $50,000 to the Grand Junction Railway, was it not on condition that this road should first be built to Peterborough? If so, why then should this city be now called upon to pay over $25,000 whilst the road is only opened to Hastings?

Are the taxpayers so able and so liberal as to advance to the contractors $25,000, or one-half the bonus, simply because the Bank of Montreal refused any further advances to the contractors? To ask or expect such a concession from an over-taxed people, is an insult. As Alderman Dickson very justly says, our financial position is not such as to warrant this additional large sum to our already heavy liabilities.

The Grand Junction has had enough already—not another dollar should be advanced to the onctractors until their agreement is fairly and faithfully carried out.

When this bonus By-law was voted on by the ratepayers, it was then supposed by a majority of them that the $50,000 was not to be paid by this city until the Road was completed to Peterborough.

19¢ mills on the dollar, upon over-assessed property, is quite enough at present, without increasing our present liabilities, and that without our obligation to do so.

TAXPAYER.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—Several notices having appeared in your paper of a "Pigeon Match" purporting to come off at Foxboro—six shooters from Belleville and a like number from Stirling—one notice says for a dinner, another for $50; Now Sir, permit me to state, that unless an informal challenge, with the name of W. Severn to it, which was not accepted, and of which he got notice accordingly, no other challenge was given by Stirling or received. Whoever wrote those notices must have had pigeon on the brain.

I would also take this opportunity on behalf of Mr. E. Sutherland and myself, to publicly thank Mr. Geo. Carr. of Sidney, for his very kind and hospitable treatment on New Year's day at his premises, he having prepared a splendid dinner and all the other requisites for the comfort of the party from Belleville, to whom he had exteaded an invitation free of charge, to join him in shooting his pigeons, myself and friends arriving there later in the afternoon. Mr. Carr is a specimen of a genuine English sportsman, and a good shot himself. We hope to have the pleasure of meeting him on some future occasion.

Yours truly,

JAMES BOLDRICK,
on behalf of Stirling.

A clergyman asked his Sunday school: "With what remarkable weapon did Samson slay the Philistines?" For a while there was no answer, and the clergyman, to assist the children a little, commenced tapping his jaw with the tip of his finger, at the same time saying, "What's this? What's this?" Quick as thought, a little fellow quite innocently replied, "The jaw-bone of an ass, sir."

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 15.

City and Vicinity.

COUNCIL.—The City Council will complete the business of the year 1879 at the adjourned meeting to be held to-night.

IRON ORE.—The shipments of iron ore from Madoc to Buffalo to-day amounted to eleven car loads.

SCHOOL ELECTION.—At the school nomination in Coleman Ward to-day, Messrs. Emanuel Hayne and George Linn were nominated. Both will go to the poll.

BOXING.—Prof. Ross replies to John King's challenge, offering to box him with tight fitting gloves, tripping to be allowed but no kicking. The match to take place here within two weeks.

OPINION OF A SUBSCRIBER.—Rev. Wm. Campbell, of Campbellford, in resuming his subscription to the INTELLIGENCER, has the following kindly reference to the paper:—"I am behind time in sending in my subscription for the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER this year, but better late thrive than never thrive. While I am able to pay for any paper I would not be without the INTELLIGENCER. I give it the preference to any other weekly published in the Dominion. Inclosed you will find $1.50, which place to my account for 1880. May you be long spared to conduct the INTELLIGENCER in the excellent style in which you have always done since the first day you had the charge of it."

GOLD MINING.—A telegram from Madoc on the 13th says:—"A new gold mining company called the Emily Mining Company was formed here to-day, consisting of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. G. D. Rawe, Jacob Caldwell, S. B. Cornell, and J. Wolman. They have leased a mine of probably great value on lot 3, thirteenth concession of Rawdon. The Gladstone Mining Company are now taking out quartz from another lead on their property near the last great find. They have about thirty tons of quartz at their crusher, and are only awaiting some machinery from Belleville to give this new lead a thorough test. Mr. B. Felton, of the firm of Hall & Felton, of Buffalo, N. Y., is here examining the different gold mines."

A CELEBRATED CASE.—The City Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity last night, on the occasion of the sitting of the extra-judicial High Court for the trial of the famous libel case "Gay vs. the Guelph Mercury, ultra vires, ad nauseam." Chief Justice Jeffries presided and associated with him were Justices Starcelegh and Shallow. Mr. Sergeant Sitting Bull was counsel for the plaintiff and Mr. Sergeant Spanky for the defence. The learned Sitting Bull, who stepped in to take a few scalps on his way eastward, succeeded admirably, and the Poet ably seconded him by giving exhibitions of his skill both as poet and flautist. The defence was fairly overpowered, but the jury perverse refused to agree, the reason for which was given by the foreman, namely that seven aldermen were on the jury and they immediately formed a "ring" adverse to the interests of justice. A full report of this famous trial will appear in the second edition of "Pickwick."

There are none that fall so unpitied, as those that have raised themselves upon the spoils of the public.

THE AMELIASBURG RECOUNT.—We learn that the recount of the votes cast for Deputy Reeve in Ameliasburg, resulted in leaving a majority of 2 votes for Mr. Herman, who was declared elected by a majority of 4 votes, in the first instance.

THE GRAND TRUNK.—We have reason to believe that the change in the length of divisions on the Grand Trunk, which some of our contemporaries allege is about to take place, is mythical. The conductors now run from Montreal to Kingston, and from Kingston to Toronto, and there will be no change in the runs of locomotives, the headquarters for which are at Montreal, Brockville, Belleville and Toronto.

LEGAL.—The following local cases were before the Court of Appeal in Toronto on the 14th:—Rollins v. Belleville & N. H. Ry.—An appeal from the County Court of Hastings by the plaintiff. Police Court.

(Before A. DIAMOND, P. M.)

THURSDAY; Jan. 15.

VAGRANCY.

Melinda Cline was sent to gaol for three months.

ASSAULT.

Two boys named John Cahill and Peter Burns, for assaulting Michael Doyle by throwing stones at him, were fined each $2 and costs, or one month in gaol. They were given one week to pay.

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 13.

After routine a number of Government measures were read a first time, including one introduced by Mr. Wood relating to the Agricultural College, and four by the Attorney-General. The first of these was a Bill for consolidating the Superior Courts and establishing a uniform system of pleading and practice in them. The second was a Bill respecting co-operative associations, the main object of which is to extend the limit of individual interest from $400 to $1,000, and to grant permission to incur debt for the purpose of procuring premises in which to carry on business. The third was a Bill to place a more effectual check on the holding of unnecessary inquests by coroners; and the fourth was a Bill respecting drainage by-laws, of which no explanation was given.

Mr. Cook introduced two public measures, one amending the General Railway Act, and the other providing that candidates for the position of engineer elsewhere than on steamboats shall be compelled to pass an examination.

Mr. Morris put two questions, respecting the interference of members of the Civil Service at elections. He desired to know whether any regulation had been adopted by the Government prohibiting Provincial civil servants from holding municipal offices, and (2) from taking part in Dominion or Provincial election contests beyond voting.

Mr. Mowat stated that no regulation of the kind referred to had been made, but stated that certain members of the service who had been spending their time in election work, to the detriment of the public service, had been warned to desist.

A discussion sprang up on Mr. Cook's motion for a return showing the expense of County Councils as a part of the municipal machinery, and Mr. Dryden's for a return showing the number of Reeves and Deputy Reeves in each county. Remarks were made on the functions of these bodies and the manner in which they performed them by Messrs. Cook, Ross, Hay, Dryden, Waters, and Boulter, the general tenor of the speeches being in favor of a reduction of the number of County Councillors. Promises were made that the subject would come up again during the session, and the returns asked for were ordered to be brought down.

In connection with a motion of Mr. Crooks to change certain Sessional Orders into Standing Orders of the House, Mr. Creighton called attention to the fact that the term "Fourth Legislature" had been used in the Journals this session, where "First," "Second," and "Third Parliament" had formerly been employed, and wished to know whether this was significant of any particular theory of the Attorney-General entertained as to the powers of "Parliaments" and "Legislatures" respectively. Mr. Mowat stated that he had never heard of the change until Mr. Creighton called attention to it.

Wonderful Silver Yield.

Virginia Maritime Laws

AN INDIAN FIGHT.

VICTORIA'S BAND DEFEATED.

THE SITUATION IN MAINE.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15.—A reception was given to Garfield at the Capital last night. Garfield paid the warmest tribute to Thurman, than whom, he said, Ohio has had few larger minded, broader minded men.

LEADVILLE, Col., Jan. 15.—A hundred and fifteen thousand dollars of silver was taken out of the Robt. E. Lee mine in twelve hours yesterday, by twenty men,—the largest production in that time ever recorded of any mine—at a cost not exceeding $1,000. It is rumored that the owners refused a million of dollars for the lease of the mine for seven days, but it is not for sale. A vein of silver almost pure, ranging from 12 inches to 2 feet in width, has been struck.

RICHMOND, Jan. 15.—The House of Delegates appropriated $1,500 to enforce the oyster laws against the intruding of vessels on the Va. waters. It is proposed to send armed vessels to capture the intruders with the aid of militia. A conflict is expected.

DENVER, Jan. 15.—Major Morrow overtook Victoria and his Apaches on January 12th in the Black Mountains. Victoria was entrenched and held out for 5 hours, when he fled, leaving seven dead. One soldier, Sergeant Groves was killed, and two wounded. Morrow is pursuing Victoria.

CARSON, Jan. 15.—The Sheriff of Wyoming has arrived and states that 75 Burros loaded with ammunition were discovered going south last Sunday. It is supposed to be for the Utes and from Utah. Military has been sent out to scout for them. It is believed that the Utes are making preparations to fight in the spring and will resist a removal, or at any rate will not surrender the Indians who are demanded.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The Sun's Augusta special says that Chamberlain has sent to Governor Lamson the keys to the Governor's private room. This is regarded as an omen of good by the Fusionists, but really has no significance when the fact is known that Chamberlain has increased the police, some 300 being now in attendance every one of them Republicans. Chamberlain says he is ready to obey Lamson's orders whenever the dispute about his title is authoritatively decided in his favor. The World's special says that Garcelon in a private conversation says that Chamberlain has overstepped his powers, his assumption of power as Governor is wholly unwarranted.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

BERLIN, Jan. 15.—The Hamburger correspondent publishes a sensational story that the officers of a Russian regiment at Kalish invited the officers of Prussian regiments on the other side of the frontier to dinner, and during a political argument the Russians used insulting language to Germany; and bloodshed was averted by the Russian Colonel sending home the German officers under escort.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The strike of the coal miners in the Mons district of Belgium, numbering 10,000 have terminated.

A Paris despatch says, since installing himself in the Palais Bourbon, Gambetta has offended almost everybody by his pompous manners, he influences ministers decisions, and if a minister ventures to resist his orders, he pursues him with implacable resentment until he has overthrown him. Tirard, the Minister of Agriculture, declared himself unreservedly for free trade, and stated that as the policy of the Government.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Countess Idavon Hohn-Hohn, the German poetess and novelist, is dead; in her 75th year.

A Pesth despatch states that "Rioting was renewed last night and two persons shot, but whether by military or rioters it is not ascertained. At midnight shots were fired at the soldiers from behind waggons in the street. The perpetrators escaped." This looks like a barricade.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The first number of La Justice, a new Radical newspaper, started by M. Clemenceau, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, appeared to-day, it demands the adoption by the government of a frankly popular policy, and application of the principle of equality in all matters including amnesty. A Paris correspondent says the La Justice will be for Gambetta what the Republique Franchise was for Thiers and Macmahon.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Serious disturbances occurred on Tuesday and Wednesday, in consequence of a duel between Baron Maithengi and Herr Verhonay, a member of parliament, in which the latter was fatally wounded; further trouble is feared. Verhonay was editor of the Hungarian, a Radical newspaper, in which he attacked Count Festities, a fellow member with Maithengi of an aristocratic national Casino club. Maithengi intervened. The partisans of Verhonay say Maithengi is a professional duellist, and that the best pistol shot in Hungary was put forward for the purpose of silencing Verhonay, who is very distasteful to the aristocrats, but popular with the masses. Last night a great crowd of students and workmen filled the neighborhood of the Casino Club, uttering hostile cries, and finally stoned the windows. The police were repeatedly repulsed, and finally a battalion of infantry charged them with fixed bayonets. Many persons were slightly hurt; 30 rioters were arrested.

RENSSELAER, Mass., Jan. 15.—Yesterday Charles West and Hiram Kingman were hunting; Kingman in raising his gun hastily it discharged, blowing off part of West's head.

PETERSBURG, Va., Jan. 15.—A hundred colored emigrants arrived from Goldsboro, N. C., en route for Indiana. Several hundred more will shortly follow.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 15.—Last evening the committee on examining the books of the savings bank of Louisville, said to cashier Rhoher—now we will examine your accounts. Rhoher took up a pen and wrote a deficit of $667,000 and left the bank. He was caught on the way to the gaol, where he proposed giving himself up.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Senator Allison, from the Committee of Finance, reported back adversely Bayard's legal tender resolution.

If obstacles lie in your path, overleap them, and never forget that a grain of boldness in everything is an important requisite of prudence.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 14.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh winds, partly cloudy weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer winds, increasing cloudiness, followed by snow or rain.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

A COUNTER MOVE ON GHUZNI AND HERAT.

LONDON, Jan. 14th.—A Bombay correspondent states that an expedition is preparing at Candahar for a movement against Ghuzni and Herat, as a counter-stroke to the apprehended junction of the hostile Afghans at Herat and Ghuzni for another attack on Cabul. This seems improbable, as the season is too far advanced for the movement of any considerable force.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 14.—In consequence of fresh gathering of Kohistanis, near Lundi-Kotal and Dakka, these stations have been reinforced with a view to immediate offensive preparations.

LAHORE, Jan. 14.—Shirpur is being rapidly fortified.

GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT
Proprietors.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

How Animals Play and Enjoy Themselves.

Small birds chase each other about in play; but, perhaps, the conduct of the crane and the trumpeter is most extraordinary. The latter stands on one leg, hops about in the most eccentric manner, and throws somersaults. Waterbirds, such as ducks and geese, dive after each other, and clear the surface of the water with outstretched neck and flapping wings, throwing abundant spray around. Deer often engage in sham battle, or trial of strength, by twisting their horns together and pushing for the mastery. All animals pretending violence in their play stop short of exercising it; the dog takes the greatest precaution not to injure by a bite; and the ourang-outang, in wrestling with his keeper pretends to throw him, and makes feints of biting him. Some animals carry out in their play the semblance of catching their pray. Young cats, for instance, leap after every small and moving object, even to the leaves strewed by the autumn-wind. They crouch and steal forward, ready for the spring, the body quivering and the tail vibrating with emotion: they bound on the moving leaf, and again spring forward to another. Benger saw young jaguars and congars playing with round substances, like kittens. Birds of the magpie kind are the analogs of monkeys, full of mischief, play and mimicry. There is a story of a tame magpie that was seen busily employed in a garden gathering pebbles, and with much solemnity and a studied air burying them in a hole made to receive a post. After dropping each stone it cried "Cursack!" triumphantly, and set off for another. On examining the spot, a poor toad was found in the hole, which the magpie was stoning for his amusement.

"Sailors indulge in the heaviest attire of any human beings on this globe," said Aunt Mary, as she looked up from her newspaper. "How, so Aunty?" asked her neice. "Because," answered the old lady, "they seem to be in the habit of wearing their ship."

"May it please your honor," said a New York lawyer, addressing one of the judges, "I brought the prisoner from gaol on a habeas corpus." "Well," said a fellow in an undertone, who stood in the rear of the court, "these lawyers will say anything. I saw the man get out of a cab at the court door."

A Quaker shopkeeper once met a Quaker customer going home with her bundles. He had been absent from his place, and had a notion in his wise head that she had been trading with a rival whom he did not much love. "How much did thee give a yard for this, Mary?" "One dollar!" "Why, I am surprised at thee! I could let thee have it for seventy-five cents. And how much for this?" "Two dollars." "Why, that was unreasonable. I could let thee have it for a dollar and a half. Why will thee go away trading with strangers and world's people, Mary?" "I don't know what thou art talking about, friend John," she said; "but I did buy all these things at thy store, and if thee says the truth thee must owe me considerable money."

LEMON CHEESE CAKE.—A quarter of a pound of butter, a quarter of a pound of powdered white sugar, gently melt them, add the yolks of three eggs, the whites of two, grate the peel of a large lemon, squeeze the juice, mix all together, and add a little brandy if liked. Another way—Squeeze two large lemons and grate the rind into half a pound of warm butter, half a pound of sugar, and six eggs well beaten.

TO EXTERMINATE FLEAS.—Take half a pound of Persian insect powder, half pound powdered borax, one ounce oil cedar, quarter ounce oil pennyroyal properly put up by a druggist; close the room tight, sprinkle this powder on carpet, furniture and beds, and keep closed over day and night; then open all windows and air thoroughly, and in twenty four hours there will be no fleas, flies or mosquitoes left; the rooms can then be swept and dusted. This applies nearly as well to roaches and water-bugs.

HOW TO PREVENT COLDS.—The Popular Science Monthly gives good advice in regard to the prevention of colds. The mistake is often made of taking great care to put on extra wraps and coats when preparing for out-doors exercise. This is not at all necessary in robust persons. Sufficient heat to prevent all risk of chill is generated in the body by exercise. The care should be taken to retain sufficient clothing after exercise, and when at rest, to prevent the heat passing out of the body. Indeed persons very often catch chills from throwing off extra clothing after exercise, the material of which is not adapted to prevent the radiation of heat from the body.

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold. they are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

MR. GILES—Dear Sir: I have used your Iodide Ammonia Liniment and find it the best remedy I ever used. For a sprain or callous there is nothing equal to it. My wife sprained her ankle last Saturday evening; I used the Liniment as per directions; the second application was a perfect cure. Some of my friends started last night for Johnson Co, Kentucky; they have taken several bottles with them. I have used it on my horses and it works like a charm. I am going to Kentucky next month—farming. If you have any works treating of horses and other animals, please send me two or three copies, and oblige, Yours respectfully,

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

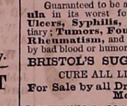

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness, or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

ADDRESS: LOUIS BAGGER & Co., Solicitors of Patents and Attorneys at Law, Le Droit Building, Washington, D.C. d85tf

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Signed. J. E. GALLAWAY, M. D.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

Canada as a Farming Country

Reports of the Scotch Delegates.

Their Opinions of the Northwestern Wheat Fields.

(From the Border Advertiser, Galashiels, December 24th)

An adjourned special meeting of the Gala Water Farmers' Club was held in the Town Hall, Stow, on Friday afternoon, to hear the report of Messrs. Elliott, Logan and Snow, three of the farmers' delegates from Scotland, appointed to visit Canada and report on the inducements which that fertile region offers to British farmers.

Mr. Elliott, who was first called upon, was received with applause. After reading a diary of his movements in Canada, he summed up as follows :—I consider that farming in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec is in a transition state. The growing of wheat in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, which will incease with rapid strides, must soon effect the growers of wheat in these provinces. They are already alive to that fact, and for some time back have been increasing their stocks of cattle and sheep. Calves, instead of being mostly killed, as formerly, are now all reared, which in a very short time must enormously increase the supply of cattle for exportation to this country. The Dominion of Canada, from the energetic nature of its people and boundless resources of every kind, has a great future before it. With regard to farmers emigrating to Ontario or the Eastern Townships, I have not the slightest hesitation in recommending them to do so ; as I am satisfied, from what I saw, that men with moderate capital could do better there than they could at home; and that for several reasons. In the first place, you can buy and stock a farm for little more than it takes to stock one at home ; then there is no rent to pay, and taxes are very light ; they do not exceed from 4d to 10d per acre, according to the value of the property. You can make the most of the land by growing the most profitable crops, and those best suited to your soil and climate. There you have no lawyer factor, prescribing in a long antiquated lease which almost no man can understand, what crops you shall grow, and what seeds you shall sow, as if you did not understand your business better than he is able to teach you, and, generally speaking, binding you to protect the landlords' hares to eat your own crops. In my own case, however, I have been very liberally dealt with, both as regards cropping clauses and game. Again, a man going there with a family can get a first class education free for his children, which at home costs a great deal of money. I consider their education system one of the best possible. In a new country there are many more opportunities and openings turning up than there are in an old country, that young men of intelligence and enterprise can take advantage of. Regarding men with large capital and wishing to farm extensively, I do dot think the country so well suited, as a difficulty would be found in getting a large tract of land in one block at a moderate price. From all accounts, and I have the best information from practical men, Manitoba or the northwest territories would be the best place for farming on a large scale ; and I would say these are also the places for a poor man. There he can get 160 acres of land free; and if he has a family, each member 18 years of age gets the same ; so that he has a large farm at once, his own property for ever, and no rent to pay. In conclusion, I beg to express my warmest thanks to Sir John A. Macdonald, the Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Agriculture, and the other members of the Canadian Government, for the attention they paid us ; as also those gentlemen who accompanied us through the provinces. While the farmers and gentlemen in the towns through which we passed were unending in their kindness and hospitality, they were always ready to give information and show us everything in their power.

At various points in the report by Mr. Elliott, the observations made were heartily applauded by the meeting.

Mr. Logan, Legerwood, also reported that in Manitoba he went through great wheat producing districts. He mentioned that in one district—that of High Bluff, between Winnipeg and Portage-la-Prairie —he found land that had grown wheat for 40 years in succession yielding from 25 up 40 bushels per acre, weight 60lb. per bus., and sold for 60c. per bus. ; but the farmer sold too soon, as the price went up very much. At the last mentioned place they had a conversation with a man who was ploughing. His farm consisted of 320 acres, and he told them that he had grown wheat in succession for 17 years, and that it had been in wheat 13 years before then. He bought the farm, and had grown very good crops at an average of 32 bushels per acre, of 60lb. weight per bushel. He had also sold his wheat too soon. There was about 40c. per bushel difference between the value of wheat in Manitoba and in Montreal ; this would be reduced to 20c. or thereby when the Canadian Pacific Railway was made through to Winnipeg, and on to Portage-la-Prairie. Wheat could be grown in Manitoba for 55c. per bushel, leaving a profit—the expense per acre for ploughing, seed, sowing, cutting, binding, carrying, and thrashing, being $8. That was when the Sulkey plough was used. With this plough one man could turn over five acres daily. It was a double-furrow plough, and was drawn by four horses or mules, the man being seated and managing the plough with a lever. Mr. Logan gave some details as to various farms he visited—amongst others, one occupied by two sons of Mr. Riddell, Hundalee, who were prospering in the far West. He then went on to observe that Manitoba was a very healthy country. It was different as to soil from Ontario, as there were no trees to hinder the plough—only prairie grass ; his opinion was that this was the country for British farmers to go to, as if they remained much longer at home their means would be all gone. Every year they were being drained away, and landlords made no concession. They were all aware that a bargain was a bargain, but if landlords would show a little consideration in such bad times as they have of late experienced, they would be no losers in the long run. They had no idea when they entered on their present leases that they would have had such a succession of bad seasons, and when they combined with that the great increase of wages and tradesmen's bills, few farmers would be able to renew their leases. In their determination to get all the rents landlords were only killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. (Applause.) His advice was, as long as they had a little capital left, to secure some of it in that country beyond the Atlantic, where plenty land could be bought from the Canadian Government for $1 per acre, equal to 4s. 2d. British money. Taking a run through Ontario, amongst other places he visited was a farm in possession of a son of Mr. Clay, Kerchesters, at Brantford, and by whom they were driven to Bow Park, where they examined the celebrated shorthorns, which were the wonder of the Canadians. At Guelph they drove to the College of Agriculture, built by the Canadian Government for the training of farmer's sons and others in the Province of Ontario in the theory and practice of agriculture. There were 90 young men in the establishment. But notwithstanding all the beauty of Ontario, he must give a preference to Manitoba as the place to which the farmers must all emigrate.

Mr. Snow, of Pirntaton, who was received with applause, delivered an excellent report, referring now and again to a map of the Dominion which hung on the wall. He said the delegates pushed through for Ottawa, where they had an interview with the Minister of Agriculture for Canada, the Hon. J. H. Pope. Nothing could be kinder than the reception they met with, and I give you his words, as nearly as I can recollect them :—"Gentlemen, we have invited you to this country to see it for yourselves. We have no intention of saying to you we shall send you here, there, or anywhere ; it is for you to say where you wish to go, and there you shall be sent ; and when you return, tell your friends and neighbors exactly what you have seen. Tell them what is good about the country. I trust you will find nothing bad ; but should you do so, tell them that also." Continuing, Mr. Snow said that at present there was some difficulty in transit, but railways were in progress, and he had no doubt that in five years from this time the country would be covered with them. Besides the long railway route through the States, he pointed out that traffic might be carried on by the Nelson River and Hudson Bay at least for three months in the year. He sometimes heard people observing that the further west they went it would take so much the more to carry the produce, but his opinion was that the cost of railway transit would not be so much. A few hundred miles on the prairie would hardly ever be known. As to the extent of the land, Manitoba has ten millions of acres, and stretching to the west and northwest was a country estimated to contain 176 million acres of fertile land, which must, in the very near future, produce largely the food required in other parts of the globe. Referring to grain, Mr. Snow laid before the meeting a sample of Canadian wheat, for which only 16s. a quarter was obtained, remarking that the fact of this low price being taken seemed to indicate that in the meantime, at all events, the growing of wheat was in some districts no great thing, and that it was the production of beef that must there be looked to. Regarding the price at which cattle might be expected to reach this country, he stated that when in Chicago he visited the stock yards, where he was introduced to one of the largest buyers in the market. In going round the place with this gentleman he saw a lot of fine cattle, something like better class fat Irish cattle of 52 Imperial stones, which were sold at $70, or £14. On adding to this price the cost of bringing the animals to this country, he found that they could not be sold at less than £20 ; and he remarked to his friend that if this was to be the state of matters, farmers at home need not be afraid. "Ah," replied the buyer, "but I know I have lost plenty of money by it, and if you wait till spring you will get them at 5d per lb. and if not at 5d then at 4d, and if not at 4d then at 3d—you are bound to get them." (Laughter.) After next mentioning that in Ontario a good deal of the land had been exhausted, and had within late years fallen very much in value, and giving it as his opinion that farmers there must adopt a more scientific style of farming, and keep more cattle, he said that throughout Canada there was illimitable country for raising cattle, and that therefore it could not be expected that stock at home would maintain their present prices. If they did this, then he said it was a fair price ; but they must, he thought, look forward to a reduction in the price of beef.

Mr. Riddell, Hundalee, on being invited to speak, said that since his sons went out to Manitoba in the spring of 1877, he had been applied to for information regarding the colony by numbers of people from England and Ireland as well as Scotland. It might, therefore, he thought, be interesting to state what the experience of these young men had been. In the first place, they stated that they had never regretted going out. Land could be purchased from $1 to $10 per acre, and its transfer was so simple that in a few minutes, and at almost no cost, any quantity could be transferred. Every description of crops succeeded well—wheat yielding from 30 to 40 bushels per acre ; barley, 45 bushels ; and oats, 55 bushels ; and turnips, carrots, and cabbages growing as heavy crops as the best in Scotland. Land was rising in value rapidly ; and labor could be had at from $15 to $20. A large herd of cattle could be kept, and if sheltered by woods and windbreaks they might stand out nearly the whole season. Grass would scarcely give the finishing touch to feeding cattle, but a little crushed grain in addition would do it nicely. Railway communication with the outer world was increasing daily. The classes most required were farmers with capital, farm and railway laborers, and domestic servants. At first, his sons stated, they did not know how they were likely to succeed, but now they were in a position from experience and observation to advise any plucky, industrious young man, with from £500 to £1,000, to go to Manitoba. As in all new countries, everything was quite primitive compared with Scotland. They had many discomforts and inconveniences, and hard work in seed, hay, and harvest time ; but for all this they had a very large amount of compensation. The land was their own, and they could farm as they liked, sell what suited best, the land or its produce, and hunt and sport without hindrance. All this sweetened labor very much. Every one who thought of going out ought to be prepared to rough it for a time, but with capital, patience, pluck and perseverence, no man need be afraid of making a good thing out of it. With no rents and almost no taxes, there was every prospect of a farmer doing much better than in the old country. (Applause.) This, Mr. Riddell said, was the information he had received, given in his son's own words. (Applause.)

The chairman said as the night was advanced, it now fell upon him to perform the most pleasant task of the evening, to ask them to drink the health of the gentlemen who had so well performed their mission of enquiry to Canada and Manitoba. (Applause.) The information regarding this new field of emigration was of vast importance during a period of agricultural depression such as they were now experiencing. From what they had heard, it appeared that enterprising men would find little difficulty in getting on. Of course they need not expect to find gold on the surface any more than in the old country —(laughter)—but there they had many advantages compared to what they had at home. (Hear, hear.) On the whole he considered the delegates' report a very favorable one, although they had not brought home a cluster of grapes, neither did they tell them of giants inhabiting the land. (Laughter ann applause.) He would say to them : "Go up and possess this land of promise." (Hear, hear.)

The toast was enthusiastically drunk, and, having been suitably replied to, the public part of the proceedings came to a close.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 16.

The West Riding.

The effort to induce a candidate to take the field against Mr. Robertson for the representative of West Hastings has so far come to naught, Mr. J. J. B. Flint having followed the example of Mr. Sills and declined to enter into the contest. We are therefore led to hope that there will be no contest, and that Mr. Robertson will be returned by acclamation. No new issues have arisen since June last, when Mr. Robertson was returned by a sweeping majority, and it is therefore desirable that the people should be spared the excitement and the Province the expense of a contested election.

Since the above was placed in type, we have received the Globe, which publishes a telegram from Belleville, stating that Mr. Sills has accepted the nomination. This report has yet to be verified.

The Manufacturers and the Tariff.

We learn from the Mail that the annual meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of Ontario was held on the 14th inst. in that city, Mr. E. Gurney, Jr., President, in the chair. Representatives were present from Toronto, Hamilton, London, St. Catharines, Dundas, Oshawa, Belleville, Berlin, Guelph, Brampton, Almonte, Paris, Limehouse, Eglington, and other places.

From the report of the proceedings we should not judge that the manufacturers had been ruined by the Tilley tariff, as Sir Richard Cartwright declared they would be, or that they had succeeded in robbing the public, as the same infallible authority, with remarkable consistency, asserted would be the case. On the contrary, they expressed their satisfaction generally with the protection afforded them, but at the same time suggested that some alterations would be required. The President, in an able address, pointed out that, as the character of the manufactures of the United States so closely resembles that of those of our own country, our market was so liable to attack in case of financial depression amongst our neighbors, that without protection it would be madness to invest a larger amount of capital in manufacturing enterprises in Canada. He expressed himself satisfied with the result of the tariff so far, as did also Mr. W. H. Howland, who declared that six months more of depression would have ruined the industries of Canada. The following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. McKechnie, of Dundas, was passed :

Resolved, That this Association desires to express its general approval of the tariff legislation of the last session of the Dominion Parliament, which, it is evident, has in a large measure helped to bring about the marked commercial improvement and financial confidence now existing in this country.

Following this, some other members spoke favorably of the tariff, and a resolution was adopted asking the Government to appoint one or more commissioners to promote the opening of new markets for the sale or exchange of the products of our increased and improved industries.

The result of this meeting of practical men is important, as showing that the policy of the Government is giving satisfaction to those whose interests are very largely affected by it. That their suggestions will be received courteously, and carefully considered by the Government there can be no doubt, instead of being contemptuously rejected, as under Mr. Mackenzie's administration, by a Finance Minister who had deluded himself with the belief that the sum of all human knowledge on such subjects was covered by his own hat.

NORTH LANARK.—The nomination for North Lanark took place at Almonte on the 14th inst. Messrs. D. G. MacDonell, Reformer, and Joseph Jamieson, Conservative, were nominated.

CITY COUNCIL.

THURSDAY, Jan. 15

The Council met at 8 o'clock.

PRESENT — His Worship the Mayor, Messrs. Brennan, St. Charles, Proctor, Lingham, McIlpatrick, Panter, Vandusen, Farley, Holden, Jellett, Wallbridge, Petrie, Hayne, Geen, Doyle, Robertson.

The Mayor said that as the contractor for the Grand Junction Railway was not satisfied with the action of the Council in relation to the proposed extension of time, he had received a letter from his Solicitor which the Clerk would read. Unless the debentures were handed over to the trustees, he feared that litigation would ensue.

The Clerk then read the letter as follows:

Grand Junction Railway }
Contractor's Office, }
Belleville, Jan. 13, 1879.

SIR,—I am instructed on behalf of the Grand Junction Railway Co. to take proceedings against the City of Belleville to compel the issue and delivery to the Trustees of the debentures for the bonus of $50,000 granted by the City to the Company, and also to compel payment of the interest on the debentures for the former bonus of $100,000, which has not been paid to the Company and the coupons for which were cut off by the City before delivery of the debentures to the Trustees.

The Company hoped that your Council would have passed such a By-law as they could have accepted and would have prevented any litigation between the Company and the City, while at the same time it would have enabled the Company to complete their arrangements ensuring the completion of the road to Peterborough this ensuing fall. But the conditions attached to Mr. Holden's By-law are such as the Company cannot accept, for they would be powerless to go on with the road, if they did, and moreover the Company are advised that those conditions are beyond the authority of the Council to attach to the By-law, and therefore void. That question, however, will have to be determined hereafter before the Courts or in Parliament,

As the interests of the City and of the Company are identical, and the common object in view, the completion of the road to Peterborough, can only be attained by harmonious action, and will be delayed if not defeated altogether by litigation, I still hope that your Council will reconsider the matter before it is too late, and will pass a By-law simply extending the time for completion to Peterborough for a year, which we are advised is the only By-law within their power to pass. It is essential this should be done at once, if at all, as rails, ties, timber, &c., must be bought immediately to get the road built this season, and the suits must go on if it be not done.

Your obedient servant,
HECTOR CAMERON.

A. Robertson, Esq.,
Mayor of Belleville.

A communication was read from the Treasurer, objecting to the proposed payment to him of $100 for extra work, as totally inadequate to remunerate him for the extra labor which he had performed.

The annual report of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department was read, asking for 1,000 feet additional hose, and recommending the erection of additional firestands, and of a tank upon the hill ; also detailing losses by fire since the date of his last report, the number being 15 in all.

The reports presented at the last meeting were received.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means, Ald. Hayne in the chair.

Two reports of the Finance Committee were presented, the first, dated December 30th, being first taken up.

On the clause for the purchase of 50 copies of the Hastings Directory being put,

Ald. Geen objected, as in his opinion only two or three copies were required. If he had been present at the Committee meeting he would have opposed it.

Ald. Holden said there was no dissentient voice in the Committee. He had thought the number rather large, but the Committee were unanimous. The Directory contained a large amount of valuable information as to the resources of the City and County, which might be the means of inducing people to locate here. It also contained what was of great value to the City, namely a summary of the most important By-laws, which the City should have had long ago, and which he hoped they would soon have on their own account. He only objected to the mode of distribution, by the Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Ald. Geen moved that ten copies be procured, instead of fifty.

Ald. Jellett thought the money would be well spent, as the Directory would advertise the City. It seemed to be Ald. Geen's idea that we could do without the press ; but we must have a certain amount of advertising. They had always previously taken fifty copies, and as the work contained a very large amount of information and was a credit to the City, there should not be a voice raised against the proposition.

Ald. Geen contended that the action of past Councils was no precedent.

Ald. Brennan thought that if the Directory had been printed by the Free Press it would have been all right with Mr. Geen. He said that Mr. Geen's attempted economy had resulted in very little. A By-law to repeal the dog By-law had been introduced and the result had been a loss of $400 to the City.

Ald. Petrie, who had introduced the By-law, said not a dollar need to have been lost if the police had done their duty.

Ald. Robertson spoke very highly of the Directory, which would be of great service to the Corporation by being sent to persons at a distance. The enterprise was a most creditable one, and the City would receive full value for its money.

The clause was then put and carried, Ald. Geen and Vandusen alone voting against it.

The second report was then brought up.

On an item for B. F. Proctor, for harbor work,

Ald. Geen asked had not a large portion of the money been paid and to Ald. Proctor ? It was so reported in the city.

Ald. Brennan said the contractor was Ald. Proctor's son, and his father had superintended the work for him.

Ald. Holden objected to such a question. No cheque had been issued for such service to his recollection. Ald. Geen could get the information by applying at the Treasurer's office.

Ald. Proctor had no objection to answer the question. B. F. Proctor had done work and supplied a large quantity of timber at rates lower than it could now be supplied for.

Ald. Geen said his question had not been answered. Had not the money been paid to Ald. Proctor?

Ald. Proctor refused to answer.

Some members objected, but the Mayor said there was no point of order.

Ald. Geen said the Treasurer was present and could answer.

Ald. Holden objected to the officials being cross-questioned.

Ald. Doyle desired the matter cleared up, as he did not wish reports to prevail outside which were injurious to the character of Alderman. Ald. Proctor could make a statement, if he chose.

Ald. Holden contended that objection should have been taken when the authority for the construction of the works was given. Whatever was done had been done under the direct sanction of the Fire and the Harbor Committees.

Ald. Doyle said that he should like to have the matter cleared up for Ald. Proctor's sake. If his son had done the work he had a perfect right to do so.

Ald. Petrie said Mr. Donovan, an old lumberman, had stated that the piers could be built for $280, whereas $680 had been expended, and this justified Ald. Geen in making his enquiry.

Ald. Proctor said he had been consulted by Ald. St. Charles as to the building of the fire stand, the lowest tender for which was $46, the timber to be delivered at the expense of the City. He had got a man to do the work for $36, who had built the stand two tiers higher than the specification required and had charged nothing for drawing the timber. He had got no money from the Treasurer.

Ald. Geen moved to lay the matter over for examination.

Ald. Holden opposed the motion on the grounds before stated.

Ald. Brennan said this was a repetition of Ald. Geen's proceedings during the year. He was continually trying to pick at something, but would have no backers.

Ald. McInnich contended that Ald. Proctor had nothing to do with B. F. Proctor's contract.

Ald. Petrie said as the lumbermen were to pay for the repairs to the piers it made no difference to the City.

Ald. Doyle said if the account had been paid before, as alleged by Ald. Geen, he would oppose its second payment, but it would not, he was sure, have been recommended by the Finance Committee if it had been paid.

The amendment was defeated, Ald. Geen alone voting for it.

On the item of $400 for the Mayor's salary, Ald. Geen moved to reduce it to $200.

Ald. Holden said that when the estimates were adopted, there was no objection.

The amendment was lost, Mr. Geen voting alone again.

The other recommendations of the Committee were adopted.

The reports of the Printing Committee and the Fire Committee were adopted.

The report of the Court of Revision was taken up.

Ald. Geen moved to remit one-half of the taxes on Mr. H. A. Thompson's sash factory, destroyed by fire. He said that in consequence of the inability of the fire engines to procure water, the property had been destroyed and Mr. Thompson had been ruined.

Ald. Petrie seconded the motion.

Ald. Brennan said if part of Mr. Thompson's taxes were remmitted, the same treatment should be given to Mr. Cummins, who had also had two houses destroyed by the same fire.

Mr. Proctor said there was a rumor on the streets that the insurance fully covered the loss.

Ald. Jellett, after some further discussion, said as Chairman of the Court of Revision he was willing to allow a remission of one-fourth of the taxes, and he moved in amendment accordingly.

The amendment was carried by 8 to 7.

Ald. Brennan asked had a bill been presented from Mr. McCammon, for the maintenance of an indigent family who were afterwards sent to their homes, for several days.

Ald. Proctor said the account was presented to the Poor and Sanitary Committee, and they reported against it, as the service had not been authorized by the Council.

Ald. Holden suggested that the bill be put in for the new Council to decide upon.

The matter here dropped, and the Committee rose and reported.—Adopted,

RAILWAYS.

Ald. Holden moved that the Council petition the Governor-General in council for a subsidy for the construction of the Pacific Junction Railway, and that the accompanying petition be signed.—Carried.

Ald. Farley asked was it desirable to take action as to the request for the issue of the Grand Junction debentures.

Ald. Holden said that the matter was one which required much consideration, and he would suggest that the Solicitor write to Mr. Cameron asking him to defer action until the matter had been brought before the new Council, which it would be at once.

This was agreed to.

On motion of Ald. Jellett, the Mayor vacated the chair, and Ald. St. Charles was temporarily appointed thereto.

Ald. Farley moved, seconded by Ald. Jellett, that this Council, before separating, desire to express their appreciation of the kindly bearing of His Worship the Mayor during the past year, towards the members of this Council, and their regret at the severance of the cordial relationship hither, to existing between His Worship and this Council.

The motion was carried unanimously.

His Worship said he felt very grateful for the kindly feelings expressed in the resolution, and should always have a pleasant remembrance of his relations with the members. He would be succeeded by a gentleman well qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and again thanked them for their kindness.

Ald. Holden moved a resolution expressive of their appreciation of the retiring members. Ald. Doyle, Hulme, Hayne, Panter, and Sherwood.

Ald. Patterson seconded the motion in a felicitous speech, at the conclusion of which the motion was passed nem con.

Ald. Doyle, who retired voluntarily from unavoidable circumstances, expressed his thanks to the Mayor and to the members of the Council, and should remember all as friends, including the reporters.

Ald. Hayne, who did not retire voluntarily, said he felt sorry to leave a body so pleasantly constituted.

Ald. Panter, who retired voluntarily, said he thanked his fellow members for the resolution. He felt that he did not make a good Councilman, not being gifted with the eloquence which he conceived the position required. He left the Council with the most kindly feelings towards all.

Council adjourned, resumed a few minutes later, confirmed the minutes and adjourned sine die.

Change in the Ministry.

The Mail of to-day contains the following :—"It has long been expected that M. Masson's health would not permit him to continue in the discharge of the arduous duties of his office as Minister of Militia. In order that he might be relieved of the severity of the labor, while his advice and general ability were retained for the public service, some changes have been effected in the Departments. We are in a position to state that M. Masson will at once be gazetted President of the Privy Council ; Mr. O'Connor will become Postmaster-General, and Sir Alexander Campbell will become Minister of Militia. These changes will, we believe, receive the approval of the country. M. Masson's ability and influence are retained in the Government. Mr. O'Connor's sphere of activity and public usefulness is widened to the extent of the largest of the public departments, and Sir Alexander Campbell will find a Department under his control, in which his very best qualities as an administrator, his accuracy, his firmness and his skill in dealing with a sensitive service, will have full play. We believe it will not be exaggerating the truth when we say that the Militia Service while welcoming the coming, is not disposed to speed the parting, Minister of Militia, whose courtesy to individuals, and whose evident regard for the welfare of the service have won for him general and cordial regard."

—Edison says his lamp is only an experiment. Many of his lights have gone out.

—A cargo of fresh meat from Australia has reached Suez in excellent condition.

—The demolition of the walls and bastions of Fort Garry has been commenced.

—Mrs. Catherine Barton, wife of Mr. Wm. Barton, an employee of the Great Western Railway, Hamilton, dropped dead on the sidewalk yesterday.

—Sixty able-bodied men, with their families, applied for admission to the Killarney Workhouse on Wednesday,

—Mr. Attorney-General Walkem, of the British Columbian Government, is on his way to Ottawa on his wedding tour. He was married at Victoria, B.C., on December 29th.

—The imports at New York in 1879 were valued at $424,189,123 the largest ever known with one exception. The exports reached the value of $371,046,609.

$200 REWARD.—The Departmemt of the Interior have offered a reward of $200 for the apprehension of the murderer or murderers of Policeman Grayburn, of the Mounted Police Force. Some new developments are expected in the course of a few days. It is said that the Sheriff of Montana has asked what the Government would give for the capture of an Indian supposed to be the murderer.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—A despatch from Detroit says the stock-holders of the Northwestern Grand Trunk Railway, the Michigan, Chicago and Northwestern, and the Michigan Railway Company will meet at the Russel House in that city on the 23rd instant, for the purpose of ratifying an agreement between these roads and the Northwestern Grand Trunk, the Indiana and Illinois to consolidate them into a single corporation.

A DESERVED REBUKE.—The New York Herald sharply rebukes Parnell for stating that of all the monarchs of Europe, the Queen of England was the only one who did not contribute to the relief of the famine of 1847, as the record shows that not only Her Majesty, but also the Prince Consort and other members of the Royal family contributed generously to the relief fund. The Herald properly reminds Parnell that loose statements of this kind are only calculated to injure the cause that he has so much at heart.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 16.

City and Vicinity.

Skating Rink.—The flag went up at the skating rink this morning indicating that it had been reopened after having been closed two weeks by the thaw.

On Fire.—As a box car on the Madoc train passed down Pinnacle street this morning a flame rose from one of the axle boxes, which had heated, causing the lubricant to take fire.

Cemetery Company.—The annual meeting of the Belleville Cemetery Company is to be held at the office of A. G. Northrup, Esq., the Secretary, in the Shire Hall, on Monday afternoon next at 3 o'clock.

For Penetanguishene.—The boy Page, who robbed Messrs. Fish & Co's., branch store in Madoc, and was convicted in interim sessions, has gone to the Penetanguishene Reformatory, in charge of Mr. Wert, County Constable.

A Success.—The Mechanics' Institute gymnasium is proving very successful under the management of Mr. E. W. Johnston. In the afternoons Mr. Johnston gives instructions to a class of about forty boys, and every night there is a large attendance of young men.

Bitten by Pigs.—The Campbellford Herald says:—"While Mr. Henry Kilpatrick was leading a pig out from the narrow doorway of its pen, to slaughter, lately, two others attacked him and bit him severely, one on the shoulder and the other on the hand."

Curling.—The ice in the Curling Rink is now in excellent condition, and the members have had some good practice. It is probable that the Club will compete for the Governor General's medal, but they labor under a great disadvantage in the inferiority of their rink to those of several others of the competitors.

A Serious Mistake.—Mr. A. G. Scott, of the Stirling House, Stirling, yesterday gave his hogs, four in number, what he supposed was "Condition Powder," but what turned out to be "blue stone" used for killing potato bugs. The result was death to the hogs, and as they averaged 150 lbs each, the mistake turned out to be a serious one.

City Council.—There was quite a stormy time at the last session of the City Council for 1879 last night, but finally the troubled waters were smoothed by the oil adroitly thrown on them by Ald. Holden and Robertson, and the members separated amid mutual expressions of good-will, after passing resolutions highly complimentary to the Mayor and the retiring members. The new Council will meet at 11 a. m. on Monday.

Cheese Factory Work.—The Secretary of the Warkworth cheese factory, writing to the Brighton Ensign says: "There was delivered at the factory, during the season of 1879, 22,74,116 lbs of milk, making 224,197 lbs of cheese, which sold for $18,270.79. Taking 3,000 lbs. of milk for a standard, there was the milk of 758 standard cows received at the factory during the season, the average per standard cow was $24.10. I would like to hear of the factory that can show a better statement."

Legal.—The following local cases were before the Court of Appeal in Toronto on the 14th:—Rollins v. Belleville & N. H. Ry.—An appeal from the County Court of Hastings by the plaintiff. Mr. Dickson for the appeal; Mr. Cameron, Q.C., contra. Appeal dismissed with costs. Davidson v. Belleville & N. H. Ry.—A similar appeal to the above. Mr. Dickson for appellants, the plaintiff; Mr. Cameron, Q. C., contra. Stands for judgment. Pardee v. Lloyd.—Judgment. Appeal allowed with costs of the appeal, and motion in the Court below dismissed with costs.

Special Services.—Special services are being held in the Bridge St. Methodist Church with gratifying results.

St Thomas' Church.—The stained glass windows for St. Thomas' Church are being placed in position; they are very neat and are much admired.

Crowded Out.—The communication of "Philanthropist" has been crowded out to-day by a pressure of other matters. It will appear to-morrow.

Gas Inspection.—The memorial of the City Council asking for the inspection of gas in the City, has been granted by the Government. We are informed the necessary instruments are at the Grand Trunk station here.

"Humming."—If the number of commercial travellers in a village at once is any criterion of the amount of business being done, Stirling must be an exceedingly fortunate place, for yesterday no less than twelve commercial travellers took dinner at the Stirling House. Business was "humming" at Scott's at all events.

Personal.—Mr. J. A. Graham, for some time accountant in the Merchants Bank, Belleville, has been promoted to a more important position in the same Bank at Chatham. Mr. Graham is a young man of much promise, and while his many friends here regret his departure they are gratified that his services have been practically recognized and their best wishes go with him to his new home. His place here will be filled by S. M. King, of Ottawa, who is very highly spoken of by the local press.

Fire at Frankford.—A telegram from Frankford says:—About 8 a. m.. the blacksmith shop of P. T. Garrett, and the carriage shop of A. Weese, were discovered to be on fire and were consumed. Nearly all the contents of both shops were saved. The residence of N. Booth narrowly escaped, all the furniture being removed in a damaged condition. The buildings consumed belonged to Mr. P. Turley, who has ordered his men to make preparations to commence rebuilding to-morrow. Loss about $1,000. No insurance.

Belleville Horticultural Society.

The Belleville Horticultural Society held their annual meeting on the 15th inst., when the annual report was submitted, which showed a balance of $228.46 on hand, which shows that this Society has been very economically managed. There remains only $6.25 of prizes awarded for the past year unpaid.

The following Officers and Directors were elected for the ensuing year:

President—J. H. Peck.
Vice-President—John Brenton.
Sec'y-Treasurer—W. J. Diamond.
Directors—J. W. London, Wm. Matthews, Henry McIninch, Prof. John Macoun, R. S. Patterson, M. Kennedy, W. J. Diamond.
Auditors—J. A. Conger, W. R. Smith.

Police Court.

(Before A. Diamond, P. M.)

Friday, Jan. 16.

CARTAGE.

Alex. Patterson sued John H. Ford for an amount alleged to be due for carting. As the bargain was proved to have been made at a lower rate than claimed by plaintiff, which Mr. Ford had tendered, the case was dismissed.

Sporting Notes.

BOXING.

The Mail says:—"King, in reply to Ross, expresses his willingness to box him with any kind of gloves, but will allow no tripping, as he says he boxes with his hands not with his legs. If Ross really desires to have a match he can have one by putting up a forfeit in some responsible man's hands in Belleville, but King declares he has no mind for newspaper talk."

BRIGHTON WINTER RACES—SECOND DAY.

Brighton, Jan. 15.—The first race was the open trot. Minnie Granger, 1, 1, 1; Maggie Brophy, 3, 2, 3; Anoline, 4, 3, 2; Livery Boy, 2, 4, 4. Special trot—Clara J., 1, 2, 1, 1; Happy Abbott, 2, 1, 2,2. Green trot—Baby, 3, 7, 5, 1, 1, 1; Lady Pert, 1, 1, 2, 3, 2, 3; Postmaster, 5, 4, 3, 2, 3, 2; Independence, 2, 3, 4, 4, 4, 4; Queen, 4, 2, 1, drawn; Richmond, 8, 5, 6, drawn; Pathfinder, 6,6, drawn; Butcher Boy, 7, drawn; Bender Bar, 9, 8, ruled out.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

Mr. Roderick Campbell, of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, and correspondent of the Winnepeg Times, arrived in the city on Saturday night. Mr. Campbell is almost direct from the far West, and he anticipates no trouble from either Cree or Sioux Indians.

While Mr. Robert Johnston, of Seaforth, was driving to Mitchell, his team became troublesome to him, and in his endeavors to bring them to subjection he was thrown on his back. In the fall a bottle of aquafortis he had in his pocket was broken, and the contents burnt his flesh frightfully.

Davis' Pain Killer.—The best and most popular Family Medicine in the world. A blessing to the rich; a friend to the poor; within the reach of all, it has saved more lives and relieved more suffering incidental to travelling than any other medicine.

From numerous cases of Dyspepsia and Constipation cured by the use of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, after every other known remedy had been used in vain, its efficacy in restoring the functions of Digestion and Evacuation is manifest.

Allen's Lung Balsam excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the Blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Sold by Druggists.

PRINCE BISMARCK.

Rumored Death of the German Chancellor.

London, Jan. 16.—It is reported that Prince Bismarck died this morning. The rumor is unconfirmed.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 16.—Louis Autonat, butcher, Wm. Lowman, and Robt. Keifer engaged in a drunken row last night, during which Autonat drew a butcher knife and cut Keifer's throat fatally; he claims self-defence.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 16.—A great strike among the coal miners, extending through the Monongahela and Mahoning valleys, and along the Panhandle, Baltimore & Ohio, and Pennsylvania Railroads. Many iron mills will have to shut down, on account of lack of fuel. A coal famine exists here, in the heart of the coal region. The miners having demanded an advance, were ordered to stop work by the miners' organization. New men are being put to work in some mines, probably there will be the usual riots.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 16.—This remarkable weather has ripened the strawberries, and shipments to New York will probably commence this week.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Sun's Augusta special says that the evidence elicited by the bribery investigation committee is very damaging to Blaine, it apparently being demonstrated that he was the party who furnished funds with which to corrupt the Legislature. Chamberlain is trying to please everybody, and really pleasing nobody. He is said to be completely under Blaine's control.

The Sun says the true history of the causes of the Meeker massacre, as related by Gen. Adams before the House committee yesterday, disclosed that Meeker was blameworthy for harsh treatment of the Utes.

New York, Jan. 16.—The schooner Van Name, arrived yesterday from York River, reports an exceedingly stormy passage. Two sailors fastening a sail aloft fell into the water and were drowned.

A bill to elect Presidential electors by Congressional districts, has been introduced in the New Jersey Legislature.

Twenty negroes arrived from Arkansas yesterday desiring to go to Liberia As they could not be accommodated, they were sent to their friends in Pennsylvania.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

London, Jan. 16.—A Berlin despatch says that the rumors of a disagreeable affair between Russian and Prussian officer at Kaleshe are fully confirmed, and elicit strong comments in military circles. The Russians became so excited that they actually drew swords on their guests, and bloodshed was only prevented by the intervention of a Russian Colonel, who conducted the Prussians to his own quarters, and ordered an escort of 30 Hussars to conduct them to the frontier, as he feared the Russian officers would lay in ambuscade. Profuse apologies will doubtless be made at St. Petersburg, but the affair illustrates the feeling prevalent in Russian military circles. The Post, a semi-monthly newspaper, says: What occurred shows the sentiments of the Russian army regarding Germany, and which, in view of the army's influence on the Russian polity, will sooner or later, according to opportunity, be translated into actions.

London, Jan. 16th.—It is reported that a meeting has been arranged in this city of representatives of all the revolutionary societies throughout Europe. It is stated that Germany and Russia have asked the British Government to prevent it.

Pesth, Jan. 16.—Rioting was renewed last night on a formidable scale, the gas lamps in front of the Casino Club house were broken, and shots were fired at the police. One policeman was wounded and 21 rioters were arrested.

Calcutta, Jan. 16.—The five thousand Mahomedans, who crossed Cabul river near Dakka, have been completely defeated.

Dublin, Jan. 16.—The Irish relief fund instituted by the Duchess of Marlborough now amounts to $65,000.

London, Jan. 16.—A Vienna coorrespondent says the worst Pesth mobs are composed entirely of Boros and roughs. The International Society is believed to be at the bottom of the mischief. All newspapers denounce the authors of the tumult.

London, Jan. 16.—The police escorting a party of process servers, at Kilmina, County of Mayo, were severely maltreated last night and obliged to retreat, though they had rifles loaded and bayonets fixed. Several police were cut, the process servers' clothing torn, and the process captured by a mob.

New York, Jan. 15.—It is stated at the office of the Musical and Dramatic Times, that information has led to the belief that Freund, the proprietor of that journal, who disappeared a short time ago, had suicided by drowning himself.

Irvington, Ill., Jan. 16.—While William Norton sat at breakfast with his family yesterday, Al. Forbes shot him dead through a window. There was an old feud between the parties. Forbes was arrested.

Augusta, Jan. 16.—At 5 o'clock Richard's light infantry of Gardiner had orders to appear at their armory at 9 o'clock this morning. The men were gathering early. No disturbance at the State House last night. None are admitted without a pass to-day.

New York, Jan. 15.—Yesterday Paddy Ryan, Troy, pugilist and Jos. Goss, signed the articles to fight for $1,000 a side, and the championship of America.

Arrived, the Greece from London.

Boston, Jan. 15.—An Augusta special says that it is reported by good authority that the executive order has been prepared to relieve Gen. Chamberlain from the command, which will be served this afternoon.

Waterville, Me., Jan. 16.—The Directors of Lockwood Co. voted that in view of the present condition of matters pertaining to the government of this State, we cannot ask capitalists to join us in the erection of a new mill, that question being indefinitely postponed.

Boston, Jan. 16.—The ship Formosa, of Salem, going from the Phillippine Isles for Boston, was lost near Jova sea. All hands were saved. Loss, $240,000.

Armstrong, Ks., Jan. 16.—Calvin Thompson was adjudged insane yesterday, he arose early and shot Jas. Morris his step father. Thompson was to have been taken to the asylum to-day.

"Teaberry," the new powder for whitening the teeth, stimulating the mouth and purifying the breath; the brightest, neatest, cosiest little toilet gem extant. Ask your druggist for "Teaberry." Price 35 cents. d&wly

WEATHER REPORTS.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk southerly to westerly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy warmer weather and light rain in some localities.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer winds, increasing cloudiness, occasional rain or snow, probably followed by cooler weather.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of Bins enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

Wit and Humor.

A saloon keeper having started business in a place where trunks had been made, asked a friend what he had better do with the old sign, Trunk Factory." "Oh," said the friend, just change the T' to 'D,' and it will suit you exactly."

At a social re-union a few evenings ago the question was asked, "Of what sort of fruit do a quarrelsome man and wife remind you?" The young lady who promptly answered "A prickly pear" got the medal.

The materials for a dime novel generally consists of ten Indians, a white saint and a white villain, a pretty girl, a dozen bowie-knives and as many revolvers. These, if properly mixed up, will make the hair of the average youth stand erect for a week.

Wealthy Mr. Grove, of Washington, Ind., sent a dollar to his runaway daughter at Indianapolis, with the message that it was all she would ever get from him, and that she might "go to hell with it." She remarked that she would go there at once, and commited suicide.

It may not be true, but it is said that an Irishman, after he had seen the numerous hills and mountain ranges of New Hampshire, exclaimed, "Bedad, I never was in a country before where they had so much land that they had to stack it."

"You have got a treasure in that woman, if she is my daughter," said a fond parent to a son-in-law on his wedding-day. "You just wait till the Sheriff calls, and see what kind of a reception she will give him."

The teacher of a class in natural history gave out this question; "Which is the meekest of all domestic animals?" A young man who had passed the previous summer at Long Branch promptly replied; "The mosquito, because if you hit it on one cheek and don't kill it, it comes back again and gives you a chance to hit it on the other."

A clothes-line is a harmless thing,
When stretched from pole to pole;
Until you start across the yard
And step into a hole,
Then as you make a forward lunge,
It stops you, so to speak,
And throws you down and jerks you to
The middle of neck's tweak.

An affected yonng lady, on being asked, in a large company, if she had read Shakespeare, assumed a look of astonishment, and replied :—"Read Shakespeare? Of course I have; I read that when it first came out."

The beauteous, buxom Bertha Bangs
Is one of our divinest girls;
She bangs the doors and bangs the chairs,
And likewise bangs her auburn curls.
She bangs on the pianny, too,
And bangs upon the light guitar—
But oh, of all the bangs she bangs
She mostly bangs her auburn ha'r.

If you are courting a young lady, and wish, before you take her, to ascertain her temper, tear her ball-dress as if by accident. If she keeps her equanimity, lose not a moment in popping the momentous question. She will do, and you may count yourself a happy man.

Dar's a lantern in de window fo' me,
And de angels'll listen to my song;
W'en I gets ready fo' ter go ober dar,
Hanner, you be ready,
An' we'll step, togedder steady,
W'en ole Gab'el comes and pounds on de gong.

There is an old negro song that ought to be translated into white man's poetry. It runs thus:—
Brother sees mote in's brother's eye,
An' can't see the beam in's own;
You go home, sweep out your own door,
An' leave yo' brudder alone.

"And how does Charlie like going to school?" kindly inquired the good man of the little six-year-old boy, who was awaiting with a tin can in his hand the advent of another dog. "I like goin' well enough," replied the embryo statesman, ingeniously, "but I don't like stayin' after I get there."

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold. they are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

Medford, Mass., Sept. 18, 1879.

Mr. Giles—Dear Sir: I have used your Iodide Ammonia Liniment and find it the best remedy I ever used. For a sprain or callous there is nothing equal to it. My wife sprained her ankle last Saturday evening; I used the Liniment as per directions; the second application was a perfect cure. Some of my friends started last night for Johnson Co., Kentucky; they have taken several bottles with them. I have used it on my horses and it works like a charm. I am going to Kentucky next month—farming. If you have any works treating of horses and other animals, please send me two or three copies, and oblige, Yours respectfully,

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness, or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liner Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879. Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

A FOLDED LEAF.

A folded page, old, stained and blurred,
I found within your book last night.
I did not read the dim dark word
I saw it in the slow-waning light;
So put it back, and left it there,
As if in truth I did not care.

Ah! we have all a folded leaf
That in Time's book of long ago
We leave: a half-relief
Falls on us as we hide it so,
We fold it down, then turn away,
And who may read that page to-day?

Not you, my child; nor you, my wife,
Who sit beside my study chair;
For all have something in their life
That they, and they alone may bear—
A trifling lie, a deadly sin,
A something bought they did not win.

My folded leaf! how blue eyes gleam
And blot the dark brown eyes I see;
And golden curls at evening beam
Above the black locks at my knee!
Ah me! that leaf is folded down,
And aye for me the locks are brown.

And yet I love them who sit by,
My best and dearest—dearest now,
They may not know for what I sigh,
What brings the shadow on my brow,
Ghosts at the best; so let them be,
Nor come between my life and me.

They only rise at twilight hour;
So light the lamp, and close the blind,
Small perfume lingers in the flower
That sleeps that folded page behind.
So let it ever folded lie;
'Twill be unfolded when I die.

TWO.

To one who brought the rarest flowers
That gold could buy;
And gave them with a courteous smile
That masked a sigh;
Upon the other he bestowed,
With scarce a look,
A few wild violets gathered by
A wayside brook.

When from the skies that golden day
Went out the sun,
Of all the flowers the first received
Remained now one!
Some lurid swans, some gayly graced
The fawn she petted;
Some decked her starling's cage; all died,
Not once regretted;

The other day, shyly, from the world
Turned her apart,
And hid her wayside violets
Upon her heart,
And he who gave to each that day
Such different share,
By one was scorned; the other breathed

Years afterward, a women died—
A lovely creature,
Whose sorrows were not written out
On form and feature
But they who shrouded her, do say
Dead on her breast,
Close, close unto her cold, dumb heart,
Were violets pressed!

Sunday Reading.

Live While You Live.

"Live while you live, the epicure would say,
And seize the pleasure of the transient day,
Live while you live, the sacred preacher cries,
And give to God each moment as it flies."

Finding how short-lived is everything terrestial, should we on that account be sad desponding? On the contrary, we should learn to make the most of the passing hour. We should also acquire the habit of adapting ourselves to the fluctuating conditions in which we are placed and of compelling even untoward circumstances to minister to our enjoyment. Yesterday the sun shone. That was enough. Everything seemed bright. To-night it is dark. The storm rages fiercely without. We hear the hard-frozen hailstones beating piteously against the windows. Shall we sit down and pine over the vanished sunshine? Instead of that we lay a few sticks of seasoned wood across the andirons, and apply a match to them. Lo, the blaze flashes up. The room, so cheerless a few minutes ago, is now all aglow. The very raging of the storm outside imparts a keener relish to the comfort within, and becomes a minister to our happiness. Thus we contend successfully against the elements and compel them into our servitude. So, like a bright fire in a dark night, do cheerful words light up a household and banish care and trouble. Nine-tenths of the worry of life is borrowed for nothing. Do your part; never have it undone. Be industrious; be prudent; be courageous. Then throw anxiety to the winds. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof; therefore do not borrow any for to-morrow. So also is the good of the day usually sufficient if we make the most of it. It is not enough to enjoy life yourself. Indeed selfish enjoyment is always incomplete. Give your over-laden companions a lift with their loads. The "lift cure," from a moral point of view, is a most significant phrase. Live while you live by helping others to enjoy life. Life is made up of little things; therefore do the little things which spread sunshine around your path. Hope, Help, Love. These are good words to speak and to hear spoken; good at the beginning of the year, good throughout the year; good at its close. Whether life be long or short, live while you live—not for yourself alone, but for yourself and for others.

The Book of Books.

The Bible is the most intense book ever written. Sometimes people have expressed the desire for the salvation of their friends, but it was left for Paul to say 'I could wish myself accursed for my brethren and companion's sake according to the flesh.' Others have described sorrow, but it was left for Samuel to describe the grief of David and his men at the loss of their wives and families, when it is said, 'They wept until they could weep no more.' Other writers have dealt in pathos, but it was left to Luke to gather up the cypress of them all, and put it into one sentence: 'He was the only son of his mother, and she was a widow'. Others have described how strong drink slays a man, but it was left for this book to say, 'Look not upon the wine when it is red when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright, for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.' Others have described the doom of those who maltreat their parents, but it was left for the Bible to say, 'The eye that mocketh at his father and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, the young eagles shall eat it.'

The writers of the Bible do not hover round about the truth, but they drop on it swift as a hawk. They don't just strike sin and then glance off—with one stroke of the battle-axe they cleave sin from helmet to sandal.

Oh, this book is the hive of all sweetness! It is the armory of all well tempered weapons. It is the home of all majestic and splendors. It is the marriage ring that unites the celestial and terrestrial, while all the white-robed denizens of the sky stand around to rejoice at the nuptials. It is the wreath into which are twisted all garlands, the song into which are struck all the harmonies. It is the river into which are poured all the great tides of Hallelujah. It is the firmament into which the suns and moons and stars and constellations, and all the galaxies, and all the immensities, and all the universes roll and blaze and triumph.—Talmage.

Deliver us from Evil.

The Lord has taught us to pray for deliverance from evil. That means that he is working to effect our deliverance, and that in our struggle we have the strength of his hand and the purpose of his heart on our side. And he has two great instruments to whose final working he trusts absolutely, though their method lies deep and works in ways which we cannot always trace or understand. They are Light and Love; the declaration of his mind about evil, and the revelation of his heart. The blindest students of the Old Testament can see that its word is a doctrine which "makes for righteousness;" that it has one clear, consistent aim from the first chapter to the last, to bear witness and make head against the evil which is everywhere corrupting and destroying mankind. And its force lay in the fact that it professed to be, and was felt to be, the declaration of the mind of the God of Heaven about man's thoughts and ways. It was the voice of God who made man, who made all things, and whose word, therefore, had the whole force of the universe on its side. Judaism and Christianity have wielded their power in all ages, through the belief which they were able to inspire that in their revelation of the living God was laying bare the truth of things to mankind. It was light shining from heaven in the darkness, that man might see and know his way. And it has this sacred element of power—the light from heaven comes to the being who is born for heaven, and to whom the truth is the light of his native sphere. It is not the command of a lord to a slave; it is the word of a king to his native subject; it is the voice of a father to his child, that has in the ring of its tones the form of its message a hold, the strength of which is not easily explored, on the child's or the subject's heart.—Christian World.

When Every One Does A Little the Result is Great Things.

"Give me every tenth pinch of snuff," said the eloquent Chalmers to his countrymen, "and I'll erect for you school-houses and churches in every nook and corner of the land." It is needless to say that they didn't give it to him. There is a class of men here and there who although not wholly past feeling, do feel most when money is leaving them. That fetches their emotions, for the transfer is like drawing teeth. When every one in a large family contributes equally to domestic work, what is called home drudgery becomes less irksome and the work is soon completed. Thirteen needles busy at a quilt bee, for instance, soon makes sightly coverings for the children, grandam, or the widow's family in a neighboring street. We are told as a fact, by those who have looked into the subject deeply, that it is only every fourth or fifth person earns what the other three or four eats, spend and wear. This is an arrangement which soon enfeebles the willing horse and gives the dropsy to the other lazy, spending beasts. When every one does a little there is not much to be done. There is time left for mental improvement and social enjoyment for each member of the circle. There are daughters who let their mothers do the most of the work, which is one way of putting the cart before the horse, and there are sons—plenty of them—who spend freely and earn sparingly. This is all wrong. We once boarded in a family where the old gentleman (he was a good man, but too indulgent to his children) used to get up at 5:15 on a cold winter's morning to light the fire while his good-for-nothing sons and daughters snored in bed and complained at their meals. There was a young dandy got dead in love with one of the daughters. We took the liberty of counseling him against the alliance, but our words were as if addressed to the east wind. That couple, neither of whom liked work, have had their own troubles the last seven years. Until they change their ways their troubles may be expected to continue. They pay no pew rent. The temperance movement is never supported by a cent of their money. Their aunts look to them for a little assistance in their declining years. They began life badly. The end is often like the beginning. There is something in the survival of the fittest.

Future State.

The Scriptures teach us that our future state will be blessed or unhappy, according to the relation we sustain to Christ at death. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord;" and "even so also them which sleep in Jesus, will God bring with him;" teaching that those who die in relation to Christ indicated by these texts shall not only be raised from the dead, but raised to a state of happiness. The relation of the saved soul to Christ is indicated by the language, "Abide in me, and I in you." It is one of mutual indwelling, in which "God dwelleth in him, and he in God." By this mutual indwelling we come into a union with Christ, which is represented to be as close and perfect as that of the branch to the vine. As the branch draws its life from the vine, so the christian derives his life from God. Thus is the believer made a partaker of the Divine nature; that is, not only is his life "hid with Christ in God;" but Christ's life is in him. It is the possession of the life of Christ that constitutes the Christian's sure pledge of a happy immortality; for his life is not only essentially immortal, but must, from its very nature, be eternally blessed. Being partakers of his divine nature, we shall therefore be partakers of his blessedness. "Dying in the Lord," that is, with his essentially blessed life in us, we shall rise to a participation in his glory; "for when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory."—Western Christian Advocate.

How to do Religious Work.

The secret of Paul's amazing accomplishments was his consecration to one work. "This one thing I do." Everything was subordinated to this. "God forbid," he says, "that I should glory save in the cross of Christ." Without reference to his own case, to the forbidding character of surrounding circumstances, he simply gave himself unreservedly to the work of the ministry. There are many things to distract a minister's attention at the present day. The spiritual condition of the Church offers not a few serious impediments to the progress of Christ's kingdom upon earth; but if a pastor has a single eye, a single purpose, a Christian persistency—if he yields everything besides, and knows nothing among his people but "Christ and him crucified," something will move. Heaven will move toward him, and earth will feel the approach of the holy presence. This undivided consecration to christian work is the want of the hour; and this only will conquer the thousand and one interposing obstacles which the prince of the powers of the air will inspire worldly hearts to suggest in opposition to an earnest spiritual reformation.—Zion's Herald.

What man in his right senses, that has the wherewithal to live free, would make himself a slave for superfluities? What does that man want that has enough? Or what is he better for abundance that can never be satisfied?

Story of a Boot-Black.

More than a hundred years ago, there lived in the city of Oxford a boy whose name was George. He was very poor, so much so that he was compelled to clean the boots of the students at the University to obtain money with which to buy the necessaries of life. His countenance was one of the ordinary appearance. His eyes were keen and piercing, his forehead noble and lofty, and every feature of his face was perfectly developed. By his easy and polite manners, his obliging disposition, and his warm and generous nature, he soon won the confidence and esteem of many of those upon whom he waited. The poverty of clothing served better to show the richness of his mind, which needed only cultivation to make it one of the brightest in the whole country. The students of the University, seeing such noble qualities in the lowly and humble boot-black, determined to educate him, and many of them devoted no little share of their time to that purpose. They found him ready, willing and studious. He lost not a moment of his precious time, but applied himself diligently, perserveringly to his studies, and soon became equal, if not superior, to some of his instructors.

His advance in merit was very rapid: so great was it, that numbers were unable to recognize in the gifted and talented young man the once poor and needy boot-black. About this time there was a great change in the religion of England. There arose a sect who were strict observers of the Lord's Day, faithful readers of God's word, and who had stated engagements in prayer. With this party George immediately connected himself, and soon became one of the ablest and most consistent members. The youths who once sought his company now treated him with sneering and contempt.

Those who once considered him a young man of extraordinary abilities, then considered him a reckless fanatic, and avoided his society as they would have done a poor drunkard. All this did not move him. He was firm as a rock. Like Moses, he preferred a life of Christian consistency to the enjoyment of sin for a season. His unchanging conduct won for him many warm and ardent admirers, and many who formerly branded him as a fanatic became his best friends. He soon became one of the most pious and talented preachers in England, and such numbers flocked to hear him that the largest house in London could not contain them.

He preached in the open fields to thousands upon thousands, and the great amount of good which he did eternity only shall tell. Would you like to know the name of the boy who blackened the boots of the students at Oxford University? It was George Whitefield.

Heart Sympathy.

How many times we find ourselves surrounded by a crowd, yet a spirit of loneliness is about us! The people are not congenial, therefore no sociability exists—no heart sympathy.

Many a family is thus situated. Many married couples are dragging along a weary existence, barely tolerating each other's society, and vainly hoping for something to occur to vary the tedious, monotonous life before them. This is sad, indeed. But where is the remedy? Only for each one to forget self, and live for each other. As soon as we try in earnest to brighten another's life, then we begin to live the true life inculcated by the Saviour. By doing to each other as we would that others should do unto us, we secure happiness.—MRS. J. M. EMERY.

Gems of Thought.

In whatsoever house you enter, remain master of your eyes and your tongue.

Where domestic rule is not founded upon love and respect it is mere despotism.

A man who is not ashamed of himself need not be ashamed of his early condition.

A man must have a bad opinion of himself not to be willing to appear what he really is.

Never be drawn into a family quarrel. They are battles which are better fought without allies.

A great many men die beggars by not improving the time they spend in wishing that their rich neighbor's shekels were theirs.

The more a man knows about any subject the greater will be his charity for and sympathy with views differing from his own.

Men trust rather to their eyes than their ears; the effect of precepts is therefore slow and tedious, while that of example is summary and effectual.

There are some men who are busy in idleness, and make the leisure of peace not only more troublesome, but even more wicked, than the business of war.

"Avarice in old age," says Cicero, "is foolish; for what can be more absurd than to increase our provisions for the road the nearer we approach our journey's end?

Whenever it may be needed to mention anything to the disadvantage of another, let it be done with truthfulness, tenderness, humility, and with recollection of how much has been forgiven you.

The cultured man is free from prejudices, which are the most difficult to eradicate from the heart whose soil has never been loosened or fertilized by education; they grow there as firm as weeds among rocks.

When we are young we waste a great deal of time in imagining what we will do when we grow older; and when we are old we waste an equal amount of time in wondering why we waited so long before we began to do anything.

Persevere against discouragement. Keep your temper. Employ leisure in study, and always have some work on hand. Be punctual and methodical in business, and never procrastinate. Never be in a hurry. Preserve self-possession, and do not be talked out of conviction.

A vacant mind takes all the meaning out of the fairest face. A sensual disposition deforms the handsomest features. A cold, selfish heart shrivels the best looks. A mean, groveling spirit takes all the dignity out of the figure and all the character out of the countenance. A cherished hatred transforms the most beautiful lineaments into an image of ugliness.

There is a great deal of difference between modesty and bashfulness. The latter is a terror of being approached by strangers, or confronted with an unaccustomed fact or position, and proceeds from egotism. Modesty is never self-assertive. It doubts itself, but is never afraid to express its willingness to attempt what is asked, and when we are successful, modesty prevents us from boasting, or supercilious assertion.

Learn to entwine with your prayers the small cares, the trifling sorrows, the little wants of daily life. Whatever affects you—be it a changed look, an altered tone, an unkind word, a wrong, a wound, a demand you cannot meet, a charge you cannot notice, a sorrow you cannot disclose—turn it into prayer, and send it up to God. Disclosures you may not make to man you can make to the Lord. Man may be too little for your great matters; God is not too great for your small ones. Only give yourself to prayer, whatever be the occasion that call for it.—Winslow

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, JANY. 17.

The West Riding.

The report that Mr. E. G. Sills, of Frankford, had been induced to re-consider his previously expressed determination, and to accept the Grit candidacy for the seat in the Ontario Legislature for West Hastings, turns out to be correct. We had hoped that a contest would be avoided, because it is thoroughly well understood by the leading Reformers of the constituency that there is not the slightest chance of defeating Mr. Robertson ; but this reasonable expectation has been disappointed and the people will now have to bear the unwelcome excitement and asperities of a political contest which has been forced upon them for purely factious purposes. That Mr. Sills has yielded to the counsels of a factious few against his better judgment we are convinced, and that he will regret his compliance, even if tardy, with solicitations made to him is also tolerably certain ; for that he is being made the cats-paw of a few irreconcilables, who, we venture to assert, are not in sympathp with many of the leading members of their party in the matter, is apparant to the most superficial observer. Had there been a reasonable prospect of success it is safe to presume that Mr. E. G. Sills would not have been the nominee ; but as Messrs. Gordon, Holden, Flint and Burdett all declined to weaken themselves by being defeated by a large majority, Mr. Sills was selected by the factionists as the instrument to annoy Mr. Robertson, as they know well that their opposition can amount to nothing beyond annoyance to the Conservative candidate.

But it may be asked, What has Mr. Sills or what has the Grit party to gain by the course which they are pursuing ? It may be that the candidate expects to secure control of the patronage of the constituency ; but perhaps Mr. Holden, who fought the battle at the general election and in the Courts, may have something to say on that subject. And surely the Government party, which has so powerful a majority in the Legislature, can hardly covet one more seat, in order to increase their already undue preponderance in the counsels of the Province. If so, their selfishness ought to meet with the rebuke which it deserves. The Mowat Government have always been extravagant, and with the erection of Parliament buildings and other large works on hand, they will require to be more closely watched than ever, and this Mr. Robertson will do without opposing any good measures which they may propose.

The duty of our friends in the premises is clear. It is that they should at once organize thoroughly throughout the constituency and be prepared to cast a majority equal to if not exceeding that of June last for Mr. Robertson. That gentleman, through the indiscretion of some three or four of his friends, for which action he was in no wise responsible, has been put to a great deal of trouble and expense, and deprived of the seat to which he was elected by a large majority of the free and independent electors of the riding. It is therefore incumbent upon his friends to rally once more to his support and to teach the clique who have put forward Mr. Sills that West Hastings is true to herself and to the deliberate choice which she made in the general election of last year.

BISMARCK.—It was reported from New York that Bismarck died yesterday morning, but a despatch this morning reports the Prince "more improved in health."

STORMONT.—The nomination of candidates for the representation of Stormont in the Local Legislature took place at Newington on the 16th inst. Mr. Kerr, the lately unseated member, and Mr. Findlay McNaughton were proposed.

THE SPEAKER OF THE SENATE.—The Citizen regrets to learn that in consequence of the accident which the Hon. R. D. Wilmot, Speaker of the Senate, met with some time ago, it is doubtful if the Hon. gentleman will be able to resume his parliamentary duties at the approaching session.

DOMINION ALLIANCE.—In the Temperance Hall, Toronto, on the 15th, the first annual convention of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance was commenced, the chair being occupied by the President the Rev. Dr. Dewart. The questions discussed were : Should the Government issue licenses for the retailing of beer and light wines and the judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick that the Scott Act is ultra vires of the House of Commons.

DAVIS' PAIN KILLER.—The best and most popular Family Medicine in the world. A blessing to the rich ; a friend to the poor ; within the reach of all, it has saved more lives and relieved more suffering incident to travelling than any other medicine.

The Grand Junction Railway and the City.

The letter presented to the City Council on Thursday night in the name of the Grand Junction Railway Company, but which really emanated from Mr. Bickford, as it was written and signed by Mr. Cameron, his Solicitor, looks very like an attempt at bluffing the Council into carrying out his desires. In this communication Mr. Bickford threatens legal proceedings against the Corporation unless the debentures for the $25,000 made payable on completion of the line to Hastings are placed in the hands of the trustees appointed for that purpose, and to add to the terror of this threat he says he will also seek to recover interest on the first granted bonus of $100,000, the coupons for which were cut off before delivery of the debentures to the trustees ; and besides all this to appeal to the Legislature, which has before stood his friend in a dispute with the City Council. All this, unless the Council will pass a By-law simply and unconditionally extending the time for the completion of the road to Peterborough for one year. Moreover, Mr. Bickford obligingly informs the Council that the conditions of Mr. Holden's By-law are "beyond the authority of the Council to attach to the By-law," and are therefore void.

Much as we desire to see the Grand Junction Railway completed to Peterborough and Omemee, constantly as we have advocated liberality towards its promoters, and greatly as disputes and litigation are to be deprecated in connection with an enterprise which has been delayed for years from such causes, we yet cannot but advise the Council to adhere to the conditions which they, following out the formal expression of the ratepayers in public meeting assembled, saw fit to attach to the extension of time asked for by the contractors. The people might have decreed and the Council would have felt bound to carry out their determination, that the extension of time should not be granted, and the result would have been the blocking of the enterprise for years, perhaps for all time. But recognizing the mutuality of the interests of the promoters of the railway and themselves, they simply asked as a substantial guarantee that the condition under which they voted the bonus, which the Council had varied without their authority and as it proved against their wishes, and which was forced upon them by the Legislature, should be restored, namely the payment of the $50,000 on the completion of the road to Peterborough. They showed their liberality also by going further than this, and agreeing to pay interest on the $25,000 which was due on completion to Hastings, from the date of the report of the arbitrator named in the By-law (Walter Shanly, Esq., C. E.). Thus the contractors could lose nothing, if they had finished and equipped the line to Hastings, as they contend they have done ; but this reasonable proposition Mr. Bickford rejects, and apparently tries by threats to make of our City Council a mere machine for registering his decrees.

The contention that the Council can do no more than simply pass a By-law extending the time seems absurd, when it is considered that the Legislature declared that the Council had power to vary the terms on which the By-law was passed by the people. Again, we cannot think that as the Council have been given power to extend the time unconditionally, they may not do so conditionally. In fact, if the conditions in Mr. Holden's By-law are illegal, there is no occasion for litigation, as, the conditions being bad in law would fall to the ground, whilst the extension, about the legality of which there is no dispute, would stand alone, just as Mr. Bickford desires it. Still, we scarcely think he would risk his case on such a construction of the law, although the wording of the letter leads us to believe that it is the conditions only, and not the By-law as a whole, which Mr. Cameron professes to consider void.

We trust that litigation may be avoided, but believing that the people should have a voice in the disposal of their own money; that the contractors, being men of large capital, can arrange for funds to prosecute their work with; that they are not entitled to the $25,000 which they claim, and that they have been dealt with liberally, taking all the circumstances into consideration, we hope that the Council will not be coerced by threats into abandoning the position which they now occupy.

LANDING OF EXPORTED SHEEP.—The Treasury Department at Washington is in receipt of information that the British Government has issued orders, which took effect on the 1st inst. under which sheep from the United States may be landed in Ireland without quarantine, and without being slaughtered at the place of landing.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS.—Mr. Moylan, Inspector of Penitentiaries, says there are at present confined in the penitentiaries no less than 1,300 convicts, a considerable increase over last year. Of these 760 are incarcerated in the Kingston Penitentiary, 340 in St. Vincent de Paul, 80 in Dorchester, 80 in Halifax, and the remaining 40 are distributed between the British Columbia and Manitoba penitentiaries. Of the total number there, only thirty-two are females. These statistics compare most favorably with New York State, there being in the State Prison alone over 1,500 convicts.

VICEREGAL.—An Ottawa despatch says Captain Chater, who formerly acted as side-de-camp to His Excellency, but who was called to rejoin the 91st Regiment and proceed to Zululand, will again resume his old position here. Captain Collins, of the 57th Regiment, is also an side-de-camp. The Princess will be accompanied by two newly-appointed ladies in waiting, the Hon. Mr. Langham and Lady Pelly, Lady Sophia Macnamara remaining in England. The report of a contemplated visit to England by the Princess next autumn is unfounded.

From numerous cases of Dyspepsia and Constipation cured by the use of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, after every other known remedy had been used in vain, its efficacy in restoring the functions of Digestion and Evacuation is manifest.

The Fisheries.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

The annual return of the Fisheries in the Bay of Quinte Division for the year 1879, shows an estimated commercial value of $23,376—some $10,000 less than the preceding year—owing (unquestionably) to the various and varied changes of the weather, acting upon the water, as well as the atmosphere, thus shortening the fishing season to about 12 days. Had the fishing season been as lengthy as that of former years, the catch would have been equal, if not exceeding, that of former seasons. From 1869 to 1879, during which I have been overseer, the commercial value of the yearly catch of fish has increased about three hundred per cent, and that of a superior quality. This increase shows that the value of the fisheries in this Division is becoming of considerable commercial note. Those caught in the waters of the Bay of Quinte the last year amounted to 275,000 pounds, one-tenth of which is used for local consumption. Another feature in the commercial value of the fisheries in this section (which is now becoming apparent) is, the breeding of salmon in the rivers tributary to the Bay of Quinte. About five years ago Mr. Wilmot, of Newcastle, put about 200,000 salmon fry into the river Trent and the Moira river, which are now appearing in nearly full grown salmon, thus establishing the practicability of fish breeding. It is to be hoped that Mr. Wilmot will continue to stock these rivers with salmon fry, and in a few years we will have plenty of delicious salmon.

CHAS. WILKINS,
Fishery Overseer.

Belleville, Jan. 16, 1880.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR,—I have no desire to cavil with my critic, "An Irishman," as he is in favor of something being done for the relief of his countrymen However, I must say that had he paid a little more attention to my words he certainly would have seen that I am not in love with the idea of Mr. Parnell's coming to our city ; that I do not approve of the action of the "few young men" who took upon themselves the responsibility of inviting him here ; that the purport of my letter was the enlisting the sympathy of my fellow citizens in behalf of the suffering or starving Irish. He would also have perceived that my desire is that, with him, "partyism be avoided" and that whatever action may be taken in the matter should be the outcome of charity, or at least philanthrophy—politics and agitation apart. It is true I suggested that if Mr. Parnell were to be invited to lay before us the suffering of his people, the invitation should emanate, not from any Society, no matter what its name, but from the citizens through the Chief Magistrate. I also hinted that a public meeting should be called to discuss the most feasible, not as your typo or devil put it (the devil, not you, is always at mischief) the most possible means of raising a fund to be forwarded the Duchess of Marlborough ; so this surely does not look like favoring agitation.

Now, therefore, that we are one on the great point, charity, I am prepared to overlook my friend's reference to agitators, and join hands with him in any legitimate scheme he may propose for the alleviating the pangs of hunger which the unfortunate people are now enduring.

What course, friend Irishman, do you suggest? You know that Nero fiddled while Rome burned, and it may be that while I pen these lines many are being carried off to a premature grave by the dire scourge, hunger. Speak again, my friend, speak please, that you, I and the charitable of the City—they are many, thank God—may hasten with one crumb of relief, no matter however small, to the dying thousands. We have in ethics a beautiful axiom which says "who gives timely, gives twice" let us therefore be up and doing.

We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

ASTRONOMICAL.—The great red spot on Jupiter that was described last summer continues to attract the attention of observers. Its vast extent (if it is an opening, the earth could be dropped through it), its peculiar color, and permanence of form and position make it probably the most remarkable object on the disk of Jupiter with which physical astronomy has ever had to deal. Bredechin, a Russian observer, has noted an interesting peculiarity about this spot. He has detected brilliant white ridges of matter surrounding the spot, resembling those that are seen in the neighborhood of sun spots. This seems to favor the view of those who regard Jupiter as a kind of half-lustrous sun—a sun whose fires are dying out, and which, in the course of some millions of years, may become a fit abode of life.

That "little birds do in their nests agree" is no credit to the little birds, because it would never do for them to fall out.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, JANY. 17.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—There were four tramps and one prisoner in the cells last night.

OPEN.—A considerable part of the bay from Trenton eastward is open, the ice having broken up.

CITY COUNCIL.—The City Council for 1880 will meet at 11 a. m. on Monday for the purpose of organization.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A woman named Hayes living at Napanee was seriously burned last night by her clothes taking fire. She died this morning.

GYMNASTICS.—A Gymnastic Club has been formed in connection with the Mechanics' Institute, which institution appears to be flourishing in its new premises.

BOAT BUILDING.—Messrs. Tisdale are preparing vigorously for next season's operations. Since winter set in they have built nine new skiffs, all of cedar, and are now busy on a tenth.

THE ICE HARVEST.—Ice dealers, evidently fearing a break up of the ice in the bay, have already begun to harvest their crop. The ice is poor, being not over twelve inches in thickness.

AQUATICS.—Hanlan will not row Courtney, as he proposes, for the patent medicine $6,000 prize, unless the money is placed in the hands of the Referee before he signs articles.

MINING MACHINERY.—A steam winch, a forty horse power boiler, and an amalgamating pan are being manufactured at Brown's foundry for the Gatling Gold Mining Company.

FIRE.—A bed in a house on Great St. James Street, tenanted by Ida Cole, took fire last night and was burned. The firemen were called out, but there was no occasion for their services.

IN A NEW DRESS.—On Wednesday last the Oswego Palladium donned a new dress of type, and presents a handsome appearance. The Pall. is one of the best of our exchanges, and we note this evidence of its prosperity with much pleasure.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.—The special sermons will be preached to-morrow (D.V.) "On the observance of the Sabbath Day," in the Bible Christian Church, at 11 a. m., 2:30 p.m., and at 7 o'clock in the evening. The collection in the afternoon will be devoted for the benefit of the Sabbath School.

CASE SALE OF DOCK PROPERTY.—The Oswego Palladium says:—"Hon. A. C. Mattoon has sold to E. W. Rathbun & Co., lumbermen, the dock 50 by 90 feet, designated as lot 10, Fortification block 2, for cash. This dock lies between Water street and the river, having the river on the east and the D. L. & W. R. R. track on the west. The sale of a piece of dock property for cash is the most positive key-note of better times that we have heard. It shows that the prodent, long-headed and successful business firm of E. W. Rathbun & Co., at least, have confidence in the future of the lumber trade in Oswego."

THE FISHERIES.—In another column will be found a communication from Mr. Charles Wilkins, Fishery Overseer for the Bay of Quinte district, giving some important information containing the catch in his jurisdiction during the past season. Mr. Wilkins has discharged his duties well, as the increased catch in his division for the past two years shows, but better results would be secured were A given assistance. The division includes the whole County of Hastings, part of Northumberland and the south shore of the Bay as far east as Picton, and it is manifestly impossible for any one man or any dozen men, for that matter, to prevent breaches of the law. There are some fifty saw mills in the division, and beyond doubt a great deal of sawdust is thrown from them into the streams, thus filling up the harbors and decreasing the supply of fish. But were Mr. Wilkins given power to appoint assistants without salary, they to receive the whole of the fine imposed on saw mill owners for throwing sawdust into the streams, or on persons for taking fish during the close season, under their information, the effect upon the fisheries could not fail to be very beneficial. We trust that this matter will receive the attention of the Department.

ANNOYING.—This morning a boy named James Coughlin, to amuse himself tore the labels from a number of through cars on the Grand Trunk. This mischievous freak will cause the railway officials a good deal of trouble.

RUN OVER.—A small boy named Cole was run over this afternoon on Front Street, by a waggon, both wheels passing over his neck and injuring the little fellow badly. Blood was running out of his mouth quite freely. We are informed that the driver never stopped to give the little fellow any assistance.

RUNAWAY.—Runaway horses are no great curiosity, but a runaway railway car is a curiosity that was witnessed by a large crowd on Pinnacle Street this morning. The car, which was loaded with wood, came dashing down the grade towards the market causing a great outcry and rush to get out of the way. One waggon was nearly caught but succeeded in clearing the track as the car rushed past, but a cow near the market was not so particular, so she was caught by the car and carried to the Kingston road, her leg being broken by the collision. The Railway Company have decided to have no cars on the track north of the station in future thus, preventing any chance for such an accident occurring again.

STEAMBOATS.—The Trenton Courier says: "Captain Porte's new Boat the Varuna is progressing satisfactorily towards completion. By the 1st of Feb. the decks are expected to be all on and the windows in. The engine is ready to be put in and the builder speaks of her as one of the stiffest boats he ever built. Her dimensions are length 100 feet breadth 16½ feet, depth of hold 6½—draft of water from 4ft 9in to 5 feet. Boiler 80 horse power, engine 40 horse power and 5 feet screw, speed 15 to 16 miles an hour. The Captain intends running during the Campmeeting season, on Saturday in conjunction with the Alexandra. Leaving Trenton as usual on Saturday morning and leaving Belleville on the arrival of the Grand Junction and North Hastings trains and proceeding to Picton thence to the Campmeeting grounds, transferring his return passengers to the Alexandra and returning on Monday to his usual route. The Utica will be placed on the route between Wellington and the Sand-Banks in conjunction with the Prince Edward Railway."

DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION OF WESTERN ONTARIO.—The Annual Convention of this Association will be held at London on the 18th, 19th and 20th of February 1880, and the committee hope to make it both beneficial and interesting. In changing the place of meeting this year, the committee have been actuated by a desire to hold their convention in the most central place, so as to make it accessible to dairymen throughout Ontario, inasmuch as it is their desire that all should have the benefit of the celebrated lectures and useful discussions that will form the attractive feature of this year's convention. As usual, eminent gentlemen from the United States and Canada have been employed at a large expense to be present, and there is no doubt but that in point of members and importance, this will exceed any former Convention. Any parties wishing to attend and become members may obtain certificates by applying at once to the Secretary Mr. J. C. Hegler, Ingersoll, which will entitle them, owing to special arrangements made with the leading railway companies, to tickets at one fare and a third the double journey. It is desirable that parties wishing to attend should apply to the Secretary at once for certificates, so as to avoid confusion and delay, and it is earnestly hoped all dairymen will endeavor to attend.

A farmer who had sent a bale of cotton to a warehouse instructed a merchant to have the same sold. The merchant complied with the request, and the staple was disposed of. The farmer, upon examining his statement, was heard muttering to himself, "Drayage, wharfage, mistakage, storage, leakage, weighage—well, I'll take the balance out in fightage."

He took her fancy when he came;
He took her hand, he took skies;
He took no notice of the shame
That glowed her happy cheek at this.

He took to coming afternoons;
He took an oath had ne'er deceive;
He took her father's sleve spoons,
And after that he took his leave.

AN old gentleman in Key West took his son's watch to show him how easily he could be robbed, and then asked him the time. The young man was distressed to find his watch had been stolen. "Never mind," said his father, "I took it to show you how easily you could lose it; here it is." But as he felt in his pocket to return it, he was surprised to find that some thief more adroit than himself had taken it.

A good-looking fellow was arraigned before the Police Court, charged with having stolen a watch. The Judge asked him what induced him to commit the theft. The young man replied that, having been unwell for some time, the doctor advised him to take something, which he had accordingly done. The Judge asked what had led him to select a watch. "Why" said the prisoner "I thought if I only had the time, that nature would work a cure."

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 16.

After routine business Mr. Graham moved for a return showing the amount of money applied for and paid out under the Tile Drainage Act of 1878 and the amended Act of 1879.

The motion of Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, for a return of convictions under the Liquor Act led to a discussion participated in by members on both sides.

Mr. Calvin's Bill came up for its second reading, but at the request of the Attorney-General it was allowed to stand for a time. Its object is to provide a better means for securing a remedy against injustice in the equalization of township assessments than the present law provides. According to his statement—and it was confirmed by Mr. Deroche—the majority of the County Council of Frontenac is made up of reeves from the back townships, who interest on valuing at too high a figure the townships in front. Formerly the appeal against unjust equalization lay to the County Judge alone, but by a recent enactment the Sheriff was associated with him. Mr. Calvin proposes to substitute for this tribunal one made up of three County Judges, one of whom is to belong to the county interested, and the others, except where there is a Junior Judge, to two neighboring Counties.

Mr. Harcourt's Municipal Act Amendment Bill, introduced on Thursday, proposes to take from cities and towns the right to impose license fees on farmers who come in to sell produce.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 17th.—Parnell addressed a large gathering last evening, and was enthusiastically cheered. $800 raised.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—The Riverside oil works, East Cambridge, with 200,000 gallons of kerosene, burned last night. Loss $30,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Sun's Augusta special says that the Republican Legislature will meet to-day in the State house, with the consent of Chamberlain. The fusionists feel that a crisis is approaching, and trouble will ensue. Courage and determination to a marked degree are manifested, and they assert with spirit that they will appeal from the Court of Maine to the Congress of the United States. Fighting is strongly talked of by many Republicans. The fusionists refuse to comply with the Court's decision.

The Tribune's Washington special says, the nominations to the English and Russian missions were signed and sent to the Senate yesterday, but the Senate had adjourned when the messenger reached there. Evarts refused to make the names public, as there was a possibility of a change by Monday.

When the passengers of the steamship Greece, from London, were leaving the vessel yesterday afternoon a terrific explosion occurred, and a column of fire and smoke shot up from the hatchway, setting fire to the rigging. The fire was soon extinguished, when it was discovered that two longshoremen had been instantly killed, and several others terribly mutilated and burned. The explosion, it is believed, was due to the coal gas which had generated in the hold during the voyage. The dead are Michael Walsh and Patrick Dunn. Walsh was blown throught the timbers 50 feet into the air, and his clothing was torn from his body. Dunn was blown 30 feet through the hatchway and fell on the bridge; his clothing was on fire.

EUROPEAN.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—The chief editor of the Nihilist newspaper has been arrested at St. Petersburg.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—A Vienna correspondent reports that should Verhouay, the journalist wounded by Baron Mathenegi in a duel, die, there is reason to fear that a great public demonstration will be attempted at the funeral.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—The Herald's Augusta special says that Mayor Nash says Smith has no arms and no backing of official character. If he attempts to turn Chamberlain out of the State House by force, his force would be that of a mob and a mob would have an exceedingly warm reception here. When asked if he believed there would be any breach of the peace, the Mayor said, "Certainly not on our part. If any act of violence is committed it must come from the other side. We are here to preserve peace and not to break it." Both Houses met at nine o'clock and took recess until ten. It is doubtful if there is a quorum present in the House. It is understood that the Fusionists have telegraphed for the opinion of Gen. Butler, Hon. Mr. Bradley and other eminent lawyers to offset the opinion of the Supreme Court, and expect replies in season to lay before the members of the Legislature on Tuesday. Some Fusionists have weakened; at least two members have said they would not resist the decision of the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A telegram received at the State Department from Commander Goringe, announces the discovery of Masonic emblems in the foundation of the Obelisk, at Alexandria, under the pedestal under which it was set up by the Romans. The drawings were made and the emblems were preserved as found.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

MESSRS. Hodgson & Bros., Liverpool report of Jan. 30 quotes:

CHEESE.—The market is decidedly better, though holders are not, as yet, asking over our last week's quotations, viz. 68s, and in extreme cases 70s for outside quality. Buyers are more plentiful, and are taking hold more freely, a considerable business having been done this week, and in the face of the exceedingly small stocks, (both here, in America, and in Canada,) our country dealers nearly all out of stock, with our home makes almost all consumed, and four or five months yet to go through before the new season opens, all indicate higher prices in the future. The position is certainly a strong one for holders. Buyers who are unable to pay the above quotations for fancy September, are willing to take riper goods at 60s to 64s, but the quantity of such offerings is small. Total shipments leaving New York this week 30,000 boxes.

BUTTER.—There has been a good business done this week, buyers showing more disposition to operate, and holders being very free sellers—giving them good value. The stock here of American and Canadian is rather larger than was generally anticipated, but of Irish considerably less than usual. We quote finest Canadian Townships, Brockvilles, and similar quality, at 110s to 115s per cwt.; fine Dairy, 100s to 105s; medium grades, 70s to 80s.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Fall wheat, No. 1, $1.28 to $1.30; No. 2, $1.26 to $1.28; No. 3, $1.23 to $1.25. Spring—No. 1, $1.26 to $1.28; No. 2, $1.24 to $1.26; No. 3, $1.21 to $1.23. Barley—No. 1, 77c to 78c; No. 2, 67c to 68c; No. 3, 56c to 57c; No. 4, 49c to 50c. Peas—No. 1, 67c to 68c; No. 2, 66c to 67c. Oats—No. 1, 37c; No. 2, 36c. Corn—57c to 58c. Flour—superior, $5.65 to $5.70; extra, $5.50 to $5.55; fancy, $5.40 to $5.45; S. bakers, $5.35 to $5.60; spring extra, $5.45 to $5.50; superfine, $5.05 to $5.10; fine, $4.65 to $4.70. Bran—11c to 12c. Clover seed—$4.25 to $4.50; Timothy, $2.00 to $4.50. Hogs, $2.00 to $2.25. Butter, 12c to 20c. Barley, street, 45c to 75c. Rye, 78c to 80c. Wool, 30 to 32; spring, $1.20 to $1.24; fall, $1.20 to $1.25.

Wheat and flour, nominal, market somewhat steadier at the decline. Barley unchanged. Peas dull and heavy. Oats firm. Hogs, lower, owing to soft weather.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Flour, receipts 400 brls.; sales none reported; market quiet and steady at generally unchanged rates. Quotations as follows:—Superfine, $6.20 to $6.25; extras, $6.10 to $6.15; fancy, $6.00, to $6.05; spring extra, $5.90 to $6.00; superfine, $5.60 to $5.70; strong bakers, $6.15 to $6.30; fine, $5.20 to $5.30; middlings, $4.25 to $4.40; pollards $3.50 to $3.75; Ontario bags $2.90 to $3.00; city do. $3.25 to $3.30, delivered.

Grain—Wheat, nominal, U. C. spring $1.40. Corn quiet at 65 70c, duty paid. Peas, at 80c per 66 lbs. Oats, 1c per lb. Barley 45 to 60c. Rye about 75c.

Meal—Oatmeal, $4.60 to $4.70; Cornmeal, $2.90.

Provisions—Butter quiet, western 15 to 20c. Brockville to Cornwall 17 to 21, Eastern townships 20 to 22c, dairories 26 to 27c. Cheese 12 to 13½c, as to age. Pork, mess, $17 to $18. Lard 10 to 11½c. Dressed hogs, market easier, $5.90 to $6.65. Bacon, 8½ to 9½c. Hams 11 to 12c.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. So soon er did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, not to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

Daily Intelligencer.

The Origin of Indian Corn.

'Tis said that ever so long ago
A young maid walked by the river side,
Singing sweetly, soft and low,
To the music of the tide,
And the little maid was passing fair,
With eyes of tender, sunny blue,
With rosy lips, and floating hair
Of a wondrous golden hue.

Her fairy step on the velvet sod
Was light and soft as the falling snow;
But it reached the ears of a river-god,
Who lived in the waves below,
He saw the maid, with her floating hair,
Her rosy lips and her rounded form,
Her teeth like pearls. At the vision rare
His heart grew bold and warm.

"So fair a sight has never met
My eyes before!" said the ardent god,
"These mossy banks have never yet
By one so fair been trod!
The river maids are fair to see;
But never one shall my eye behold,
Though I live a thousand years," said he,
"Like this maid of mortal mould."

So said the god. "I will seek her side;
I must bring her home to live with me,
She must be mine, wha e'er betide!"
Said this vain god, boastfully,
Then, with a leap, he left the flood,
With never a care for right or wrong,
And sought the maiden where she stood,
Singing her little song.

Fear lent her wings. Afar she spies
A bank of reeds; tall, dark and dense;
And in this sorest need she flies
Swift to their frail defence,
She said: "Oh! reeds, I pray you hide
Me safe and sure from his cruel art."
They crowded around on every side;
Each reed had a tender heart.

They wound around her trembling form,
They twined themselves in her sunny hair;
To save the maid from threatening harm,
They wrought a marvel there.
For lo! when he parted the slender wall—
He looked on the simple power with scorn—
There in the midst, fair, straight and tall,
Stood a stalk of Indian corn.

This is the reason that night and morn
A gentle sigh, as of one who grieves
Over something, fills the fields of corn
And flutters its haunted leaves.
This is the reason it whispers so;
'Tis the soul of the maiden prisoned there,
That night and day with a murmur low,
Burdens the summer air.

What did Paul Say.

Many years ago, there lived in Virginia, a Baptist preacher named B——. Though uneducated, he was a sound thinker and eloquent speaker, and no minister had a more devoted flock.

It was the custom, during the inclement season, to hold meetings at the residence of the members, and once or twice during the winter, at the house of the preacher.

For years, it was observed that B—— neither preached nor conducted the meeting when held at his house, but secured the services of a neighboring minister.

He was often pressed for an explanation, without success; but finally in response to the importunities of some of his flock, he gave the following:

"When I was younger than I am now—in fact not long after the commencement of my administration—I held a meeting at my own house. It being customary for many of the congregation to remain for dinner Mrs. —— sent our boy, Tim, to our neighbor Paul's for butter. Tim returned, and located himself, standing on the outskirts of the congregation. Being well warmed up in my sermon, thinking neither of Tim nor his errands, but only of the most successful mode of pressing home my strongest arguments, I demanded, with all the energy in my power:

"'And what did Paul say?'"

"Tim, at the top of his little squeaking voice, exclaimed, as Tim only could have done:

"He said you couldn't get any more until you paid for what you got!"

"This brought down the house, and cut short one of the finest efforts of my early ministry. Since then I keep my preaching disconnected from my domectic affairs."

Ambush Scales.

"Reckon that air scales of yourn is an Ambush scales, ain't it?" inquired a countryman of his grocer, as he took the sugar and handed over the money.

"Ambush scales! What do you mean? Who is Ambush?"

"Ambush—why, y' know—reg'lar Ambush—y' understand what Ambush means don't ye?"

"Well, I should hope so, Mr. Woodruff. Ambush means hid—something concealed. It means—wait, here's the dictionary. I'll just read to yer exactly what it means, so'st you need not use it wrong after this. Here 'tis. A—m—ambush—to lie in wait for—"

"Yes, that's it, Squire. Don't go no further. To lie in weight for two cents."

A Leap Year Suggestion.

Chambers' Journal contains the following timely hint for the present year:—

If ladies sin against propriety in taking the initiative, they can hardly be blamed for bringing a shilly-shallying or over-bashful lover to the point when a good opportunity presents itself. Such an opportunity sufficed to end what has been a somewhat tedious courtship. The young man paying his usual evening visit, asked his lady love how she got along with her cooking, "Nicely," replied she; I'm improving wonderfully, and make splendid cake now." "Can you?" said the young fellow, ignorantly rushing on his fate. "What kind do you like best?" "I like one made with flour and sugar, with lots of rasins, currants, and citron, and beautifully frosted on the top." responded she. "Why, that's a wedding cake!" cried he. "I meant wedding," said she; and there was nothing left for him but to say he meant wedding too.

Doctor—"Bathe with great care, and don't fail to test the bath with the thermometer."

Nurse—"Sure phwat wud oi be afther doin' wid a thermometer? If the baby—bless him!—comes out blue, sure the wather's too cold; and if the baby—bless him!—comes out red, sure the wather's too hot. Go way wid yer thermometer, docthor!"

Place—Hotel not far from Kingston.—Guest (after looking over bill of fare), "Bring me some fricasseed chicken."

Waiter retires, and soon after returns and says, "Chicken's run out."

Guest—"Can't you run after it and catch it; but never mind, I thought it was dead."

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 15.

Bills to amend the Municipal Act were introduced by Mr. Badgerow, Mr. Ross, and Mr. Harcourt. A Bill to amend the License Act was read a first time on motion of Mr. Creighton.

Mr. Badgerow also introduced a Bill to amend the Division Court Act, one object of his measure being to take the power of appointing clerks and bailiffs from the county judges, who are not responsible to any one for their mode of exercising that power, and transfer it to the Government, which can be held responsible.

According to notice, Mr. Fraser moved for and obtained a Special Committee to enquire into the causes of accidents to brakemen, yardmen, and other railway employees with a view to ascertaining whether any, and if any what, means may be devised for better securing their safety while in the discharge of their duties. He pointed out briefly, in justification of his motion, some of the difficulties in the way arising from the doubtful jurisdiction of the Legislature, from the position of the Province, from climatic causes, and above all, from the variety of opinions amongst those who had made suggestions on the subject.

Mr. Morris and Mr. Lauder spoke approvingly of the appointment of a Committee, and the latter called attention also to the danger to brakemen from low bridges as being no less than the danger of slipping from the tops of box cars.

Later in the afternoon, on motion of Mr. Young, a return was ordered showing the number of railway accidents, the number of persons killed, and the causes of such accidents.

In answer to Mr Badgerow, the Premier stated that full information respecting the estimated value of the present site and the estimated cost of new buildings would be laid before the House in advance of any scheme being submitted for the construction of such buildings.

In answer to Mr. Parkhill, the Attorney General stated that applications from South Simcoe had been made for the appointment of new magistrates, but he could not say when a commission of the peace would issue.

Speaking to Mr. Wigle's motion for correspondence respecting the retirement of Mr. Johnston from the Principalship of the Agricultural College, Mr. Mowat informed the House that he retired of his own accord, and against the urgently expressed wish of the Government that he should keep the position.

On motion of Mr. Harcourt, a return was ordered of the number of persons sent from each county to the Penitentiary and Reformatory Prison during 1878 and 1879, with the cost of sending them.

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold, they are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

MEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 18, 1879.

MR. GILES—Dear Sir: I have used your Iodide Ammonia Liniment and find it the best remedy I ever used. For a sprain or callous there is nothing equal to it. My wife sprained her ankle last Saturday evening; I used the Liniment as per directions; the second application was a perfect cure. Some of my friends started last night for Johnson Co., Kentucky; they have taken several bottles with them. I have used it on my horses and it works like a charm. I am going to Kentucky next month—farming. If you have any works treating of horses and other animals, please send me two or three copies, and oblige,

Yours respectfully,
CHAS. W. FORBUSH.

Trial size 25 cents.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

MURRAY & LANMAN'S
FLORIDA WATER

Has a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and the paper on which this pamphlet is printed has the words "LANMAN & KEMP," "NEW YORK." in water mark, so that when a leaf is held up to the light, it shows these words in faint semi-transparent letters.

All buyers who care to enjoy the true Florida Water, and who wish to avoid being imposed upon, can, by the aid of the above direction, detect and reject the worthless counterfeits with which the market is flooded.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness, or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.
C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.
Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. GENERAL DEBILITY

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.
I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

Departmental Reports.

EDUCATION IN 1878.

The annual report of the Minister of Education on the Public, Separate and High Schools, also on the Normal and Model Schools of the Province of Ontario for the year 1878, has been received. It is to be regretted that these reports cannot, seemingly, be issued a year earlier, but still, despite that fact, the report contains matters of much interest.

From it we learn that the receipt of Public School moneys for 1878 were as follows :—Legislative grant, $256,538—increase $6,576 ; for the purchase of school apparatus $17,756—decrease $2,317 ; County Municipal assessment $872,354—increase $14,049 ; Trustees school assessment $1,405,686—decrease $158,639 ; from Clergy Reserve moneys and other sources $898,984—decrease $35,702. The total receipts were $3,247,321, or a decrease of $175,863 as compared with the preceding year.

The total expenditure was $2,889,347—a decrease of $184,142, and the balance of school moneys not paid at the end of the year was $357,974—increase $8,278.

The total school population was 492,360—decrease 2,444. The total number of pupils attending the schools was 489,015—decrease 1,845 ; boys 260,400—decrease 670 ; girls 128,615—decrease 1,175. The number who did not attend any school for four months during the year was 27,415 ; an increase of 1,441, and the average attendance was 224 588, an increase of 7,404, which is comparatively a good showing.

In the 4,990 schools reported, there were 6,473 teachers employed, or an increase of 5 ; of whom 3,060 were males—increase 40 ; and 3,413 females, a decrease of 35. Of 789 teachers of the Roman Catholic Church, 456 are employed in Public Schools and 333 in R. C. Separate Schools.

As to the qualifications of teachers, the report tells us that 210 held Provincial 1st class certificates—decrease 40 ; 2nd class 1,409—increase 105 ; County Board certificates 1st class 328—decrease 43 ; second class 142—increase 8 ; 3rd class none ; new County Board 3rd class certificates 3,904—decrease 22 ; interim certificates 480—increase 11.

The highest salary paid to a male teacher in a County, $800—the lowest, $125 ; in a City, the highest, $1,000—the lowest, $500 ; in a Town, the highest $1,200—the lowest, $200. The average salary of male teachers in Counties, was $382—of female teachers, $247 ; in Cities, of male teachers, $730—of female teachers, $313 ; in Towns, of male teachers, $577—of female teachers, $274. The average decrease of male teachers' salaries for the Province during 1878, is $3 per male teacher.

The number of Urban School Boards was as follows :—In Cities, 16 ; in Towns, 83 ; in Incorporated Villages, 125, being a total of 224.

The number of Urban School-houses was as follows : In Cities, 116 ; in Towns, 174 ; in Incorporated Villages, 175.

The total number of pupils in Urban Schools registered during the year was, in Cities 43,754 ; in Towns, 49,041 ; in Incorporated Villages, 41,507 ; and the average daily attendance was, in Cities, 24,920 ; in Towns, 26,890 ; in Incorporated Villages 19,608.

The number of Township School Boards was 4.

The number of Rural School Sections was, 4,751—decrease, 165. The number of Rural Schools reported as kept open, was 4,700—decrease, 137.

The decrease in number of Rural School-houses was 82. Of late years there has been a most satisfactory improvement in the School-houses, and in stone, brick, and frame taking the place of the old log-built School houses.

The whole number of School-houses reported is 5,066, of which 1,569 are brick, 511 stone, 2,281 frame, 705 log.

The average time of keeping the Schools open, exclusive of holidays, vacations and Sundays, was two hundred and six days in 1878. The actual number of legal teaching days was 221.

The number of Roman Catholic Separate Schools was 177—a decrease during the year of 9. Their receipts were $127,549—increase $7,282. The expenditures were $120,558—decrease $796. The number of pupils was 25,820—increase 328 ; average attendance 13,175—increase 623, and the whole number of teachers was 333, of whom 104 were males and 229 females.

The number of High Schools open was 104, and the number of pupils 10,574, or an increase of 1,345. The total receipts were $420,188—increase $62,667, and the expenditure $396,010, an increase of $52,300. Of the school houses 74 were brick, 20 stone, 10 frame ; 5 were rented or leased, and the remainder freehold.

The number of candidates at the examinations in the Normal Schools was as follows : 1st class At Toronto 15, of whom 12 passed, and at Ottawa 9, of whom none passed. Second class. At Toronto 137, of whom 136 passed, and at Ottawa 108, of whom all passed. The number of Model Schools was 50, with 1,391 third class candidates in attendance, of whom 52 were rejected by the Board of Examiners.

In 1842 the number of Public Schools was 1,721 ; in 1851, 3,001 ; and in 1878 4,990 ; and the number of pupils increased from 168,159 in 1851 to 489,015 in 1878. The amount paid for the support of Public Schools was $368,644 in 1851, and $2,889,347 in 1878.

PRISONS AND ASYLUMS.

The report on Prisons and Asylums for the year ending September 30th, 1879, shows that the London Insane Asylum has now accommodation for 907 patients. To the Hamilton Asylum 332 beds have been added, giving accommodation for 532 patients. Through these additions the five Asylums now afford accommodation for 2,692 patients, and at the close of the official year there were 2,325 in residence. The erection of an additional wing to the Kingston Asylum to accommodate 150 patients, and an addition to the Orillia Idiot Asylum sufficient to accommodate 150 inmates, are recommended. It is considered that if these recommendations be carried out, the accommodation for the insane and idiotic will be sufficient for the next ten years. During the year 515 persons were admitted to the Asylums, and 2,665 were under treatment.

The Reformatory for Women and the Industrial School for Girls are well advanced towards completion and are expected to be opened in April next.

The number of commitments to the Common Gaols was 11,220, showing a decrease of 810 during the year.

During the year 269 persons were under instruction in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, and 200 blind in the Brantford Asylum.

The whole number of Hospitals and Charitable Institutions receiving Provincial Aid was 47, namely 10 general hospitals, 12 houses of refuge, 4 Magdalen asylums and 21 orphan asylums, and the admissions to these institutions during the year aggregated 9,610.

The cost of maintaing the Lunatic Asylums was $286,894.36; of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb $38,589.50: of that for the Blind $29,515.15; of Prisons and Reformatories $224,926.97; and the aid to charities amounted to $73,720.44. The total cost of maintaining public institutions and aiding charities was thus $653,646.43, whilst the revenue derived from them, including the insurance money for raw materials and manufactured goods destroyed by the fire in the Central Prison was $101,161.77.

With regard to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, the Inspector states that the number of pupils in attendance during 1879 was 296 against 277 during the previous year, and that the number of pupils who have entered the Institution since the date of its opening 448, of whom 21 were from the County of Hastings. The average cost per pupil was $166.29.

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold. they are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for consumption is certainly the greatest medical remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now loudly proclaim their praise for this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We therefore earnestly request that you call on your druggist Jas. Clarke & Co., and get a trial bottle free of charge which will convince the most skeptical of its wonderful merits, and show you what a regular one dollar size bottle will do.

THE CONTEST.

As will be seen by advertisement a mass meeting of the friends of Mr. Robertson, the Conservative candidate for West Hastings, will be held in the rooms of the Liberal Conservative Association to-night. The notice given is very short, yet we hope to see a large muster. Our opponents are already hard at work, and although their defeat is beyond doubt, it is incumbent on Mr. Robertson's supporters to organize at once and to work earnestly in his behalf, in order that the victory may be made as complete as possible. The time remaining is short, and there should be no laggards.

A meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association will be held in their rooms on Thursday afternoon next. A full attendance is desired.

The Iron Interest.

We publish in another column a note from the Hon. Bills Flint, enclosing a letter from Mr. Kent, of Hamilton, who proposes to establish iron smelting and glass works in Belleville, but wishes to ascertain what inducements our city is prepared to hold out to him. The project is one of such importance that no time should be lost in ascertaining what Mr. Kent's views on the subject are. Perhaps the best way of doing so would be to invite the gentleman, if he has seen sufficient of the locality and studied its advantages as a site for smelting works, to put his views in writing and forward them to the City Council, which body had last year a Committee on the subject, and will doubtless appoint a similar Committee this year. It would be within the province of such a Committee to correspond with Mr. Kent, and if his views are deemed feasible to recommend the calling of a public meeting to discuss the same. By such means a conclusion would probably be reached in the most satisfactory way.

APPOINTMENT.—The Mail says :—"We understand that before giving up his office of President of the Privy Council, Hon. John O'Connor recommended Mr. John McGee, brother of the late D'Arcy McGee, as the successor of Mr. Cote in the office of assistant-clerk of the Privy Council. Mr. McGee will probably be appointed to the office in question. Mr. McGee has been in the public service for a number of years, and has for a year past been in the Premier's Department."

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY, Jan. 19.

The City Council met at 11 a. m. to-day, pursuant to the provisions of the statute, for the purpose of organization.

The following gentlemen deposited their certificates of qualification and took the necessary declaration :

REUBEN S. PATTERSON, Esq., Mayor.

FOSTER WARD.—Messrs. David Brennan, Allan T. Petrie and Francis Wallbridge.

KETCHESON WARD.—Messrs. Thomas Holden, Morgan Jellett and Richard Costello.

BLEECKER WARD.—Messrs. Samuel Hambly, Alfred A. Farley and James Grant.

COLEMAN WARD.—Messrs. James St. Charles, Amos E. Proctor and William A. Ostrom.

MURNEY WARD.—Messrs. Albert L. Geen, Joseph G. Vandusen and David Holden.

The Clerk having taken the chair.

Ald. Robertson moved that Alds. Costello and Ostrom escort the Mayor to the Chair. —Carried.

Ald. Robertson here suggested that through the year on the occasion of the approach of the Mayor to the chair all the members of the Council should stand up. None of the members dissented from this, as was shown when the escort entered the chamber with the Mayor, when all the Aldermen rose to their feet.

The Mayor having taken the chair, the Clerk invested him with the golden insignia of his office, after which His Worship delivered the following address :—

GENTLEMEN,—Members of the City Council. —In entering upon the duties devolving upon me as your presiding officer for the present year, allow me to congratulate you upon the honorable distinction conferred upon you by your constituents, and to express the hope that we may all be governed by one common motive in the discharge of the important duties intrusted to us, viz, the Best interests of the City.

Permit me to say at the outset, that I have every confidence in your ability to conduct the business of the City, wisely and well, but you will pardon me for suggesting, that with so large a membership of gentlemen, who compose the City Council, that an observance of the rules that govern us, and a kindly consideration for each other's views and opinions, will not only make our duties more pleasant for ourselves, but we will be enabled to advance the interests of our City in a greater degree.

Much depends upon the formation of your committees, and I trust that in organizing the Council the best interests of the City may govern your actions, and that care may be taken to place upon the different committees the gentlemen best adapted to the places assigned them.

I need not remind you, gentlemen, that the duties devolving upon you, if faithfully performed, must necessarily occupy considerable of your time and attention, and with the view of preventing confusion and delay, I would suggest the desirability of appointing regular fixed times for the meetings of the more important committees.

This would enable you to transact your business in the least possible time, and prevent the delay and confusion consequent upon several committees being called at the same time, as frequently happens under the present irregular system.

You are aware that according to the rules which govern the Council, the Mayor is ex officio member of all the committees, and I take this opportunity of stating that it is my intention to attend regularly the meetings of the several committees, with the view of familiarizing myself with the different departments, in order that I may more intelligently perform the duties devolving upon me.

There are several matters of importance to which I desire to direct your attention, and which, I trust, will receive your best consideration.

Our debenture account amounts to the large sum of $286,000.00, upon which we are paying an average interest of about six per cent.

Section 10, Chapter 33, 40 Victoria, confers upon City Councils the power of consolidating their debenture debts, by the issue of new debentures, to the full amount of all outstanding debentures, and I recommend for your early consideration the desirability of the consolidation of this debt.

I feel confident that we will be enabled to place these debentures upon the English market at 4 or 4½ per cent. which, if effected, will save us at least 25 per cent—a very large item in our interest account.

From knowledge obtained the past season as Chairman of the Harbor and City Property Committee, I find the inner harbor so be almost filled up with stone and gravel, brought down the river by the ice, and the action of the water, and to prevent the overflow of the river, which at times causes serious loss and damage to a large number of our citizens, it is absolutely necessary that a sufficient channel should be dredged out for the outflow of the river.

The amount standing to the credit of the harbor fund on the 31st day of December, 1878, was $6,326.52, and the amount collected for the year 1879 was in round numbers $3,500.

Deduct from this $800 for salaries and incidental expenses, and $900 contributed to the lumbermen for the construction of the piers in the harbor, and we have a balance or $2,200 to be added to the former account, which gives us a total of $8,526.52 of available funds for harbor purposes.

I cannot urge upon you too strongly the necessity of taking immediate steps to remove this difficulty, and I think the time has come for us to consider whether it would not be wise economy to purchase or build a dredge, and the necessary outfit for our own use, applying our surplus from year to year for the purpose of keeping our harbor and the mouth of the river free from obstructions.

I wish also to call your attention to the large annual expenditure on gas account. The City being a large stockholder, as well as a large consumer, it might appear at first thought, to reduce the price to consumers would injure the City as a stockholder ; but I think a few moments' consideration will show the fallacy of such an argument. I hold that any article held above its value must necessarily restrict its sale ; and that gas sold at too high a rate in this City, I think there can be no question.

As stockholders of the Gas Company, I would recommend that steps be taken for the purpose of reducing the price at least 30 per cent to all consumers ; believing as I do, that the profits arising from the enhanced consumption would much more than compensate for any loss by the reduction in price.

As large consumers, it can fairly be claimed that the City is entitled to a large reduction from present rates. And I trust you will urge upon the Gas Company the advisability of extending their pipes to the more remote portions of the City, for the purpose of substituting gas for oil lamps wherever practicable, thereby furnishing a better light without additional cost to the city.

Some two years since a deputation of the City Council visited Ottawa for the purpose of procuring a grant for dredging out the harbor, and to urge upon the Government the advisability of erecting a building suitable for a Custom house, Post Office, &c., in this City.

The then Government promised assistance in the way of dredging, and to at least procure a site for a building the following year. The former promise was redeemed, but their retirement from office prevented the fulfilment of the latter.

Again last winter another deputation was sent for the same purpose, with about the same results.

The Government have generously expended about $1,000 in dredging the harbor the past season, and it seems to me only necessary to press this matter again to secure the Government buildings spoken of, but I leave this matter in your hands to advise such means for its accomplishment as your wisdom may suggest.

In view of the vast iron deposits lying almost in our immediate neighborhood, and the benefits that must necessarily accrue to us, if works for the manufacture of iron were established in our City, I would recommend that liberal inducements be offered in the way of lands for locating works, and freedom from taxation for a reasonable number of years to any one desirous of locating here.

This would also apply to other manufacturing industries, and I am sure that you will agree with me that nothing will promote our growth and prosperity so much as increased manufactories.

There is a great and increasing demand for a good and sufficient water supply. This is a subject which has engaged the attention of former Councils for a number of years, and if it is possible to devise some means to supply the requirements of our citizens, you will have earned their lasting gratitude.

The system which has been pursued for the past three years in placing the collector's roll in the hands of the City Treasurer early in the year has proved effectual, which is shown by the large amount of taxes that has been paid in before the 31st of December in each year, but I regret to say that the system pursued as to non-resident taxes has not proved effectual. Up to within a recent period, it has been the custom to tax unoccupied land as non-resident, whether the owners lived in the City or not, and as no steps have been taken recently for the collection of non-resident taxes as provided for by statute (see Harrison's Municipal Manual, sec. 175 of the assessment act), I would recommend that some more effectual method be adopted for the collection of the large amount outstanding of this description of taxes.

The assessment of the City is of paramount importance, and requires your particular attention, and it might be well to consider whether it would not conduce to the interests of the City, to confide this department to a competent commissioner.

A correct and uniform assessment is absolutely necessary, in justice to all of our citizens, and it becomes the more apparent when we consider that the Voters' Lists, the Court of Revision and the Jurors Court are seriously affected by the assessment.

It cannot be expected that any number of men who give but a limited time to the assessment, can by any possibility perform the work so well as one who devotes his entire time to this department.

I am sure that it is a matter of congratulation to all our citizens, that we have such efficient Fire and Police departments. Fire and crime, through the efficiency of these two departments, have been reduced to narrower limits, I believe, in Belleville, than any other town or city in Canada, in proportion to its population.

A more effectual method of repairing our streets and walks—especially Front Street—should engage your attention.

The Murray and Trent Valley Canals, if constructed, would in my opinion vastly benefit Belleville and surrounding country, and I trust that every assistance and encouragement may be rendered those two enterprises, compatible with our position.

Let us not forget that upon us lies the responsibility of administrating the affairs of the City the present year, and that a wise and economical expenditure of the people's money, and a careful and vigilant watch over its interests is demanded of us.

I will not weary you at greater length, but will simply state in conclusion, that I shall enter upon my duties as your presiding officer with the full determination to act impartially during my term of office, and I beseech your kind assistance and co-operation in the discharge of the important duties devolving upon me, and

I trust we may all work together harmoniously during the year upon which we have entered, for the best interests of the City. Gentlemen, I thank you for your kind attention, and we will now proceed to business.

At the conclusion of His Worship's remarks he was loudly applauded.

Moved by Ald. Robertson seconded by Ald. Farley, that the thanks of this Council be cordially tendered the Mayor for his able, instructive and exhaustive address.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson, on rising to move the appointment of a Committee to strike the Standing Committees for the year, remarked that he would now draw attention to a report made in the Daily Ontario of the proceedings of the meeting of the last Council. In that paper a member of the Council was not alluded to in the usual way, and it was improper and offensive to speak of him in the manner in which he had been spoken of. That Alderman had not been treated with the dignity and respect to which he was entitled. In his judgment, when a motion was made the names of the mover and seconder were entitled to mention in the reports of the daily papers. He would not press a motion in this regard, as he considered it sufficient at this time to draw attention to it. The press he would aver had a right to comment editorially on the actions of the Council, but the reports should be correct and should treat all the members with respect.

Ald. Dickson moved, seconded by Ald. Wallbridge, that the Committee to strike the Standing Committees for the year be composed as follows : Ald. Hambly, T. Holden, Wallbridge, Geen, Ostrom, Robertson and Dickson.

Ald. T. Holden objected to his name being placed on the Committee, for although a farce had been enacted last year there was no reason it should be repeated this year. He understood that the Committees had been virtually struck and arranged. A programme had been arranged at a caucus on Saturday night, when the personnel of the Committees was arranged. He regretted, in the face of that, that his name had been mentioned as one of the Committee.

Ald. D. Holden asked if the composition of this Committee had not been arranged outside the Council-room ?

Ald. Dickson answered that the Council was not now in the committee on enquiries, and he had a perfect right to move as he had. He had made a motion and now submitted it for the consideration of the Council. It was now for the Council to pass upon his motion if they thought it proper, and no one need act unless they chose.

Ald. D. Holden said there had been a caucus when the Committees were named.

Ald. T. Holden did not object to the right of holding a caucus, but he did object to serve on the Committee.

Ald. Robertson said Ald. Holden need not serve unless he saw fit to do so.

Ald. Hambly said the same practice had been followed heretofore, and Ald. Holden had been a participator in such actions before.

Ald. Holden did not object to caucuses, but would not serve on the Committee, as its composition had been arranged beforehand.

Ald. Proctor said a new system had now been adopted, inasmuch as the old Councillors had been ignored.

The motion was then carried Ald. T. Holden declining to serve.

The Council, on motion, adjourned for fifteen minutes.

Council resumed, when Ald. Hambly submitted the report of the Committee to strike the Standing Committees, as follows :—

FINANCE AND ASSESSMENT.—Ald. Jellett, Chairman. Messrs. Lingham, St. Charles, Robertson, Farley, Hambly, Geen, Dickson, Petrie, T. Holden, McInnich.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Ald. Lingham, Chairman. Messrs. J. Smith, Farley, Costello, Wallbridge, Vandusen, Ostrom.

MARKET.—Ald. Farley, Chairman. Messrs. J. Smith, Costello, Lingham, Wallbridge, D. Holden, Proctor.

WATER AND GAS.—Ald. Hambly, Chairman. Messrs. Robertson, T. Holden, McInnich, Petrie, Vandusen, Ostrom.

PAINTING.—Ald. Geen, Chairman. Messrs. St. Charles, Farley, J. Smith, Costello, Dickson, Wallbridge.

BY-LAWS.—Ald. Dickson, Chairman. Messrs. Brennan, Jellett, A. Smith, Grant, Proctor, D. Holden.

POOR AND SANITARY.—Ald. Petrie, Chairman. Messrs. Lingham, Costello, A. Smith, Grant, Ostrom, Vandusen.

COURT OF REVISION.—Ald. T. Holden, Chairman. Messrs. Wallbridge, Dickson, Robertson, Farley, St. Charles, D. Holden.

FERRY.—Ald. McInnich, Chairman. Messrs. Brennan, Costello, Robertson, Hambly, Proctor, Geen.

The report was passed after some discussion, a report of which and the remainder of the proceedings will appear to-morrow.

Messrs. T. B. Bentley and P. P. Lynch were appointed Auditors, and Messrs. A. Diamond and R. Newbery, High School Trustees.

ELECTRICITY AND HORSES.— An application of electricity to the mouth of unruly horses promises to be more successful than even Rarey's method. A metallic conducting wire runs from a Clark electric magnet on the seat of the wagon or carriage, through the horses' bits. By turing the crank of the magnet a current of electricity is induced and sent to the animal's mouth. No violent shock is given to benumb or greatly alarm the horse, but the slight prickling sensation, peculiar to electrical influence, surprises and subdues him. It was invented by M. Dupuy, but the Superintendent of the Paris Omnibus Company brought it to public notice. An electric whip, to prevent rearing or turning suddenly, is another ingenious invention.

WEATHER PREDICTION.—Mr. Vennor, undeterred by his failures in January, predicts a wintry February and March.

SOCIAL.—Remember the social and sale at Mrs. Wm. Bleecker's to-morrow evening—all friends cordially invited.

THE BAY.—The ice has been weakened materially by the continued thaw, but is still strong enough to bear horses, though there are numerous cracks and bad spots.

GOLD MINING.—We publish in another column an interesting letter on gold mining in California, which is given for the consideration of all interested here.

OYSTER SUPPER.—An oyster supper will take place at Case Church, front of Sidney, to-morrow evening, when an election cake will be raffled for.

ATHLETICS.—Thos. Lynch, of New York, writes that he will meet E. W. Johnston, of this city, at the Mail office to-morrow to sign articles for the match between them.

PERSONAL.—The many friends of Mr. A. F. Macdonald, formerly of the Bank of Montreal in this city, will be glad to learn that he is here once more, temporarily supplying the place of Mr. Plummer, during his absence on leave.

MILITARY.—The Canada Gazette of Saturday contains the following :—49th Hastings Battalion of Rifles, No. 2 Company Stirling, To be 2nd Lieutenant, provisionally, from 7th January, 1880 : Sergeant Charles Edward Hart, vice Parker resigned. No. 3 Company, Sidney, To be Lieutenant, provisionally, from 7th January, 1880 : Sergeant George Lyman Vandervoort, vice John Caverly, deceased.

NEW IRON MINE.—The Madoc Review says :—"Some time ago a rich deposit of magnetic iron ore was discovered on Mr. Dorland Clapp's property, west half lot 10, in the 5th concession of Madoc, within a few hundred yards of the Seymour mine. A company was immediately formed to develop it, consisting of Messrs. Joseph Caverly, R. T. Gray, James A. Orr, Thomas Kelso, Jeff. Caverly, and Arthur Coe, and last week the contract for sinking a shaft was let and the work begun."

MINING MACHINERY.—The steam winch which Messrs. Brown are manufacturing for use at the Gatling Gold mine, is a fine piece of machinery weighing about 3,000 lbs. There are two cylinders, each of ten horse power, and the machine is geared so as to be of great strength. It will be very easily worked, as a powerful foot brake is within reach of the operator, also the throttle valve and a lever for throwing the machinery out of gear. The whole is a great credit to the establishment.

SPRAGUE'S GEORGIA MINSTRELS.—This company, which is composed of twenty-five colored artists, will give a performance in the Opera House on Wednesday night. The Pittsburg Leader says of them : "There was a good crowd assembled at Library Hall last night to witness the initial performance of Sprague's Georgia Minstrels, which was a good one in every respect. The songs and dances of the Big Six, the Ethiopian comicalities of Jas. Bland, were done in first class order and were rewarded with loud applause from the audience."

THE WEATHER.—Always a topic of interest in our changeable climate, the weather has during the present month been more earnestly discussed than usual, owing to its unseasonable mildness and unusual fickleness. The prevailing feature has been a spring-like mildness, which has cleared the snow from the roads and from the woods, depressing business in the city and neighboring villages, and causing a suspension of operations in lumber shanties. There is still time for a renewal of activity in business, provided there should be a fall of snow at an early date, which business men are anxiously looking forward to.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Sophiasburgh Agricultural Society took place at the Town Hall, Demorestville, on Thursday, 8th inst. This Society is in a prosperous state, having paid out about two hundred dollars in prizes for the past year. The following are the officers elected : President, Alexander Patterson ; Vice-President, N. J. Boulter ; Treasurer, Ira A. Coolidge ; Secretary, Wellington Boulter ; Directors, D. G. Fraser, D. S. Davis, Franklin Orser, S. J. Doney, Ira A. Coolidge, Matthew Benson, Martin Wood, Alfred Foster, Wellington Boulter.

Smelting and Glass Works.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—In my last letter on Smelting works, I mentioned that I expected further information, which I would give to the public. I regret I was not in Belleville when Mr. Kent was there, as by conversing with him no doubt I should have been able to lay his views more fully before your readers.

I send in connection with this, Mr. Kent's letter, which should you think advisable you can publish ; and no doubt Mr. Tannahill may be able to give you information which will have a tendency to throw more light on the subject

Yours, &c., &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

Bridgewater, 16th Jan., 1880.

Belleville, 14th Jan'y, 1880.

Hon. BILLA FLINT:

DEAR SIR,—I came to Belleville almost on purpose to see you personally in reference to Smelting works, and a Glass factory in connection therewith. As you were away, I saw your son and my friend Mr. Tannahill, the City Treasurer, to both of whom I explained what I wanted—and who can explain to you personally better than I can do by writing what I desire to accomplish—which in short is this—a place to erect both smelting works and a glass factory ; the best place, one offering the greatest inducements, so that these industries wherever located would be likely to be permanent. Under the system I am going to work (which is patented) I claim and can show that I have practically control of both these businesses in this country ; and if you desire, I can come to Belleville at any time on a few days' notice, and practically demonstrate what I say. What I want to know is, what inducements Belleville is prepared to offer by way of land bonus, taking stock, &c., provided I show that I am in a position to put up and run works of this kind. What I want is to get to the best place—and that offers the greatest facilities for the manufacture of pig iron and glass. If therefore you take sufficient interest in the matter to desire to obtain these industries at Belleville, let me hear from you. I am in a position to get the necessary capital to start and run the works, and prepared to show they will pay—not in theory, but practically. What I want is the best location. Trusting to hear from you shortly, I remain, yours truly,

E. R. KENT,
Hamilton, Ont.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 19. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours : For the lower lakes, cloudy to partly cloudy weather with light rain in some localities, followed to-morrow by northwesterly to northerly winds, and cooler weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Indications : For lower lakes, increasing cloudiness, areas rain or snow, colder weather.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Herald's Augusta, Me. special says that a confidant of Governor Davis said yesterday that the fusionists would be allowed to meet in the State House to-day to hold a caucus or conference, but if they undertook to organize a Legislature, they would be ejected from the hall.

The Herald's Augusta special says that today Gov. Smith and Secretary Sawyer, will go to the Capitol to attempt to take possession of their respective offices, now occupied forcibly by Republicans. In case of refusal on the part of Republicans to allow them no definite plan of action has been determined upon.

CHARLESTON, W., Va., Jan. 19.—Thos. Sparks an old respected citizen, was struck on the head with a rock on Saturday night, and killed by Thos. Bing. Great excitement. Threats of lynching.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 19.—Over $6,000 was collected in the Catholic churches at Scranton diocese yesterday, for the suffering poor in Ireland.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—There are two Irish relief organizations in full operation here. At a mass meeting yesterday called for the relief of the distress in Ireland, Dr. Carroll resisted a motion for the appointment of a committee to collect funds, charging that the money raised for this purpose heretofore had been used to print scurrilous literature. The moneys had been misappropriated and mismanaged. He wanted no interputable men on such a Committee. Considerable excitement was manifested and the election of the commit tee postponed.

AFTERNOON DESPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The Prince of Wales and Princess Louise go to Liverpool on Wednesday, where the Princess will embark on the 22nd for Halifax.

Five professional roughs and ringleaders of the late bread riots in the County of Cork, were sentenced to six weeks imprisonment.

A Cabul despatch says dissensions have arisen among the Afghan leaders at Ghuzni. Mahomed Jan has gone to Zurmat, and Priest Muski Alim to Wardak.

Siddar Wali Mahomed, son of the former Ameer, Dost Mahomed, has entered upon his duties as Governor of Cabul. He is the best choice that Roberts could make, neither strong of character nor inferior. He hopes doubtless to rise later to the Ameership.

Roberts has been greatly extending his position.

A Madrid despatch says : The Cuban members of the Deputies will to-day present an amendment to the bill for the abolition of slavery, asking the Government to promise tariff reforms to facilitate the Cuban trade with foreign countries, and declare the privileges of the coasting trade extended to the great Indian provinces. If these demands are rejected, the Creole members will not favor the ministerial bill, which will also be opposed by the Liberals should their abstention from participation in proceedings cease on Monday, as was generally expected from the attitude of the dynastic Liberals who were much pleased with their reception by the King on the occasion of the presentation of an address congratulating him on his recent escape from assassination.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—On Saturday evening Mr. Boh, of West Hoboken, discovered that Rev. Wm. M. Trumbrower, of Hackettstown, was in his wife's room and heard improper remarks between them. Mrs. Boh is a member of Trumbrower's congregation and a teacher of a bible class, and her husband suspecting an improper intimacy had contrived to enrap them. Trumbrower on being discovered left hastily. Mrs. Boh attempted to follow and on being detained by her husband screamed murder, which brought back the minister, who levelled a revolver at Boh's head, threatening to shoot him. At midnight Trumbrower was arrested on a charge of assault and battery with attempt to kill. He was locked up all night and as a consequence no services were held at his church yesterday.

There are indications that the impending war between the Western Union and the American Union Telegraph Companies, will be the fiercest ever known. The Western Union two years ago acquired control of the Atlantic and Pacific company and closed most of its offices and used that company's wires for its own business. It is already reported that these offices will now be opened at all points where the American Union will compete. The wires of the Continental Telegraph Company are to be completed from New York to Washington under the auspices of the Western Union Company and both the Atlantic and Pacific and the Continental are to be used by the Western Union as ammunition to fight the American Union with. Rates will probably be reduced by the Atlantic and Pacific and the Continental Companies as low and perhaps lower than the American Union can afford, while the Western Union rates will remain as they are now. The Western Union will work its wires if necessary from the offices of the Atlantic and Pacific and Continental Companies.

Three and a half millions were paid at the Custom House last week for duties. This is the largest receipts for a single week in eight years.

Mollie Brooks, a beautiful and accomplished young lady, aged 20, suicided by morphine last evening. It is said on account of a quarrel with her lover.

Talmage, who made the famine in Ireland the subject for his sermon yesterday, made an eloquent appeal for the relief of the distress. The collection at the close was very large.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Jan. 19.—Reports from Lower Rappahanock confirm the killing of two citizens in Lancaster County, Va., by nocturnal dredgers, since which the hostilities of the oystermen have ceased.

NEWHAVEN, Ct., Jan 19.—A large crowd was at the Hayden Court. As the people surged by the Sheriff's office, Hayden stood in the open doorway smoking a pipe. He looks refreshed. Mrs. Hayden looks anxious and expresses the surprise of there not being a verdict. Nothing from the jury. It is thought those in the minority favor a verdict in the second degree.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—John Mitchell was refused a drink at Samuel Jacoby's saloon, Williamsburg, yesterday because it was Sunday. Mitchell stoned the saloon, when Jacoby shot him, probably fatally.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—H. Murray, of Washington, has been nominated to be Governor of Utah.

HAYRE, Jan. 19.—Arrived, the France.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Arrived, the Anchoria, from Glasgow.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 30 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

California Mining.

THE GOLD BELT OF THAT STATE—GETTING ORES READY FOR THE MILL—THE SECRET OF FAILURE IN MINING—A NEW ERA OF PROSPERITY DAWNING ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

To the Editor of the Chicago Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec 22.—The great interest manifested throughout the East in the Gold Belt of California, and the future of this class of mining, so promising, has induced me to refer to the subject, and in connection with it I desire to say a word about the working of gold mines and getting the ore ready for the mill. This subject is not only important, but has never been properly understood by the large body of so-called mining men who have figured for years past so conspicuously on the Gold Belt of California, and that is wherein lies the secret of so many failures. The reason that hundreds of valuable gold mines have been lying here under our very noses, slumbering for over twenty years, is because the men who undertook the manipulation of them did not understand the nature or character of the mines they were trying and had undertaken to develop. They undertook to work these gold mines in the same way and with the same machinery they worked the silver lodes of Nevada and elsewhere, and, as a matter of course, they failed. They then commenced to run after the hundred and one new-fangled processes for reducing gold ores, Isenburg's process, Fryer's process, Mosheimer's process, Robinsin's process, Kohler's process, and forty more, all of which have proved arrant failures, to say nothing of the long list of patented machines and other devices, not one of which to this day has proved a success. Thus hundreds of thousands, and indeed, millions, have been expended in these fruitless experiments to no purpose, further than loss, disgust, and ruin to those immediately interested.

The simpler the plan or way for the reduction of gold ores the better. All that is required is a stamp battery,—and a drop-stamp at that,—and, if your ore carries sulphurets, make two boxes about twelve feet long, and dimensions about like the ordinary sluice-box that miners use in placer mining. Place these boxes side by side below the battery, so that the discharge of pulp from the battery will pass directly into the box. At the lower end of the boxes have a raising-gate, so that you can raise the gate as the box fills with sulphurets; then when one box is full turn the stream of pulp from the battery into the other box while you empty the first box and get it ready for use again. Now, you will admit this is very simple and cheap, yet it is better for the purposes intended than all the costly patented devices ever offered to the mining public for the concentration of sulphurets. Even amalgamating plates that have been so long in use are now, in the light of a better understanding of what is required, deemed expensive and impractical, and are being wholly done away with. I would not use them under any circumstances, on account of their great expense, if nothing more.

So with the working of sulphurets after concentration, all of which is very simple when once understood. Now a word about working the mine, and here comes in another cause, or secret, of so many failures. In all the working of the gold mines in California, in years past, the custom or rule was to take out all the ore between wall and wall, and run it through the battery. There is not, on an average, one gold mine in a hundred that will pay to work in this way, for several reasons, which I will explain. In the first place, and, as a rule, almost without exception, the gold in gold-ore mines, runs in chimneys or payzones, and, outside of these chimneys or payzones, the quartz carries little or no gold, and is what might properly be termed barren quartz. To illustrate, we will suppose that the ore in the payzones would mill from $100 to $400 per ton, and that the quartz, or ore intervening between the chimneys, carried only a trace, or no gold at all. Would it be the part of wisdom in working such a mine to start in and take out all the ore between wall and wall on the line of the ledge and run it through the mill? Yet this is just what has been done and still is being done in the working of these gold mines. There is a fact connected with these chimneys that I have proved from long years of close inspection and investigation, and that is the inevitable law of nature governing the course of these chimneys or payzones. They invariably in ore bodies running north and south, dip to the south from a vertical line on the ledge, so that, were you to commence on one of those chimneys to sink a shaft, you would readily see that before you had gone any depth on a vertical line, the chimney or payzone would have left you in its dip to the south on the ledge, and the bottom of your shaft would be in barren quartz. How many mines have been worked in that way, and abandoned as as worthless,—having petered out? There is another phrase, or rather, freak, of nature in depositing the gold in and through these ore bodies, and that is in finding the gold all along and through the ledge next to and lying on the "foot-wall." For instance, suppose your ledge to be three feet wide, and that one foot of the ledge, next to the "foot-wall," would go $10, and the remaining two feet of the ledge, lying above and next to the hanging wall, was perfectly barren quartz. There is but one way to work it profitably, and that is to work the one foot of $10 ore, and discard the balance.

Many districts on the Pacific coast that are abundantly rich in gold-quartz veins are hardly known in the East, but let capital once be judiciously invested in them and they will soon prove an attractive field for investors. California is comparatively untouched. In early days this state was the "Golden Gate" for miners. All the gulches and streams on the western slope of the Sierra Nevada for 500 miles was prolific in placer mines for many years, but permanent or quartz veins were paid but little attention. Now the capital of California is concentrated into the hands of a few who are so intimately connected with the Comstock that it would be very disastrous to their interests to recognize any other than this locality.

I believe in a new era of prosperity in California; and, indeed, a new excitement must ere long be commenced, for the long neglected gold veins of this state will soon pour forth a golden harvest such as was seen in early days.

W. D. ROOT, Mining Engineer.

"Boy, may I inquire where Robinson's drug store is?" "Certainly, sir," replied the boy respectfully. "Well, sir," said the gentleman after waiting awhile, "where is it?" "I have not the least idea," said the urchin.

A clergyman asked his Sunday school "With what remarkable weapon did Samson slay the Philistines?" For a while there was no answer, and the clergyman, to assist the children a little, commenced tapping his jaw with the tip of his finger, at the same time saying, "What's this? What's this?" Quick as thought, a little fellow quite innocently replied, "The jaw-bone of an ass, sir."

THE CANADA CENTRAL RAILWAY Company will make application to the Parliament of the Dominion at its next session for an Act extending the time for completing the Railway authorized by its Charter and Amending Acts, and empowering it to construct a railway Bridge over the river St. Mary's, at or near the Sault Ste Marie, and a branch Railway from the existing line to Madoc or Tweed, in the County of Hastings.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

CHANCERY SALE OF VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10,560 square feet more or less.

This property was formerly owned by the late James Kennedy, and is now temporarily occupied by Roenigk & Cummins, upholsters.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to. Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermitten Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Signed. J. E. GALLAWAY, M. D.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superior ity over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only metal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, LUNG OR SIDE COMPLAINT, COUGHS, OR any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

CITY COUNCIL.

Ald. Hambly moved the reception and adoption of the Committee's report.

Ald. D. Holden objected to this, as in his opinion the membership of the Committee had not been properly arranged. He had to regret that Ald. T. Holden was not Chairman of Finance, as he had efficiently filled that office in former years. On several Committees the right men had not been appointed, and he was disappointed on this, that the members of the Street Committee had not been placed on another Committee. Between himself and Ald. Robertson there existed a warm personal friendship, and were the choice in his (the speaker's) gift, he would certainly give it to Mr. Robertson, but he (Mr. Holden) being an old Councillor, and, with two exceptions, the oldest around the board, he considered he should have the Chairmanship of the Harbor and City property Committee entrusted to him. He was well acquainted with the harbor, he knew its wants and requirements; and if a knowledge in that regard of thirty years would be of benefit, as he thought it would, he thought his claim to the Chairmanship was only proper and just. Murney Ward, the constituency he had the honor to represent, had been frequently overflowed in years past, and now something should be done to remedy this overflow. He again objected to the manner in which the several Committees were constituted.

Ald. Robertson said that though he lived in the northern part of the City, he had an interest in serving every part equally as well and that should be his object. The fact that he lived in the northern portion portion of the city did not prohibit him from having a knowledge of the harbor, which he averred he possessed. He trusted that the interests of the harbor would not suffer simply because he was the Chairman of the Harbor and City Property Committee.

Ald. Proctor said the interests of the city had not been consulted in the forming of the several Committees, as the Committee to strike the Standing Committees had pursued a one sided course and had done so without the interests of the citizens being taken into consideration. There was now no inducement offered to old Councillors to spend their time and labor for the interests of the city, as their efforts in the past had been ignored. He drew attention to his management of the Poor and Sanitary Committee, and said that in 1878 a saving of between $800 and $900 over the grant to that Committee had been effected and last year the expenditure would be about $200 less than the appropriation made therefor.

Ex-Mayor Robertson here entered the Council Chamber and on the invitation of the Mayor took a seat within the rails.

Mr. Proctor insisted that the interests of the City had not been consulted in the appointment of the members of the various Committees, the report was a one-sided affair in his opinion and he was decidedly opposed to such a course.

Ald. T. Holden said the motion should be voted on now, for what had been presented could not be mended.

The motion for the adoption of the report was then put and passed.

PETITIONS, &c.

The following petitions and original communications were presented and read :

From T. B. Bentley praying to be appointed to the position of Auditor.

From Hector Cameron, Solicitor for E. O. Bickford as follows :

TORONTO, 17th Jan., 1880.

DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of your letter of yesterday's date, and agree with you in the hope that by the action of the new Council in reference to the Grand Junction Bonus By-law, the necessity for litigation may be removed.

I would ask you to call the attention of the Mayor and Council to the fact that the charter of the Company for the construction of its works runs out unless extended on 1st May, 1881, so that unless the road is built to Peterborough this year the Council of Peterborough By-law for $75,000 will lapse, and we would probably be unable in any case to get it extended by legislation. I am confident of success in the pending proceedings to enforce the delivering of the debentures for that sum by the County of Peterborough, but without the extension of time the Belleville bonus is also, in such success would be useless, inasmuch as the work of the extension from Hastings to Peterborough will cost $300,000, which we must get advanced by this bank, and they positively refuse to do so on any other conditions than the payment of the $25,000 earned on the completion of the road to Hastings, and the extension of the time under the By-law for completion to Peterborough till 1st Jan., 1881. We are therefore powerless to go on unless these conditions are complied with, but if the City Council desire to see the road carried on at once and pass the requisite By-law extending the time unconditionally and authorize the Treasurer to sign and hand over the debentures for $25,000 already signed by the Mayor, we will at once proceed to make the necessary arrangements for going on with the work of extension to Peterborough, which the interests of Messrs. Bickford & Co. in the road renders as much an object of importance to them as they believe it is to the City of Belleville.

And in conclusion I would again remind you that if the road be not built this year and in consequence $75,000 of the financial basis for its construction be lost, a staggering blow will be inflicted on the whole scheme, and at the same time on the growth and prosperity of Belleville and the extension to Peterborough, and thence its connection with the Georgian Bay, will be delayed for years if not for ever.

I have the papers in support of the proceedings nearly completed, but as requested by you I shall delay action til next Friday.

Yours truly,
HECTOR CAMERON.

To L. H. Henderson, Esq., City Solicitor, Belleville.

From E. O. Bickford, Esq., as follows :—

DEAR SIR.—Seeing in the daily papers a paragraph that the Belleville City Council had petitioned the Dominion Parliament that aid might be extended to the Pacific Junction Railway, in which the city has a very small interest, that road being practically but an extension of the Northern Railway from the village of Gravenhurst, emboldens me to ask again a similar favor for the City of Belleville and local railways in which the interest to Belleville is direct and immediate, and the gain to the city in their extension would be enormous, while to the promoters and shareholders of the road, judging by the push of other roads the profit would be problematical to say the most of it.

The time is rapidly passing away in which such petitions to the Ontario Government will be in time to be acted upon this session and though I have repeatedly pressed upon members of your City Council I believe nothing has been done in it.

The Belleville and North Hastings Railway is of great importance to the prosperity, and its extension 30 or 40 miles further north in the County of Hastings would be of great advantage to the commercial growth and prosperity of Belleville, and could be done on the representation to the Lieutenant Governor in council by the Corporation of Belleville and other municipalities asking that it be made a colonization road and placed in the list of roads receiving such aid as is accorded to others of the same class running into new and free grant districts.

The Grand Junction Railway also has no Government aid beyond Peterborough, it having been taken off by order in Council in 1876.

A petition to the Lieutenant Governor in Council, asking that it be restored as far as Omemee, presented from the Belleville City Council, would have an hundred fold more weight than any representation I can make; and in case the City Council later on concluded to put the Grand Junction Railway Company in a position to satisfy their bankers and go on with the work, possibly the work to Omemee could be concluded this year if the Ontario Government should hear the petition favorably; but unfortunately if action in this regard is not taken now, completion to Omemee this year will be impossible, even if the City Council conclude to accede to the reasonable request of the Bank of Montreal regarding the debentures already earned.

No one regrets more than I do the want of confidence in the Grand Junction Railway Company, and in the contractor, manifested by the City Council, and the want of hearty co-operation and material and moral support, without which it is impossible to carry on a large public undertaking like a railway.

I regret it because it stands in the way both of the material progress of the city and the railways together, and I would be glad if some one could take my place to whom the Council would give such support and influence and backing. As for myself and co-contractor, between our bankers on the one hand and the attitude of the Belleville City Council on the other, we are powerless to do anything, and it entirely rests with the Council to decide whether the road is ever built any further or not, and I can only wait patiently for that decision.

Yours very truly,
E. O. BICKFORD.

To R. S. Patterson, Esq.,
Mayor of Belleville.

From E. R. Kent, Esq., as follows :

BELLEVILLE, 14th Jan., 1880.

DEAR SIR,—I called upon you to-day for the purpose of talking with you in reference to smelting works for iron ore and a glass factory to use up the slag or refuse therefrom.

As I am obliged to leave to-night I thought I would write you.

The object of my visit was to find out what the City of Belleville would be prepared to do in the shape of offering inducements for me to come and erect and run smelting works and a glass factory.

I saw the necessary capital to do so and am now looking for a location between Hamilton and Kingston which appears to me to offer the best chances of success and the best inducements in the way of ore, railroad and shipping facilities, bonus, &c.

I have Mr. Tannahill, the City Treasurer, also Mr. John Bell and Ald. St. Charlas and explained my views to them.

I am only sorry I cannot stay to see you, but if you feel sufficiently interested in this matter to call on these parties they can give you some idea of my views. In case you approve of them and think a reasonable inducement would be offered by your city in order to obtain these industries, will you kindly write me my views on the subject, and if satisfactory I would visit Belleville again and stop until the matter would be decided.

An early answer will much oblige

Yours truly,
E. R. KENT.

To R. S. Paterson, Esq., Hamilton, Ont.
Mayor of Belleville.

The Mayor said though the latter communication was partially private, it was now public, and was of considerable importance to the city. However, it was for the Council to take what steps they thought necessary, and hoped that they would be able to get a more definite expression of the ideas of Mr. Kent. If he proposed to locate here we could meet him fairly and if he would reply to him (the Mayor) he would submit the answer to the Council.

Ald. Dickson remarked that the giving of bonuses to enterprises was vicious, as any proper commercial enterprise should stand upon its own bottom. If the Murray Canal was built he was satisfied that Belleville would possess greater attraction than any other locality and would control the iron trade.

The Mayor said he intended to have submitted this letter before, but was absent from the city and would leave it with the Council to deal with the matter.

NOTICES.

Ald. Jellett gave notice of two motions, one for the appointment of High School Trustees and the other for the appointment of Auditors.

Ald. Robertson gave notice of a motion to extend the time for the completion of the Grand Junction Railway to Peterborough and for the payment to the trustees of debentures to the amount of $25,000.

Ald. T. Holden gave notice of a motion relative to the planting of shade trees and otherwise ornamenting the city.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. Jellett's By-laws were read a first time.

Ald. T. Holden objected to the reading of Ald. Robertson's By-law a first time.

Ald. Robertson trusted the objection would be re-considered, as he had reason to fear litigation in the premises and it might probably jeopardize the scheme. The banks would not advance any further money on account of this road and therefore we should extend the time. He concluded by asking that this rules be suspended to permit him to pass his By-law.

Ald. T. Holden said the Council should not reverse the actions of the last Ald. Robertson's request was against the rules, and he was decidedly opposed to it particularly as it was not reasonable.

Ald. Geen remarked that the G. J. R. question would be settled when the time came, and called for Ald. Jellett's motions.

Ald. Robertson withdrew the motion.

The rules were suspended for the appointment of Auditors and High School Trustees and the Council went into Committee of the Whole on By-laws.

Ald. Hambly in the chair.

The Mayor presented the name of Mr. P. P. Lynch as his selection for Auditor and the Council chose Mr. T. B. Bentley.

Ald. Jellett proposed A. Diamond Esq., and Robt. Newberry Esq., as the appointees of the city on the School Board.

Ald. Jellett suggested that Mr. J. H. Peck should have been appointed on the Board.

Ald. Petrie said as new blood had been infused in the Council so also should new blood be introduced in the School Board. Those who compose the School Board should possess high moral standing and should be such as would show an example to others. He therefore moved in amendment that W. F. Jones, Esq., and Prof. Badgely fill the vacancies on the Board.

In amendment to the amendment Ald. Geen moved the appointment of A. Diamond Esq. and Prof. Badgely.

Ald. Jellett's motion was carried and the Committee rose and reported.

On the question of adopting the report Ald. Petrie again pressed his motion, which was defeated, after which he called for the yeas and nays as follows :—

YEAS. — Ald. Wallbridge, Petrie, T. Holden, A. Smith, Geen, Vandusen—6.

NAYS.—Ald. Brennan, McInnich, Lingham, Dickson, Jellett, Costello, Robertson J. Smith, Grant, Hambly, Farley, St. Charles, Ostrom, Proctor, D. Holden—15.

The report was then adopted and the By-laws based on it passed and numbered.

Ald. Robertson again urged action on the G. J. R matter, as something of importance might arise in this regard. He again moved the appointment of a committee on the Murray Canal project to be composed of Ald. Jellett, Dickson, Holden, Robertson and Farley.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Treasurer submit a return of the unreturned rolls for various years, the names of the Collector, the amount collected and yet unpaid, the names of the sureties and the amounts.

Also for a return of the fees collected by the Police Magistrate.

Ald. Geen said the Magistrate had promised to meet the Finance Committee and come to an arrangement, on the strength of which assertion Ald. Dickson withdrew the last motion.

The Council then adjourned until Monday evening next.

Belleville Cemetery Company.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Belleville Cemetery Company was held in the office of the Secretary on Monday, the 19th inst.

On motion of Mr. Sawyer, Mr. Meacham was called to the Chair.

The Secretary read the Treasurer's report.

Moved by M. Sawyer, seconded by Jas. Smith, that the Treasurer's report be read and adopted.—Carried.

The next business was the election of nine Directors for the year.

Moved Mr. Templeton, seconded by Mr. Brenton, that the Secretary act as scrutineer to collect and count ballots. The ballot was taken.

Moved by A. G. Northrup, seconded by Jas. Smith, that the ballot-box be closed.—Carried.

The scrutineer reported the following stockholders as having the highest number of votes : John Bell, John Brenton, Jas. Smith, M. Sawyer, Dr. Hope, A. G. Northrup, J. Forin, Alex. Robertson and G. S. Tickell.

The Chairman declared these directors elected for 1880.

The meeting adjourned after looking over the financial state of the Company.

The report of receipts and disbursements by the Treasurer Mr. A. G. Northrup shows that the receipts from all source, amounted to $2,869 52 and the disbursements to $2,961.38, leaving a balance of $91.86 due the Treasurer.

The Grand Junction Railway and the City.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—Referring to your article under the above caption of Saturday, will you kindly permit me to disclaim any intention of coercing the City upon its By-law, the fact being that I have no power to coerce if I were disposed to exercise such a means.

The whole matter now lies in the hands of the City Council to determine whether the road shall go on or not. I am absolutely powerless in the matter.

Since the facts must come out, let it be known then that the Bank of Montreal, to whom the Belleville bonus as well as all the other grants and subsidies are assigned for advances in building it, positively refuse to postpone the realization of the $25,000 now earned and payable till the Road reaches Peterborough, and have instructed their own Solicitor to proceed and collect it, if I do not. I will be glad if you will tell me what else I can do! Our Bankers also say if the $25,000 now earned be paid over to them, and the time extended for one year to go to Peterborough, they will probably arrange for us the further loan of $300,000 necessary to complete the line, but on no other conditions will the Bank advance another cent. So what am I to do? Nothing, but leave it in the hands of the City Council to settle the question of Road or no Road as they see fit.

But why they should wish to tie us up to go to Peterborough in such a way that it would be impossible to get any further aid from other municipalities is more than I can comprehend. It is much against the interest of the City of Belleville to do this as against the Company's interest.

If we do not complete the line we will not ask for the bonus, nor will we ever ask Belleville for further bonus under any circumstances.

Yours truly,
E. O. BICKFORD.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 20.

THE CONTEST.

The supporters of Mr. Robertson have entered upon the campaign with the vigor that we expected of them. The meeting which was held last night, although called at very short notice, was largely attended by representative men, and the feeling of those present was of the most enthusiastic character. A thoroughly efficient organization for every Ward was perfected, and it was resolved to conduct the canvass with vigor to a successful issue.

Reports as to the feeling in Sidney and Trenton are highly encouraging, and with the formation of such an organization on behalf of Mr. Robertson in those municipalities, which it is now the duty of his friends to perfect, his majority will exceed that cast for him in June last.

As the time remaining for work is so short, the Central and Ward Committees will meet nightly in the large Hall in the INTELLIGENCER building. It is incumbent on every active supporter of Mr. Robertson to do his duty, as our opponents are working actively, and their efforts must be met by corresponding activity on behalf of the Opposition candidate; and it is not wise to despise any opponent, no matter how weak he may be.

Public Building.

The Hon. Mr. Langevin, Minister of Public Works, and the Hon. Mr. Bowell, accompanied by Mr. Scott, architect for the Public Works Department, arrived in Belleville this morning. Their object was to examine lots suitable for a site for a public building, and it is to be hoped that the result of their visit will be so satisfactory as to lead to an appropriation being made at the coming session of Parliament for the erection of a building for the Post Office, Customs, Excise and Weights and Measures offices.

Hon. Mr. Langevin and Mr. Scott proceeded east by the noon train. Hon. Mr. Bowell goes west by this evening's express.

A NEW LINE OF STEAMERS.—The Government has been asked to subsidize a line of steamers from Halifax to Aspinwall, thence by railway to Panama, and from Panama to British Columbia.

REPUBLICANISM AT A DISCOUNT.—The much talked of meeting for the organization of a Republican Club in Toronto on Saturday night proved an extraordinary farce. Seven people, including reporters, were present. The club was formed, but at the conclusion of the meeting there was a wonderful searching in the depths of empty pockets for enough to pay the rent of the room in which the gathering was held. The papers next morning gave exact reports of the proceedings and they are more funny than anything that has appeared in Toronto journals for many a day.

The Local Railways.

We publish in another column an important communication from Mr. E. O. Bickford in relation to the Grand Junction and Belleville and North Hastings Railways addressed to the Mayor and read in Council. In this letter Mr. Bickford asks the Council to petition the Ontario Legislature for grants from the Railway fund for the construction of the former line from Peterborough to Omemee, where a direct connection with the Midland will be made, (previously granted, but struck off by Order in Council) and for the extension of the latter road from its present terminus near Eldorado, in Madoc, for some thirty or forty miles, into the free grant districts.

As these projects are of great importance, it is to be regretted that Mr. Bickford did not communicate with the Council on the subject before; but it is to be hoped that action even now will not prove to be too late. The matter first mentioned is now brought before the people of the city for the first time, and as its effect would be highly beneficial, there seems to be no reason why the Council should not memorialize the Legislature, as asked by Mr. Bickford. The completion of the Grand Junction to Omemee, by giving Belleville direct connection with the Midland, would open the shortest route between Belleville and all points east, and the North-west, and thereby prove of great advantage not only to the locality but to a large part of the Province. It ought therefore to receive the favorable consideration of the Legislature, and if this object can be forwarded by a petition from the Council to the Legislature, that body ought to take action at as early a day as is possible. In any case no harm can be done by sending such a petition, and we therefore hope to see it done.

Regarding the proposed extension of the North Hastings line, there can be, we think, no two opinions as to its necessity. We look upon it as the one thing necessary to render the Murray Canal of the great benefit which it is designed to be to this locality, as without it the immense deposits of iron ore can be developed to but a comparatively should extent, and the production kept far below the demand. As every ton of ore shipped hence will benefit the City; as every man employed in the mines and on the railways will to some extent increase the trade of our merchants, it is clearly to the interest of the ratepayers that the line should be extended. Further, it will open up to unrestricted trade with the City a fine agricultural region in the northern townships, the inhabitants of which have now to find a market elsewhere, and as a colonization road it cannot but be of much benefit to the Province at large. The Ontario Legislature has hitherto dealt liberally with the promoters of railways of this class, and we believe will be inclined to follow their usual course in this case, the more especially as the claims of this section of the country are so strong that they can scarcely be ignored with propriety. The handsome bonus of $8,000 per mile was granted to a portion of the Kingston and Pembroke and Victoria Railways, and there seems no good reason why the Belleville and North Hastings Railway should not be treated with equal liberality. We repeatedly urged last year's Council to petition for this very object, and no action was taken ; but now that the subject has been formally brought before the new Council, we hope to see them take such steps as will tend, so far as in their power, to secure this desirable object.

For the Intelligencer.

The National Policy and the Toronto "Globe."

MR EDITOR,—The Globe, with its usual unfairness, makes an extract from my article published in the INTELLIGENCER, I attest of having the manliness to publish the whole letter, no doubt thinking that its editorial would swamp my arguments on the Boots, Leather and Hide question.

The Globe states "A well known Protectionist" ; here the editor is at fault ; I am a Free Trader, but only on equal terms. I have long advocated Free Trade principles, as you, Mr. Editor, well know, but while I have done so, it was not a one-sided Free Trade. I do not believe it wise policy to let the Americans overrun our country with their products and manufactures, while they, by high protective tariffs, shut us out of their markets.

As to "complaining of the attitude of the farmers towards the N. P.," I did nothing of the kind. I stated "I could not help but smile," so if I was "complaining," it must have been a "smiling" complaint.

The Globe states "The farmer who grumbled was undoubtedly justified in complaining that the N. P. had raised the price of boots as well as of all other manufactured articles," yet he does not give a single instance as proof of his assertion, except that "the N. P. lets in immense quantities of hides without the payment of any duty all." It is well known to the Globe that the American tariff lets in hides duty free, and it well knows that the Canadian tariff is based on the same principle. So, whether the Globe advocates free trade or reciprocity, the Canadian Government have met his views on the "hide" question, whether he is willing to admit the fact or not, and he well knows that if hides were higher in the States than in Canada the hides would go from us, and he well knows supply and demand governs the market prices. He also knows well that Canada cannot produce the amount of hides required for the making of leather to supply the wants of this country, and to place a duty on them would only increase the cost of leather boots and shoes, or else it would shut the hides out of Canada and our people would lose the manufacturing of them. Now, if the Globe can induce the Government of the States to put a prohibitory duty on hides, then he may cause a duty to be levied in Canada as against foreign hides, and so most effectually raise the price of hides and all articles manufactured from the same. Now would the farmer like that ?

The Globe states that 1,207,304 hides were imported in one year. This vast number of hides being tanned in Canada over and above what we could produce, must have given work to a large number of men, and by so doing helped the farmers to some extent in selling their products to support these men and their families, who no doubt would have gone to the States to seek employment, but why does not the Globe give to its readers both sides of this question ? Is it because, like Ananias and Sapphira, he desires to "keep back part of the price ?" Why did he not go into the leather, boot and shoe question and make comparisons ? He well knew how to do so.

Tanned calf skins	25 per cent.
Kid leather	50 " "
Upper, &c.	20 " "
Manufactures of leather, which includes boots and shoes	35 " "

The Canadian tariff is as follows :

Sole tanned, but rough	10 per cent.
Sole and belting not waxed and all upper	15 " "
Sole, belting and all upper waxed	20 " "
Japaned patent or enameled	20 " "
All other specified	20 " "
All not specified	25 " "
Boots and shoes	25 " "

From these figures it is easy to see that under a protective tariff we enjoy at least 10 per cent. advantage on our boots and shoes over our American neighbors, and I deny the Globe's assertion that boots and shoes have raised in price to any great extent. I mean those made mostly by machinery in the large factories, as parties can buy boots of machinery make in Belleville as cheap now as they could one or two years ago, and from all I can discover the wholesale houses charge very little more for their work than formerly, but even if they should charge more I cannot see why they have not the right when hides are worth $2 more per 100 lbs. than last year.

The Globe states that "the Government could put humbug duties by the dozen on such things as wheat, barley, oats, rye, cheese, butter, cattle, and sheep when there was no chance of doing good to farmers." Will the Globe pretend to be honest and say that 15cts duty on wheat and 10cts duty on oats is no protection to our farmers? He knows it is, and as to rye the duty on American corn helps the price of rye materially, and as to barley, cheese, butter, cattle and sheep if it gives no protection it certainly don't hurt the farmer ; if none comes into Canada, so that these get ups are mere bugbears to frighten the Globe's silly children into the belief that the N. P. is "the wickedest thing in the world."

I will not pursue the Globe's remarks any further at present, but close by stating that I do not send this to the Globe for the best of reasons; the experience of the past goes to show that it would not be published, that anything but fairness may be expected from that quarter. I expect none, nor seek for any, neither need the N. P, or its friends expect any fair play from that quarter; the truth lies not in that direction.

Yours, &c., &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 20.

City and Vicinity.

CITY COUNCIL.—The conclusion of the report of the proceedings of the City Council at yesterday's meeting will be found on the first page of to-day's paper.

AGRICULTURAL.—The annual meeting of the West Hastings Agricultural Society, for the election of officers and the transaction of other business, is to be held in the Police Court to-morrow at 1 o'clock p. m.

A CHANGE.—A welcome change has taken place in the weather, which has now assumed a more seasonable aspect. This morning a light fall of snow took place, but not sufficient to cover the ground, except in a few places where drifts formed.

ATHLETICS.—A grand exhibition by the pupils of Messrs. Ross and Barnes and of Mr. Johnston will shortly take place in the Opera House. Details will be published within a few days. The match between Johnston and Lynch may be considered made, as the former last night forwarded instructions to his representative in Toronto to sign articles for him.

THE CITY COUNCIL.—The City Council for 1880 is made up, as to trades and professions, as follows: Lawyers, four; carriage makers, two; lumbermen, two; carpenters, two; Grand Trunk employees, two; gentlemen, three; brick manufacturer, one; washing machine manufacturer, one; dry goods merchant, one; druggist, one; book-keeper, one; and grain elevator proprietor, one. There are no less than five bachelors in the Council, and this is leap-year, too.

TYENDINAGA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Tyendinaga Agricultural Society was held in Shannonville on Thursday, Jan. 8, when the following officers were elected for the present year:—President, G. Munro; Vice-President, W. Beatty; Secretary-Treasurer, C. Anderson. Directors—R. L. Lazier, E. Power, M. Hill. A. Culbertson, W. Ward, R. C. Osborne, M. Kennedy, W. Wilson, Jas. Geddes, W. Walsh. Auditors—W. M. McLaren, and D. McFarlane.

THE COLORED MINSTRELS.—Sprague's genuine negro minstrels, who are to give a performance at the Opera House to-morrow night, seem to have been favorably received by the press of the United States. The Cleveland Leader speaks of them as follows:—"Sprague's Georgia (Colored) Minstrel Troupe played at the Academy of Music last evening before a large sized audience, which appeared to enjoy the entertainment very much, the laughter being almost continuous. The troupe is composed of the Big Six Song and Dance Team; James Bland comedian, Layton and Stansbury, sketch artists; Ed Bowen, specialties, and a strong company of miscellaneous performers, and is probably one of the best colored troupes on the stage." The prices of admission, as will be seen by the advertisement, have been lowered to suit the times.

NEW GLASS FACTORY.—We are informed that Mr. Richard Davis, who visited this city some months ago with the intention of starting a glass manufactory, is now manager of a large factory of the same nature, which has been established at Penetanguishene, by a company with a capital of $200,000. This company have erected a building 250 feet long, and expect to start work within six weeks with 250 men, which number they will increase to 500 by the 1st of June. Mr. Davis left here somewhat abruptly, but states that he did so on solicitation of a capitalist in Toronto, who induced him to visit Penetanguishene, where he found good sand and clay in abundance. He wished, however, to return to Belleville, but finally consented to take the management of the establishment in which he now is; but he still has a desire to locate here, not being satisfied with his present location, and will shortly be here on his way east, when he will probably meet the gentlemen with whom he was negotiating, and if matters are satisfactory will locate here. This information is furnished by Mr. Wert, who saw Mr. Davis on Saturday last.

PROPOSED FOOT RACE.—The Mail says: "Gus Carruthers, hearing that J. S. Barnes claims the short distance championship of Canada, disputes his title thereto, and expresses his willingness to run him an up-and-up race of 75 or 100 yards at any time or place, for from $50 a side upwards."

L. O. D. No. 2.—The annual meeting of Loyal Orange District No. 2, South Hastings, was held in the Orange Hall, Thomasburg, on Tuesday, the 13th inst., when the following officers were duly elected for the ensuing year:—R. T. Porter, District Master; Wm. Wray, Deputy District Master; John Thompson, Chap; Robert Morton, Sec.; John Clark, Treas.; James Finley, D. of C., all re-elected.

L. O. DISTRICT NO. 2 NORTH HASTINGS. The annual meeting of the above District was held at Queensboro, on Tuesday 13th. The following were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Wm. J. Allan, D. M.; H. Ketcheson, D. D. M.; J. A. Orr, D. Chap. W. J. Wiggins, D, Sec.; John Caskey, D. Treas.; Jas. Moore, D. of C.; Oscar Ruport, Inside Tyler. The next annual meeting will be held at the lodge-room of No. 517, and the semi-annual at Hazzard's Corners.

THE LATE RICHARD TOSSELL. — The Kingston Whig of the 19th inst., records the death of Mr. Richard Tossell, a worthy and esteemed citizen of that place. Mr. Tossell, who died in Kingston on the night of the 17th, was a resident of that city for forty years, and was, our contemporary states, born in Barnstaple, Devonshire, England, in 1810, and migrated to this country as early as 1842. Two years thereafter he began in that city the business of a public builder and contractor, and continued an enterprising and tireless worker in this arduous and responsible avocation right up to the illness which has just proved fatal. As a business man he was characterized not only by energy and push, but also by an admirable perseverance, which never would be deterred by difficulty from the fulfillment of every agreement and the faithful discharge of every obligation. He may, almost literally, be said to have died in the harness, and to have "ceased at once to work and live." Among the many buildings he erected the present Merchants' Bank, built we believe, in 1853, the Court House, originally erected in 1855 6, and rebuilt in 1875, and the new Queen's College building, will remain the enduring monuments of Mr. Tossel's constructive, energy and ability. In his social relations the late Mr. Tossell was unobtrusive upon the one hand, and yet cheerful and genial on the other. He was a model husband and parent and a genuine christian. For nearly half a century he was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and in all the relations of life he uniformly commanded the esteem of all who knew him. Mr. Tossell was father in law of Mr. James W. Neal, of this city, and was well known to many citizens of Belleville.

THE SITUATION IN MAINE.—Maine's troubles are not yet ended. The Republicans hold posession of the Capitol, and yesterday it was guarded like a feudal castle. The Fusionist Legislature marched in a body to the gates, but were refused admission, whereupon they held a short session on the pavement. They have secured a hall, and will continue to sit as a legislative body from day to day. It is thought probable that they will appeal their cause to the National Congress.

STARVATION IN TORONTO.—The Mail of Monday under the sensational heading "Shall they Starve?" gives two columns to a description of the destitute poor in Toronto, and promises further articles on the same subject. Its first instalment consists of what it calls a picture in three panels, the three panels being three houses visited by its reporter, in which the occupants were all found in a state bordering on starvation, destitute of clothes, and with a three-legged stool and a broken down table almost the sole articles of furniture in each case.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 20. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk northeasterly to northerly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy, rather colder weather with snow areas.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.— Indications: For lower lakes, threatening weather with rain and snow, slightly cooler weather.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A Cabul despatch says that two high hills on the west of the city are being crowned by strong blockhouses by General Roberts, which will partly command the neighboring defile. Communications between Shirpur and the Bala Hissar will be secured by the erection of fortified posts on the Siah Sang hills. The river will be bridged between Siah Sang and Shirpur, all the walls within a thousand yards of Shirpur are being levelled, and roads are being made in all directions.

A Lahore despatch says the projected railway to Jellalabad has been abandoned. The terminus of the railway will be at Jumrood.

A correspondent at Lahore has reason to believe that a new frontier province will soon be organized. It will include a portion of the Khyber and Kurum Valleys, mentioned in the Gundamuk Treaty, with part of Scinde, having the River Indus for its eastern boundary.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

EUROPEAN.

NAPLES, Jan. 19.—Wagner, the composer, is here, with his health greatly improved.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Near Balla, in the County of Mayo, on Sunday, the parish Priest ordered a meeting in favor of the National Land League to disperse, and said he would not have any secret organization in his parish. The crowd became excited, cheered Parnell, and refused to disperse.

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 3rd.—The public attention is entirely absorbed by the disastrous conflagration in Tokio on December 26th. This is the third similar overwhelming calamity in 7 years. Miles were laid waste. Nearly 15,000 homes are destroyed, fifty thousand persons are rendered destitute. A considerable part of the foreign district is destroyed, including several missionary establishments and one Church. The Legation of the United States was in danger but escaped. Loss of life about one hundred.

AMERICAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.— Advices by steamer from China are as follows:—

HONG KONG, Dec. 24.—Chung How has just returned from St. Petersburg and now occupies the chief position of influence at the Imperial Court. He is a strong advocate of exclusive Chinese rights.

Reports are circulated of new proposals for Treaty amendments, all tending to the resumption of complete control over all the ports by China and the assertion of the same rights over foreign residents as over native subjects.

Owing to strong intercessions from foreign private sources the barbarous sentences of mutilation passed upon the surviving relatives of Yakub, ex-Ruler of Kosgoz, has been commuted to life imprisonment.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Herald's Augusta special says the Fusionist programme is understood to be adjournment to-morrow to some indefinite time, perhaps to the call of Governor Smith. It is believed they will establish a regular Government with officers in the different departments. They possess the Seal of the State. The safe in the Secretary of State's office was broken open yesterday but the Seal was not found.

There never was a time in the history of New York when so many vessels lay in the harbor awaiting cargoes. This situation is mainly due to the stagnation in the grain and provision markets.

The Times says, the consolidation of the Union Pacific and Kansas Pacific Railroad has been agreed upon. The Union Pacific is to issue new stock to take up the stock of the Kansas Pacific Co. at the market rate. As Gould holds most of the Kansas Pacific stock, he will thus obtain Union Pacific stock in exchange for it, and will again secure absolute control of the Union Pacific. The consolidation gives the Union Pacific another eastern outlet, by way of Cheyenne, to Denver and Kansas City. Under the United States law, the Union Pacific is compelled to pro rale at Omaha, its other eastern terminus, with all roads running eastward from that point. No such restriction is imposed at Kansas City, where Gould's famous south-western system of roads begins. Thus at one stroke the entire Pacific coast traffic is given over bodily to the Wabash system. Chicago and Rock Island, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and particularly Chicago and Northwest, Gould's old enemy, all of whom have termini at Omaha, will be the principal sufferers.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Greek ministry has been re-constructed as follows: Comounouras, President of the Council and Minister of Interior; Avgheritas, Minister of Education; Papamichaloplo, Minister of Finance; Delyannis, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Valsmakis, Minister of Justice; Boubolis, Minister of Marine; Valtines, Minister of War.

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—An earnest appeal to the people of the United States has been issued by the Mansion House Commitee for the relief of the distress in Ireland. The appeal says that the distress is daily increasing in area, and it is almost impossible to avert an absolute famine in very many places.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—A Rome despatch says the Pope is surprised and indignant at Cardinal McCloskey's reception of Parnell in New York, and ordered the Papal Secretary of State to telegraph to McCloskey for information. The Pope is confined to his bed.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Jules Favre, an eminent French statesman and Republican member of the Senate, also a member of the French Academy, died last night at Versailles, aged 71.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw Railroad was sold under foreclosure, and purchased by a Committee of bondholders for $6,000,000.

NORTH TROY, Vt., Jan. 20.—Mark L. Bannister, of Troy, was arrested under a requisition from the Governor General of Canada for passing counterfeit bills on the State National Bank of Troy, New York. Bannister has borne an excellent reputation.

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 20.—Machinists were at work all night on the safe in the Secretary's office. There are no valuable papers in it. It is believed that the election returns have been destroyed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Ellis introduced a joint resolution appropriating $500,000 for the relief of the suffering people in Ireland. —Referred.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—The Herald's Augusta special says that in the Republican House this morning a communication was received from White, of Winthrop, demanding an investigation into the charges of bribery against him. A special Committee will investigate. Eugene Hale offered a resolution declaring the State Government fully established and denouncing all other bodies pretending to be parts of the State Government as unconstitutional. The events of yesterday stiffened up the Fusionists' backbone. Their Legislature shows fewer signs of decay than ever. This is a disappointment to the Republicans. The refusal to admit members, of whose rights to seats there is no doubt, when they went to the statehouse yesterday, has helped the fusionists. It was just such a stop as Smith and Fillsbury hoped would be taken. There has been a strong possibility before that Senator Stricklan, who is a lawyer and has a lawyer's respect for the opinion of the Supreme Court, would go into the Republican legislature this week, but such was his feeling at being shut out of the Statehouse yesterday that there is now very little danger of his leaving the fusionists.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

CHEESE.—This article has again advanced, cable to-day being 72s.

The lumber market is booming, especially in deals. The Montmorenci cut of next season, 500,000 Quebec standard, and several other large lots, have lately been sold at good prices.

BUTTER & CHEESE.—The offerings of butter on the Montreal market are light, and the prices are steady, 22c being bid today for fine Townships, but holders asked a fraction more. The New York market, however, is weak and prices have lost 1c @ 2c during the week. The cheese market remains firm, but there is nothing doing on spot except in a retail way.

EGGS.—The Montreal Gazette says:—Packers have been sadly dissapointed this year as regards the outlet for their stocks. A great many more packers than usual went into the business in the country last year, the result of which is that the stock of pickled eggs is heavier than ever known before, at this season of the year. Canadian eggs are selling in New York to-day at 16 cents, and are required to be fresh at that. Here it is difficult to sell fresh eggs at over 18 cents. Anything strictly fresh might possibly bring 20 cents. Limed eggs are a complete drug in the market, holders asking 15c to 16c, but at these figures we hear of no stocks moving to any extent.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—Fall wheat, No. 1, $1.28 to $1.30; No. 2, $1.26 to $1.28; No. 3, $1.23 to $1.25. Spring—No. 1, $1.26 to $1.28; No. 2, $1.24 to $1.26; No. 3, $1.21 to $1.23. Barley—No. 1, 77c to 78c; No. 2, 66c to 67c; No. 3, 56c to 57c; No. 4, 48c to 50c. Peas—No. 1, 66c to 67c; No. 2, 65 to 66c. Oats—No. 1, 37c; No. 2, 36c. Corn—57c to 58c. Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY, Jan. 19.

Amongst the petitions presented was one from the Sheriffs of several counties desiring to be heard before a Committee of the House respecting certain fees, and one from the Dominion Grange asking for a curtailment of the midsummer vacation in Public Schools.

Mr. Mowat, in reply to Mr. Awrey, stated that it was not the Government's intention to propose at present any change in enactments of the ballot law, but he held out a hope that something might be done in the way of amendment towards the close of the present Parliament.

On motion of Mr. Metcalfe, a return was ordered showing the cost of Grand Juries during the years 1875-1878.

Mr. Young obtained an order for an address asking the Lieutenant-Governor to lay on the table copies of the correspondence between the Dominion and Ontario Governments respecting the confirmation of the North-west Boundary Award.

Mr. Harcourt obtained an order for a return of the fees received by county judges when acting as judges of the Surrogate Courts.

On motion of the Attorney-General, the Bills for the relief of co-operative associations and making provisions respecting coroner's inquests were read a second time. The Bills respecting coroner's inquests is intended to place a check on the holding of inquests and post morten examinations unnecessarily and at expense to the country. Its principal provision is that a coroner shall not be entitled to fees for holding an inquest or post mortem unless he first makes a declaration in writing under oath, stating that from information he has received he has reason to believe that death has been caused by other means than "through mere accident or mischance."

Stock in Winter.

The management of domestic animals on the farm in winter, in order to secure the most profit to the owner, has often been discussed in our columns, but it is a subject which may be profitably taken up with the return of this season of the year. Profit cannot be expected if stock is not properly cared for. The maximum of gain in raising live stock is only secured by possessing good animals, and keeping them in a thriving condition from birth-day to maturity. This fact we have emphasized repeatedly because it is one which cannot be too often nor too strongly urged upon the attention of farmers. The ratio of poor to good stock throughout the country is out of all reasonable proportion, when the means of improvement are so easily secured. A visit to the stock-yards in the city any day in the year will furnish conclusive evidence on this point. It is only fair to say, however, that much improvement has taken place within a few years, and without doubt such improvement will be more rapid in future than it has heretofore been. Health and thrift during the winter months and early spring depend on good food, and a sufficient quantity of it, comfortable quarters, and regularity in supplying food and water. Under this management young animals will steadily develop, while those that have reached maturity will maintain their health and vitality, and with the return of spring, when turned upon the fresh grass, they will be in condition to make rapid improvement and realize to their owners the best results. A word of caution is in place right here. The mistake is often made of a sudden change of diet. In all cases this should be gradual, else much harm is likely to follow. From grass to hay and grain the transition is oftentimes too sudden, inducing a train of evils which the experienced farmer and feeder readily understand. Like results are likely to follow a sudden change from winter food to fresh pasturage. Green grass, turnips, and similar foods, contain from 70 to 90 per cent. of water, while grain and dry hay contain only from 10 to 15 per cent. It is seen at once that a radical change from one to the other is injudicious, and fraught with danger. At this time of year, it is not unusual to turn cattle into stalk fields and not unfrequently valuable animals are lost by a want of judgment. For the first few days the animals should not be permitted to remain in the field long at one time—not more than two hours—and after being driven out they should have access to water. If allowed to remain in the field longer, they are liable to fill themselves with dry husks and stalks, impaction of the manifolds is likely to follow, and very often death ensues. It is well to recollect that a single kind of food, day after day, without change, is not as beneficial as a mixed diet, or a change of food now and then, provided proper judgment is exercised. Such changes may be provided with very little trouble and cost and the enhanced returns they bring will more than compensate the outlay. It is not advisable to have stock go into winter quarters in poor condition, and the judicious farmer and stock-raiser makes it a point to have his animals in fair flesh when they are taken from the pasture. He knows that in this condition they will endure the cold weather far better than when thin, and less food is required to carry them through the winter. A low temperature, especially severe cold winter, draws heavily upon the fat of an animal, and when there is a lack of this resource, more food is required, otherwise an animal will rapidly deteriorate. Regularity in feeding is very importont. Stuffing and starving by turns is a very bad policy. A lack of care in this regard is anything hut wise; it is evidence of a want of humanity on the part of the owner or the person in charge of the stock, besides being expensive. With such treatment animals will be little more than hide and frame at spring time. A merciful man is merciful to his beast, and no species of cruelty is more reprehensive than starvation. There is no profit in keeping live stock in that manner. It is attended with absolute loss. Feed well and provide warm quarters, giving daily exercise when the weather permits, and your stock will represent increased value with the return of spring.—Prairie Farmer.

The Rapids of Lachine.

Which render the approach to Montreal so romantic, are worth a long visit to behold, they are really the only dangerous rapids in the river. They are caused by bolderous rocks, and it requires great skill to pilot the boats through them. They have engaged an experienced Indian pilot. Like these rocks in the St. Lawrence are the obstructions which human appetite places in the current of men's lives. Our aches and pains, like the foamy waters of our great river, are traceable to these obstructions. Remove them and life will roll along smoothly and pleasantly. This can be done readily by the use of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills, the great medicine of this century. They remove obstacles from the system naturally and kindly. So thousands attest. Every druggist in the Dominion sells them.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

Medford, Mass., Sept. 18, 1879.

Mr. Giles—Dear Sir: I have used your Iodide Ammonia Liniment and find it the best remedy I ever used. For a sprain or callous there is nothing equal to it. My wife sprained her ankle last Saturday evening; I used the Liniment as per directions; the second application was a perfect cure. Some of my friends started last night for Johnson Co, Kentucky; they have taken several bottles with them I have used it on my horses and it works like a charm. I am going to Kentucky next month—farming. If you have any works treating of horses and other animals, please send me two or three copies, and oblige, Yours respectfully,
Chas. W. Forbush.

Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

TAKE NOTICE.

APPLICATION will be made at the next Session of the Dominion Parliament for an Act to authorize and empower the Corporation of the City of Belleville to build and construct a Roadway and footpath across part of the mouth of the River Moira, extending from the new Ferry Slip at the junction of Dundas and Front Streets, to the north-east corner of the Island in the mouth of the Harbor, lately occupied by H. B. Rathbun & Son, and for other purposes in connection with the same.

By order,
R. NEWBERY,
Clerk of Municipality,
City of Belleville.
Dated at the City of Belleville this 18th day of December, A.D. 1879.

NOTICE.

BY request in writing from shareholders of the Hawkeye Gold and Silver Mining Company, representing over one-fourth of all the stock issued by said Company, I hereby call a special and general meeting of the shareholders of the said Hawkeye Gold and Silver Mining Company, to be held on the 22nd day of January, 1880, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, Ontario, Canada, at the hour of two o'clock, p. m., to receive a proposition for the sale of the Company's properties, to consider, accept, or reject the same, and to take such steps in and about the same as may be agreed upon; also, for the election of officers of said Company, and for the transaction of any and all business that may come before the meeting. A full attendance of shareholders is requested.

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq. Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

This property was formerly owned by the late James Kennedy, and is now temporarily occupied by Roenigk & Cummins, upholsters.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft. x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto, M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of Bins enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take, in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liner Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne: Lynn, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

LAME BACK. WEAK BACK.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

On the second night following; when twilight had well settled down on the narrow, dirty, densely populated streets near to the river, an old man, whose appearance and dress were those of a Jew, slowly treaded the unsavory labyrinths, casting furtive glances around at every crossing and turning, as if anxious to discover that he was not watched, nor his footsteps followed. After making many windings and intersections, he suddenly disappeared within the mouth of a dark alley, and at the very foot of it passed through an unlighted passage, groping his way up a creaking, rickety, wooden stair, with a briskness of step little the unsavory labyrinths, casting furtive glances around at every crossing and turning, as if anxious to discover that he was not watched, nor his footsteps followed. After making many windings and intersections, he suddenly disappeared within the mouth of a dark alley, and at the very foot of it passed through an unlighted passage, groping his way up a creaking, rickety, wooden stair, with a briskness of step little in accordance with his venerable appearance, or with the slow and tottering gait with which he had come along the street. At the top of the stair, he tapped in a peculiar manner on a door, which in a moment or two was opened from within, and the Jew entered without a word.

'Is all safe?' was asked by a voice, the moment the door was re-fastened.

'So far as I can tell,' was answered, in a firm decided tone, yet in a woman's voice—the voice of her who in Grosvenor-Square had been called Mother M'Koul.

'You have been long in coming,' rejoined the other speaker, who was no other than her husband—the notorious Jim M'Koul himself.

'I've come as soon as ever I could. It was four o'clock when I left Newgate, after which I had to disguise myself, and dodge about in various directions to make sure that I wasn't followed. Vickery knows that I am acquainted with your hiding place,—he must suspect that I am in communication with you, and probably has his spies set to watch my motions. After I got clear away in this Jew's dress, I went boldly back along the street, and saw what I took to be a Bow-street runner planted opposite the house, waiting there, no doubt expecting that I would come out, and ready to follow me wherever I went.'

'Ha, ha, ha,' laughed M'Koul, as he struck a light. 'And you passed him without detection, in the character of an 'Old Clo'?'

'He hadn't the most distant suspicion,' she returned.

'I'm not surprised at it,' said M'Koul, as he held forward the light and scanned her from head to foot. 'Upon my word, I would not have known you myself in that toggery. You are a clever wench, Kate. But come, what news?' I am eager to know. Has White seen his lordship?

'He has.'

'And is he to get him off.'

'White has to escape hanging on one condition.'

'Ah! there is a condition, then. What?

'The cash must be restored.'

'What!' roared M'Koul, with a fearful oath.'

She repeatedthe words in a tone of pointed significance.

'Give up the plant! Confound them, do they expect that?'

'They insist on it.'

'Then they won't get it, and White can swing for it. What a precious fool he is. The secret he boasts about can't be of much value or he could have played a better game.

'He is to be sent back to the hulks, but that he doesn't mind, for he hopes to bolt again.'

'And what does he say about the giving up of the bank paper?'

'He is clear for it being done.'

'Is he!—the nunskull; and does he think Jim M'Koul is such a born idiot as to do it?'

'I don't see how you can help yourself, Jim,' rejoined his wife. 'Unless you do it, he'll blow the whole business, and you will be nicked too.'

'Curse him,' said M'Koul, with an expression of savage ferocity. 'This is just what I was afraid of—that he would show the white feather—and that's why I sent you to tell him to play his cards with his lordship. Much the suggestion has come to.'

'Something for him at any rate,' the woman quietly observed. 'He saves his neck by it.'

'And I lose the cash.'

'Better lose the cash than fall into the hands of Jack Ketch,' rejoined his wife.

M'Koul's fury continued for several minutes, during which he walked the chamber, uttering frightful imprecations. Gradually, however, he cooled down, and began to reflect on his position. The police were hunting for him everywhere, and he could not expect long to elude their vigilance. By surrendering the cash, he would save himself as well as White, but what a sacrifice to make!

Pressed by his scheming brain was at work planning the possibility of over-reaching the authorities—securing a pardon for himself and his associates, while he yet retained in his power the plunder. By a bold trick it could be done, and he resolved to do it.

His wife sat watching his purple face as he wrought at the cunning project in his mind, curious to know what problem was absorbing his attention, but careful not to interrupt him by distracting questions. At length, and without a word, he rose, and knocking away a board in the wall he drew a square parcel from the recess behind, and undoing its wrappings displayed numerous bundles of bank notes.

'You're a going to do it, then?' said his wife, as she fixed a pair of greedy eyes on the valuable paper.

'Look you here, Kate,' he answered, 'The whole lot is here except the gold and silver which we shared on the road. Neither White nor French know the amount, but I do, and the sum total is twenty thousand.'

'My eye, Jim, is there twenty thousand pounds in that parcel?'

'That's the figure, See, here is six thousand tied up by itself. I meant to do them out of that when it came to sharing and was going to hold out that fourteen thousand was the amount of the plant. Well look here; to that six thousand I'll just add other two, and that leaves twelve in the parcel. Very good. The twelve thousand I'll give up to Vickery, and swear that it is the whole we took. When the storm blows over I'll smash them to the country, and you and me, Kate, will be able to live like a lord and lady all the rest of our lives. What do you think of that, old lass?'

'First-rate if it could be done. But will they take twelve thousand! Will the trick hold good?'

As I'll manage it, it will,' said M'Koul. 'You'll conduct the negotiations, and secure the conditions, and when all is arranged you'll give up the money. There will be a row about the balance, of course; but you just swear down their throats, that they have got the whole, and as the parcel will be out by that time, and can't be recalled, we can snap our fingers at them and smash the eight thousand at our leisure.

The woman's greedy eye dilated at the brilliant scheme which was presented to her, and she set herself to become perfect in her part of the play.

In due time negotiations were opened up for the restoration of the money. The agent of the bank grasped at the proposal in a moment, and was only too glad to let the prosecution of the robbers fall. The punishment of crime was not to be insisted on to the loss of such a heavy sum. No doubt the transaction amounted to a compounding of felony; but there was no law against such a thing in those days, and, as the Government was willing to endorse the arrangement, matters progressed without any difficulty.

On a day appointed Mrs. M'Koul met the cashier and the lawyer from Glasgow, and put into their hands the stolen money. Great was the amazement and consternation when, on counting the notes, they found them to amount to twelve instead of twenty thousand pounds, and indignantly they demanded the restitution of the remainder. The demand was met with a protest that this was all, and when too late they saw they had been sold. Ruefully, therefore, they bundled up the twelve thousand and were compelled to return to Glasgow with this diminished sum in their possession.

Huffey White went back to the hulks, the others were liberated, and Jim M'Koul —freed now from the pursuit of the police —hid away the share of the booty he had so cleverly retained, resolving to wait till he could safely and profitably get the notes put in circulation.

CHAPTER X.

THE EXHIBITION IN RATCLIFF HIGHWAY.

And now we turn to very different scenes. It is no longer summer. It is winter; the days are short and the nights are long and dark. Dark sometimes, but not always, for the moon comes and goes with her silvery light, and when she is in the ascendant she irradiates the scene. We call the moon the Queen of Night, but her empire is the country, and can scarcely be said to embrace the city. The population of the city are practically independent of her benetcent reign, but their independence is purchased at a great loss. If their glaring, flaring lamps make them careless of her illuminating power, they know nothing of the fairy grandeur she sheds over the sunless landscape. Ah, that is a delight just as foreign to the city as is the spectacle of green fields, foliaged woods and scented hedgerows, with violets and primroses, peeping underneath. Little do the dwellers in the densely populated part of London know what a serene splendor lies beyond their smoky, noisome streets on those nights when the pale moonbeams struggle down upon them through the dirty haze, making the lamp lights a little less red, but serving little as a substitute for their fiery lustre. Away beyond all that din and roaring strife is a region of peace and silence, which they have never known, and therefore could not appreciate —a region where Nature is hushed into the stillness of night and winter, over which the moon hangs with a saintly splendor, and casts her beams with a beauty which thrills and captivates the sensitive heart. Soothing and sacred are the influences which a moonlit landscape sends upon the spirit. Passion cannot live in such a pure, silent, peaceful presence. The evil thoughts of an evil heart are checked by the hallowed surroundings, and all things are so out of unison with the nature that clings to sin, that the sinner retires in discontent to the more congenial darkness which unholy practices require.

But the scene to which we are now going is not in the country where the moonlight sleeps in silent calmness on lake and hill, on a gliding river and murmuring sea. It is to a place where we shall find the antipodes of all this—to Ratcliff Highway, in the east end of London.

Few of our readers, we suppose, have seen Ratcliff Highway at all—still fewer have seen it by night. Very inadequate, therefore, must be their conceptions of its character and appearance. The people of Edinburgh have a very faint reflection of it in the scene presented by their High Street on a Saturday night; the Glasgow people, too, know something of its meaning by their experience at the Saltmarket and the Briggate; and the Dundonians can best picture it to their imagination by thinking of the Overgate. But Ratcliff Highway has features in the scenes of these Scottish street presents, and reveals scenes far surpassing in variety of the lower phases of city life anything which they can show—scenes peculiar to large English towns in general, and London in particular.

Of Prince Bismark in his youth a very pretty and romantic story is told. In a ramble through the Tyrol he met a lovely young peasant maiden with whom he fell deeply in love, and for whose hand he proposed. Her father, a wealthy peasant and a strong Catholic, refused to marry his daughter to a Protestant, and the young Bismarck, sorely grieved, tore himself away. A few years after, the fair Tyrolese, having meanwhile married a Catholic, died at Salzburg. She left a daughter in whom the great Chancellor has always taken a kindly interest. She was lately married and the Prince has sent her his good wishes and a beautiful wedding gift.

Miss Dudu Fletcher, the clever and pretty author of "Kismet" and other novels, has disgusted, it is said, all the matchmaking mammas in Rome by becoming engaged to a great matrimonial prize, Lord Wentworth. As Lady Wentworth the brilliant and sparkling young woman will doubtless grow only more charming, and it is to be hoped will not give up the literary work in which she has shown so much promise.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 21.

Attempted Humbug.

When legitimate argument fails them, the Grits of West Hastings, like their brethren elsewhere, never hesitate to resort to sectional cries. They have, in fact, already commenced this favorite game by endeavoring to win the votes of Conservatives in Sidney on the pretence that they desire a Sidney man as the representative of the constituency in the Legislature, and in proof of this they point to their nomination of Mr. Sills. When put to the proof, the hypocrisy of such a statement is apparent, as the facts will show. In June last, when there was presumed to be a fair chance to carry the riding, their nominee was Mr. Thomas Holden, a Belleville lawyer. At the recent convention, of the five gentlemen whose names were placed before the Convention, three were lawyers and residents of Belleville. Mr. Holden, who was really the choice of the delegates, positively declined, as did also his professional brethren and Mr. Gordon, of Trenton, so Mr. Sills was selected as the last resort. Mr. Sills, on consideration, decided not to accept, and the nomination was then tendered not to another resident of Sidney, which should have been done were the Grit declaration sincere, but to Mr. J. J. B. Flint, and it was only on that gentleman's final refusal that Mr. Sills was induced to take the field, in order to prevent the election going by default. From this plain statement of facts, it will be seen how pure a piece of humbug is the sectional plea advanced by the Grit party.

So far as the nomination of Mr. Robertson is concerned it was made in June last by a convention in which Sidney and Trenton, although possessing unitedly fewer voters than Belleville, had a majority of delegates, and Mr. Robertson was the unanimous choice of that Convention so constituted.

Therefore the free act of the Conservative convention, with but a minority of delegates from the city, was the choice of the candidate whom they deemed the strongest, irrespective of all sectional or other considerations, whilst the Grit party claim credit for pretended sectional feeling in the nomination of a man who was only chosen after every other person supposed to be available had declined.

We have always been opposed to these sectional cries, believing that the best man should be chosen, entirely irrespective of the place where he may happen to reside, which is at best a mere matter of accident.

STORMONT.—The polling in this constituency for the vacant seat in the Ontario Legislature will take place to-morrow.

NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.—A Toronto despatch says :—"It is understood that the Government intends to bring down simply a motion for the erection of new Parliament buildings, and leave it with the House to decide where the site shall be. A strong effort is being made by the residents of the West End to have the lunatics removed from the Asylum to a new building to be erected at Mimico, and to have the present Lunatic Asylum changed into the Parliament Buildings."

Benefits of the National Policy.

A pressure of other matter, extending over a few weeks past, has prevented us from giving the usual weekly compilation from our exchanges of items showing the benefits which the National Policy is working. However, the items have lost no interest by some of them being deferred.

The piano manufactory of Mr. R. S. Williams, Toronto, which had to be closed under the Cartwright tariff, has been re-opened and is in full operation once more.

Messrs. Stein & Beisc, a well known New York firm, have opened a branch of their chopped meat factory at St. Cunegonde, near Montreal. Fifty hands are now employed, and that number will be doubled as soon as operations are fairly under way.

The Hall Works at Oshawa have extended their business by the addition of a malleable iron works, the buildings for which are 450 by 50 feet. The other branches of their works are also more active than heretofore.

Messrs. Healy & Purdy are about establishing a factory at Round Hill, Annapolis, N. S., for the manufacture of clothes pins, tubs, pails, etc. They have purchased all necessary machinery, amounting to about $3,000. A brick building has been erected.

Several parties in Nova Scotia have lately commenced the canning of boneless herring, finnan haddies, etc. These articles find a ready sale for export and in the Provincial markets.

A building suitable for a glove factory has been purchased in Compton, Que., by Messrs. Laird & Co., and this winter will probably witness the establishment of that industry there.

A broad silk factory is about being started in Montreal.

Messrs. G. & A. McDougall, of Three Rivers, are re-opening their immense iron works at St. Maurice Forges. It will give employment to some one hundred to one hundred and fifty men.

A cigar factory, to employ forty men, is being established in Three Rivers.

The large extension to the Hudon Cotton Factory, Montreal, is complete. About four hundred additional hands are employed. The pressure of business is so great that the factory is kept going till 9 o'clock each night.

The Cornwall cotton mills have been completed.

A new furniture manufactory has been established in Hamilton.

The Pioneer Beet Root Sugar Company is stated to have purchased the necessary property in Coaticook for carrying on its proposed operations, and also to have contracted for some 2,000 cords of wood for fuel. Factory work, it is thought, will be begun about next October.

The St. John, N. B., Daily Sun states that $100,000 has been secured for a Sugar Refinery at Moncton; the foundations for a brass rolling mill and lock factory are now laid in the same place, and the stock of a knitting factory has been rapidly taken up. Also, in St. John, two establishments have engoged in the manufacture of iron nuts, one of them turning out a ton per day, worth $150 to 1200.

The Montreal Woollen Company, with a capital of $100,000 has been incorporated. The parties mentioned in the charter are Messrs. John Fisher, of Montreal, Edward Fisher, W. Dale Shaw, Wm. Shaw, Robt. Mac Shaw and Joseph W. Shaw, of Huddersfield, England.

The following named parties will daly apply for incorporation as the "Canada Wire Company": H. R. Ives, John Taylor and J. T. Molson Montreal, R. E. Sears, of Marshalltown, Iowa, and G. Nicholson, of New York. Barbed wire for fencing will be the principal article of manufacture at the outset, as there is a heavy demand from Manitoba which has hitherto been supplied from the United States.

Mr. Robert Lundy, of Peterborough, has reopened his tannery.

Cobourg car factory hands will work till 9 o'clock each evening for the next few weeks.

There are 12 woollen mills in the Province of Quebec, the value of whose products during the present year amounted to $1,450,000. The total number of woollen mills in Ontario is 33, turning out during the present year $3,395,000 worth of goods, making an aggregate in Canada of $4 845,000 worth of woollen goods manufactured. The mills are all running on full time, and have orders on hand to keep them fully employed up to the 1st of March next at least. The feeling is that the demand for Canadian woollens will be greater the coming year than for years past.

Says the St. Stephen Courier :—Here on the border we hear an echo of the "hum." Messrs. E. Broad & Sons, axe and edge tool manufacturers of Milltown, have received more orders for the past month than in any corresponding month for the past four years. That dreadful N. P. again!

A good and convincing argument in favor of the "hum," says the Mail's Hamilton correspondent, is :—Rolling mills, December, 1878, workmen employed, nil. Rolling mills, December, 1879, workmen employed, 300. Wages paid, $2 to $6 per day. Nail factory, December, 1878, workmen employed, nil. Nail factory, December, 1879, workmen employed, 120. Wages paid, $1.50 to $4 per day. A very good exhibit for Hamilton, exclusive of the numerous other industries started in the city through the N. P.

By the above record of facts the prosperity of several lines of manufacture which the Globe declared the N. P. would ruin, is shown. We hope to have further instances of the same sort of "ruin and decay" to record ere long.

MURDER CASE.—In connection with the Gatineau murder the authorities seem to be guilty of gross negligence. A despatch from the Desert Village reads as follows: "The facts of the murder are that he (Hennessey) was murdered in his bed, a deep gash being indicten on his head with an axe. The murdered man is yet in the position in which he was killed, and is still lying in his own blood. (Signed), WM. LOGUE." It is not known whether anything has been done to ferret out the guilty party."

How it Works.

Says the St. John (N. B.) News: "Sir Charles Tupper in his speech at the Chapleau banquet referred to the operation of the National Policy. He showed that the policy had accomplished what was expected from it in increasing the revenue. In proof of this he cited the fact that during the year ending on January 1st, 1880, the revenue from customs had increased to the extent of one million one hundred and twenty thousand dollars. He also traced the operations of the National Policy on Canada's imports from different countries. He asserted that the imports from Britain had increased one-tenth, and that the imports from the United States had been lessened one-fourth. He claimed likewise that the National Policy had resuscitated the direct trade with the West Indies in sugar, and had revived the direct tea trade. As the statements were of matter of fact, and not of opinion, and as Sir Charles has access to all the figures in which the facts are embodied, his statements must be accepted as true until shown to be inaccurate."

Imports and Exports.

We learn from the official statement, published in Saturday's Gazette, that the imports and exports of the Dominion for the month of November were as follows: Imports :—Total dutiable goods, $3,313,577 ; coin and bullion, except United States silver coin, $340,126 ; free goods, all other, $1,176,425. Grand total—Entered for consumption, $4,830,128 ; duty, $886,514. For the corresponding period of 1878 the returns were :—Total dutiable goods, $3,494.061 ; free goods, $2,744,361 ; total, $6,238,422 ; duty collected, $821,170. During the month of November last there was collected on coal, $43,633 ; on breadstuffs, $21.279 ; on cottons, $46,108 ; dried fruit, $24,084 ; iron and steel manufactures, $99,865 ; on spirits, $99,757 ; on tea, $58,800 ; on woollens, $44,343 ; on sugar, $107,000.

The following table shows the exports from Canada for the month of November in each of the years 1878 and 1879 :—

	1878.	1879.
Mines	$ 15,799	$ 73,222

A HOUSEHOLD PERFUME. Every family able to appreciate and enjoy the pleasure afforded by a really beautiful and delicious perfume, should supply themselves with the genuine MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER. It is the most delightful and most lasting of all fragrant Waters.

A RELIABLE MEDICINE is like a true friend, when needed, it is always on hand, and when tried it is never found wanting. Such is precisely the character of BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS, they never deceive; they do exactly what is claimed for them, and they cure disease where doctors' prescriptions and all other medicines fail.

CONSUMPTION.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as Affections of the Throat, Lungs, and all diseases of the pulmonary organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the cure of such diseases have been fully tested by the Medical Faculty. The BALSAM is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

Mr. Bickford's Letter.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—If Mr. Bickford really desires to impress the people of Belleville with the idea that he and his associates intend to complete the Grand Junction to Peterborough, he had better stop writing letters to the newspapers. In that published in your issue of yesterday, he gives as a reason for refusing what the By-law passed the other night proposes (as also I suppose what he and Mr Cameron, his Counsel, proposed, but withdrew at the same meeting) that his banker will not "postpone the realization of the $25,000 now earned and payable until the road reaches Peterborough." And he goes on to say "our bankers also say if the $25,000 now earned be paid over to them, and the time extended for one year to go to Peterborough, they will probably arrange for us the further loan of $300,000 necessary to complete the line, but on no other condition will the bank advance one cent," &c.

After this statement he further says, why "tie us up" to go to Peterborough, &c., and he ends by saying "if we do not complete the line we will not ask for the bonus." I suppose he means the $25,000 payable on completion to Peterborough (well, coming from Mr. Bickford this is liberal), "nor will we ever ask Belleville for further bonus under any circumstances."

It will be observed, payment of $25,000 to "our bankers" is the condition precedent to their "probably giving us" the further loan.

Now, does Mr. Bickford think any one will believe that Bickford, McDougall & Cowan cannot provide for $25,000 for one year, when such consequences hang on their doing so, or that there is anything real in this statement?

Next, it will be observed that unless the bankers give the money he says they cannot go on, and all the bankers in any case promise is, that "probably" they will arrange to give the funds. There is not much certainly in this.

And as an inducement to the City not to "tie us up" he, with his usual modesty and liberality, promises, I dare say sincerely, that if they do not complete the line, that is if they do not earn it, they will not ask for the bonus that is only payable on the line being completed, nor will they (that is if they do not complete the line) ever ask Belleville for further bonus under any circumstances—for which one feels inclined to exclaim "Heaven be praised!"

Few will read his letter carefully without concluding that its writer has neither expectation nor intention of spending one cent beyond Hastings, even suppose the time is extended by our City Council, unless further and other sums are voted in Belleville or elsewhere.

He clearly proposes to keep the matter in hand to see if he can make a big enough pull out of it, and if not he will let it pass, but in that case it is a consolation to know he will not ask for the bonus unearned.

Yours, &c.,
TAXES.

Irish Distress.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

SIR :—I regret that I should have unintentionally misunderstood "Philanthropist." I certainly gathered from his letter that he favored a visit from Mr. Parnell, and recommended that on that visit he should be officially received.

I quite agree with "Philanthropist" that Belleville ought to do something to alleviate the distress which exists in parts of Ireland, and I am quite willing to aid "Philanthropist" or any one else, in soliciting subscriptions for so desirable an object.

One peculiar characteristic of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is its power of decomposing the food in the stomach, rendering digestion and assimilation more perfect. This partly accounts for the rapidity with which patients take on flesh while using the article.

"BURNS AND SCALDS."—If you are so misfortunate as to injure yourself in this way, we can suggest a remedy that will (we speak from experience) soon relieve you of all pain and quickly heal the wound ; it costs but twenty-five cents, and is sold by all Druggists—ask for Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have accomplimented it in the most glowing terms. City and Vicinity.

REOPENED.—The skating rink has again been opened.

LUMBER.—The quantity of lumber received at Oswego during the past year was 134,421,000 feet against 115,448,000 feet during the preceding year.

THE MINSTRELS. — Sprague's Georgia Minstrels made a fine appearance in their turnout to-day. All were neatly uniformed, and their silver cornet band gave an excellent performance.

CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association for West Hastings will be held in their rooms at 2 o'clock p. m. to-morrow. Let there be a full attendance.

COLEMAN WARD.—As will be seen by a card published in our advertising columns, Mr. Linn has retired from the contest for the School Trusteeship in Coleman Ward, leaving Mr. Hayne to be elected by acclamation.

CLOVER SEED.—Messrs. Downey & Preston shipped to-day a car load of clover seed for Liverpool. This is the largest shipment of the kind ever made from this city, and there are three more cars to follow for the same destination.

WELCOME.—The snow-fall of last night, though not sufficient to create good sleighing, has yet imparted a rather more cheerful aspect to the city. Light cutters move about freely, but the drawing of heavy loads will have to be postponed until a further fall of snow occurs.

WET.—A portion of our mail from the United States, via Cape Vincent, which was received this morning, was as thoroughly soaked as if the mail bags had lain in water for hours. This is not the first case of the kind this winter, consequently there must be carelessness somewhere on the route.

PHENOMENAL.—The Kingston News says :—"After going over to Wolfe Island yesterday, the steamer Pierrepont made a trip to the Cape with a load of sheep. She went by way of the Batteau Channel, and met no ice during her trip. This is a remarkable feat for navigators to accomplish on the 19th January."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At the last meeting of L. O. L. No. 321, held in Madoc, the following officers were elected for the present year :—George Kerr, W. M.; L. S. Guffin, D. M.; W. Bristol, Secretary : J. A. Orr, Treas.; M. Bristol, Chap.. Frank Embury, W. Moore, W. Milligan, W. Embury, and J. R. Ketcheson, Committee ; John Conley, D. of C.; W. Conley and A. Wrightley, Standard-bearers.

OYSTER SUPPER.—A very successful oyster supper was held at Case Church, front of Sidney, on the evening of the 20th. The supper being disposed of, Mr. Abel Finkle was called to the chair, when addresses were delivered by the former pastor, Rev. Wm. Tomlin, Mr. E. B. Fraleck, Alex. Robertson and E. G Sills. A very pleasant evening was spent and a handsome sum realized for church purposes. We were wrongly informed in the notice which appeared in our issue of the 19th that a cake would be raffled for on the occasion.

A SUCCESSFUL MAN.—Mr. Cornelius C. Howell, who was born at Smith's Mills, near Shannonville, worked for a time in this city as a machinist in Martin's foundry, and left for the United States in 1863, when 18 years of age, appears to have been very successful in the West. The Leadville Carbonate Weekly Chronicle, of the 3rd inst., has a flattering reference to Mr. Howell, who had just opened an extensive mining and assay office, and had purchased a valuable property in the business portion of the city. Mr. Howell is a near relative of Mr. R. S. Young, of Sidney.

ATHLETICS.—The match between Lynch and Johnston is not yet made. The New Yorker and Johnston's representative were to have met yesterday at the Mail office for the purpose of signing articles, but neither put in an appearance.

IMPORTANT SALE.—A quantity of valuable city property, forming part of the estate of the late James Kennedy, is to be sold by Mr. Wilkins, auctioneer, at the Dafoe House at 1:30 p. m. to-morrow. The advertisement on the fourth page contains particulars.

THE MURRAY CANAL.—Col. Prince, United States Consul at Belleville, in a despatch to the Department of State on January 7th, transmits his annual report on the trade of this district. He says it is proposed to connect the waters of Lake Ontario with the Bay of Quinte by a canal less than two miles in length. Three surveys of the route across the narrow isthmus have been made, and the cost is estimated at about $750,000. Besides affording greater facilities for transporting iron ore from the mines of Hastings, the proposed canal would open a route avoiding some of the most dangerous points on Lake Ontario. It would also be a pleasant route for summer travel in connection with the Thousand Islands. Considerable iron ore is sent from the Hastings Mines to the United States, partly by land transportation. A strong appeal will be made to the Dominion Government to go on and construct the canal. It has been more or less discussed these fifty years.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—An explosion occurred at Lycett colliery, near Newcastle. From 70 to 90 persons were killed.

PARIS, Jan. 21.—Eight little Sisters of the Poor have been sent from the parent house to establish a branch at Brooklyn.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—It is reported that the Royal Academy have resolved to admit women to membership. It is subject to certain disabilities, including the deprivation of right to vote at elections and attendance at the annual banquet.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 21.—The Porte has addressed a note to Layard, the British Ambassador, in reply to the latter's ultimatum on the subject of the prosecution of Koeller, a German missionary, for distributing religious tracts. The Porte argues that the proceedings of Koeller justified the seizure of his papers, which were only returned out of regard for England ; that Ahmed Tewfik, a Mohammedan priest, deserves the punishment awarded him, in conformity with the religious laws of the country, and that he was liberated only by the clemency of the Consul. The Porte expresses satisfaction at the resumption of official relations with the British ambassador. Layard will reply by declaring he does not accept the principle that that a foreigner may be arrested, provided his ambassador be informed within 24 hours.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jon. 21—In consequence of the public opposition to the levying a tax of 20 reis per passenger on the street car traffic, a mob destroyed the cars and tracks, attacked the conductors and stoned the troops, but the latter dispersed the mob. Three persons were killed and thirty wounded. Order was restored and the tramway traffic resumed. The Government refused to remove the impost.

OSWEGO, Jan. 21.—The Secret Service captured last night David Borrel, Sylvanus Reynolds, Lafayette Ingersoll, Neva Ingersoll, Frederick Ingersoll, Frank Gibson, Lucy Ingersoll. Ida Ingersoll and Lavina Look in the act of coining money. Metals, dies, acids, &c., besides 700 counterfeit American and Canadian coin were seized. Marshall Stevens, Jefferson Towsley, and Wm. Reynolds, who belong to the same gang, were arrested at Sandy Creek at the same time and counterfeit bills and coin found in their possession. The officers are after two more counterfeiters supposed to be in Mexico, N. Y.

OSWEGO, Jan. 21.—The first case of capital punishmen in Tioga Co. occurred at noon. Daily Searles, an illiterate negro, in June murdered Eldrid Rewey, an aged farmer who lived alone in Newark Valley, for the purpose of robbery. The crime was of a fiendish atrocity. Searles openly confessed, saying that he deserved to die. He has preserved a brave exterior and passed the night with less anxiety than his executor. Execution took place at noon.

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—Senator Eugene Norton, whose leg was amputated on Sunday to save his life from a cancer, died this morning.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21.—Yesterday the sugar boiler at Carroll's on the barrataria exploded, killing the chief engineer and two colored men, and seriously wounding thirteen others, damage $8,000.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

MINORK, Ills., Jan. 21.—Deboer, who murdered Etta Norton, is sentenced to be hanged on Feb. 17th. The murder was particularly atrocious.

LOGAN, Ohio, Jan., 21.—There is great excitement over the arrest of Bates, President of the Monday Creek Coal and Iron Company, to-day, for resisting an order of the Court to give possession of the furnace to the Receiver. The Sheriff went with 12 men to install the Receiver but was met by 200 workmen. Bates, however, surrendered. It is talked of sending a larger posse to-morrow, and if necessary troops will be called for.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Jan. 21.—David Grey, eighty-four years old, was burned to death in his house this morning, in Benton township. His wife, aged 80, tried to assist him to escape but was obliged to leave him to save her own life.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The litigation between Western Union and American Union Telegraph Companies over the possession of 2,000 miles of wire, belonging formerly to the Great Western Telegraph Company, was decided yesterday in favor of the American Union. By this acquisition the American Union secures lines from Chicago to Milwaukee, Omaha, via Davenport, Ia., Kansas City, Atchison, Joliet, Bloomington, Peoria, and Decatur.

NEWHAVEN, Ct., Jan. 21.—It is estimated the expenses of the Hayden trial will reach $30,000. The jurors received over $200 a piece. Hayden will be bailed.

BELLE FOUNTAINE, O., Jan. 21.—Mrs. McCleary, a handsome young widow residing in Hardin county, and who has been missing several days, was found in the woods on Monday nearly dead from exposure. She refused an explanation and during the night gave birth to an infant, which she left in the yard, where it died. The woman is of excellent family and is not expected to live.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The Tribune says that Conkling's personal friends deny that any coldness exists between Grant and Conkling, they say that Conkling will under no circumstances become a candidate for the Presidency.

An agent of the society for the prevention of crime states that a general raid on all gambling houses in the city, which had been carefully arranged for Saturday night last had to be abandoned owing to the gamblers having received information from a man in the employ of the Society. It is stated that this person received $5,000 from the gamblers for his treachery.

Andrew G. Harris, a Private of the 14th regiment, Brooklyn, fell dead while at drill in the armory last evening of heart disease.

The Times says the proposition has been made of leasing to the Pennsylvania Railroad for a long term the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and all its dependencies ; this would give the Pennsylvania Co. a trunk route to which no other in the world offers comparison. Another vast Railroad combination which was completed yesterday, consisted in the purchase of the New Orleans, St. Louis & Chicago R. R. and branches, by the Illinois Central R. R. Co. The consolidated Road will have a mileage of over 1,700 miles, forming a strong rival to the new Louisville and Nashville combination for the through southern business.

Edward P. Miller, broker, of this city, has brought a suit at Louisville to have the marriage of his step-brother, George C. Miller, declared void, and to recover a portion of his estate left to his widow. Deceased married Miss Creel, a Louisville belle, last February, and died in June. His widow agreed upon the equal division of his large estate between herself and Edward P. Miller, but the latter now wishes to secure the whole estate, and claims that the deceased was crazy when he married.

Kimball, the Church debt raiser, has in the past week lifted nearly all of the debt of $41,000 from the First Reformed Episcopal Church in this city.

John Gaylord Wells, author of "Every Man his own Lawyer," and inventor of Presidential medals, and patriotic envelopes during the war, died on Monday.

Cadwalader D. Ewans, a prominent broker and Tammany sachem, fell ill at the Manhattan club on Saturday and died yesterday.

Thus far about $23,000 have been contributed in New York and vicinity for the Irish relief.

The Tribune says that admission of friends of the Union Pacific and Wabash systems of interest in the Central Pacific road, together with recent combinations with the New York Central, gives to these systems continuous lines from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and their mutual interests in these lines is likely to have an important influence in the future arrangements for the exchange of business.

DANVILLE, Va., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Way Elderton, a widow, and two daughters, Kate aged 18, and Mrs. Hendon, were frightfully burned by the explosion of a kerosene lamp on Monday night. Mrs. Hendon is not expected to survive. The others are dead.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 21.—The colored members of the general assembly are much excited over the lynching of Arthur Jordan, a negro, on Monday, for eloping with a white girl. The Legislature investigated the proceedings the lynchers, who are all well known citizens, will be punished.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 21. —Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours : For the lower lakes, northerly to easterly winds, partly cloudy to cloudy weather followed by areas of snow or rain.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.— Indications: For lower lakes, generally cloudy with light rain or snow, warmer weather.

Senator Booth's dinner to General Grant at Sacramento had a merry surprise in the midst of it. Forty-five gentlemen sat down to table, and dinner was nearly finished when suddenly the folding-doors at one end of the room which the table nearly touched, were thrown open and, behold! there was another room of the same size of the first, and down its length extended a table at which were seated forty-five ladies with Mrs. Grant, all of whom had been dining comfortably the while. The gentlemen arose, applauded, and waved handkerchiefs; the ladies returned cordial greetings, and the evening most pleasantly proceeded.

ORANGE CERTIFICATES, handsomely got up, for sale at the INTELLIGENCER Office

SANFORD'S

RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

Daily Intelligencer.

New Departure in Creameries.

The new plan of gathering cream for creameries, instead of milk—which has been tried at several points in Iowa and elsewhere for some months past—appears to work well. At Emmettsburgh, Iowa, the cream from the milk of some 400 cows has been collected for some time in this manner and in a smaller way the same thing has been done at other points, and in all cases, so far as we have been able to ascertain, the plan is very satisfactory.

The advantages of this plan are so apperent that it is a little singular the patrons of creameries, depending upon a neighborhood for cream, have not sooner adopted it. It saves a large amount of labor in the first instance, and it disposes of the difficulty which meets one getting milk from remote points to a creamery, in a condition for making a good quality of butter. The smaller bulk or quantity handled by the new plan makes it an easy matter to gather cream from a neighborhood, while there is no churning of milk in transit, as by the use of refrigerating cans the cream is scarcely disturbed in taking it to the creamery or factory. Again, the milk is all retained at home for domestic use, or for feeding calves or pigs.

When the system becomes well understood, there is no doubt of its adoption by creameries which depend on a neighborhood for their supplies of milk: and it is hardly less certain that more creameries will go into operation, and less butter will be made by farmers' wives and daughters. The great advantage of a system such as this is, that with superior focilities, and a thorough knowledge of what is necessary to produce butter, an article of superior quality in flavor and color is produced than can, as a rule, be made at farm houses. Not that much butter made by intelligent, neat and careful housewives is not sweet and golden, nutty in flavor, and quite unexceptionable; but such butter, house-made, is the exception and not the rule. But, admitting even that all the butter made by individuals in any given neighborhood, and which finds its way to the store or grocery, is sweet, it is of all colors, from white to dull orange. Butter is so many shades, packed promiscuously into a large package, brings only the lowest price in the market. On the other hand, if all the cream from which such butter is made was collected and made at one factory, by the methods and processes which are employed now at first-class establishments of this kind, an article superior in quality by reason of its delicious flavor as well as uniformity in color, would be produced, which would speedily obtain credit as a particular brand, and realize to farmers interested in it far more money than they could obtain under the other arrangement. We think this improved plan is destined to revolutionize butter making. It will relieve the farmer's wife of a heavy burden, and bring more money into the pocket.—American Stockman.

About House-Plants.

Don't try to keep too many house plants through the winter, for "that way madness lied" I know. I have tried it. One never to be forgotten winter I kept, or tried to, about forty house plants, and it makes my back ache even now when I think of the many weary journeys that I made up and down the cellar stairs with a plant on each arm; and the many many times that I crept shivering from my bed during the 'wee sma' hours.' and punched up the fire in order to keep those precious plants from freezing to death. And, after all my pains one night well on toward spring, when I was sleeping the sleep of the just, the mercury suddenly dropped down out of sight, and my plants all froze up solid! As I looked at my icy treasures and listened to the edifying remarks of the different members of our household, I mentally vowed that in the future I would keep no more plants than I could take care of.

There are two sunny windows in our sitting room. The children claim one, and on a broad shelf in the other I keep a half dozen of the plants that I like the best. There is my heliotrope, filling the room with its fragrance (no plant on earth that I love half so well, and well does it repay me for all the tender care that I lavish on it); my double geranium, with its wealth of scarlet bloom; a royal calla; a sweet-scented geranium; a monthly rose, with its crown of dainty, cream-white flowers; and the graceful parlor ivy.

When mid-winter comes, and the mercury loses its courage and sinks to unknown depths, I put my plants on a little stand, draw the stand up before the grate, pin newspapers around them, and go to bed in peace, sure that they will come out all right in the morning. I know that it takes some time from a busy woman's life to care for even a few plants; but then it is only a few minutes each day, and it gives so much pleasure to have something fresh, bright, and blooming in the house throughout the long, cold, blustering winter. All my plants, except the ones that I have named, are taken to the cellar to rest until spring. It is quite trying to a woman who has any "feelings" worth mentioning to doom her cherished plant treasures to the seclusion of the cellar for four or five months, but it is for their good and mine too, so I harden my heart and down they go.

No, I don't "shake the dirt off the roots and hang them up." Nature don't do things that way. I tried it once, because I didn't know any better; and a fine lot of dead plants I had in the spring. I put the plants down cellar just as they are, and two or three times during the winter I give them a little water, just enough to keep the plants from drying out at the roots.

I have a weakness for hyacinths, and I usually manage to have a fine collection every winter. The ease with which they can be forced into bloom, their brilliant color, and delicious fragrance make them very desirable for the sitting-room in winter. Use pots eight inches in diameter and plant four bulbs of contrasting colors in each pot, or, if preferred single bulbs may be planted in four-inch pots; but I like the large pots best. Place the bulb about half its depth in the soil, set the pot in the cellar, and water occasionally for three weeks, until the roots get started; then bring to the light gradually. As soon as accustomed to the light, place in a sunny window. For a succession of flowers I plant every three weeks, from September 15th until January 1st. As soon as the flowers fade and die down, I take up the bulbs, dry for a few days in the shade, tie them in a paper sack, and hang up in the cellar until the next season.—Fanny Field, in New York Independent.

Baron Rothschild, of Vienna, has a favorite horse, for whose accommodation he has had a special loose box built at the cost of $12,000. This elegant room forms part of a new stable, which cost $80,000, and which has marble floors; encaustic tiles painted by distinguished artists; rings, chains and draintraps of silver, and walls frescoed with splendid hunting scenes from the pencils of eminent animal painters. The Baron's annual income is fortunately $1,600,000.

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barroom may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandwein;" the lymphatic Frenchman for his "Eau de vie;" the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and lands. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and will not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. Dr. Herrick's Sugar-coated Pills are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

Dr. Giles—I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. CHANCERY SALE

OF

VALUABLE STORES AND CITY PROPERTY IN BELLEVILLE.

PURSUANT to a decree made in suit of the Colonial Trusts Corporation vs. Kennedy, there will be sold with the approbation of T. W. Taylor, Esq., Master in Ordinary of this Court, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dafoe House, in the City of Belleville, on

THURSDAY, THE 22ND DAY OF JANUARY, 1880,

Part lot No. 32 on the east side of Front Street, in the City of Belleville, and described as follows, that is to say:

Commencing six feet south of the centre line of lot No. 32, on Front Street, and in the east line of the said street, thence north 74 degrees east 160 ft., thence south 16 degrees east 66 ft., thence south 74 degrees west 160 feet to Front street, thence north 16 degrees west 66 feet more or less to the place of beginning, containing by admeasurement 10.560 square feet more or less.

This property was formerly owned by the late James Kennedy, and is now temporarily occupied by Roenigk & Cummins, upholsters.

Erected on the property are a good stone store, three stories high, the upper part used as a dwelling (separate entrance), 28 ft. x 58 ft., a stone kitchen attached 17½ ft. x 26½ ft. two and half stories high, and a stable in rear (which could be used as a storehouse) 17 ft x 32½ ft.

The buildings are at present insured for $4,000, and the premium for the portion of the year yet to run will be added to the purchase money.

There is ample lane and other accommodations to the premises.

The property is in a good part of the city both for business and for residence, and will rapidly increase in value.

TERMS OF SALE.

10 per cent of the purchase money is to be paid to the Vendor's Solicitors at the time of sale, and enough with the said 10 per cent to make up one-fourth of the purchase money within 30 days thereafter, without innterest, the balance can be paid at the same time or can remain on mortgage at purchaser's option (in which purchaser's wife, if any, is to join to bar her dower) to be paid in five equal annual instalments, with interest half yearly on balance of purchase money from time to time remaining unpaid at the rate of seven per cent per annum.

The Vendors are to produce only those papers and title deeds which they have in their possession, and which will be open for inspection on day of sale, the purchaser to examine the title at his own expense and furnish the mortgage (if any).

Possession will be given at completion of sale.

The property will be sold subject to a reserved bid fixed by the Master.

The other conditions are the standing conditions of the Court of Chancery.

The premises can be inspected on application to Mr. M. A. Dixon.

For further particulars apply to the Vendor's Solicitors, John Hoskin, Esq., Toronto. M. A. Dixon, Esq., barrister, Belleville, and to the Auctioneer.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of Bins enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

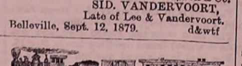

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

THE CANADA CENTRAL RAILWAY Company will make application to the Parliament of the Dominion at its next session for an Act extending the time for completing the Railway authorized by its Charter and Amending Acts, and empowering it to construct a railway Bridge over the river St. Mary's, at or near the Sault Ste Marie, and a branch Railway from the existing line to Madoc or Tweed, in the County of Hastings.

WILLIAM CASSILS,
President.

Brockville, 2nd January, 1880.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

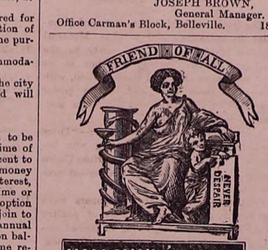

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liner Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

December 19th, 1878. Yours truly, J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne: Lynn, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Ravenna, Mercer Co., Missouri, May, 1879.

The Fellows Medical Manufacturing, Co.

Gents.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

LAME BACK. WEAK BACK.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

It was a dark night in December. The thoroughfare was muddy, and the mud was trampled into a black, greasy liquid by the moving multitudes who thronged it. The incessant sound, made up of hundreds of voices was indescribable. It came from the throats of vendors of all kinds of street commodities—from bawlers of street songs, from jolly tars shouting as they went along, from drunken women and quarrelling men, from barking dogs and discordant musical instruments, and, not least nor smallest, from the open doors of the clustering public-houses, which lined either side of the long streets, and the brilliant lights of which, streaming out into the open air, could have sufficiently lighted it without exterior lamps. Most of the public-houses had some species of amusement going forward within them, this being a London habit, with a view to attract customers Behind the front room or 'bar' of several was a large hall for dancing, and in these saloons crowds of both sexes were assembled, footing it, amidst tobacco smoke and fumes of drink, to the sound of the violin. In others, again, the attraction provided was a company of Ethiopian serenaders, dancing break-downs and singing comic songs, or jugglers going through their feats and tricks. Eager enjoyment was being sought after everywhere, and nowhere was it pure or elevated.

Our business is with the interior of the Sow and Pigs—a public house near the middle of the street which was being largely patronized. At the bar the landlord and several assistants in shirt sleeves were using their utmost diligence to serve those who crowded the place, and who, as soon as they had been supplied with drink, made their way into the hall behind, whose benches were nearly all occupied by a noisy company, who were lustily calling for the upraising of the faded green curtain which hung at one end, and shouting no end of chaff to the little man who was engaged in lighting a row of candles and making preparation for the performance which was was about to begin.

This little man was our old acquaintance Tobby Spratt. To look at him as he limped briskly to and fro, and received with smiles and good humor the bantering of the impatient crew a spectator would have supposed that he was neither annoyed nor anxious about anything, but beneath the smile Tobby concealed a very sore heart—prehension.

The performance ought to have begun fully a quarter of an hour before, but there was a very good, or rather a very bad reason for the delay. Silas Morgan was more than three parts drunk.

Frequently of late he had gone through the exhibition under the influence of liquor but on no former occasion had he been so intoxicated as he was to night. And Tobby, knowing the danger to the children, was full of the utmost anxiety and alarm. To his steady eye, it is sure the work of tumbling, posturing, and tight-rope dancing, where a single slip is fraught with danger, therefore, on the occasion to which we have referred, Myra and Charlie ran the greatest risk. None knew this so well as Tobby, and from the side of the curtain he watched every movement with an agony of apprehension, ready to spring forward at the first appearance of an accident, and save, if possible, his darlings from the consequences. Thanks to their activity and confidence, the reckless incompetence of Silas produced no evil result, but to-night he was so unsteady and unfit for duty, that Tobby dreaded evil as little short of a certainty.

In boldness of his love for the little ones, he had remonstrated against the performance going on, at which Silas fired up in fury, and struck Tobby a violent blow on the breast. Passionate and positive at all times, he was doubly so when in liquor, and worse to any one who dared thus to thwart him. He swore with a brutal oath that he would perform, and that he should make the children go through all their more dangerous feats. Tobby appealed to the landlord of the Sow and Pigs, but he in the interest of his own pocket would not hear of the performance being suspended. The feats performed by the two little ones had nightly drawn a crowd of people to his saloon, and to disappoint them was to ruin his business. As a last effect Tobby offered to carry the children through the exhibition himself. He could do this as well of Silas could, for he had conducted all their training and superintended their daily practice. The landlord had no objection to offer to this proposition, but it increased Morgan's fury ten-fold, and with eyes glaring like those of a tiger, he sprang on Tobby, and would have done him some dreadful injury had he not managed to escape out of his reach.

There was nothing for it, therefore, but to prepare for the exhibition. It was already past the hour, and the people in the saloon were getting angrily impatient, and assailed Tobby with all sorts of abusive language, which the latter received with great meekness and patience.

To meekness and patience Tobby had schooled himself of late, else he never would have endured the increasing ill-usage of Silas Morgan. His own dependent position would not have brought him to such submission, and weeks ago he would have gone off to shift for himself as he best could, if he had consulted his own feelings. But he could not leave Charlie and Myra. He would rather lose his life than abandon them, so strong and devoted was his love for them. And, poor things, they clung to him with equal tenacity, for he was the comfort and stay of their young hapless lives. But for him their existence would have been miserable. He was their shield from Morgan's cruel brutality, and never in his presence durst the drunken tyrant beat them, as he sometimes did when their protector was out of sight. But matters grew worse every day and Tobby saw with a heavy heart that the time was coming when further endurance would not be possible.

That very night was to precipitate the crisis.

All was now ready, and the curtain was drawn up, showing the rope securely fixed for Myra's dancing movements.

Presently Silas entered leading her by the hand, and at the sight of them the saloon rang with tumultuous applause. In the eagerness with which they contemplated the beautiful fairy creature, Morgan's state of intoxication was not noticed, but he staggered more than once as he placed her on the rope.

For a time all went well enough. Under Tobby's training Myra had become so proficient that she executed the movements with very little guidance, and, despite the state of incapacity in which Morgan then was, she accomplished her evolutions with every exactness, eliciting bursts of applause from the delighted spectators.

In a moment, however, matters changed, and a scene of confusion and excitement ensued. Silas Morgan, as with an unsteady eye he followed her motions from end to end of the rope, swayed and staggered about on his unsteady legs, and at last came with a heavy lurch against the rope. The vibration threw Myra off her balance, she uttered a loud frightened scream and fell.

Quick as lightning Tobby sprang from his station at the curtain, but, rapid as was his action, he would have been too late to save her had her dress not caught in the rope and stayed her fall for a moment. This circumstance enabled him to spring underneath in time, and receiving her unhurt in his arms, he rushed with her from the stage into the side-room.

Silas came staggering after them in a fearful rage.

'What do you mean by taking off the girl?' he shouted.

'Because she fell,' replied Tobby.

'She didn't fall. You caught her, and she isn't hurt a bit. Come, little one, you ain't half done yet.'

'She's not going on again to-night,' said Toby, as the child flung her trembling arms round his neck, and clung to him in terror.

'What!' roared Silas. 'Not going on. But I tell you she is. She's not near through. Come, quick, we are keeping the people waiting.'

And he advanced, with outstretched hand to take her from him.

'Stand back!' cried Tobby, as bold as a lion. 'You've nearly killed her already, and she'll do no more to-night.'

'Curse you, and what'll she do no more to-night for?'

'Because you aren't fit to look after her and I'll not see the poor little thing destroyed.'

'Curse you; no nonsense,' shouted Morgan. 'Do you hear the people roaring for her? Let her go, you scoundrel.'

'No, I won't.'

'You won't?'

'No, I'll die first.'

'If you provoke me, I'll murder you both. Here you, Charlie, come along just now; and when you are done I'll have the girl, if I should have to smash the fellow to jelly.'

With fiendish brutality he clutched the ... the ... and dragged him on of those in the saloon was appeased.

'Oh, Tobby,' sobbed Myra, clinging to him with all her strength, 'don't let him get me.'

'No, my darling, he never shall,' gasped Tobby, and clutching up a shawl, he wrapped it round her, and, making his escape by a side door, he gained the street, and fled with his burden at his utmost speed.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Office-Seekers in France.

The dream of every young Frenchman whose pockets are empty is to marry a girl who has from £2,000 to £400, and to earn about £200 a year for himself by means of a situation affording a fixed salary. It is not an extravagant dream, and to do the Frenchman justice, he is quite happy if he realizes it. Having got £300 or £400 a year he does not seek to enlarge his income, but lives prudently within his means, and invests some savings every year with commendable judgment. The very fact, however, that most Frenchmen should pitch their ambition so low as to require nothing more than what an Englishman would call a little competency shows how keen the struggle for life here is, and when one reflects that thousands of men who covet the position of petit rentier are joined annually by twenty thousand recruits fresh from the schools, and with all their talents whetted according to the newest systems for the school fray, one cannot wonder at the large number of educated young men who find their way into jail. Every paid post in France is so keenly coveted that a vacancy will draw hundreds of applicants, and statesmen who are always talking about the necessity for dismissing superfluous employees find themselves reluctantly compelled to add to their number every year because they are overawed the mass of candidates As regards the engineering branches, for instance, the number of young men who qualify every year for the post of government engineer exceeds by several hundreds the number of places to be disposed of; but to allay disappointment as far as possible the Government goes on multiplying situations, thereby creating a body of civil servants who have not enough to live on, and who grow discontented from seeing all chances of promotion stopped. In this country discontent with the Government soon develops into a seditious spirit, and it may safely be said that every office-holder who is dissatisfied with his position is a revolutionist in posse. But much more so is this the case with the adventurous young men who have not succeeded in getting any office at all; so that one may conclude the present system of education in France leads to the creation of an annually increasing body of citizens whose profession will be to war on society, and who, politically speaking, will be ready for anything.

Five young ladies, the Misses Prideaux Brune and Miss Nora O'Shaughnessy, have just received from the British Lifeboat Institution five silver medals in acknowledgment of their intrepid services in rowing their boat through a rough sea, and saving at, considerable risk of life, an exhausted sailor from a boat capsized in squally weather. The accident occured on the coast of Cornwall; two sailors had already perished before their arrival, and it is related that the young heroiues rowed like tigers" to the rescue. The presentation of the medals was made at a formal meeting which the ladies attended dressed in their boating costume. Mr. Prideaux-Brune returned thanks for his daughters and friend.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 22

The Nomination.

At noon to-morrow, the nomination of candidates for the representation of West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature will take place before W. H. Ponton, Esq., Returning Officer. As both candidates and some of their leading supporters will probably address the electors after the expiration of the time set apart for receiving nominations, it is desirable that there should be a large gathering of the electors, to hear the issues involved once more discussed. The questions at issue were fully debated in the contest of June last, and are doubtless to some extent fresh in the minds of the voters of the Riding, but their rehearsal cannot fail to be of interest, the more especially as some new matter will doubtless be introduced. We hope to see a good turn-out on the occasion, and as the season is favorable, the rural portion of the constituency ought to be particularly well represented.

The Cornwall Election.

The Ottawa Free Press, whose editor was long a resident of Cornwall and thoroughly understands the constituency, disclaims in advance any triumph which its party may claim, should Mr. McLennon be returned—as is not very likely—in the pending contest for the representation of Cornwall in the Commons. It says:—

"There is evidently a misunderstanding in some quarters regarding the coming Cornwall election. While Mr. Macdonald might ally to his candidature, in an article specially designed to assist him, speaks of "that fraud the National Policy." As we said last week the fight in Cornwall now, as on former occasions, is not political; it is a fight between rival factions—the issue being not the success of one political party over another, but the personal preponderance, under any political guise, of a faction accustomed to dominate."

Annual Commercial Review.

Dun, Wiman & Co. have issued their annual circular, for 1879, giving statistics concerning the commercial failures that took place in the States and Canada during the past year. A useful comparative table is also given, going back as far as 1874. The retrospect is an instructive one, and may be thus detailed:—

	Failures.	Liabilities.
1874	966	$ 7,695,765
1875	1,968	28,843,967
1876	1,728	25,517,911
1877	1,892	25,521,903
1878	1,697	23,908,677
1879	1,902	29,347,937

As there are 55,564 persons in business in Canada, it follows that the number of failures during 1879 were at the rate of one in every 29 of them, while the average of liabilities is set down at $15,430. As compared with the failures in the States the result is not flattering to us. In that country the number of persons engaged in business is estimated at 702,157, the number of failures were 6,658, being but one in every 105, so that in proportion to the numbers engaged in business the failures in Canada amounted to 3½ times more than those that took place in the States. The average amount of liabilities was somewhat less also, being $14,741 as against $15,430. The aggregate liabilities in the States footed up to $98,149,053 as against $29,347,937 in this country, the relative populations being about 48,000,000 to 4,500,000.

We are not supplied with the differences which local comparison might supply so far as Canada is concerned, but in the States the greatest per centage of failures took place in the Western States, and the least in the Pacific States and Territories. What proportion of assets were realized and might be placed as a set-off is not given, but if it be assumed at 33 per cent., still the loss falling on some one must have been great. No doubt it has been chiefly divided between the banks and creditors in England, a great proportion of the loss having arisen from the fall in values which set in in 1873-74, and which continued losses and failures quite beyond the control of those who became the victims of the sudden decline. The prospect for the future is more encouraging. Business is reviving among us, many weaklings have been weeded out, and there seems to be as if by general consent, a determination not to force business, for the sake of business, upon those whose means of payment are not well assured. If such a policy was to be rigidly enforced the Canadian commercial account would not present so poor a comparison as that which it has done. The fact that there have been twice as many failures and four times as many liabilities among us as compared with 1874, shows that we have been on the wrong track. Let us hope that the right path has now been struck and that better times are in store for us.—London Free Press.

A want of interest manifested itself in this meeting, as the attendance was small and time was lost in opening.

The President, on opening the meeting, expressed his regret at the want of interest in the Society's welfare, as was manifested by the meagre attendance. He had acted as President during the past year, and he invited a scrutiny of the report which would be submitted to the members. He then called on the Secretary to read the financial status of the Society.

The Secretary, J. H. Peck, Esq., then read a statement giving a history of the status of the Association since the buildings owned by the Society were erected. It showed that during the past eight years the sum of $2,305 00 had been expended as interest, whilst the amount of principal had not been lessened. The payment of the mortgage was pressed, and the result was a loan was effected with the Hamilton Provident and Loan Society for the amount of $4,000, payable in 20 years, the sum of $444 56 to be paid each year for that period. Since the opening of the grounds the total cost thus far had been $9,466.79, and at the end of 20 years the total indebtedness would be removed. The holding of agricultural dinners in the winter was suggested and the wish expressed that a more active interest would be shown in the welfare of the Society.

Mr. Peck stated that the Directors had expended a great deal of time, and had to give personal security in order to prevent the sale of the property, and they were therefore entitled to the thanks of the meeting.

The report on motion, was adopted. Mr. John Sutherland made his report as follows:

Mr. Peck said though there was a balance on hand of $184 96, last year there was a balance of $146, but it might be stated that the society over and above other indebtedness owed $246.

The President said though some of the items appeared large yet they could be examined by the meeting.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Peck said he had secured a report of the election of officers of the Trenton Horticultural Society, and also the report of the Belleville Horticultural Society.

Mr. Rose here stated that the next order of business was the election of a President, two Vice-Presidents and nine directors.

R. S. Patterson, Esq., Mayor, proposed the name of Baltis Rose as President. His nominee was a prominent Agriculturist, he had given good satisfaction as the chief officer of the Society and he well deserved the office.

J. C. Foster seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

For the office of first vice-President J. W. Dudley nominated John McMullen, seconded by Levi Massey.

D. R. Ketcheson nominated R. S. Pattersons, seconded by Benjamin Gilbert.

Mr. Patterson asked that his name be withdrawn, as he had been President for two years and desired others to fill the important offices of the Society.

The request was not accepted by the mover and seconder of his nomination.

Jonas Lott proposed John Harry as second Vice President, seconded by Benjamin Gilbert.

John McMullen nominated A. B. Mallory, seconded by Levi Massey.

The following named gentlemen were proposed as Directors: Joseph Nightingale, James Bird, Levi Massey, D. R. Ketcheson, R. Graham, John Graham, James St Charles, John Harry.

On the nomination of the last named several members objected to his being run for the two positions.

Mr. Mallory asked his nomination for the second Vice-Presidency to be withdrawn.

In addition to the above R. S. Patterson and W. R. Perry were proposed as Directors.

Mr. Patterson again asked to have his name withdrawn as a candidate for the office of first Vice President.

Mr. J. W. Dudley trusted that the objection made would not result in the loss of two valuable members to the board.

The nomination of Directors was then proceeded with as follows: George Purdy, H. J. Lott, Joseph Foster, Charles Chesboro, Charles Ostrom, S. P. Knight, A. B. Mallory and J. W. McMullen.

Mr. Ketcheson asked leave to withdraw his nomination of Mr. Harry in order to run him for first Vice President, but on learning that he could not do this he persisted in his nomination.

The Secretary here stated that he proposed to submit a By-law to meet any exigency that might hereafter arise. We had for twenty years from this time to pay $440 to relieve the indebtedness of the Society, and if through unfavorable weather or other causes the receipts were not sufficient to meet the expenditure, the purpose of the By-law would show its itself in this that only a pro rata dividend of the prizes should be paid. The receipts at time showed an apparent balance, though after the prizes were paid there was no real balance existing, and this was the case in several years, though last year was an exception.

A By-law for the purposes stated was then submitted, passed through its several stages and numbered.

The nominations were declared closed and Mr. Rose was declared elected by acclamation amid applause.

Mr. Rose returned thanks for the compliment paid him. When elected last year he had promised to do what he could to further the interests of the Society, and that had been his endeavor throughout the year. He had confidence in the Society and he would say that if the Society had not had a good board last year its interests would have suffered and particularly so as the principal questions they had to deal with were matters of finance. He related the troubles of the Society during the past year and averred that the board had worked faithfully and diligently to promote the interests of the Society. He again returned thanks for the confidence manifested in him and resumed his seat amid applause.

Mr. Mallory was declared elected as second Vice President without opposition.

This was demurred to, as the seconder of Mr. Harry would not consent to withdraw his name.

After considerable controversy Mr. Harry's name was again withdrawn and Mallory again declared elected.

Messrs. Sutherland, and Bird were appointed scrutineers.

The names of Messrs. Knight and Chesebro were withdrawn and the election was proceeded with by ballot.

On motion of D. R. Ketcheson, seconded by G. R. Purdy, Messrs. James Conger and James Macoun were re-appointed Auditors for the ensuing year.

The scrutineers submitted their return as follows.

That the vote between Messrs. Patterson and McMullen was a tie, and that the following were elected Directors: Joseph Nightingale, James Bird, Levi Massey, John Graham, James St. Charles, John Harry, W. R. Perry, George Purdy, Chas. R. Ostrom.

A number here left the room before the subsequent ballot was taken to decide the tie. The second effort to select again resulted without a choice. A third effort resulted in the selection of Mr. Patterson, after which the meeting adjourned.

Another Colliery Horror.

SEVENTY LIVES LOST IN A STAFFORDSHIRE PIT.

LONDON, Jan 21.—An explosion occurred at eight o'clock this morning in the Lycett Colliery, near Newcastle under-Lyne, Staffordshire. There is little hope that any in the pit at the time—estimated at from seventy to ninety—will be saved. The search for them is delayed by the damage to the shaft. The explosion is attributed to gas.

A later account fixes the number of persons in the pit when the explosion occured at 77. It is believed more than six of the rescued can recover. Twenty-five corpses have already been brought up, the majority of them being disfigured and unrecognizable. A few were rescued alive, but are dying. The scene at the mouth of the pit is heartrending. One of the recovered corpses had lost part of its head, and some others were burned to cinders, while some appear to have been killed by the concussion. Gangs of volunteers are descending frequently. The part of the Lycett colliery where the explosion occured is known as "Fair Lady Pit," and is the same in which the men were killed last autumn. The coal belongs to the Banbury or Fiery seam, in which all the great Staffordshire explosions occurred.

Fire has been raging in the pit with great violence since the disaster, hindering the explorations and precluding all hopes that any of the victims will be rescued alive.

A later despatch says the fire is being subdued. Large quantities of debris had been removed, enabling the explorers to proceed more rapidly. A still later report places the number of deaths at 70. Another explosion is feared.

LATER.—Five more bodies have been recovered from the mine. Twenty others have been found in the pit. They will be brought up to-night. Ventilation has been restored.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Capt. Jos. Dixon was arrested for the mysterious murder of Jacob Miller. He first placed himself under suspicion by a confession made during his restless slumber. His room mate was startled and informed the police.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 22.—A resolution offered in the legislature by a colored member for an investigation into the recent lynching of a negro was emphatically defeated yesterday, much to the surprise of the Republicans, by its reference to a committee

NEWPORT, Jan. 22.—Postmaster Brayton confesses his accounts are short $30,000, but it is believed the amount is $40,000 or $50,000.

TOPEKA, Ks., Jan. 22. — In response to Governor St. John's request for aid for the destitute farmers in the Kansas frontier counties, Jay Gould telegraphed $5,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The Sun's Augusta says that the expense of guarding the State house is not less than a thousand dollars daily, and the total expense thus far is $25,000.

Prominent members of the Republican legislature say they are fully aware that they are not legally organized, and that another legislature must be formed on the basis of the one which met on the first Wednesday in January.

Chamberlain had a guard of five men around his residence in Brunswick on Monday night for fear he would be kidnapped.

NEW HAMPTON, Iowa, Jan. 22.—An adventist preacher, Elder Buck, makes a living by revealing secrets confided by spirits. Last Buck's wife wringing her hands, he looked through the door and saw Buck beating his young son, who was tied to a bed. The boy has been missing since. Buck belongs to the same class of fanatics as Freeman, of Massachusetts. It is believed he sacrificed the boy; he declares the boy ran away. Buck has fled.

The Milwaukee section of the State Grange yesterday demanded that the Commissioner of Agriculture be made a Cabinet officer.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The corpses of upwards of fifty victims of the explosion in the Lycett Colliery at Newcastle, have been recovered. Of the twelve got out alive yesterday five have died, and the others are dying.

PANAMA, Jan. 13.—The Cauca Valley has suffered from visitation of floods which seem to have been general throughout Columbia. The river rose over three miles in width, and several small villages were destroyed and some lives lost. The losses aggregate as yet $100,000,000.

PANAMA, Jan. 3.—On Dec. 10th the first blast on the Cerra Culebra for the great cut through the highest point of the isthmus was fired by Mille De Lesseps. This was the first blast in the operations of the canal construction.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 22.—In the Assembly to-day Alvord said he was informed that the Canals were in a very bad condition and would cost a vast sum to put them in a navigable condition. Adopted. In the Senate a resolution calling upon Congressmen to oppose a bill to bridge the Detroit river, was adopted.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The professed widow of Jos. Lewis, a Hoboken millionaire who left his estate to the Federal Government, has withdrawn from the contest over his will; she has been identified as an adventuress and blackmailer. Other contestants continue to claim the estate.

The report about an effort of the Pennsylvania Railroad to lease the Louisville & Nashville Road, and that the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Co. had consolidated with the Illinois Central R.R. are both denied.

W. A. Sawyer, electrician, while experimenting with his electric lamps on Tuesday night, was suddenly subjected to a light of 10,000 candle power, causing severe congestion of the eyes; his early recovery is probable.

The Pacific mail steamship Colon returned from Panama yesterday with treasurer Park, and three other directors of the Panama R.R. Park returns with entire confidence that De Lesseps will successfully carry out his canal scheme.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—The Herald's Augusta special says vigilance republicans state that the Government is not relaxed. The State House is guarded, the local militia were ordered to remain in their armory this morning, having been on call since 2 yesterday afternoon. The Fusionist Legislature met this morning with members apparently undiminished.

Obituary.

THE LATE JOHN B. MCGANN.

Died, at his residence, near the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, this morning, Thursday, Jan. 22, at 8 o'clock, Professor JOHN BARRETT MCGANN, in the seventieth year of his age.

The announcement of his death will not be a surprise, as it has been known for some time past that his health has been failing

Mr. McGann was born in the city of Killyenny, Ireland, on the 25th day of December, 1810, and he often jocularly alluded to the fact that he was born on Christmas Day. He was educated in the village of Clonmellon, County of Westmeath, and served his time as a land surveyor in Castlecowndelvin. He was afterwards connected with the Ordnance Survey of Ireland, under General Renwick, who now resides in London, Ont. Mr. Healways expressed the warmest regard for General Renwick, and a correspondence always was kept up between them.

He was first married in 1839 to Cecilia Webb, and he often alluded with pleasure to the fact that the marriage took place at the residence of John Philpot Curran, the eminent Irish Barrister, who was a second cousin of Miss Webb. After his marriage he taught school for fourteen years, ten years of which time he labored in the city of Dublin. His wife died in 1850.

He was married again in 1852 to Maria Gale, who was a cousin of Messrs. W. and F. Shanly, who are well known as civil engineers. She died in 1854, and in December of the same year Mr. McGann left Ireland for the United States. On his arrival in New York he called on Dr. Prince, editor of the New York Observer, with whom he had formed an acquaintance in the old country. At his office he met Dr. Harvey P. Peet, the late distinguished Principal of the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, who gave him a position in the business department of the Institution. It was here that his interest was first awakened in the Deaf and Dumb.

In leaving Ireland it was the original intention of Mr. McGann to go to Canada—so in 1855 he came to Toronto, with letters of introduction to Dr. Hodgins, now Deputy Minister of Education, and others. He taught in the Toronto Grammar School for some time with Dr. Howe, who then occupied a prominent position among the educators in Canada. He was also a private tutor in the families of Hon. D. L. McPherson, Col. Gzowski and others, and many men who now occupy prominent positions in Canada received instruction in early life from McGann. The writer has conversed with a number of these persons, who speak warmly of him as an enthusiastic teacher.

Soon after his arrival in Toronto, Mr. McGann met with several uneducated deaf mutes, and as an interest had been awakened in their behalf during his connection with the New York Institute, he determined to establish a school for the Deaf and Dumb in Toronto. The school was opened on the 22nd of June, 1858, with four pupils. A public examination of his pupils was held on the 3rd of September, 1858, when a society was organized at his suggestion for the purpose of providing instruction for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind. Among the prominent men who took an interest in this society were the Hon. Vice Chancellor Sprague, Hon. G. W. Allan, Rev. Dean Grassett, Pro. Kingston, Hon. Mr. McMaster, Chief Justice Moss, Sheriff Jarvis and Dr. McCaul, who was President of the Society. Dr. Beverly Morris was appointed Superintendent, and Mr. McGann Principal of the school. The school remained under control of the Society until the Spring of 1864, when they were compelled to close the school for the want of pupils. Mr. McGann had previously withdrawn from the school and had opened an independent school in Toronto. His school was removed to Hamilton in August 1864—where Dundurn Castle, with its extensive and beautiful grounds, was secured for the use of the school. This school was conducted by Mr. McGann until the establishment of the Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb by the Government at Belleville in 1870, when Sir John A. Macdonald as Premier. Until this time the School had been supported by grants from Counties, a Government grant, and voluntary contributions. Mr. McGann and his teachers at various times visited different portions of the Province with some of the pupils, giving exhibitions showing the method of instucting the deaf and dumb and the blindand in this way a deep interest was awakened in behalf of this unfortunate class, who had been for so long neglected to a great extent by the Government. The earnest labors of Mr. McGann, and the enthusiasm awakened by the visits to different portions of the Province, no doubt caused the Government to take hold of the matter, and establish the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville, and for the Blind at Brantford.

The Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb was formally opened on the 20th of October, 1870, and Dr. W. J. Palmer, of North Carolina, was appointed Principal. Prof. McGann and his daughter Mrs. J. G. Terrill were appointed teachers at the opening of the Institute and in a short time his son-in-law Mr. James Watson was also appointed to a similar position.

Prof. McGann occupied this position until the fall of 1878, when he was compelled to retire from the work on account of ill health. A retiring allowance was granted him by the Government. Mr. McGann was an earnest and energetic teacher, and it seemed to weigh deeply on his mind that he was compelled to abandon a work to which he was so much devoted.

Mr. McGann was in all respects a worthy and esteemed citizen, a warm-hearted and generous an Irishmen proverbially are, and highly esteemed by all whose acquaintance he formed. His family and relations will have the warm sympathy of the people of Belleville, Toronto, Hamilton and wherever the man and his labors were known.

THE NEW

CORSET

Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of differ. ent development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 22.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—Three men were arrested by the police last night.

COUNTY COUNCIL.—This body will meet at 2 p. m. on Tuesday next for the purpose of organization.

BARLEY.—Mr. J. D. Macaulay, of Trenton, is shiping a quantity of barley from that place for St. Louis.

ICE RACING.—The annual trotting races on the ice will take place at Trenton on Tuesday and Wednesday next.

REPAIRING.—No. 1 steam fire engine is being repaired by having some new flues put in the boiler. The work is being done by Mr. Cunningham, the engineer.

GRAIN. — The Hastings Star says:—"Over $75,000, was paid out for grain, in this village, from the middle of October last to the first of January, inst."

GRAND ORANGE LODGE.—The Provincial Grand Orange Lodge for Ontario East is to meet at Gananoque on the 24th of February at 2 o'clock p. m.

SLOW.—The routine and records office of the Legislative Assembly is very slow in forwarding documents to the press. Not one of the measures introduced was received until this morning. A "reform" in this department is highly desirable.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—The Rev. Dr. Crawford, of the Baptist Seminary at Woodstock, Ont., will deliver an address in the Baptist Church this evening at 7:30. His subject will be "The Missionary Work in Manitoba," and from the well-known reputation of Dr. Crawford an interesting address may be expected.

CLEARING SALE.—Mr. James Hennessy announces an extensive clearing sale of his stock of dry goods, in order to make room for spring importations. With commendable liberality Mr. Hennessy announces that a percentage of his next week's sales will be given for the relief of the poor of the city, and of those of the week following for the famine-stricken peasantry of Ireland.

PERSONAL.—Rev. A. B. Demill, President of the Demill Ladies' College, at Oshawa, was in the city yesterday. We learn that this excellent institution is in a more prosperous condition than ever before. There are about a dozen young ladies in attendance from Belleville and vicinity, and several others will enter next term, which shows the popularity of the institution in this section. Mr. Demill is a native of Prince Edward Co.

MINSTRELSY.—Sprague's Georgia Minstrels were greeted by a large audience last night and proved worthy of the reputation which had preceded them. Their comicalities were highly entertaining, whilst their music, both vocal and instrumental, dancing and Ethiopian delineations were excellent. The troupe is a strong one in every department, and is worthy of patronage.

WRESTLING.—The following challenge, signed by William Kirk, appears in the Hamilton Spectator of the 21st inst.:—"I, William Kirk, of the city of Hamilton, having heard a great deal of talk about wrestling, and professing to be a "bit of a dab" at it myself, do hereby challenge either James Daly, D. C. Ross, E. W. Johnston or Jimmie Stevens to wrestle me for the sum of $2,000. The match to consist of five falls, namely, collar-and-elbow, hitch-and kick, catch as catch can, Scotch style and square heel and toe, the party securing the least number of falls to be declared the victim with the privilege of appealing to the Court of Chancery. As I look upon Jimmie Stevens as the best of the athletes mentioned, by a large majority, I am particularly anxious that he should take up this challenge. I mean business, and can always be found at 13 MacNab street north." This reads in some respects like a burlesque.

SOCIAL ASSEMBLY.—The members of the Princess Louise Club held their second social assembly last evening in the hall in Ashley's Block. There was a goodly attendance of members, who—to the music of the Oddfellows' orchestra—tripped the light fantastic toe from eight sharp until one o'clock this morning.

EAST HASTINGS AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—At the annual meeting of this Society, held at Thrasher's corners, Thurlow, on the 21st inst., the following officers and Directors were chosen for the coming year: President—David R. Leavens; 1st Vice-President—Wm. McLaren; 2nd Vice-President—Charles Ashley. Directors—Jeremiah Hurley, Benjamin Garrison, George Caldwell, J. Ross, Chas. Anderson, A. Latta, P. R. Palmer. N. Vermilyea, delegate to the Provincial Association.

DIVISION COURT.—The annual report of the Inspector of Division Courts for 1879 shows that the number of suits entered in the First Division Court of the County of Hastings (Belleville) was 1,126, representing in claims $13,772.20; the number of transcripts of judgments received from other Courts was 28, representing $570.07. The number of judgment summonses issued was 144, and the total amount of suitors' money paid into Court was $5,271.28, while the total amount paid out was $5,462.57. In the twelve Courts of the county there were 2,723 suits entered, representing claims of $53,508.22.

HASTINGS LOAN AND INVESTMENT SOCIETY.—A report of the annual meeting of this Society appears in our advertising columns, from which it will be learned that during the past year the Society has made great progress and proved highly prosperous, Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, the new Secretary, appearing to be the right man for the position. The capital stock has been increased by $70.500, and half yearly dividends at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum have been paid. The Savings Bank department, which was opened in July last, appears also to have been highly successful, as nearly $45,000 was received on deposit, on which a liberal rate of interest is paid. The report is very satisfactory, and its perusal will repay all interested.

CLARK v. BOGART.—In the Court of Chancery, Toronto, on the 20th, Mr. W. Cassels for defendant, Mrs. Bogart, appealed from the report of the Master at Belleville so far as it relates to the allowance to his client in lieu of her dower in certain lands. The land had been sold for $25,250 and the Master had allowed on the basis of six per cent per annum on one-third of the gross amount of the purchase money. It appeared that the rental of the estate prior to sale was $2,000. For the appellant it was contended that the allowance should have been based on the third of the actual rental, which would give the widow a much larger sum. Counsel referred to Wallace v. Moore, 18 G. He also contended that the rate of interest was too low. Mr. C. Moss, for plaintiff, supported the Master's report as against the widow's contention, and also appealed from it on the ground that the Master had allowed too much, inasmuch as he had not deducted from the gross amount of the purchase money the amount of two mortgages which were existing on the property when the husband became the owner, and which remained unpaid at the time of his death. Plaintiff's appeal allowed in part; defendant's appeal dismissed with costs.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The numbers of The Living Age for the week ending January 17th, has the following valuable contents:—Loyalty, by Edward A. Freeman, Fortnightly Review; The Sealed Letter, Temple Bar; On the Utility to Flowers of their Beauty, Contemporary Review; Madame Roland de la Platiere, by Lady Jackson, Temple Bar; The Rector of St. Mathew's, Argosy; The Criminal Code of the Jews, conclusion, Pall Mall Gazette; Doubting Doubt, Spectator; Curiosities of Trade in China, Pall Mall Budget; The Mahratta Rebel, Spectator; Chinese Cookery, and Brigandage in Italy, Pall Mall Gazette, with the usual amount of choice poetry and miscellany. Two new serial stories, one by Mrs. Oliphant, and the other by the author of "Dorothy Fox," have been recently begun in The Living Age, from advance sheets, and the publishers present to new subscribers for 1880 the six numbers of 1879 which contain the opening chapters of both these serials. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, including the extra numbers of the latter, both postpaid. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

THE PRINCESS.—A special to the Globe from London on the 21st says:—"The final arrangements have been made for the departure of the Princess Louise. Her Royal Highness will arrive at Liverpool early on Thursday afternoon, and proceed direct to the landing stage. Her suite consists of Hon. Mrs. Langham, Lady Pelly, and Captains Chater and Collins. Colonel MacNeill will be in attendance, at the Queen's command."

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

CHEESE AND BUTTER.—Messrs. Hodgson Bros. Liverpool, produce circular of Jan. 10th, quotes:

CHEESE.—A good business has been done this week at 68s to 70s for choicest Septembers—dealers having now become convinced that there is no prospect of any decline in America and that this is now the cheapest market for buying in, and necessity compels them to renew their stocks. There is no stock of any grade below fine. Shipments from America and Canada from this time forward may be expected to be small, as the bulk of the finest lots there will be wanted by the home trade dealers, who can probably outbid shippers. Total quantity leaving New York for week ending to-day 36,474 boxes.

BUTTER.—The demand continues good, and being in excess of the imports stocks are being gradually reduced. The best enquiry is for finest Canadian Townships, Brockville, and similar quality, at 110s to 115s per cwt. We quote fine dairy 95c to 105s; for medium grades 70s to 80s is a nominal quotation, as there is very little of this class to be had.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Fall wheat, No. 1, $1.27 to $1.29; No. 2, $1.25 to $1.27; No. 3, $1.22 to $1.24. Spring—No. 1, $1.25 to $1.27; No. 2, $1.23 to $1.25; No. 3, $1.20 to $1.22. Barley—No. 1, 76c to 77c; No. 2, 66c to 67c; No. 3, 56c to 57c; No. 4, 48c to 50c. Peas—No. 1, 56c to 57c; No. 2, 65 to 66c. Oats—No. 1, 37c; No. 2, 36c. Corn—56c to 58c. Flour—superior, $5.65 to $5.70; extra, $5.50 to $5.55; fancy, $5.40 to $5.45; strong bakers, $5.55 to $5.60; spring extra, $5.45 to $5.50; superfine, $5 05 to $5 10; fine, $4.65 to $4.70. Bran—$11 50 to $12. Clover seed—$3.75 to $4.00; Timothy, $2.75 to $3 00. Hogs—$6.00 to $6.15. Butter—12c to 20c. Barley (street), 45c to 75c. Rye, 78c to 80c. Wool, 30 to 32c. Wheat, spring, $1.20 to $1.24; fall, $1.20 to $1.25.

Wheat and flour dull, heavy and neglected; Barley and Peas weak, tending lower. Oats quiet, and easier. Hogs unchanged.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Flour, receipts 1,200 brls.; sales 100 brls.; market quiet and weak; buyers holding off in expectation of purchasing at a decline in the near future. Transactions are restricted to local wants. Quotations of yesterday are repeated as follows:—Superiors $6.20 to $6.25; extras, $6.00 to $6.10; fancy, $5.95 to $6.00; spring extra, $5.90 to $5.95; superfine, $5.60 to $5.70; strong bakers, $6.15 to $6.50; fine, $5.25 to $5.30; middlings, $4.30 to $4 45; pollards, $3.50 to $3.75; Ontario bags $2 90 to $3.00; city do. $3.20 to $3 25.

Sales—100 strong bakers, choice, $6.50.

Grain—Wheat, No. 2 spring, nominal, latest sales at $1.36 to $1.37 for car lots. Corn retailing at 65 to 70c, duty paid. Peas, 79 to 80c per 66 lbs. Oats, about 1c per lb. Barley dull a 45 to 60c. Rye about 78c.

CONSUMPTION.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as Affections of the Throat, Lungs, and all diseases of the pulmonary organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the cure of such diseases have been fully tested by the Medical Faculty. The BALSAM is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

J. P. C. PHILLIPS,
Secretary.

TO THE PRESIDENT AND DIRECTORS OF THE HASTINGS LOAN AND INVESTMENT SOCIETY:

GENTLEMEN,—We the undersigned have Audited the Books and Securities of the above Society, for the year ending the 31st December, 1879, and find the balances and items in the accompanying statements to be true and correct in every particular.

J. C. JAMIESON, C. H. McMULLEN, } AUDITORS.

From the foregoing statements it will be seen that your Directors have been able to declare the usual Dividends during the year, leaving a balance at Credit of Profit and Loss Account of $2,406.10.

The profits for the year, after deducting expenses of management, amount to $5,451.62, out of which two half-yearly Dividends at the rate of 9 per cent per annum, have been declared.

The removal of the business of the Society from the former premises to the present site was undertaken by the Directors after mature deliberation and with considerable anxiety, but the rapid progress of the Institution since its removal clearly shows that it was a step in the right direction

The engagement of the services of the present Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, the Directors regard as very opportune. The progress made by the Society under his administeration clearly justifies the Directors in concluding that the selection was a judicious one

SAVINGS BANK.

In the month of July, your Directors, after repeated meetings on the subject, decided that the time had arrived for adding a Savings Bank Department to the Society. On 1st of August they were enabled to commence operations, and the great success which has attended this branch of the business affords most satisfactory evidence of the position it holds in public estimation. The large sum of $44,832.17 was received on deposit in the short space of 5 months from 80 depositors, thus showing the confidence which is reposed in its stability and security.

Your Directors refer with much pleasure to the large increase of $70,500 in the Capital Stock of the Society during the past year, notwithstanding the severe commercial depression.

The Loans and Securities on Real Estate, amounting to $61,332.47, have been carefully scrutinized by the Directors, and are considered to be in a most satisfactory and sound condition. The appraised cash value of the property on which the above loans have been made is $133,850 00.

In conclusion your Directors would suggest the advisability of having a monthly Inspection made of the books, as is the custom in other similar Societies, by a competent Auditor in addition to the regular yearly audit, as heretofore. Such a system would in their opinion greatly tend to inspire public confidence in the Society.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAS. G. ROBINSON,
President.

Moved by Mr. John Brenton, and seconded by Mr. D. R. Leavens, that the Rev. Amos Capbell and Mr. C. H. McMullen, do act as Scrutineers and report the result of the Ballot. The poll was then opened and the scrutineers reported the following gentlemen elected Directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. J. G. Robinson, J. A. Phippen, John McMullen, John Brenton, John Row, D. R. Leavens, R. S. Patterson, Hon. McKenzie Bowell and Henry Mouck.

Moved by Mr. John A. Phippen and seconded by Mr. Geo. D. Dickson, that Mr. J. C. Jamieson and Alfred E. Denison be appointed Auditors for the current year. Mr. Denison to make a monthly audit of the books.

Meeting adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board Mr. J. G. Robinson was re-elected President, and Mr. John Row and Mr. D. R. Leavens Vice-Presidents for the ensuing year.

The Ontario Legislature.

TUESDAY, Jan. 20.

An attempt was made to extend the time for receiving petitions in favor of Private Bills, but the House declined to grant the extension. Friday is the last day for the introduction of Private Bills. Amongst those introduced was one by Mr. Lyon for the incorporation of the "Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company.

After the "Co-operative Associations" Bill had been passed through Committee,

Mr. Mowat in a brief speech moved the second reading of the "Judicature" Bill, going over in his remarks much the same ground as he had taken in moving the first reading, and promising the fullest explanation of its details when it came to be considered in committe.

Mr. Meredith, argued in favor of delaying the further consideration of the measure to another session, after giving it the second reading, and spoke in favor of dropping out altogether the old names of the Common Law and Equity Courts.

Mr. Mowat briefly replied, after which Mr. Morris also urged delay, and Messrs. Creighton, Miller, and Paxton took exception to the second reading being pressed so soon after the Bill had been distributed.

Mr. Young, on the other hand, urged the second reading on the ground that the session was rapidly passing, and any unnecessary delay in the progress of Government measures was much to be deprecated.

The motion was then carried on the understanding that some time should elapse before the Bill was taken up in Committee.

Mr. Cook moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the General Railway Act of the Province, with a view to providing for the safety of persons walking across railway yards. The Bill requires the railway "frogs" to be filled up with wood to the level of the rail, and the space between the rails at the junction of switches to be not less than six inches instead of three as at present. In the course of his remarks he stated that he had taken the question up in the House of Commons, and that he had then included in the Bill some provisions for the protection of brakesmen as well as yardmen. The case of the brakesmen he had abandoned, however, at their own wish, on being informed by the railway companies that if they were compelled to go to expense for the protection of the men, they would resort to the use of the air brake in preference.

Mr. Fraser, on behalf of the Government, consented to the second reading, with the understanding that the Bill should be referred to the Special Committee already appointed on the subject, and on this understanding, to which Mr. Cooks readily assented, the motion was carried.

Mr. Hay, in response to a question, elicited the information that the Govern- had nointention to pay to the municipalties interested the amount due to them from the Land Improvement Fund until a settlement was effected between the Ontario and the Dominion Government, which would probably be before next session. At a later stage of the proceedings he moved for the correspondence on the subject, which was ordered to be brought down.

After some remarks from Messrs. Sinclair and Lauder, the Treasurer explained that the delay in securing a settlement was due to political changes at Ottawa and Quebec, and that nothing could now be done till after the close of the approaching session of the Dominion Parliament.

Mr. Miller obtained an order of the House for a detailed return of the expenditure of 1879 on Colonization Roads.

Mr. Gibson of Huron, moved for and obtained an order for a return of the receipts and expenditure of the Agriculture and Arts Association.

In reply to Mr. White, the Attorney-General stated that the question of appointing magistrases in North Essex or Tilbury West has not been brought under his consideration. In reply to Mr. Creighton he stated that the sum of $14,-481 remaining in the hands of Hunter, Rose & Co., was in dispute, and was the subject of negotiation.

Mr. Pardee, in reply to Mr. Long, stated that the re-survey of the township of Sunnidale had been completed, and that the final adoption of either the old or the new survey would necessitate legislation. In reply to Mr. Miller he announced that some new townships would probably be thrown open for Free Grant settlement after the close of the present session.

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barroom may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandwein;" the lymphatic Frenchman for his "Eau de vie;" the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and lands. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and will not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. Dr. HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

DR. GILES —I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. CONSUMPTION
CAN BE CURED
IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES
SYR: HYPOPHOS. COMP: FELLOWS.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermitten Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophoaphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is every where recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal ever given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD OR THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER XI.

A NIGHT IN A LONDON LODGING-HOUSE.

As Tobby Sprat sped along the street with Myra in his arms, he no more knew where he was going than he knew about the man in the moon. It was the act of impulse—the impulse of love. Anything was better than Myra should be injured or ill used by the brutal Morgan—the pretty, innocent, loving little Myra, who was now twined round the fibres of his heart, and who could not possibly have been dearer to him had he been really her father.

Often and often his naturally placid temper felt hot, even to boiling, when Morgan was venting his passion on the two helpless children, making them cower and tremble, but never had it grown so furious as it did that night, when the showman in his drunken recklessness was putting the girl in such imminent peril. A lioness, when her whelps are assailed, is not more angry than he was; and small and weak though he was in comparison with Morgan, he would have fought for her defence till all power was gone had Silas not given him the chance of saving her more effectually, by flight. But the drunken brute, having been compelled by the uproar in the saloon to rush on with Charlie, Tobby waited not a moment, as we have seen, to expose himself and the child to the danger which he was conscious he was not strong enough to avert, but made good his escape on the instant, possessed with the one idea—saving the object of his love from harm.

At the moment he thought of nothing beyond this. He reflected not that he was as friendless and homeless in London as Myra herself. The direction he took was as blindly unplanned as was his resolution to flee, and it was not till he had put at least a mile between them and the Sow and Pigs that he slackened his speed, and began to bethink himself of what was further to be done.

He was pretty sure that they were now safe from pursuit. The path he had pursued had been a winding and devious one; and as their flight could not have been discovered till some little time after they were gone, it must now be as difficult for Morgan to trace them in that great London labyrinth as to discover a needle in a bundle of hay.

Still Tobby kept lingering on, going westward, and never stopped till he sat down to rest on the steps of the monument by which they were alone. The thoroughfares on either side of the square were still busy, but to the centre where the monument was, not a soul had wandered but themselves.

Tobby, tired and breathless, sat him down on the lower step, and Myra slipped from his breast to his knee, where however, his arms still encircled her, tenderly and protectingly.

They had not yet exchanged a word. Wrapped up in the thick shawl, the child had nestled close to his heart, never moving except only to tremble from the fright she had experienced. By this he knew that she had not fallen asleep, otherwise her perfect stillness might have made him suppose that she was in a slumber, or, worse still, had fallen into a swoon.

Now he lifted the fold of the shawl and peered beneath. In the dim light he could discern her beautiful little face, white as the dress she wore, anxiously upturned to his, and her large speaking eyes plainly asking the one uppermost question.

'We are safe now, darling,' he whispered. 'He'll not find us here.'

'But when we go back he will be so angry and beat us,' she tearfully rejoined.

'But we won't go back, Myra.'

'What! Never again?' cried the child, as a joyous light came into her anxious eyes.

'No, my darling, never again. It has been growing worse and worse, and now it is past bearing, with no hope of it ever becoming better. That cruel hard life, at any rate, is ended, whatever may follow it.'

'Oh, and shall you and I and Charlie live by ourselves now? How grand and nice that will be. We shall be so happy—won't we, dear, dear Tobby?'

'I don't know what we shall do, dear, Charlie isn't with us, you know.'

'Ah, no; poor Charlie. Master will kill him if you don't fetch him away as you have done me. Oh, do go for him, Tobby, and I will sit here till you return.'

'No, no, my little lass. That won't do at all. Charlie (and here Tobby groaned)—Charlie will have to take his chance for a bit. I have got to take care for you in the meantime, and as soon as it will be safe, I will do what I can for Charlie. There don't cry. God helping me I'll take care of you both, and you'll see I will help us. He is our Father you know.'

What a wonderful deal of good this thought did, both to Tobby and Myra, in a single moment. The simple yet strong faith of the simple-hearted man calmed, strengthened, cheered him. He did not see as yet how the way was to open up for them, but the recollection flashed on his spirit just then that he could not love and yearn over Myra with any thing like the infinite love of the Divine Father, who was as able as He was willing to succour. Why, then, sould he despond, far less despair? They were cast on the world, without a friend or a prospect, but the world was God's world, all the good that was in it came from Him—both the good and the evil were under his control. His eye was upon them now. He knew their straits—knew how they wished to do by His help what was good and right, and if they truly loved Him He would be as good as his word, and make all things work together for good to them. What a power that conviction had in Tobby's soul. Forlorn and desperate as their condition seemed, it no longer heavily oppressed him. And yet, on ordinary consideration, it might well have dismayed him. There they sat—a lame man, and a helpless child—without a friend or a shelter in the world, with no home, with but a shilling or two of money, and having no means of earning more. Truly the position was desolate and deplorable in the extreme; and had Tobby not called into exercise the precious faith which he cherished it was enough to overwhelm him. But having cast at once the anchor of his hope his fears utterly vanished.

Tobby's cheerfulness made Myra happy and trustful. She dried the tears she shed for Charlie, and hoped he would soon be brought to join them.

It was now late, and a place of shelter must be sought for the night. Tobby felt in his pockets and discovered that the sum of money he possessed was four and six pence. It was a fortunate accident that he was provided even to this small extent. Very rare were the occasions on which he had received money from Silas Morgan—that worthy evidently considered that bed and board were sufficient for Tobby's useful service. A day or two previously he had, in a transient fit of good humor, given him five shillings to buy a pair of second-hand shoes, and Tobby learning that the articles could be bought for four and six pence, had that very afternoon given Charlie and Myra a little treat with the overplus, and intended purchasing his shoes on the following day. In this way, therefore, it was that, at this critical moment, he was the possessor of such sum, and a merciful circumstance it was likely to prove. Had the crisis arisen two days ago, Tobby would have been without a farthing; and if that had been the case the position of himself and Myra would have been many degrees worse. As it was, he could command food and shelter for both, for the night and this would at least give him a few hours reflection.

Food and shelter! Well, four and six-pence would not do much in that way, and Tobby shuddered to think so, for it involved the necessity of spending the night in one of the cheap lodging-houses, and the experience he had had of these places many years ago made that necessity horribly repulsive. For himself he did not much care. He could brave the scene and endure it, casting away the influence from his mind as he would poison. But to take Myra into such a place, to bring her in contact with its foulness and wickedness, was grievous to contemplate. Despite the untowardness of Myra's lot, she had, thanks to Tobby's fatherly care, been kept as pure and innocent as any child could who travelled in a showman's caravan, and danced on a tight-rope for public amusement. She had been carefully kept from beholding scenes of gross wickedness, and her young mind had still upon it in undiminished purity the lustre of childish innocence. But would there not be a chance of that snowy veil of purity being tarnished in a low lodging-house? The scenes she would be sure there to witness were scenes of shocking depavity—the worst almost that could be presented, and the baleful influence they might have upon her, who could tell? The tares might be sown among the wheat, the weeds among the flowers, the briars among the myrtles, and if these noxious plants grew up and choked the good—oh, the anguish of such a thought to Tobby.

He sat silently ruminating. His painful fears and his sad, anxious face showed how keen were his feelings. Myra watched him for some time with her attentive eyes, then tenderly inquired.

'Something is grieving you, dear Tobby. What is it? it it about Charlie?

'I am grieving about Charlie,' he quietly answered; 'but I was thinking of something else just now. Don't you feel tired and sleepy? Would you not like to go to bed?'

'Oh no, no,' she cried, throwing her little arms around him in alarm. 'Do not go back to master again.'

'I don't meant to, my pet. But we can't sit here all night; it's getting very cold, and if the policeman comes round he will send us away. We might try and get a lodging somewhere for the night.'

'Yes, it is cold, and I do feel sleepy,' murmured Myra, letting her silken eyelids droop and nestling closer into Tobby's bosom.

'And hungry, too, are you not?' he tenderly inquired.

'No, not hungry, dear Tobby—not hungry; only tired, and cold, and weary.'

'Will you say your prayer now, darling?' he asked, in a low solemn voice.

'Shall I go down and kneel on the step?' she rejoined looking seriously up.

'No, just say it where you are, love.'

She clasped her little hands together, and looking up with her pure, innocent eyes to the dim stars which shone through the murky smoke of the city, she sweetly murmured—'Our Father which art in Heaven.'

Her utterance of the beautiful prayer was like a soft strain of sacred music, and low and solemn whisperings it ascended above the discords of the noisy city—alike above its moral and physical impurities—through the starlit darkness and the upper regions of silent peace, till it came to the ear of Him who said—'After this manner pray ye'—the listening ear and loving heart of Him who likewise said—'Suffer little children to come unto me.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barroom may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandy-wein;" the lymphatic Englishman for his "ale," or Esau or the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and grain. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and we do not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. Dr. HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

M. Gambetta is extremely fond of exercise of all kinds; he walks a great deal, and keenly enjoys a game of quoits. He has been staying in Switzerland, the scenery of that country never failing to call out fresh enthusiasm from him on each repeated visit. Personally he is immensely liked by all who approach him, the charms of his manner and talk earning for him adherents even among those who politically rebel against him.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 23.

Our Candidate.

It has, of course, been generally understood, ever since the election Court declared the seat for West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature vacant, that Mr. Alexander Robertson would again be the candidate of the Opposition for that position. But the matter was not formally decided upon until yesterday, when, at a meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association, the nomination was unanimously tendered to Mr. Robertson and accepted by him. This action was creditable to the party, as showing that their confidence in and respect for their candidate are undiminished, and that they appreciate and are grateful for the services which he has rendered in the past, in contesting successfully a hard-fought electoral battle, besides passing through a very searching enquiry into his conduct in Court without a stain being left on his reputation.

The one thing now necessary is for the supporters of Mr. Robertson to work, in order to secure his return by a large majority : and from the composition of the gatherings which have been held in his interest and the disposition evinced by those who have attended thereat, we anticipate the most favorable results. Taking that of yesterday as a criterion, the attendance, despite the highly unfavorable weather, was composed of a large number of representative men from all parts of the Riding, and the reports which they gave of the feeling in their various localities was of the most cheering character. The only ground for fear that the majority may be reduced, is that a feeling of over-confidence may prevail amongst the friends of the Opposition candidate ; but if all perform the duty which is incumbent on them, the result will be a signal triumph for the opponents of the Mowat Government. The time remaining is brief, and faithful work will be required until the closing of the polls on the 30th inst.

NORTH LANARK.—This constituency remains firm to its allegiance to Gritism, Mr. McDonnell having been returned by a majority of 98.

THE OKA.—The trial of the Oka Indians, charged with burning the Roman Catholic church at Oka in June, 1876, was commenced at Aylmer on the 22nd inst.

TORONTO CUSTOMS.—The Globe of the 21st. inst. says:—"Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs, was in the city yesterday. He reached Toronto on the previous day and stayed over night, so that he might have an opportunity of visiting the Custom House. Mr. Bowell spent over an hour in the Department, and seemed to be pleased with the way things are managed there now. During his visit Mr. Bowell conversed with the leading officers of the Department, and under the guidance of Mr. Mewburn, Inspector of Customs, looked into the business of the port pretty closely. Certain changes will be made, so that it will be impossible for the financial affairs of the Department to get into such another muddle as was recently brought to light. The examining warehouse was visited yesterday with the result that certain improvements calculated to facilitate the work in the warehouse will forthwith be carried out. At present the goods are all placed in one large room, without proper classification, the consequence being that merchants have a difficulty often in finding their particular consignment. It is now proposed to have the room divided into compartments for particular lines of goods, such as dry goods, groceries, hardware, &c. This plan will not only facilitate the work of this branch of the Department, but it will prove a boon to the merchants of the city."

CONSERVATIVE GATHERING.

Meeting of the W. H. L. C. Association.

A meeting of the members of the Liberal Conservative Association of the West Riding of Hastings was held in the hall of the Association in the INTELLIGENCER building, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the constituency in the interest of the Conservative party.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was not as large as would otherwise have been the case, the falling sleet and condition of the streets, being doubtless the preventive. Still the meeting was a good one, and composed of representative and influential men.

In the absence of the President of the Association, Wm. Jeffs, Esq., one of the Vice-Presidents, was called on to preside.

The Chairman, in opening the meeting, remarked that the gathering now assembled was for the purpose of selecting a candidate to contest the Riding in the interests of the Liberal Conservative party. Mr. Robertson, through the irregularities of some over zealous friends, had been ousted by the Court, and as a consequence it now devolved on them to select a candidate, and for that purpose they had here assembled. Mr. Sills was already out as the candidate of the Grit party, and no time should be lost in their now proceeding to business.

Arthur Murphy, Esq., of Trenton, proposed Alex. Robertson, Esq., as the nominee of the party, seconded by Capt. Vandervoort, of Sidney.

No other nominations being made, the motion was put to the meeting and declared carried unanimously.

The Chairman here tendered the nomination of the meeting to Mr. Robertson, who was warmly received. He said he regreted that the inclemency of the weather had prevented many from attending, yet he was pleased to see so many prominent gentlemen of the riding from a distance present on this occasion. He could assure those present that on the occasion of a meeting of his friends on Monday night numbers were unable to obtain admission to the room. He had now before him the motion of the convention nominating him and endorsing him, and he now stood before them as their candidate. He had not been defeated in the last contest, though through the indiscretion of friends—and through no fault of his—he had been unseated and the election set aside. He regretted that the electors were so soon called on after their noble effort of the 5th of June last, when he had been returned by the handsome majority of 337. He was proud of that majority, and though it had been proved that a few votes had been purchased by his supporters, he to-day was the real representative of the West Riding of Hastings. It was unfortunate that the indiscretions of a few of his friends had been the means of setting aside the election. He had no fears for the future, and was confident that he had the sympathy of the people of the riding with him. Had the position tendered him been offered to another, he would have considered it his duty to support him. He was flattered with the last vote given him, and was sure the people would endorse his position. We should now organize thoroughly and leave no effort lacking or stone unturned to achieve success, we should not relax our exertions, but should do our duty to one another and to the Conservative cause. Mr. Brown had won the election for the Commons by over 300, and he had reversed that by a majority of 337, thus making a difference of over 600 votes. As far as the Local House was concerned there were now no great issues to be solved by it. The duty of a representative should be to watch the course pursued by the Government and to see that the public moneys were judiciously expended. There was a necessity for the erection of new Parliament buildings in Toronto, and if new erections were decided on, it was desirable that the expenditure should be kept within reasonable bounds. His opponent was brought out through the actions of a few of his party ; it was a matter of party and there existed no real necessity for opposition, but this contest had sprung up as a personal matter because a transparency of the opposite party had been injured. If Mr. Holden was entitled to the vote of the people as had been stated, why was he not the candidate ? It was unfair that three or four men should have thrust Mr. Sills forward as his opponent. He thanked the meeting for the honor bestowed on him and said that the matter now rested with themselves. We should show no apathy and though our opponent may be a weak man we should leave no stone unturned to secure a handsome majority. We should do what we could and avoid committing a single act that would have a tendency to avoid the election, and by thus doing dispense with another protest. It had been remarked that evidence that was to have been given against him at the last trial would be brought forward in case he was victorious in the next contest, but that could not be done, as that case had been disposed of and would not apply to the next election. In conclusion he asked that the contest be commenced with clean hands ; let us not attempt to violate the law and the result would be double the majority obtained in the last campaign.

At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Robertson was loudly cheered.

Mr. E. B. Fralick said it was only a day or two ago that Mr. Sills had been brought out and it had been anticipated that there would be no opposition to Mr. Robertson prior to that. Mr. Sills was now presented as the sacrifice on the altar of his party; he was the catspaw of a few and was set up as the persecutor of Mr. Robertson and his friends. He concluded by urging all to work earnestly for the success of Mr. Robertson.

Mr. D. R. Murphy said the action of a few of the opposite party was one which prostituted this constituency, for Mr. Robertson was the choice of the people and even in the Court no corrupt practices had been alleged against him. He trusted Mr. Robertson would receive a handsome majority and that when the contest was over he could not say "save me from my friends."

Capt. Vandervoort endorsed what was said by the previous speakers and expressed himself as sure and certain of the triumphant return of the Conservative candidate.

Mr. W. B. Northrup urged all to go to work earnestly and diligently.

Mr. Wm. Jeffs regretted that Mr. Sills had come out as a candidate, and though he might poll a good local vote he could not expect to be successful.

Mr. J. W. Johnson said that in the last election Mr. Robertson was no more responsible for the acts of his friends than Hon. Mr. Mowat was, as those of the latter distributed bills in Toronto to the effect that Parliament buildings would be erected there were he (Mr. Mowat) returned.

Speeches were also made by J. G. Foster and Jas. A. Chisholm, of Sidney, James Ryan, of Trenton ; Ald. McIntosh, Jas. Smith, Wm. Wensley, H. C. Cronk and N. B. Falkiner, after which the meeting broke up with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

WEST HASTINGS ELECTION.

THE NOMINATION.

FRIDAY, Jan. 23, 1880.

At twelve o'clock to-day the writ for the election of a member to represent the Riding of West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature was read by the Returning Officer, W. H. Ponton, Esq., in the presence of a large gathering of voters and representative men from the city, Sidney and Trenton. As the time advanced the friends of both candidates were augmented in numbers, and when the nominations were made the room was filled, all the seats being occupied and many were standing.

Captain B. H. Vandervoort of Sidney, nominated Alex. Robertson Esq., of Belleville, as a candidate to contest the West Riding of Hastings in the next Provincial Legislature. He was a large property holder in the riding and if elected would fill the office in a satisfactory and efficient manner. (Cheers.)

D. R. Murphy, Esq., of Trenton seconded the nomination. He said that Mr. Robertson was the choice of the people at the last election and the choice of the people should always have the seat. (Cheers.)

Col. BROWN—Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen :—I have great pleasure in moving a resolution in favor of a gentleman. Both gentlemen of whom I shall speak are friends of mine, yet I have done considerable work for one of them. I beg to nominate Mr. Sills. He is a paper man, a miller, and a saw mill man. He is a manufacturer, and I have done a large amount of business with him. I have pleasure in nominating him. (Cheers and hisses.)

Thomas Holden, Esq., from the body of the hall, approached the platform and said: I have much pleasure in seconding the nomination.

Mr Robertson suggested that as so many were present and as they desired to hear the candidates it would only be proper that the candidates be heard now, and if others were nominated they could speak afterwards if they desired.

The Returning Officer stated such a proceeding suited him exactly.

Mr. Murphy asked the permission of the Returning officer to take a show of hands as to the way of at once going on with the present proceedings. At the last election people came to hear the candidates speak but such was the number of nominations that many went home without hearing the candidates speak for themselves.

Mr. Holden suggested that a small number of candidates might yet be nominated and there might be a "dark horse" in the field, so that it would be well to await what might present itself.

Mr. R. C. Clute approved of the candidates speaking first, but as other candidates could be nominated he would propose Thomas Holden, seconded by D. C. Curtis.

Hugh Walker nominated J. W. Johnson, seconded by James McGuire.

P. J. Anderson nominated R. C. Clute seconded by H. Bleecker.

Alex. Thompson nominated E. Baldwin Fralick seconded by Benjamin Gilbert.

D. C. Curtis proposed S. B. Burdett seconded by R. Murdoff.

J. W. Johnson nominated D. R. Murphy, seconded by H. J. Lott.

D. R. Murphy nominated Baltis Rose, seconded by J. B. Ostrom.

S. B. Burdett, nominated J. J. B. Flint, seconded by R. C. Clute.

Henry McIninch proposed W. B. Northrup, seconded by Harvey Cronk.

William Jeffs was proposed by Dr. Stewart, seconded by Hugh Walker.

Stephen J. White, seconded by Samuel D. Farley, proposed Henry Bleecker.

P. J. M. Anderson was nominated by Henry Bleecker, seconded by C. L. Coleman.

Dr. Hope was nominated by R. Burke, seconded by S. Vandervoort.

Eugene McMahon was proposed by Harvey Cronk, seconded by James McGuire.

C. V. Bogart nominated G. D. Dickson, seconded by W. B. Carroll.

Mr. Robertson said it had been decided that no speaking should take place—in order to allow those present to go to dinner—until two o'clock. It had now been decided that the candidates should speak first, the programme to be as follows :

Mr. Robertson to speak first, Mr. Sills to follow, to be succeeded by Mr. Fralack, who is to be followed by R. C. Clute, Mr. J. W. Johnson, and Mr. Thomas Holden will conclude the speaking, which is expected to take up the greater part of the afternoon.

The meeting then adjourned until two o'clock, the purpose of nomination not to be interfered with as any one was at liberty to make a nomination if he chose.

They who have an honest and engaging look, ought to suffer double punishment if they belie it in their actions.

—Michael Finn, a brakeman of the Grand Trunk Railway, residing at Point St. Charles, was accidentally killed on Thursday morning, at a point in the road about half a mile east of Maitland Station, by falling from the top of a freight car while the train was in motion.

—The new Parliament of Manitoba was opened by the Lieutenant-Governor Cauchon on Thursday afternoon. The speech referred, amongst other things, to the abundant harvest, and promised several measures of local importance.

THE SITUATION IN MAINE is growing more hopeful. A more friendly feeling is being manifested between the rival parties, and the hope is entertained that the Fusionists regularly elected will take their seats in the State House. The Senators are reported to favor this idea.

MORTGAGE SALE
OF
Valuable Freehold Property.

TO be sold by Public Auction, in pursuance of the power of sale contained in two certain Mortgages to the Vendors, which will be produced at the Sale, in two parcels, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, A.D. 1880, at Twelve o'clock, noon, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dominion Hotel, in the city of Belleville, the following valuable Real Estate, being composed of :

PARCEL No. I.

Lot number Two, on the east side of Coleman Street, and south side of Bridge Street, in the City of Belleville.

PARCEL No. II.

Lot number Twenty-nine, in the second concession of the Township of Thurlow, containing by admeasurement two hundred acres of land, be the same more or less.

On Parcel No. I. there is one large brick dwelling house and store, and also a good stone stable. This property is advantageously situated for a store, and is near the business portion of the city.

On Parcel No. II. there are : one one-story frame dwelling house, one log house, and three barns. There is also a small orchard on the premises ; the soil is a good clay loam. About 70 acres are cleared and fit for cultivation, and about 30 acres are wood land. This property is situated about eight miles from Belleville, which affords a good market for the produce.

The vendors reserve to themselves the right of one bidding in respect of each parcel. Terms of payment very liberal. A deposit of ten per cent of the purchase money must be paid at the time of sale, when easy terms for the balance will be arranged.

For further particulars and conditions of sale, apply to M. B. Robbie, Esq., Belleville, or to MACDONALD, MACDONALD & MARSH,

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his money ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive forms. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we are range to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay ?

THE NEW
CORSET
Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.
PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.
THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of differ. ent development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable ; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsements and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 23.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—There was one prisoner in the cells last night—no tramps.

STREET RAILWAY.—Yesterday's rain cleared the track nicely, so that the street cars were again running to-day.

SCHOOL ELECTION.—Mr. Emanuel Hayne was yesterday elected by acclamation as Public School Trustee for Coleman Ward.

MEETINGS.—Mr. Robertson's supporters are reminded that the Committee rooms are open every night. All who wish to attend will be welcome.

GAS COMPANY.—The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Belleville Gas Company is to be held on Monday, February 2nd, at noon, at the office of Mr. James Glass, Managing Director.

CUSTOMS APPOINTMENT.—The Picton Times says:—"We are glad to hear that Geo. E. Boulter, son of N. J. Boulter, Esq., has been appointed a preventive officer in Her Majesy's customs for the port of Sophiasburgh."

MIDLAND CENTRAL FAIR.—The Midland Central Fair, held at Kingston in October last, was a success financially. The receipts amounted to $4,092.36 and the expenditure to $3,299.63, leaving a balance of $792.73, and $10 was added to this after the report was drawn up.

LIQUOR IN WINTER.—Dr. Logan, in a "Medical Talk" before the Ottawa Young Men's Christian Association, said: "Alchol lowers the temperature throughout the system. It drives the heat from the centres to the surface. Brandy and water is a great deceiver, and so is 'Hot Scotch' for a long drive. If you feel cold when out, get out of the cutter and warmly exercise. Let the brandy and water alone."

REAL ESTATE SALE.—The sale of the Kennedy property on Front Street, which took place at the Dafoe House yesteaday, Mr. Charles Wilkins being the auctioneer, was successful, the property changing hands for $4,700. The purchase was made by Mr. M. A. Dixon, Solicitor for Mr. McConaghy, who resides in Belgium. The price realized is considered a good one, and shows that real estate in Belleville has taken an upward turn.

CROWS IN WINTER.—The appearance of crows, which is usually regarded as an indication of the near approach of spring, has been noted as having occurred of late near Ottawa. This locality has been similarly favored, as a gentleman who was driving in the country lately states that he saw nine crows flying over. We shall see whether these ill-omened birds have been correct in their prognostications, or whether, like Vennor, they have been led astray by supposed signs which have deceived them.

CHANGE OF BANK MANAGEMENT.—A change in the management of the Merchants Bank in this city has taken place. Mr. T. E. Trow has been removed to the Ingersoll branch, and his place supplied by Mr. Wm. Hamilton. Although Mr. Trow was a stranger when he took the position of Manager of the Bank here some two years since, he has, by his ability as a manager and genial disposition, secured the confidence and respect of a large circle of business men both in this city and the surrounding district, by whom his removal will be very much regretted. Mr. Hamilton, his successor, is well and favorably known as the former manager of the Consolidated Bank here.

PRINCE EDWARD CO. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the county agricultural society took place on the 21st, the following were elected officers for the year:—John Cavan, President; Thos. Welbanks, jr. 1st Vice President; Benj. Story, 2nd Vice President; N. Calhoun, C. McCartney, G.H. Sprung, Ichabod Bowerman, S. Smith, John Mallroy, Lucius Hart, J. Hefferman, D. H. Spencer, Directors. A. Bristol and C. D. Mordon, Auditors. It was resolved to recommend to the directors to hold the show on two days this year. R. S. Roblin was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer.

MINING NEWS.—A telegram from Madoc on the 22nd says:—"A deposit of free gold has been discovered on Mr. Henry Bull's property in this place. This gentleman is the owner of a bed of red hematite iron within the corporation, and only about thirty rods from the railway station. Mr. Hall, of Buffalo, has been stopping here since Saturday last. He has purchased ten car-loads of refuse from the iron mines. This refuse is too full of sulphur for manufacturing purposes, and he wishes to test it with his new process."

EAST HASTINGS AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—At the annual meeting of this Society, held at Thrasher's corners, Thurlow, on the 21st inst., the following officers and Directors were chosen for the coming year: President—David R. Leavens; 1st Vice-President—Wm. McLaren; 2nd Vice-President—Charles Ashley. Directors—Jeremiah Hurley, Barlow Garrison, George Caldwell, J. Ross, Chas. Anderson, M. Lally, P. R. Palmer, Thos. Martin, Geo. Park. N. Vermilyea, delegate to the Provincial Association.

OUR TIMBER.—Says the Norwood Register:—"Mr Thomas Buck, we are glad to learn, is utilizing the Grand Junction Railway to convey his timber cut in the woods north of this place, from Hastings to Belleville, where it will be rafted, and thence floated as in former years to Quebec. Price of lumber is advanced considerably of late, and therefore we may expect to hear of our lumber merchants reaping a rich financial harvest, as an offset to losses sustained by the depression in the lumber market for some years back. But for pity sake, don't ascribe this welcome change to the working of the N. P.; it's only when prices go down that the N. P. has a hand in."

Found Dead.

An Unknown Man Found Dead in Thurlow.

About noon on the 22nd inst., the dead body of a man was discovered on the edge of the woods, in the vicinity of the railroad track in the rear of the farm belonging to Delew Ham, Esq., in the 1st con. of Thurlow. A coat was seen thrown over the fence near where the body was found, on the second of January, and, as the remains were found without a coat, it is supposed that the garment belonged to the deceased.

The body lay on its face with the hands under the stomach, and he is supposed to have been lying there since.

On the 31st of December a man whose description tallies with that of the deceased, was seen at Shannonville. His both feet were frozen and a kind hearted switchman at the station there gave him a pair of boots. He went into the station after this and remained some time. He then got on a freight train but was put off by the conductor, (prior to this the same party acted in a demented way at Gunsolus' tavern in the village, as he imagined some one was going to shoot him and he wished to be secreted). He jumped on the train after it started, the second time, and that was the last seen of this man.

Deceased wore a suit of clothes which appeared comparatively new. Information of the finding of the body was this morning given by Mr. John Staw to Dr. Wilson, who will hold an inquest on the body this evening.

Since writing the above Mr. Owen Weese informed a representative of this paper that the deceased had been in his vicinity about three weeks ago. He had built a fire and lay on a bed of straw and bushes when Mr. Weese heard him speaking aloud. In answer to enquiries he stated that he was going to Napanee and had come from Belleville. He then appeared to speak rationally. He was requested to be very careful and only remained an hour after being spoken to about the fire, which he said he would smother. No further thought was bestowed on this matter, and now as the body has been found, by the description given Mr. Weese thinks the party found was the one who visited his place.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

William Fisher, for this offence was fined $1 and costs, and Philip Clark for a like violation of the law, and for carrying steel knuckles was fined $10 and costs.

ASSAULT.

George Caton was called on for assaulting Elizabeth Dawsberry but did not appear. He was fined $10 and costs or two months in gaol.

LUNACY.

Patrick Foley was committed as a lunatic.

CONSUMPTION.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as Affections of the Throat, Lungs, and all diseases of the pulmonary organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the cure of such diseases have been fully tested by the Medical Faculty. The BALSAM is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

"TEABERRY," the new powder for whitening the teeth, stimulating the mouth and purifying the breath; the brightest, neatest, cosiest little toilet gem extant. Ask your druggist for "Teaberry." Price 35 cents. d&w1y

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—At a meeting of the Mansion House Committee yesterday the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Clonfert stated that the distress in his diocese was aggravated. Instant relief is required. He deprecated the restrictions of the board works, under which a very few people would obtain loans. The Committee made grants for relief amounting to $18,400. It was intimated that $5,000 each would be granted in the five western counties. On inquiry from New York to the Committee for further information, they answered by wiring for the appeal telegraphed from Dublin on the 20th is insufficient, if so further details would be sent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The Revenue Collector at Atlanta, reports the seizure of a large illicit distillery in Gilman County on the 18th inst. 3,000 gallons of beer and mash was destroyed.

PETERSBURG, Va., Jan. 23.—Liberal contributions by German citizens for the sufferers in Upper Silesia, Germany, have been forwarded to the German Consul at Richmond.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Cardinal McClosky reiterates his denial of the truth of the report that any telegrams have passed between him and the Pope in relation to his countenancing Parnell.

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—The Herald's Augusta special says the fusionists are talking seriously of accepting the tendered hospitalities of the democratic city of Biddeford. Gov'r Smith is desirous of getting away from Augusta, where, he says, the Republican city administration will not protect the Legislature, and where legislators are daily subject to insults. The fusionists complain of the extortion of the boarding house keepers, and that they are dogged by cavesdroppers. A perfect lull here.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk southwesterly to northwesterly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy weather with snow flurries, slightly lower temprature.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.— Indications: For lower lakes, partly cloudy, light snow.

The Ontario Legislature.

THURSDAY, Jan. 22.

After routine a discussion sprang up in Committee on the Attorney-General's Bill to provide checks against holding unnecessary inquests and post mortem examinations. As might be expected, the medical members prominently, and three of them, Dr. Robertson, Dr. Robinson, and Dr. Cascaden, made maiden speeches. Strong exceptions were taken to one or two clauses of the Bill, and Mr. Mowat agreed to modify it in some respects to meet the views urged by the objectors.

Mr. Mowat's Bill respecting supplementary drainage by-laws, and Mr. Meredith's respecting mortgage sales of personal property, were read a second time.

Mr. Robinson's Bill respecting ditches and watercourses, and Mr. Waters' respecting provision for the destitute and insane, were allowed to stand over with a view to their being referred to a special Committee to be appointed on municipal Bills.

Mr. Waters withdrew his Bill requiring license commissioners to make certain returns to municipal Councils, in consideration of the announcement of the Provincial Secretary that the information would be given by the Government.

The Premier announced that the Provincial Treasurer expected to make his financial statement on Tuesday next.

THE MURDER CASE.—A despatch from the Gatineau district says that Brisebois, the man who murdered Hennessey, went afterwards to sell the latter's clothing to Indians, and failing in this, to get them to bury the body. They were afraid to take the clothing lest they should be charged with the murder, and the body still lies unburied.

One peculiar characteristic of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is its power of decomposing the food in the stomach, rendering digestion and assimilation more perfect. This partly accounts for the rapidity with which patients take on flesh while using the article.

"BURNS AND SCALDS."—If you are so misfortunate as to injure yourself in this way, we can suggest a remedy that will (we speak from experience) soon relieve you of all pain and quickly heal the wound; it costs but twenty-five cents, and is sold by all Druggists—ask for Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER.

—A Chicago paper says:—"The officials of the Grand Trunk may state that the troubles which had arisen between certain contractors and their employees, and which had caused a temporary suspension of work on the new line between Thornton and Valparaiso had been amicably settled, the disputed claims had been paid, and operations had been resumed."

—A petition has been presented to the Ontario Assembly, signed by the President and Secretary of the Toronto & Ottawa Railway, asking that as the time for commencing work on that road will expire during the present year the By-Laws of the various municipalities which have voted bonuses may be legalized, so as to remove all doubts as to the validity of the debentures to be issued therefor.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. TURKEYS—50c to $1.00.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

CALF SKINS.—Calf skins have advanced to 12c per lb. in Montreal.

FURS.—The following is the price quoted for furs in the Montreal market: Mink skins, prime dark large, $1 to $1.25; mink, prime dark small, 75c to $1; marten, prime, 75c to $1; beaver, prime dark, per lb, $1.50 to $1.75; bear, black prime large, $7 to $8; bear, black prime small, $2 to $4; red fox, prime, $1 to $1.25; skunk, prime dark large, 40c to 55c; fisher, prime, $5 to $6; otter, prime dark, $6 to $8; muskrat, 8c to 10c; raccoon, prime, 50c to 60c; lynx, prime, $1 to $1.50.

TIMBER RETURNS.—From a very reliable source it is learned that the cut of square timber on the Gatineau and Ottawa rivers and the tributaries will not exceed one and a quarter million feet. In the previous year the cut reached something like three millions of feet, which shows a very great decrease. There is, however, a proportionate increase in the cut of logs which are more marketable and command a better price. Many of the lumbermen think that next year square timber returns will be even smaller and that deals will eventually take the place of square timber in the Quebec market.

Craft loading in Chicago in December got 6c a bushel on corn to Buffalo. Later 6½c were obtained on corn, and a few days ago the rate advanced to 7c corn, and 7½c wheat, with the feeling among owners and agents (the capacity having been largely reduced by the charters, and there being an urgent demand), very firm and tending upward. The asking rate on Wednesday last was 7½c to Buffalo, and several of the vessels still unloaded were not on the market at all, the owners and agents anticipating still higher figures, as the grain glut becomes greater and unloaded vessels become more scarce.

TORONTO MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—Fall wheat, No. 1, $1.25 to $1.27; No. 2, $1.23 to $1.25; No. 3, $1.20 to $1 22 Spring—No. 1, $1.23 to $1.25; No. 2, $1.22 to $1.24; No. 3, $1.18 to $1.20. FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 21.

After routine the Attorney-General moved the third reading of his Bill for the relief of co-operative associations, which was carried amidst cheers, being the first Bill of the session passed through all its stages.

Dr. Baxter moved for and obtained an order of the House for a return containing information concerning the number and price of authorized text-books for use in public Schools.

Mr. Crooks in assenting to the motion availed himself of the opportunity to explain what the present policy of the Education Department is with respect to copyrights, and why it was adopted in preference to the one formerly in force. He traced the history of the school-book copyright question from the time when the late Council of Public Instruction adopted the Irish National Readers, referred to the inferior class of text-books in use a few years ago, and gave at length the considertions which forced him to the conclusion that the double object of good and cheap books could best be secured by leaving the copyrights in the hands of publishers, and fixing the cost of the individual book to the consumer.

Mr. Creighton moved the second reading of his Bill to amend the License Act so as to require the License Commissioners by the end of June in each year to furnish the Council of each municipality with a printed statement in detail of the receipts and expenditure on account of the license fund.

Mr. Hardy explained that steps had been taken by the Government to have this information supplied to the municipalities, and as this rendered the measure unnecessary, he thought the mover should withdraw it. This, Mr. Creighton refused to do, but Mr. Waters, who had a Bill of similar import, stated his willingness to withdraw his after the Provincial Secretary's explanation and announcement.

A long and somewhat irregular discussion ensued, in the course of which the merits of the License Act were canvassed thoroughly. The new members who made maiden speeches were McLaughlin, Badgerow, Awrey, Lees, Neelon, and Mack.

The motion for the second reading was voted down by a majority of 50 to 26, after which the House adjourned.

Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Council.

BRIDGEWATER, 22nd Dec. 1879.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

PRESENT.—the Reeve, Messrs. Breeze, Burns and Kells.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A statement received from the Clerk of the Hay Scale was handed in, showing there was a balance of $17.60 on the 30th September last to hand into the Treasurer which was ordered to be received and an account of $10 for repairing scale was ordered to be paid.

A By-law to repeal By-law 76 to borrow money on non-resident land to meet the municipal indebtedness to the County was read three times, numbered 77 and passed, other arrangements having been made with the County Council.

The Reeve read the Returning Officer's report that the result of Poll for passing a By-law to grant $12,000 bonus to the Toronto and Ottawa R. R. was in favor of it being passed, the By-law was read a third time, passed and numbered 78.

On motion the following accounts were ordered to be paid,

J. Tuttle sundry goods $1.51; Robertson iron work 75c; F. Empey satchel for Collector $5 00.

James McNamara applied for time to pay his back takes, when it was moved by Mr. Breeze, seconded by Mr. Burns, that he give a due bill for the amount payable in twelve months.—Carried.

Mr. McIlroy came in.

On motion widow Fortaine's taxes were remitted.

On motion the following amounts collecsed for the different School Sections were ordered to be paid:—

S. S. No. 1, $600; No. 2, $149.23; No. 3, $240.39; No. 4, $255; No. 5, $176; No. 6, $184.88; No. 7, $150.

Council adjourned one hour and resumed all the members present.

A By-law to grant road allowance between lot 7 in 3rd and lot 7 in 4th con. to Alex. Lapam in lieu of a road running through his lot was read and passed and numbered 79.

The Road Commissioner presented his report that he had examined the road to Thos. Hawking place and found F. Des'Islets fence on road allowance and by removing it the hill could be fixed and a good road made for $25; ordered to be received.

On motion the $25 granted to make sidewalks in Queensboro was increased to $30.

On motion the following accounts were ordered to be paid W. Leslie (salary) $32; J. Tuttle (Reeve) $20; P. McIlroy $26; J. Burns $22; J. D. Breeze $25; R. Kells $24 for services as Councilmen; R. Barry $26; J. Hurlstone $26 for services as Assessors. L. Tait (Auditor) $4. E. James for salary, stationery, postage, messages, &c., $141.47.

Taking vote for bonus for T. & O. R. R.

Repair of sidewalk near Bridgewater House 50 cents.

On motion $10 was granted to Mrs. Plew for support of Alexis Anger, a helpless old man.

Moved by Mr. Burns seconded by Mr. Kells that John Hailstone receive the sum of $19.36 in full of all demands for salary as Collector to date. Carried.

On motion Council adjourned sine die.

Clerk,

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

DR. GILES—I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

NOTICE.

THE Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of the Grand Junction Railway Company, will be held at the Company's Offices, Pinnacle Street, in the City of Belleville, on TUESDAY, the third day of February next, at two o'clock in the afternoon. General business and a reduction of the number of directors, and the ratification of the mortgages given will be considered.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

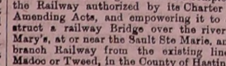

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

December 19th, 1878. Yours truly, J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

LAME BACK. WEAK BACK.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

THE PASTOR'S RESIGNATION.

BY I. EDGAR JONES.

The aged pastor bowed his head within the altar's railing;
His hands were tremulous with age, his sight and hearing failing;
Fond faith and trust were striving hard to fight away his fears,
But yet his heart was sore and sad and sought relief in ears.

For forty years his tongue proclaimed to all salvation's story.
For forty years to all who came he offered hope and glory.
For forty years the bell that echoed now from out the steeple
Proclaimed that here his warning voice had tidings for his people.

But now the leaders of the church—an influential clan,
Had called on him to yield his place to hold a younger man;
His energies had long been spent, 'twas meet he should retire
That they might call a man of mark endowed with youthful fire.

With quavering voice he gave response to friends who offered greeting,
And listened in an absent way to members in the meeting—
Discoursing in familiar tones of changes they were making—
And asking him to make remarks, although his heart was breaking.

But yet he spoke—as oft before—his voice aglow with feeling,
While down his faded, furrowed face slow tears were softly stealing,
A holy hush prevading all, as though an angel spell
Had rested on them as he rose to bid his flock farewell.

He spoke of memories sad and sweet, of dim and distant days,
Of forty years of constant toil, of pain and prayer and praise—
Of children—christened by his hand who stood before him still,
While some reposed beneath the flowers upon the distant hill.

And here his voice sank sad and low—for there his child and wife
Were laid when death had left him lone to live his laboring life—
Far more were they he once had known, who 'neath the willows slept,
Than they who sat before him now, and o'er their memories wept.

For all he prayed as fathers plead for children whom they love,
That all might once again be joined in God's abode above;
And then, in voice replete with tones of love and fond caressing,
He raised his trembling hand aloft and gave to all his blessing.

The saddened people silent sat as he resumed his chair,
While rays of sunshine softly fell and played upon his hair,
And rested there with light caress, as though a golden chain,
By which an angel message sought and soothed him in his pain.

The organ broke the silence then with sweetly solemn roll,
That wailed in waves of silver song across the saddened soul,
With "Rock of Ages" old, yet new—majestic, grand, and strong—
Well may the angel choir above, its quivering notes prolong.

The people rose to be dismissed; their pastor lingered still,
And smiling looked upon the graves that crowned the distant hill;
But when they sought with gentle touch to wake the musing mind,
They found that death had called him hence; their pastor had resigned.

Sunday Reading.

Triumph of Christianity.

Where are the religions of Egypt, Babylon, and Tyre? They are dead; they are buried in sombre and profound sepulchres. It is seldom that a lonely student spells out painfully the inscription upon the walls of their funeral yaults. Where is the bright and romantic religion of Greece and Rome? This also is dead, the sweetest poetry could only embalm it; we gaze upon the fair features but there is no voice nor any to answer us—"'Tis Greece, but living Greece no more." And if the religions of the East live on, they are bed-ridden, blind, paralyzed, and imbecile, and only serve to emphasize the difference between senility and eternal youth. But where is the religion of Judea? It lives, transmuted and exalted above its former self; its narrow intolerance has been shaken off, like the husk of a chrysalis from the winged and lovely creature whose flight is to be henceforth as unfettered as the winds.

Nothing less than an indisputable resurrection has to be explained in the case of Jesus The hopes, the convictions of God's ancient people, and whatever made Israel dwell alone among the nations, all this was buried in the grave dug for the nation by the steel of Rome But the stone is removed, and the creed is abroad in the world again, ten times more beautiful and bright, 'raised a spiritual body,' in the faith of Jesus, the Divine creed which fills the world to-day. And the skeptic's only explanation of this great fact is droller than a farce —We ask him to account for a perfect originality which perfectly conforms itself to intricate and multiform predictions; we invite him to solve the problem of a human character which is at once simple, kindly, blameless, and prodigious in its assumptions, and his answer is like a poor guess at a bad conundrum, that, herhaps, the five porches at Bethesda were suggested by the five books of Moses, which could not heal the impotence of man; that perhaps he had lain their eight-and-thirty years because that was the space for which Israel was turned back into the wilderness upon refusing to invade Canaan; that perhaps when the crowds were fed there were left seven baskets full of fragments to typify the seven deacons, or twelve to symbolize the twelve apostles.

And he thinks that by a process so idiotic, Judaism was uplifted into Christianity, and the character of Jesus was wrought out. That thus was generated this power to meet the demand of new races, times and principles, this firmness amid ten thousand shocks, this iron hand to grasp the reins of human progress, and roll in the dust whoever has disputed for eighteen centuries its right to be the charioteer, all embodied in the simple story of one inhabitant of Nazareth.

Well, then, we may at least congratulate him upon his courage when he taunts the Christian with credulity, for there is no miracle in the inspired volume so contrary to experience or so wildly incredible as this.—Donnellan Lectures.

The man who allows a doubt to come between him and his honesty has taken the first step towards evil.

Our Friends.

The greater number of a person's friends have usually the same abiding place as themselves. Our own we encounter frequently – some, indeed, daily. Together we share the summer day's ramble, and mingle in the same winter evening's pleasures. At seasons of either rejoicing or sorrow, festivity or mourning, we are assured of the sympathetic pressure of each other's hands.

What a gathering of friends do we behold at the joyous celebrations of birth-days and marriages, all bearing some little token of remembrance upon which the eye may fall when the donor will perhaps, be far away!

And, ah! sometimes it is a sadder occasion whereupon we assemble, and tears have taken the place of smiles, and the wail of lamentation is heard at the very home where, at our last meeting, echoed the ripples of glad laughter; for one is about to be borne from that home, and the only tribute we then can offer is the white wreath or the floral cross, which, with a tearful and lowly-breathed "Farewell!" we sorrowfully lay down.

Other friends too, must be recorded—far distant ones, separated from us by "mount and stream, and sea"—our earliest and best beloved, endeared to us by the ties of home and country; and perhaps still dearer are they by the knowledge that our paths are now so widely sundered.

But oh! in life's great desert, how sweet it is to look backward to that little, secluded spot,—our childhood's home! Though I fear the ranks of that once happy band are now sadly thinned. Some have wandered away to far-off homes; other's in "Gods Acre" are sleeping their last sleep, and few now remain in that dear old place, but not one has been forgotten.

"Themselves may fade, but not their memory.

There are also unknown friends. Did you, dear reader, ever possess one? For I have found a few, though they were never seen, neither is it probable they ever will be. Ofttimes I have pictured to myself their lineaments, which if not lovely are pleasing, and the tones of their voices fall sweetly on the ear; and from more than one have received letters, breathing kind sentiments — some signed by a poetic nom de plume, and then I guess the writer to be youthful, and, of a certainty, pretty also.

But if in tangible form we never meet, surely 'tis possible for congenial minds to recognize and esteem one another. Take my thanks, then each dear unknown friend; in some other world I may one day greet you—and there

"Thy spirit yet may speak to mine."

Evangelists.

Zion's Herald wishes that the singleness of purpose which gives to "Evangelists" their power, might become characteristic of the regular ministry:—Can any one doubt, if the regular ministry would thus subordinate everything, for the time, to the awakening of the portions of the community it can reach; if every object were laid aside but this one overwhelming interest of the spiritual salvation of the people; if sermons, if pastoral visiting, if addresses in Sunday-school and in social meetings were devoted to this theme; if extra services, even if few at first attended, were added to the regular hours of worship; if the church could be persuaded, for a season, to give up all other social gatherings, as one would appoint a holy fast unto the Lord, and a company of earnest disciples could be induced to unite with the pastor in unremitting prayer for the presence and blessing of the Holy Spirit,—if this could be secured, can any one doubt that an equal reviving to the Church and vicinity would attend the use of the established means of grace, as could be secured by the extraordinary services of an unofficial laborer? Any one can see how much more permanent and valuable a revival would prove under these circumstances. There is a growing, perhaps unfounded, feeling in some quarters that this single-minded earnestness is lacking in the ministry, and that the moral power of their preaching is correspondingly weakened. It may be that the lack is in the churches. Even our divine Lord did but little in some places on account of their unbelief. But every pastor, bearing so solemn a commission as he does, and standing under such awful vows as he has taken upon himself, may well ask, in view of the coming report upon his stewardship. Can I say of my work as did Paul of his, "This one thing I do?"

A Good Experience.

God knows me better than I know myself. He knows my gifts and powers, my failings and my weaknesses, what I can do and not do. So I desire to be led; to follow Him, and I am quite sure that He has thus enabled me to do a great deal more in ways which seem to me almost a waste in life, in advancing His kingdom, than I could have done in any other way. I am sure of that. Intellectually I am weak; in scholarship, nothing; in a thousand things a baby. He knows this, and so He has led me, and greatly blessed me, who am nobody, to be of some use to my Church and fellow-men. How kind, how good, how compassionate art thou, O God! O my Father, keep me, humble! Help me to have respect toward my fellow-men, to recognize these several gifts as from Thee. Deliver me from the diabolical sins of malice, envy, or jealousy, and give me hearty joy in my brother's good, in his work, in his gifts and talents, and may I be truly glad in his superiority to myself, if God be glorified. Root out all weak vanity, all devilish pride, all that is abhorrent to the mind of Christ. God hears my prayer. Grant me the wondrous joy of humility, which is seeing Thee as all in all.—Dr. Norman McLeod's Diary.

The Indwelling Holy Spirit.

Here is the Holy of Holies of the Christian faith—the indwelling of the Holy Ghost. The evil is mighty in the world, but a mightier Spirit than the evil is in the world—is in us. The strong man armed has kept the house, but the stronger has come, and the house is being cleared and cleansed for His use. This is no devil's domain in which we are left to wander, to struggle and to die. It is the temple of the Highest in which we are set to minister, the temple which He is filling with his presence, and from which He will expel all evil through eternity. Let a man be baptized with a spirit of lofty devotion to a noble cause, let him throw his soul into it, and brace his energies to win for it the victory, and he becomes proof against a thousand temptations which once made him an easy prey. Let a man be fired with a noble passion, and the baser pleasures lose all their tempting power. Lusts that yesterday would have caught him by the garment and held him without effort, to-day, without effort, he easily eludes. It is a faint hint to us of how those who walk and work in the spirit find even this earth to be holy ground. Baptized thus with the Holy Ghost, sin becomes to them as nauseous, as hateful, as the scene of an orgy to a satiated appetite, when the calm clear morning light shines down. The toys of the world, its wine cup, its kiss, will lose their last lingering touch of beauty and of sweetness; the heart, delivered from evil, will remain cold and dead to them while eternity endures.—Christian World.

None are so fond of secrets as those who do not mean to keep them; such persons covet secrets as a spendthrift does money, for the purpose of circulation.

Mistakes.

Life's records are the enumeration of Life's mistakes. The graves of past years contain the corpses we place in tombs hewed with our own hands. We perceived too late how we permitted treasures to slip from careless arms; how lips never turned the sweet caress of love. How beautiful they were and how blind we were. All this we felt and acknowledged when we awoke to the realization of loss, and the discovery of how we disowned and lived apart by our folly, from pure love we have slain. The retrospection of the past is sure to convey to all thoughtful souls the sad mistakes humanity is constantly making. At the two roads that never cross each other, but run side by side, when one stands perplexed which to follow, the chances are against the right selection. Experience is not learned by prospective vistas, if it were so, the dilemma of selection would never occur, regret and anguish be avoided. The unknown future is veiled, and consequently mankind is constantly plunging into an invisible pitfall, or falling over unseen precipices. The mountain is beheld, whilst the vale below is forgotten God conceals the coming shadows and hides the coming danger. Human strength is unable to avert earth's disasters. God's map is drawn with a celestial pen, and is beyond our knowledge.

Failures are life's mistakes. Plans laid adroitly and skilfully bring forth only disappointment. Nothing saves from mistakes but laying the corner stone under the great Master Builder's divine authority. We call pure gems shams, and genuine coin counterfeit; we mourn over providences that afterward prove blessings. Flowers bloom with a worm concealed among the leaves; we take up the rough stone and know not it contains gold ore. The want of penetration coupled with ignorance forces the commital of irreparable, fatal mistakes. Fraility sows the seed to reap the tears. When is counted the beads of years we perceive just where one has been dropped, one crushed; the circlet which we might have kept unbroken. Life's mistakes appear to us with terrible regret and remorse. There are multitudes who would give all they possess if they had never made a great mistake. How often has love's young dream been dispelled by a blunder! How much of grief and sorrow are the sequels of sad mistakes. A little care and caution, a small reserve of unselfishness, would have prevented entrance into the wild woods and untrod paths. Memory's volume is filled with chapters of mistakes—of wounds never healed. We lose prizes by waiting for some more valuable. Many crosses we carry, when we might have worn crowns. We cannot close our eyes against mistakes, because they are our daily rebukes and reproaches. The sorrow and misery that follow them are the deadly draughts we are compelled to lift to unwilling lips. The cool pool of Siloam is not found by earth's dusty highway; it exists only in the land of promise. Fettered by her shackles of sin, it would not be humanity's lot if no mistakes were ever committed.

"We've balm for our deep griefs and heartaches
But will somebody wiser than we Tell us what to do with mistakes?"

True Politeness.

When Sir Philip Sidney was wounded on the field of battle, overcome by parching thirst, he cried for water. A cooling draught, obtained with much difficulty, was offered him by a faithful attendant. When about to drink the nobleman noticed a common soldier by his side, who bleeding from a mortal thrust, eyed the water with a piteous longing, "Sir Philip Sydney paused, and passing the canteen to his humble comrade, said: "Take it, my poor fellow; you need it more than I."

This was true politeness.

To offer a lady a seat, to pick up a fallen glove, to raise the hat in acknowledgement of a bow—all this is etiquette. But all the etiquette, published in all the books ever written, will not make a mean, selfish man a gentleman, or teach a low, sordid creature, true politeness.

Politeness I define as self-abnegation—in other words, forgetfulness of self, in the desire to please or serve others.

I love the old days of chivalry—the days of troubadore and minstrel—for the noble courtesy, shining like a crown of stars above the darkness of those troubled times, when the cavalier laid down his life in the cause of virtue—when the glory of the strong was to protect the weak.

Cruelty is the direct opposite of courtesy, for in the language of Wordswort the cardinal law of politeness is:

"Never to blend our pleasures or our pride
With sorrow to the meanest thing that lives."

Noble birth or riches, purple and fine linen, genius and grand accomplishments, are not the requisites which go to the making of nature's master-piece—a gentleman. In the words of Tennyson:

"Howe'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good,
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

"'Tis noble to be good," and to be good is to be truly polite.

To be silent, when to speak would be uncharitable; for the sake of another, to deny oneself a pleasure; to regard with respect even the lowest of our fellow creatures—in all this politeness consists, and he is a true gentleman who is a true Christian.

Rejoice in the Weather.

Always rejoice in the weather. If it rains consider how the rain fills up the springs and the rivers, and makes water power for the manufactories and work and wages for those employed in them; and how much an ample supply of water adds to the comfort of all.

If it is warm in mid winter bear in mind how much suffering it saves to those who have little or no fuel.

If it is cold, be grateful for the bracing to your nerves and the sharpening of your faculties which are derived from a clear air and low temperature.

Do not grumble about the weather. A chronic fault-finder about anything makes himself a bore and a nuisance.

Rejoice in the weather—even in "the beautiful snow," though you are sick of the controversy relative to its authorship.

Be glad of the weather, whatever it is. God orders it, and He ordereth all things aright.

Gems of Thought.

He who talks but little, may be suspected of knowing more than he says.

There are men whose lives are spent in willing one thing and desiring the opposite.

A man thinks of heaven as he thinks of home, a place where he believes he can go to when all others places are closed to him.

The more honesty a man has the less he affects the honesty of a saint; the affectation of sanctity is a blotch on the face of piety.

The scholar, without good breeding, is a pedant; the philosopher, a cynic; the soldier, a brute; and every man disagreeable.

If thou would find much favor and peace with God and man, be very low in thine own eyes. Forgive thyself little and others much.

Everything that looks to the future elevates human nature; for never is life so low or so little as when occupied with the present.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, JANY. 24.

Wasting Time.

Some of our exchanges, and not all of the Conservative side in politics, are protesting against the unnecessary waste of time which is taking place in the Ontario Legislature. As the Kingston News points out, two weeks of the session have already passed without an evening sitting, and only on one occasion has the session lasted for four hours, the average length of time occupied by the House each day being but one hour and eighteen minutes. One effect of this lack of industry is thus shown by the Toronto correspondent of the Peterborough Review, who writes as follows under date of the 16th inst. :

" Here have our worthy Provincial rulers been in session nearly ten days, and what have they done? This morning the various committees met, and performed the arduous duty of appointing their chairmen. After a while they will, no doubt, have to make up for the time they are now losing by 'rushing' things, but why should this be thus? Why should not the Public Accounts Committee at least have been at work all this week instead of its members kicking their heels in the smoking room for want of something better to do, and then at a future stage of the session have to neglect this or some other equally important committee. The amount of it is a little more common sense and a little less redtapeism at the beginning of the session is sadly wanted to enable our representatives to properly perform their duties within a reasonable time. For instance, we can see no good reason why the standing committees might not all be got to work immediately upon the assembling of the Legislature, instead of, as now, its taking a week or ten days to get them organized. Were this done, and were all private bills printed and sent direct to the committees instead of going through the present redtape process, the work of the session would be much more evenly distributed, and much better performed than at present."

When it is further considered that the time for the meetings of the Public Accounts Committee is so limited that, were daily sittings of that body to be held during the session of the Legislature, they could not possibly thoroughly examine into the various items of expenditure, the necessity for greater industry on the part of our representative as apparent; and as the Government is responsible for the conduct of the business of the House, it is to them that the people will look for such a change as is evidently necessary. It is quite apparent that unless greater promptness shall characterize the actions of the Legislature hereafter—unless the highly undesirable process of " rushing " measures through or the even more convenient one of throwing bills out, regardless of their urgency, be adopted—the session must last until some time after the Dominion Parliament has met, which is an event very much to be deprecated, for reasons which we have repeatedly given, and which are so strong that even the Globe approves of them.

These grounds of complaint can be very easily removed by calling the Legislature together at an earlier date and by the Government having their measures prepared beforehand. It is to be hoped that Mr. Mowat will attend to the suggestions which have been offered to him on these points.

STORMONT.—The Stormont election for the Local Legislature on the 23rd resulted in the return of Mr. Kerr, Opposition, by 108 majority, which is a considerable increase over the majority which he had in June last.

A WARNING TO VOLUNTEERS. — The Hamilton Times says: " Tuesday in this Military Division, a civilian, who had recently left the Militia Service, was fined $50 for retaining Government clothing after having been requested by his commanding officer to give up. Lt.-Col. Villiers, Brigade Major for this district, prosecuted."

An awkward fellow planted his foot square upon a lady's train on Winter street the other day. "Oh you great train wrecker!" said the lady angrily. "Beg your pardon, street sweeper!" was the quick reply.

WEST HASTINGS ELECTION.

THE NOMINATION.

CONTINUED.

At the opening of the proceedings at two o'clock, the hall was crowded to its utmost capacity—the horny-handed sons of toil, the merchant, the manufacturer, and the general city representative of ordinary occupation, being present.

Mr. Robertson, on entering the hall, was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

The Returning Officer then announced that the hour for nominations had closed, and then read the list of nominations, seventeen in number. He also announced that a poll had been demanded by Mr. Robertson, and named the places at which the polling would take place. He also announced that the proclamation as printed would tell where the elections would be held. He had also been asked to officiate as Chairman, to which he responded, and then called on

Mr. ROBERTSON, who was enthusiastically received on coming forward. He said he regretted the present contest, for he had been returned by a handsome majority. This had been overruled, as some over-zealous friends of his had acted imprudently. He would assure those present he had done nothing to void the election. (Cheers.) When the Judges thought the election should be set aside, he considered Mr. Mowat's Act was strained by the Judges to unseat him. Up to a short time since he had considered Mr. Sills would not come forward—a sensible conclusion on his part. (Cheers.) Mr. Holden had acted for personal reasons in regard to the protest, for Mr. Holden had said it was on account of the action of his friends who attacked the transparency, that this contest had been brought about. Mr. Holden or some of the strong men of the party, should have come forward. (Cheers.) Mr. Flint said he declined a nomination on account of personal friendship. Mr. Sills had first declined, but through pressure he had come forward to contest this seat. There was nothing to be gained by opposition to him, as he had an interest at stake in this constituency, and if elected he would do the best he could to further its interests. Dr. Hope had the patronage of the Government. Mr. Holden had a portion of it, and Mr. Sills, if he (the speaker) was elected, would not have any patronage to bestow. Dominion works would be established in this riding, and he, if elected, would have something to say regarding them. The Murray and Trent Valley Canals, as well as public buildings here were needed, and he had been informed that such buildings should be erected here in the near future. Mr. Brown by his acts to-day showed he had not the confidence of the Dominion Cabinet or the patronage it would bestow. Because Mr. Sills resides in Sidney it must not be thought that he should get a majority in that township. He had been to a tea meeting in that township last night and there was no one therein favor of Mr. Sills. (Loud cheers). Mr. Sills could not expect to win this election but hoped to gain prestige by the work he would perform in this contest. Mr. Sills was at a tea meeting last night and the reception shown him could not have been flattering as he, after stating that he came to hear Mr. Wilmot speak, should have concluded that he had heard enough of him in the last contest for the Reeve-ship of Sidney to last him for twelve months. Alluding to the question of Parliament buildings, if elected, he would watch the course of the Government to prevent extravagance. He would not offer factious opposition to the Government though it was well known that he was a Conservative. He asked the opportunity of being their representative and hoped they would not regret their choice. He did not think the distribution of money did affected a half dozen votes in the last election. True, his friends acted indiscreetly; true, whiskey was used in Coleman Ward, and he had partaken of some from a private flask, but he had no knowledge of liquor being used, nor was it used at his request. Sixty four charges made against them for personation, bribery, &c., and only two had been proved, viz. those of Messrs. Johnston and Sarsfield. No personal charges had been brought home to him, and nothing truthful had been alleged against him in the last campaign. Nothing personally was to be gained by going to Parliament, but if the people wished him to represent them they could elect him. If they wished him as their member, he would now say that he would not spend a dollar in this contest, and he had not spent a single dollar improperly in the last. He asked his friends not to do anything to violate the law. There was no necessity for it, and he would carry the election. (Loud cheers.) He was satisfied there would be no difficulty in carrying the election, there was only the question of majority. (Cheers). He urged the endorsation of his course, and averred that he had not violated the law nor would he in the future. He concluded, amid loud applause, in asking a larger majority than he had receive before.

Mr. SILLS was received with applause, which was interrupted by hisses bestowed by one of his hearers who was brought to order by the chairman.

Mr. SILLS said he had as good a right to represent this constituency as any one else. He had urged the construction of the Murray and Trent Valley Canals and he considered it strange that the Dominion Ministers had come here a day or two before the elections, He was a farmer, his business was work, he had the charge of a business in Sidney which had resulted as all knew, and he had a property as large as Mr. Robertson's. He knew what labor was, he had a farm, grist mill, lumber mill and carding mill and there was no work about these but what he could do. His defeat in Sidney he did not consider as such.

A voice—In your mind.

The speaker continued. He knew the interests of the farmer and mechanic and no one knew them better than he. If elected he would do nothing but what would advance the interests of the people and he defied anybody to point to any act of his in the Council of Sidney that was detrimental to the interests of the township.

A Voice—How about the 6th con. road in Sidney?

Mr. SILLS said that road had been ordered to be opened by the Council of 1876. He had gone to the church last night, not as a politician but to help the church. (Cheers and hisses.) He had not been brought up with a cane, but as a working man; he and Mr. Robertson did not feel such sores as these. If elected he would serve his constituents to the best of his ability, and if it was in his power to keep the expenditure within proper limits he would do so. He hoped when the contest was over all throughout the riding would be pleased with a proper good feeling toward one another. (Cheers and hisses.)

Mr. E. B. FRALECK was received with a continuous round of cheers. He declined a nomination yet was thankful for the reception accorded him, and would always act in the future as he had in the past. In referring to the remark made by Mr. Sills relating to lawyers he would say that there were lawyers who were the sons of farmers, and at the same time it might be said that Mr. Sills, a miller, would be willing to follow a government which was composed of five lawyers. Why was it that Mr. Sills, a miller, though he asked for the support of the working men of Belleville, was one who put up the price of wheat 50c per bushel? (Loud applause.) Mr. Sills knew no one here, as he said, but Mr. Robertson knew all alike. He himself was a lawyer and farmer as well. Because the Mowat Government had a majority, there was no reason why there should not be a good strong opposition. The course of the Ministry was to expend money lavishly; even now it was proposed by them to expend $2,500,000 on Parliament buildings which doubtless in the end would be far exceeded. Instead of spending money lavishly, some of it should be spent in opening up our rich iron districts. The expenditure on the school management of this country had been grossly extravagant. He showed the inactivity of the present Government by reading an exhibit in which the present Parliament was shown to have sat 23 hours in two weeks at an expense of $1,100 an hour. We are too much governed, for the present Government of Ontario, increase their numbers and enlarge the indemnities of the members. The machinery of the Government is too large and it costs too much to own it. Why did not Mr. Holden oppose Mr. Robertson?

A voice—Because he could not beat him.

Mr. FRALECK continued,—Mr. Holden as representing the party of purity had as well being a lawyer made a large bill of costs in the last case, but would he give the amount got by him, $500 or $600, to the support of Mr. Sills. He presented a list of over 30 Grits who had been elected but who had been unseated and on reading them and the quotations from the evidence of the victims were received with loud laughter. The names of some of those (Grits) unseated, had been elected as would also Mr. Robertson and when they, the Grits, were not successful Mr. Mowat gave them a fat office. He then referred to the abuses caused by the present License Act and averred that the present system was far more costly now than before and besides most Inspectors were now Grits. There was also dissatisfaction expressed in the management of the Inspectorship of Schools. The cost of the management of the present School system was extravagant. The Sheriff was also directed that newspapers supporting the Government should receive the patronage of the country. If the ratepayers considered Mr. Sills should be supported they would do so but if Mr. Robertson should be accorded their support he would not offer a factious opposition and would well represent the constituency. He appealed to all to unite in the support of one whom West Hastings delights to honor. Mr. Fraleck during his later remarks was loudly applauded and received an ovation on retiring.

Mr. R. C. CLUTE claimed the right to discuss public questions, and speak of them in a manner becoming a free people. He was a personal friend of Mr. Robertson's, but would oppose him. He ventured to say that Mr. Sills had done as much for this riding as Mr. Robertson had. He cited an Act of the Mowat Government wherein he averred that unless more than one half of the majority had been corruptly obtained the election could be set aside, but the Judges in the case had decided that Mr. Robertson's agents had been guilty of improper acts, which resulted in an improper verdict of the people. He did not accuse Mr. Robertson of any personal knowledge of improper or corrupt acts, for Mr. Robertson had stated to the contrary. He had nothing to say against Mr. Robertson, but Mr. Sills was capable of forming a judgment on a question, and acting accordingly. He concluded by asking the support of the people for Mr. Sills. (Applause.)

Deafening applause greeted Mr. J. W. JOHNSON, who, on coming forward, said Mr. Clute had failed to answer Mr. Fraleck's arguments. (Loud cheers.) The National Policy had nothing to do with this election—local issues would be decided. But this was the first time that a man came forward in an audience where he was and boasted of his wealth. It had been contended by Mr. Kerr, the able advocate of Mr. Holden, that it was only necessary to prove the corruption of one vote to void the election. If the other lights of the Grit party thought they could get to Parliament they would not have set up Mr. Sills. The meanest kind of inuendoes were thrown out by Mr. Clute, but we know Mr. Robertson's character and acts we could rely on. Mr. Mowat's friends in Toronto had tried to gain the seat for him in that city on the strength of placards stating Parliament buildings would be erected there were he the successful candidate. If Mr. Robertson's friends were guilty of improper acts, so also were the acts of Mr. Mowat's friends. Until the acts of Madiver, Walker and Lafamme, the Re form Minister of Justice, were condoned, it was unjust to accuse the Conservative party of being corrupt. Mr. Robertson was returned at the last election, and he would be again elected. (Loud cheers). True, the Opposition at Toronto was weak, (Laughter) but how was the Government at Ottawa? (Tumultuous cheering.) Since Mr. Mowat came into power every department in the public service had largely increased its expenditure. The salaries of members of the Government had been increased, the indemnity of members had been enlarged, and all this had been done since the time of Sandfield Macdonald. Mr. Mowat was responsible for the salary grab, inasmuch as such a motion could not have passed without the sanction of the Government. The grievance of tax exemptions after long pressure by the Opposition had at last been embodied in the message to the house. Again protection was required for the brakesman and the Government now took notice of it on account of the persistence of Thos. Wills, Esq., ex-M. P. P. for West Hastings, and the agitation of the Mail. The best commission on agriculture could be formed by the presence of two farmers in the Cabinet, and if information was wanted on Agriculture why should not the Dominion Grange be applied to instead of nominating Hon. David Mills and Mr. Dymond, late of the Globe. He believing Mr. Robertson would be elected (loud cheers) and that those who did not favor persecution would return Mr. Robertson at the head of the poll. (Immense Cheering.)

Mr. THOS. HOLDEN came forward amid applause. He averred he would not have spoken on the protest if others had not, but Mr. Robertson would have to pay the costs. He had served the papers in the case himself and tried to save expense to the respondent. A protest had been made against Mr. Brown, but that had been dropped; in his case, however, he and his friends carried it through and were successful in their efforts. He had no feeling either in regard to the election or the protest, and he had the support of the friends in the contest, as he was too poor to put up the necessary $1,000. He alluded to the judgment of Judge Galt, as delivered in the West Hastings case, and afterwards went to say that Mr. Sills did not brag of his wealth.

Voices—He did.

Mr. HOLDEN—Well he earned it. (Cheers.) He went on to say that Mr. Robertson was entitled to credit for his energy in putting up buildings, and having a large interest in the riding. Why did he (the speaker) not run, it had been asked. He did not wish to be a candidate though he might have been; but for Mr. Sills he would say that it was through the exertions of people from parts of the riding other than Belleville that Mr. Sills was nominated. He thanked his Reform and Conservative friends for the support they gave him last June.

A Voice—Why don't you stand?

Mr. HOLDEN—I'm even with those chaps who opposed me, and I have left this constituency as I found it. He considered that he had done well and was satisfied with the actions of the Reform party and the principles they advocated. He would never be found a trimmer or a turncoat and would ever remember the exertions of the Reform party on the 5th of June last, and if the same efforts were used Mr. Sills would be elected. Conservatives were always at work but Reformers would not do their duty. Mr. Robertson and himself were warm personal friends during the last contest. Reformers were now in power in Toronto and if there were another contest they would be in power at Ottawa.

During Mr. Holden's remarks he was frequently interrupted and at the close was applauded by his friends.

Cheers for the Chairman, the candidates and the Queen terminated the proceedings, when the audience, a large majority of which was in favor of Mr. Robertson, dispersed.

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount to ked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay?

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is ajusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of different development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

CONSUMPTION.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as Affections of the Throat, Lungs, and all diseases of the pulmonary organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the cure of such diseases have been fully tested by the Medical Faculty. The BALSAM is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

Address and Presentation.

The officials and employees of the G. T. R. at this station, on the eve of the departure of Mr. K. Blackwell, Mechanical Superintendent of the works at this depot, presented him last night with a silvery token of their esteem and appreciation. The presentation consisted of an elegant silver set and pitcher, which for neatness and beauty could not be readily surpassed.

Mr. Blackwell has for a long period filled his office at this place with great satisfaction to the company, and his promotion to the post he now occupies is a deserved one. He now takes the position of Mechanical Superintendent of that division of the G. T. R. lying between Detroit and Chicago and he carries with him the well wishes of the company's officials here.

The addresses and presentation were made at Mr. Blackwell's residence, the chair being occupied by Mr John Donaldson, one of the oldest engineers of this division, he having been in the Company's service for 25 years. The other departments were represented by Mr. Gunn, the Station Agent, Mr. Reid, the Locomotive Foreman, and Mr. Marshall of the Engineering Department, all of whom delivered short and appropriate, speeches as did also Messrs. Clark, Ridley and Taylor.

Belleville, January, 1880.

To K. BLACKWELL, ESQ.

DEAR SIR:—We, your late fellow workmen of the Grand Trunk Railway, having heard with feelings of deep and heartfelt regret of your removal from the position of Assistant Mechanical Superintendent of the Central Division of the Road, desire to express our feelings of sorrow and regret at the severance of the tie between you and us. Still, we are happy to learn you are about to fill a higher and more responsible position, and at the same time deem it a fit and proper opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the manner in which you have filled the position, creditably to yourself and satisfactorily to those under your jurisdiction.

We know that conventional terms of regret can but little express our sentiments in regard to you, but we wish you to believe that our sincere and best wishes for your future welfare will follow you wherever you may be, and that our greatest satisfaction will be to hear of your happiness and prosperity.

We beg your acceptance of the accompanying Silver Set, as a token of our esteem and friendship.

Signed on behalf of the Subscribers,

W. T. REID,
D. GUNN,
J. LORANGER,
J. DONALDSON,
T. MCNABB,
W. BUCKLEY,
Committee.

The presentation consisted of a hall set, a swinging pitcher, waiter, goblet, two cups and a slop bowel; a tea set of six pieces, with a waiter worth $70, a butter bowl and spoon holder. The whole being worth $200. These goods were manufactured in Montreal and were purchased from Mr. Angus McFee, and are fine specimens of the workman's art.

The company spent a very pleasant evening, and separated with the best expression of their well wishes to the honored recipient of their regards and esteem.

Address and Presentation.

A number of business men met last evening in the office of Messrs. Pitceathly & Kelso for the purpose of presenting Mr. T. E. P Trew, late manager of the Merchants Bank here, upon the occasion of his leaving the city, with an address and a more substantial mark of esteem from the customers of the Bank.

Mr. Pitceathly, in presenting the address, said that before leaving the city the business men could not allow Mr. Trew to do so without giving him some slight token of the esteem in which he was held by the business community, and therefore had taken the present occasion to present him with the following address:—

To T. E. P. TREW, ESQ.,
Manager of the Merchants Bank of Canada, Belleville.

DEAR SIR,—We the undersigned, customers of the Bank in this City, learning that you are about leaving the management of the branch here to fill a similar position elsewhere, cannot allow you to do so without expressing our deep regret at your departure.

Although your stay amongst us has been of short duration, yet you have commanded our esteem and respect; not only in our business intercourse, but also in the social relations of life.

In conclusion we trust that success and happiness may ever attend you and your worthy partner in life wherever your lot may be cast.

Belleville, Jan. 19, 1880.

Mr. Pitceathly then said he was desired by the donors to ask Mr. Trew's acceptance on behalf of Mrs. Trew of a purse as a slight token of the good will of the customers of the Bank.

Mr. Trew in reply remarked feelingly that when he came here he had no expectations that he would have made so many sincere friends in such a short time as the present occasion manifested. He said he was a man of few words, but was pleased to be able to testify to the pleasant business relations that had existed between himself and the customers of the Bank since he came to the city, and on behalf of Mrs. Trew and himself expressed regret at leaving Belleville. He heartily thanked them for the kind expressions contained in the address, and for the handsome sum of money presented to Mrs. Trew.

Mr. Trew, we understand, leaves Belleville to-morrow morning, and we need scarcely say that large numbers of business men with whom he has made acquaintance, as well as customers of the Bank, wish him good-speed and prosperity in his new home.

FOUND DEAD.

The Inquest

A coroner's inquest on the body of the man found in the rear of Delow Ham's farm on the 22nd was held at Michael Lynch's house last night before the coroner, Dr. Wilson.

Eight witnesses were examined, and the evidence appeared to show that the man was demented or suffering from delirium tremens. The person alluded to in yesterday's issue as having been on Mr. Weese's farm was not the individual whose body was found, as Mr. Weese did not recognize him. In conversation with those who gave evidence, deceased had said he was a mechanic and that he lived in Hamilton. He however, would not disclose his name.

The description of the man is as follows: height about 5 ft. 6 in., florid complexion, sandy colored moustache, large scar on the right side of the chin—scar or hair lip on left side of the upper lip, crooked nose, but whether from breakage or lying on his face whilst dead, was not discovered. He had on a new pair of pants—diagonal, a new vest, new suspenders of scarlet color, new under and outer shirt—the former a red woollen and the latter a checked gingham, boots low and very old, new stiff black hat. The coat was a dark tweed and though good was not new. His coat was found about 25 rods from where the body lay and his hat was picked up about 6 feet from where the body was.

The verdict returned was to the effect that deceased had come to his death by exposure to the weather. The body was brought to the city and was to be interred in the cemetery this afternoon.

One peculiar characteristic of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is its power of decomposing the food in the stomach, rendering digestion and assimilation more perfect. This partly accounts for the rapidity with which patients take on flesh while using the article.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—It is stated that information has been received at the foreign office of a satisfactory combination of armed forces from England and Portugal for the suppression of the slave trade of the Mozambique channel.

The board of trade awarded a pice of plate to the Captain of the American schooner Fred A. Carle, for saving the ship-wrecked crew.

VIENNA, Jan. 24.—It is reported in the court circles of St. Petersburg that the visit of the Russian Minister of the household to Cannes is caused by the assidious efforts of the Czarowitch to restore harmony between the Czar and Czarina, which had been disturbed by family affairs. The Minister is ordered to invite the Czarina to be present at the 25th anniversary of the Czar's accession to the throne.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 24.—The Golos urges that the time has come for beginning to complete the re-conciliation with the Poles by placing them on the same footing as Russian subjects.

FRANKLIN, Mass., Jan. 24.—When the gravel train was backing into the pit yesterday the connecting rod of cars parted and eleven cars started down the steep grade and plunged down the embankment 25 feet and were completely demolished. One brakeman was injured.

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—The Herald's Augusta special says that three companies of troops and a Gatling gun are in the garrison of the State house. When the Republicans meet this morning there will be as little show of arms as possible, and the soldiery will be kept in the back ground. The Republicans are generally urging a dispersion of the Union Hall legislature. Every military company in Maine is under arms. The fusionist Governor Smith, hints that the Republicans may get all the fighting they want.

Gould, legal adviser to the Fusion Government, characterizes the moving of troops here as a desperate act, sure to redound to the political advantage of the Fusionists, and as the biggest blunder yet made by the Republicans. All the military in the State will be here by night if the Fusionists carry out the plans they are alleged to have matured.

The Fusionist legislature met with decreased numbers this morning. The Fusionists show unmistakable signs of nervousness.

At the Adjutant-General's office they have information, not yet to be given to the press, which is said to fully justify the calling out of the militia. The Governor is strongly urged to at once disperse the Union Hall Legislature and Fusion Government, but whether he will act until the first of next week is doubtful. Sunday night the troops will all be under arms.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Arrived, the City of Montreal from Liverpool.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Arrrived the Thingvalla from Copenhagen.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh winds, mostly westerly to southerly, partly cloudy to clear weather, not much change in the temperature.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Indications: For lower lakes, stationary or higher temperature, partly cloudy, possibly light snow in northern and eastern portions.

SANFORD'S

RADICAL CURE

For

CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

"WAS 'OO EVER A BOY."

My lit le four-year-old Harry,
Bright in beauty and joy,
Said, with his accent of won ler,
"Papa was 'oo ever a boy!"
"Was 'oo ever as little as I be?"
"Dear baby," sa'd I, in reply,
"Will my darling ever be weary
And heart-worn and sinful as I?"

With forehead of whiteness and candor,
And loving and innocent eyes,
Thou doth measure the distance between us
With a strange and holy surprise.
Thou like a bud flushed and fragrant;
I like a leaf at its fall;
I far away from the angels—
Thou within reach of their call.

Type of the beauty celestial,
Humble and tender and sweet,
Thou comest in faith, my darling,
To sit at thy father's feet.
Taught by the loving example,
By the truth that knows no alloy,
May I go to our Father as simple,
And in heart be always a boy.

Sayings and Who First Said Them

Many of our common sayings, so trite and pithy, are used without the least idea from whose mouth or pen they first originated. Probably the works of Shakespeare furnish us with more of these familiar maxims than any other writer, for to him we owe:—"All is not gold that glitters," "Make a virtue of necessity," "Screw your courage to the striking place" (not point). "They laugh that win," "This is the short and long of it," "Comparisons are odious," "As merry as the day is long," "A Daniel come to judgment," "Frailty, thy name is woman," and a host of others.

Washington Irving gives us "The Almighty Dollar," Thos. Morton queried long ago "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" while Goldsmith answers "Ask me no questions and I'll tell you no fibs." Charles C. Pinckney gives "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of the fellow citizens" (not countrymen), appeared in the resolutions presented to the House of Representatives in December, 1790, prepared by General Henry Lee.

From the same we cull "Make assurance doubly sure," "Christmas comes but once a year," "Count their chickens ere they are hatched," and "Lock before you leap."

Thomas Tasser, a writer in the sixteenth century, gives us, "It's an ill wind turns no good," "Better late than never," "Look ere you leap," and "The stone that is rolling can gather no moss." And "Cry and no wool" is found in Butler's "Hudibras."

Dryden says:—"None but the brave deserve the fair," "Men are but children of a larger growth," and "Through thick and thin." "No pent up Utica contracts our powers," declared Jonathan Sewell.

"When Greeks join Greeks then was the tug of war," Nathaniel Lee, 1692.

"Of two evils I have chosen the least," and "The end must justify the means," are from Matthew Prior. We are indebted to Colley Cibber for the agreeable intelligence that "Richard is himself again." Johnston tells us of "A good hater," and Mackintosh in 1791, the phrase often attributed to John Randolph, "Wise and masterly inactivity."

"Variety's the spice of life," and "Not much the worse of wear," Cowper. "Man proposes, but God disposes," Thomas A. Kempis.

Christopher Marlowe gave forth the invitation so often repeated by his brothers in a less public way, "Love me little, love me long." Edward Coke was of the opinion that "A man's house is his castle." To Milton we owe "The paradise of fools," "A wilderness of sweets," and "Moping melancholy and moonstruck madness."

Edward Young tells us "Death loves a shining mark," "A fool at forty is a fool indeed," but alas, for his knowledge of human nature when he tells us "Man wants but little, nor that little long."

From Bacon comes "Knowledge is power," and Thomas Southerne reminds us that "Pity's akin to love." Dean Swift thought that "bread is the stall of life." Campbell found that "Coming events cast their shadows before," and "'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view." "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," is from Keats. Franklin said, "God helps them who help themselves," and Lawrence Sterne comforts us with the thought, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

Even some of the "slang" phrases of the day have a legitimate origin, "Putting your foot in it," is certainly not a very elegant mode of expression, but, according to the "Asiatic Researches," it is quite a fine point of law; when the title of land is disputed in Hindostan, two holes are dug in the ground and used to incase a limb of each lawyer (!), and the one who tired first his client's case. Fancy, if you can, some of our famous "limbs o' the law" pleading in such a manner! It is generally the client who "puts his foot in it."

When things are in disorder they are often said to be turned topsy turvy; this expression is derived from the way in which turf used for fuel is placed to dry, the turf being turned downward; and the expression then means top side turfway.

Thirty Cents Worth of Real Style.

A couple of young ladies who went to Dubuque to spend the holidays concluded to couple style with economy, and did so effectually. They left Chicago in a common coach on the Illinois Central Railroad, sitting with their eyes towards a luxurious palace car trundling along at the rear, envying the half dozen ladies who had it all to themselves. When the train arrived at Freeport the two stylish young ladies concluded to engage seats in the palace car, and entered it for that purpose.

"The seats in this car are extra, ladies," politely remarked the conductor.

"We are aware of that, sir. What do you charge to Dubuque?"

"One dollar."

"One dollar! That's too much."

"The price diminishes, ladies, as we approach Dubuque."

"What is the price from Galena?"

"Thirty cents."

"Well, we will occupy two seats from Galena."

"All right."

The young ladies left the Pullman, and as they made their exit they were heard to remark:

"Jane, it would be horrible to enter Dubuque in a common coach. Style is everything, and as it wont cost but 30 cents each we'll go into the city in style; they wont know but that we came all the way from Chicago in the Pullman."

And sure enough upon the arrival of the train their friends who were at the depot to meet them found them in the palace coach.

A tramp who was caught roaming around through the country stealing eggs, said, "he merely wished to get the lay of the land."

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barr om may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandwein;" the lymphatic Frenchman for his "Eau de vie;" the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and lands. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and will not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. Dr. Herrick's Sugar-coated Pills are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

Dr. Giles—I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or you self. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of Bins enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.

Gents,—I have frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liner Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

SYR: HYPOPHOS. FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES. COMP: FELLOWS.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

In its First and Second Stages, are cured by the use of

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

St. Paul, Min. January 4th, 1878.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Dear Sir,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. Walter Oakes.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

James I. Fellows, Esq.

Sir;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

The Beet Root Sugar Question

A Meeting on the Subject.

FRIDAY, 23rd Jan., 1880.

A meeting for the purposes of promoting the growth and cultivation of the sugar beet, and to establish a factory for its manufacture into sugar, was held this evening at the Marsh Hill School House, Sidney. There was a large attendance of the yeomen of the district and keen attention was bestowed on the remarks of those who addressed the audience.

Mr. A. MCCLATCHIE was moved to the chair and Mr. H. Gilbert Parker appointed Secretary. The last named gentleman read a valuable and exhaustive paper on the subject in which he described the value of the proposed industry, the importance it would achieve in the commercial industries of the district, and the benefits that would accrue to the soil in which it was cultivated. He averred that the beet root would increase the value of the soil and enable farmers to change the product of their land to the profit and benefit of themselves. The sale of the sugar beet would be profitable and would give a larger profit to the farmer than any other class of produce. If this county would not make an effort to establish this industry another would and that would result to our detriment. He urged activity and energy in this matter and if the farmers of the district work manfully the end would be achieved.

The CHAIRMAN remarked that one side of the question had been heard of and now he would like to hear others speak on the subject.

Mr. H. ASHLEY said he had heard Mr. Barnard, the Minister of Agriculture of Quebec speak on this subject and he had been very favorably impressed with his remarks. The average farmer was slow to obtain information and he therefore urged them to become members of the Dairymen's Association, where questions appertaining to their calling were brought forward for discussion as they could learn now what they would attain by experience in the future. If a factory were now established we should not necessarily expect a profit for two or three years, but in time, he considered the business would prove remunerative to those interested in it. In his opinion this was the best industry that farmers could now engage in. In conclusion he asked that a proper start be made, otherwise the project would not be successful.

Mr. R. R. BIRD approved of the cultivation of the sugar beet, especially so since he had had an experience of eighteen years in growing it, and he had found it raised far more readily than grain, and the outlay less. The raising of the sugar beet was, in his opinion, the best thing advanced in favor of the farming community.

Mr. J. S. VANDEWATERS said the time had arrived when all knew that sugar could be made from the beet, and the question that would now be presented to the meeting would resolve itself into finding out the number of acres each would devote to the cultivation of the beet and how to establish a factory. These were matters he considered should receive the best attention of the meeting.

Mr. E. WICKETT advised the planting of a small quantity this year, and if successful more could be planted in the year following.

Mr. D. VANDEWATERS said Mr. Ross had informed him that he had successfully grown 25 tons to the acre.

The CHAIRMAN said it was no trouble to raise the beet for a factory such as was proposed, and if the farmers went into the project they could not lose anything, as if a factory were not established, the farmers could feed the produce to their cattle. He urged action in the premises, and had reason to hope that the Government would aid in promoting such an industry.

Mr. D. VANDEWATERS said that the machinery necessary for such a factory as the one proposed would cost from $15,000 to $20,000. He had spoken to several who would take stock if the factory would be erected.

Mr. J. S. VANDEWATERS said if a proper scheme were advanced capitalists could be readily formed who would take stock in it.

Mr. PARKER said the growth of the beet would certainly improve the value of the land and would improve the locality generally.

Mr. WICKETT suggested the formation of a company among the farmers, so that it would be a mutual concern.

Mr. MORDEN urged delay, as he was desirous of seeing what others would do in this matter.

A committee of nine were named to further consider the question and report on the desirability of establishing a factory for the proposed industry. The committee to report at a meeting to be held in the Temperance Hall in Foxboro, on February 3rd.

The meeting then adjourned.

The wind is unseen, but it cools the brow of the fevered one, sweetens the summer atmosphere, and ripples the surface of the lake into silver spangles of beauty. So goodness of heart, though invisible to the material eye, makes its presence felt; and from its effects upon surrounding things we are assured of its existence.

Important to Dairymen.

SHOULD THE MILK FROM DIFFERENT BREEDS OF COWS BE MINGLED?

Questions of vital importance to the dairymen are constantly being presented for answer. Among other problems demanding investigation and solution, is whether or not the milk of different breeds of cows should be mingled, when the most remunerative results in butter-making are desired. Especially at the time when the subject of establishing creameries, or co-operative systems of butter-making, in this section, is prominently before the agricultural public, do we need the results of practical experience on the effect of mixing the different kinds of milk, and of setting separately the milk, and churning separately the cream from the portions of the herd that are Jerseys, Shorthorns, Ayrshires or other breeds.

Dairies composed of all grade Shorthorns, or of any single description of milch cows, would of course give a quality of milk averaging the same from day to day, while the cream resulting therefrom would be of a similar character. But suppose to a herd of ten grade Shorthorns be added a couple of Jersey cows capable of yielding by themselves sufficient cream for the weekly production of 20 pounds of butter, can the dairyman expect to increase the butter product of the combined herd, including the ten Shorthorns, and the two Jerseys, exactly 20 pounds? That is, supposing the ten Shorthorns alone give a weekly return of 65 pounds of butter, it is probable, by adding the two Jerseys, which alone make 20 pounds of butter weekly, that the dairyman will realize an aggregate weekly product of 85 pounds? This would seem to be a natural deduction, theoretically considered, but let us see how such a plan works in practice.

I will cite a few facts directly bearing upon this subject, which have come under my own personal knowledge. An experienced dairyman, who lives in Conway and gets the highest prices for his butter, makes me the following statement: "This Fall, when my herd was making a given quantity of butter weekly, I added to the number of my cows two high-grade Jerseys. I soon found, on weighing my butter product, that the addition of the two Jerseys made no perceptible difference over the previous quantity of butter. I concluded at once that my Jerseys were at fault and would not make the amount of butter supposed. The latter were new milch cows, and very promising animals in appearance. I next set the milk of each of the suspected Jerseys by itself, and found that the yield of one made twelve pounds of butter, while that of the other made but a little less; also that the original herd, upon careful and repeated test, yielded as before. Hence I became fortified in the belief that the milk of those two breeds should not be mingled."

Again, a prominent dairyman in Whately who has 12 cows in milk, the majority of which are Jerseys, remarked, on putting his cream into the large churn, that there was cream sufficient in quantity to produce 70 to 75 pounds of butter. Yet upon churning and weighing the product, there was found to be but 38 pounds! The next week this dairyman kept the milk and cream of his grade Jerseys and of his grade Shorthorns separate, though for some reason he did not churn until he had eight days' cream instead of seven, as in the first experiment. However, he was gratified at securing a butter product of 83½ pounds, showing pretty conclusively that he could not afford to mingle the milk and cream of his different breeds.

Recently the Conway dairyman and his Whately brother met, and in the course of conversation each related his experience with the joint product of the milk of the different breeds of cows, in butter-making. The result was that the Whately farmer exchanged two of his Shorthorns for two of the Jersey cows of his Conway neighbor.

In conclusion I will submit another series of experiments in the same direction. A friend and townsman of mine, who last winter kept 19 cows, and who is a firm believer in high feeding and careful attention in respect to his herd, found that his animals were not making the usual returns in butter, neither were they yielding what he might reasonably expect. His herd was composed of about equal proportions of grade Jerseys and grade Shorthorns. The yield of butter was not far from five pounds per cow weekly, though why it should be so small was past his comprehension. Finally he concluded to set the milk of each cow, separately, finding out in churning the cream separately that he hadn't a single cow that yielded less than six pounds each, while a goodly number gave him upwards of nine pounds each. The result of this experiment showed him that churned separately the milk of his herd would produce something over seven pounds each upon the average; while when the milk of each breed was mingled the result was but about five pounds weekly to each cow.

I have given these figures approximately, without going into fractions of a pound, but sufficiently accurate to illustrate the principle for which I am contending—that for dairymen to secure the best results from their herds, the milk or cream from different breeds of cows should not be mingled. How important that, as a class, we farmers should make more figures, and do less guess work concerning the important operations upon the farm.—Country Gentleman.

A COLLEGE WAG.—In a certain college under Presbyterian auspices, not a hundred miles from New York, it is a rule that the students shall attend church at least once each Sunday, either in the college chapel or some church in town which they shall designate, and for non-attendance satisfactory reasons must be given. Of course on Monday mornings, when these reasons are called for, much ingenuity and some fun is brought out. In one of these interviews Prof. L—— asked a student, "Mr. C——, where did you attend church yesterday?"

Mr. C——replied, "The First church, Sir."

The professor, looking a little surprised, said, "Are you not aware, Mr. C——, that there was no service at the First Church yesterday?"

This was a poser, but was coolly met by, "I mean, professor, the first church I came to."

A general laugh followed, and somehow the young gentleman got rescued.—EDITOR'S DRAWER, in Harper's Magazine for February.

The New York Bulletin says:—A petition to Congress is in circulation down-town urging the appointment of commissioners with a view to the drafting of a treaty of commerce that would be beneficial alike to the commercial interests of this country and Canada and promote better business relations.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, JANY. 26.

A "Big Push."

Not content with their overwhelming majority in the Local Legislature, the Ontario Government are, we are credibly informed, about to make a "big push," with the object of securing a verdict from the people for their candidate in West Hastings. A mass meeting is, it is said, to be held in the Opera House, on Wednesday evening, when some of the placemen and hangers-on of the Government "will a tale unfold," amongst them Mr. A. H. Dymond, the rejected of North York for the Commons, ex-editor of the Globe, ex-Commissioner for the investigation of the financial affairs of Cornwall, member in prospective of the projected Agricultural Commission, with which Mr. Mowat proposes to fish for evidence against the N. P., and handy man generally. It is also said that the great wire-puller Pattullo, permanent Secretary of their central organization, will be of the party. Perhaps the rebuke administered to the Government in Stormont—hitherto a strongly Grit constituency, but which at the general election chose a Conservative, who was unseated just as Mr. Robertson was because of illegal acts of his friends, and who has just been re-elected by a largely increased majority—may lead to the modification or even the abandonment of their proposed attack on West Hastings; but in case of the visit of Mr. Mowat's henchmen, they cannot be watched too closely. That all sorts of corrupt inducements will be held out for the wavering to support the Government candidate there can be no doubt, for the local organ has already suggested that "material advantages" can be secured if only Mr. Silla is elected; but we apprehend that all such attempts will fail, as the supporters of Mr. Robertson are too much in earnest to be either cajoled, brow-beaten or intimidated in any way.

Whilst the very idea of the invasion of the riding by such men as those we have named shows that the local leaders have no confidence in themselves, their cause or their candidate, its effect should be to induce the opponents of the Government to redouble their exertions to increase the majority for Mr. Robertson. There is nothing to complain of on this score so far, but this attempted "big push" ought to be met with corresponding activity on the part of our friends, in which case the "visiting statesmen" will have done Mr. Robertson a real service. By all means let them come; let the whole Grit line of battle be deployed; let their reserves be brought into action, and the result will be their more complete and signal discomfiture, as the people of West Hastings have fully made up their minds to re-elect Mr. Robertson, and will do so despite all the efforts of the Government party.

WORK! WORK!!

There are only four days left to complete the work of organization in West Hastings, and it is important that every friend and supporter of Mr. Robertson do his utmost within that time to perfect the organization. If there is a voter who has not been canvassed, let him be seen at once, and the doubtful ones canvassed again. It is also necessary that every other arrangement be made for bringing out the voters, as no vote ought to be lost for lack of systematic organization.

THE BIGGEST CITY IN BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.—The Montreal Star says:—A letter which was received from the Lord Mayor of Dublin requesting subscriptions on behalf of the distressed in Ireland was addressed "The Mayor of Montreal, Canada, United States."

"Put no fulsome compliments on my tombstone," said a sag. "Don't give me any epitaphy."

The Business Returns.

The Globe and several of its satellites assert that the country is being ruined by the N. P., and in support of this assumption quote the figures given by Dun, Wiman & Co. in their annual circular. Perhaps the best answer to these statements and to an enquiry for explanation from a Grit source, is given by the Montreal Witness, which being a journal that devotes much attention to commercial matters, and strongly Grit in its political proclivities, ought to be accepted as good authority. The Witness says:—"The statement issued six month months ago showed that during the first half of the year one thousand and sixty-seven failures took place, and the sum of the liabilities amounted to $17,425,933, and that during the last six months there have been eight hundred and thirty-five failures, with total liabilities of $11,921,984. Of course the showing is somewhat misleading, as the comparison is not a fair one, owing to the fact that the greatest number of failures always occur during the early part of the year, when the paper given for the goods of the preceding fall and winter mature. But when it is remembered that the last six months have proved disastrous to three or four banks, and that, though the number of insolvents has been somewhat lessened owing to the number of assignments induced by the prospect of legislation with regard to insolvency during the first six months, it has also been swollen by those whom the failures of these banks compelled to assign—when, we say, this is remembered, it will be acknowledged that the improvement is not a fictitious, but a real one."

If further evidence is wanted on the same point, let the speech of Sir Charles Tupper at the Chaplean banquet be taken, wherein that hon. gentleman states that the customs revenue increased by $1,120,000 during the past year, and that whilst the imports from Great Britain had increased one-tenth, those from the United States had decreased one-fourth. It may not enter into the heads of the faction, ists that a policy which produces such results is wise and patriotic, but people who are not party-mad will be heard to convince that it is not so.

Attend the Meetings.

Meetings in the interest of Mr. Robertson are held every evening in the hall of the Liberal Conservative Association, INTELLIGENCER building. Hitherto they have been well attended; but we urge a still larger attendance during the remainder of the campaign. Every one interested who can be present, should make it his special business to attend and give his assistance in canvassing the lists of voters and making arrangements for the work on poling day. It gives encouragement to the candidate to see their meetings largely attended, and certainly he deserves this encouragement at the hands of his supporters—it infuses fresh life into Committees and strengthens the hands of the active workers to find themselves sustained by the mass of the party. Let there be a large attendance of the friends and supporters of Mr. Robertson at these meetings.

Flowers and Wax Work in Japan.

We have been permitted to make the following interesting extract from a private letter received by Mr. J. H. Meacham from Japan:—

"To give you an idea of all we saw at the Flower Show is almost impossible. There were wax figures literally dressed in flowers, and these flowers living and growing; they were so trained that not a root or branch was to be seen. A wax lady had on a dress of pure white double chrysanthemums. The large flowing sleeves seemed to be lined with rose-colored flowers. The inner dress was of the red flowers, while the folds were so shaded as to be perfect. There were a great many figures in different attitudes, and all beautifully dressed with flowers.

The most beautiful thing we saw was a large junk made wholly of different colored flowers. The vessel was even laden with a cargo made of the flowers.

There were fifteen or twenty of these different places where flowers were exhibited. The attimtance to each was only half a cent. I don't know how they make enough money to pay them for the great trouble, but hundreds of visitors were there daily, and no doubt many or the poor people had a few cents saved for the flower show.

The wax work, too, was so well done that in some instances I thought they were living people. One man had a cup of tea in his hand about to drink, and a lady beside him held a tray. They were arranged in groups, representing some scenes in the drama. One group appeared in a snow-storm, holding umbrellas, while the snow, made of white cotton, was falling about them, some lodging in their green fir trees, by which they were standing. I think such a sight could not be seen out of Japan."

Meeting at Frankford.

Mr. Robertson will hold a meeting at Clark's Hall, Frankford, on Tuesday evening, the 27th inst., when he hopes to meet his supporters in that section of the constituency. We urge our friends in the village and through that portion of Sidney to turn out in large numbers, and give Mr. Robertson a hearty welcome.

News Condensed.

—The Toronto bay is open.

—Counterfeit silver coin is in circulation at Ottawa.

—The duties collected in the Dominion during the month of December amounted to $761,047.33.

—During the year 1879 no fewer than 191,455 pieces of baggage were checked at the Grand Trunk Station, Montreal.

—Last week's traffic on the Canada Southern Railway, it is said, was the heaviest on record.

—It is stated that several emigrants are at the Toronto emigrant sheds in destitute circumstances and in a state of starvation.

—Hon. Isaac Buchanan, Dominion arbitrator, who has been in Ottawa for some time past, left on Saturday for Baie de Chaleurs on official business.

—There is great indignation in Wall street at the speculators who have caused the blockade in grain and stagnation in the shipping and export trades.

—The man John McCarty, of Ottawa, who cut the tongue out of a horse owned by a widow who refused to marry him, has been sentenced to seven years imprisonment in the penitentiary.

—Steps are being taken to contest the seats of ten members of the Toronto City Council on the ground of disqualification; eight because they have not sufficient property, and two because they hold licenses from the city.

—The steamship Sardinian collided with the barque Sarah G. Fraser while en route from Baltimore to Halifax. The barque sank immediately. The Captain's wife and one seaman were drowned.

—A bill has been introduced in the Ontario Legislature to separate the North Riding of York from the present County of York, and credit it into the County of Nottawa. The intention of the promoters is to make Newmarket a County town.

—There is a continuous good demand for Canadian sheep and lambs in the United States at fairly good prices. Among the latest sales in New York are the following:—52 sheep, averaging 137 lbs. each at 5c. per lb.; 149 do. weighing 87 lbs. at 5½c.; 128 lambs, 90 lbs. at 7c.; 159 ewes, 134 lbs. at 5c.; and 112 lambs, 88 lbs. at 6½c.

—A bar of gold, weighing two hundred and thirty-five ounces, and valued at about $4,600, was brought to Halifax on Saturday from the Skerry & Kennedy ledge at Montague. It is the result of three weeks work of fourteen men. The Rose Lead Company at Montague are erecting a building that will accommodate the gold miners, and if all goes well this year the work will add considerably to the gold crop of the world.

Dairy Notes.

The Canadian cheese which obtained the sweepstakes prize at the late International Dairy Fair, over all others, was uncolored.

Limburger cheese is considered more profitable to the maker than any other cheese, because from a given quantity of milk more weight is obtained and better prices are realized. Thousands of tons are produced in New York and Wisconsin at less than half the cost of the imported circle.

SALT FOR MILCH COWS.—Care should be taken that milch cows have salt twice a week and that they have access to water soon after taking the salt; because salt in its crude state is poisonous, and will create a high fever in the stomach, unless diluted by water, which relieves the animal from burning thirst.—Enterprise.

Recent excavations in Pompeii have brought to light a hen's nest with thirteen eggs in it.—Boston Post. It is to be hoped that no one will hereafter ask why thirteen eggs are used for a sitting. A custom which dates back to the days of Pompeii is surely of sufficient antiquity to be established beyond a question.—Poultry Yard.

Though the agricultural papers have toll us "time and again" for the last twenty years, everybody does not yet seem to know that turnips, in large or small quantities may, with impunity be fed to cows, if fed of milking time. I have used them as cow feed for years without the least taint being perceptible to taste or smell in milk or butter.

The co-operative dairy method is coming more and more into practice, and has everywhere been quite profitable to those participating in it. The products of such dairying, whether of butter or cheese, or both, have been of uniform better quality, and thus soon builds up a reputation, and the farmers get more for their milk.

COUNTERFEIT EGGS.—It is well known that in America everything is counterfeited; the wooden hams and nutmegs sent from the New England States are well remembered. Eggs are now also counterfeited, and this manufactory is carried out on a large scale. On one side of a large room the reporter saw several large copper vessels filled with a thick, glutenous, yellow mass, which a man was constantly stirring. This was the yellow of the egg—the yolk. On the opposite side were similar vessels, in white was fabricated. The egg shells were made of a white substance resembling plaster of Paris, by means of a blowpipe, just as soap bubbles are blown. After being dried in an oven, the egg shells were filled, first with artificial albumen. The small opening at the end of the egg was closed with white cement, and the greatest achievement of modern civilization, the artificial egg, was ready. In appearance resembled a natural egg, but, whether cooked or raw, it was indigestible and injurious to health.—British Medical Journal.

It is said of the late Senator Chandler as a business man, that when in 1837 nearly every merchant in Michigan failed, he, too, had difficulty in making his collections and could not see his way clear to the settlement of his own liabilities. He made a statement of his affairs, and taking what money he could raise, came to New York and proposed to his creditors to make an assignment. The principal creditor said to him: "You are too straightforward a man and too honest and enterprising a merchant to go under. You can take your own time for payment, and we will furnish you with a new stock of goods." The young merchant accepted the extension of time, and going home went to work again and was soon able to pay all his debts in full.

A worthy couple during a violent thunder-storm were discussing the cause and effect of the forces of nature. "Who invented lightning," inquired the lady. "Benjamin Franklin," promptly replied the husband. At this astonishing intelligence the lady paused awhile, as if reflecting upon the achievements of the inventor and finally manifested her appreciation by the exclamation, "Great fool wasn't he!"

An old Highlander, rather fond of his toddy, was ordered by his physician during a temporary illness not to exceed one ounce of spirits daily. The old gentleman was dubious about the amount, and asked his son, a school boy, how much an ounce was. "Sixteen drams," was the reply. "Sixteen drams. An excellent doctor!" replied the delighted Highlander. Run and tell Donald McTavish and Big John to come down the noise."

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The World's Washington special says that the fusion of the Pacific railroads creates much sensation in Washington, and it is stated that the bona fide holders of Union Pacific stock will contest the fusion as unjust to their property, and that the so-called unanimous consent of the directors lacks the confirmation of Jas. R. Keene, who neither approved of these proceedings nor resigned his position as a director. Keene is a large holder of Union Pacific stock and has just bought a considerable quantity of the Kansas Pacific stock, which was selling a year ago at from 12½ to 21, and which these conflicting manipulations raised above par.

Arrived, the Harold from Havre.

Defective sewers in the upper part of the city are causing much annoyance and sickness, and several deaths have followed. The entrance of sewer gas into the houses of the cross streets between 5th and 6th avenues in the neighborhood of 55th street, are reported in a dangerous condition from defective drainage sewer pipes, which were hastily laid under the Tweed regime by shoddy contractors. The pipes are under fashionable houses on the up-town streets, which are cheap half rotten clay tubes of 18 inches in diameter. Many of them have been broken by the weight of earth above them and the sewage soaked into the soil, and the gases were forced back into the houses. Many fatal cases of diphtheria and typhoid fever this past few months are ascribed to these causes.

The factory of the Weston Electric Light Company, Newark, was damaged by fire this morning. Loss $10,000.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan 26.—A sensation is caused here by a letter of Rev. Joham Hodge, a Roman Catholic Priest, to Archbishop Gibbons, resigning his pastorate, and stating that he has renounced the Catholic faith and embraced the Protestant religion.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST HASTINGS.

GENTLEMEN,—Having to be in the country nearly all the time between this and election day, and the time being short, it will be utterly impossible to make a general personal canvass. I trust, therefore, that my friends will give me the same generous support that I received in June, notwithstanding I may be unable to call upon all of them.

I have the honor to remain,

Yours faithfully,

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And in BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay?

THE NEW

CORSET

Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is ajusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes a painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of differ. ent development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

City and Vicinity

Easter Fair.—We are requested to announce that the usual Easter Fair will be held on the market here, of which due notice will be given.

Appointments.—Mr. D. Henwood has been appointed Chief Engineer of the Napanee Fire Department, with Mr. John Lowry as Assistant.

Upset.—A Jehu from the country succeeded on Saturday night, after several attempts, in upsetting his sleigh, three knees and three beams of which were broken by the operation.

The Jail.—There are now confined as prisoners in the County Jail 20 persons, 13 of whom are males and 7 females. One of the latter and two of the former are lunatics, who have been recently committed.

The Fish Trade.—The competition amongst fish buyers in this section is so great that the price has been advanced to 4¾ cents per pound. One buyer shipped last week upwards of a ton of bass, pickerel, pike &c., for the United States.

The River.—It is seldom that the river has been clear of ice at this season for so long a distance as it now is. From Bleecker's dam south to the lower bridge, there is no ice to obstruct the flow of the waters, which are rather above the usual level.

Another Arrival.—Belleville is the headquarters at present of athletes in Canada. In addition to Messrs. Ross, Johnston and Barnes—all unexcelled in their lines—John King, a light weight boxer of prominence—has arrived here, and is seeking for an opening.

The Champion Belt.—The belt—emblematic of the heavy weight championship of America—is now on exhibition at the store of Mr. Angus McFee, jeweller of this city. On one of the clasps the name of Mr. Duncan C. Ross, its holder, is engraved three times, the belt having been won by him in that number of contests. The engraving was done at Mr. McFee's and is a credit to his workmen.

North Hastings Agricultural Society.—The following is the list of officers elected:—President, J. M. Ashley; 1st Vice President, Wm. Kingston; 2nd Vice President, Jas. Foster; Secretary, Peter Fargey; Treasurer, Thomas Emo; Directors Jas. Haggerty, John McCaw, jr., Wm. H. Chapman, John Gordon, Wm. T. Bird, Francis Taylor, Sanford Caverly. Auditors, J. C. Wilson and S. Holden, sr.

Gas Inspection.—The ready and favorable response of the Dominion Government to the petition of the City Council for the establishment of a gas inspection office here in connection with the Weights and Measures office, has been received with much gratification. All the machinery has been placed in the Weights and Measures office, and will be set up within the next fortnight, as the officer detailed for the service is now engaged in placing the London office in working order.

Accident.—John Casey, one of the employees of the G. T. R., who resides in this city, was the victim of an accident on the afternoon of Saturday last. Whilst the engine on which he acted as fireman was engaged in shunting at the Don Station, he fell off the tender and was picked up senseless. He was conveyed to the Union Station at Toronto, where he recovered sufficiently to enable him to be conveyed to his home on the midnight express. His injuries are not of a serious character, as he is expected to be around in a couple of days.

Meetings.—The City Council will hold their first stated meeting to-night, and the County Council will assemble in the Shire Hall at 2 p. m. to-morrow, for the purpose of organization.

Exhibition.—We understand that Messrs. Ross & Barnes intend giving an exhibition consisting of fencing, sparring, jumping and general athletic exercise, on the 2nd of February, of which full particulars will be given hereafter. A number of our citizens intend to give purses on the occasion, and the competition is confined to residents of Belleville.

Trenton Horticultural Society.—At the annual meeting the following officers were appointed:—H. W. Day, M. D., President; H. Gill, Vice President; A.G. Whittier, Treasurer; J. Richardson, Secretary. Directors.—G. H. Gordon, W. Jeffs, W. T. Barker, W. F. Baker, A. W. Hawley, Geo. Young, F. Cornwall, J. Nicholson.

Appointment of Officials.—Mr Chas. B Peck, General Manager of the Northwestern Grand Trunk, has issued a circular appointing K. Blackwell, Mechanical Superintendent, having charge of both the locomotive and car departments, with Geo. W. Preston as assistant. H. W. Chester is also appointed General Accountant, vice Bonner transferred, and William Bonner is appointed Traffic Auditor, and will have charge of freight and passenger accounts. These changes took effect on the 20th.

The Late John B. McGann.—The funeral of the late Mr. McGann took place on Saturday afternoon. The remains were removed from the family residence to the chapel in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, where the services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Clarke, pastor of Christ Church, who delivered a feeling and appropriate address. Thence the body was taken to its final resting place in the cemetery, whither it was accompanied by the male pupils and teachers of the Institute, and a considerable number of friends from the city.

Lennox Agricultural Society.—The following gentlemen were elected officers for 1880: Peter Bristol, president; Benj. Brisco, jr., 1st vice-president, N. B. Caton, 2nd vice-president; Charles James, treasurer-secretary. Directors.—Napanee, Jas. Allen and Robt. Denison; Richmond, Allen Pringle; North Fredericksburgh, W. N. Doller and Charles Lloyd; South Fredericksburgh, C. B. Huffman and J. E. Gunsolus; Ernesttown, Lewis H. Stover and John Sharp; auditors, J. C. Huffman and George I. Smith. The days for the exhibition were fixed for Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 6th and 7th.

O. Y. B. District Meeting.—The annual meeting of the South Hastings Orange Young Briton District, was held at Foxboro on the 16th of January. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Thomas Maney, Foxboro, W. M.; Johiel Heagle, Trenton, D. M.; Alva E. Ross, Foxboro, Sec.; Wm. McCoy, Belleville, Treas.; Wm. Pringle, Belleville, Chap; Lewis Eggleton, Foxboro, D. of C. At the close of the meeting the Foxboro brethren entertained their visitors to an oyster supper at the Dominion Hotel, which it is needless to say was served up in excellent style.

Arbitration.—The Trenton Advocate says:—"The first of the two arbitrations with the P. E. C. R Company touching the value of lands appropriated by them as a line in this village, came off last week. The arbitration lasted for two days, the arbitrators being J. H. Perry, of Whitby, Registrar, on behalf of the company, and J. B. McGuin, of Napanee, Deputy Clerk of the Crown for the Synod while Judge Lazier acted at Referee. The land taken by the Company amounts to one fifth of an acre and the sum of $400 is alone offered in full of its value and of the damage to the adjacent lots. The proceedings were adjourned till the 3rd of February."

DRUNK.

John Young, first offence, was dismissed.

LARCENY.

Alexander Martin, charged with stealing a buffalo robe and shawls from Allen T. Ketcheson, pleaded guilty, and elected to be tried summarily. The case was enlarged until Thursday.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—As the public are by this time fully aware, there is an Athletic Entertainment advertised to take place in the Opera House here on Monday evening. Free use has been made of my name by the propagators of this affair by way of advertising their performance. Now sir I wish you and the citizens of Belleville to know that neither myself nor my pupils will take any part in this enterprise.

Yours, &c.,
E. W. Johnston,
Instructor of gymnastics &c., Mech. Inst.
Belleville, Jan. 26th, 1880.

"Burns and Scalds."—If you are so misfortunate as to injure yourself in this way, we can suggest a remedy that will (we speak from experience) soon relieve you of all pain and quickly heal the wound; it costs but twenty-five cents, and is sold by all Druggists—ask for Perry Davis' Pain Killer.

One peculiar characteristic of Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is its power of decomposing the food in the stomach, rendering digestion and assimilation more perfect. This partly accounts for the rapidity with which patients take on flesh while using the article.

Consumption.—For the cure of this distressing disease there has been no medicine yet discovered that can show more evidence of real merit than Allen's Lung Balsam. This unequaled expectorant for curing Consumption and all diseases leading to it, such as Affections of the Throat, Lungs, and all diseases of the pulmonary organs, is introduced to the suffering public after its merits for the cure of such diseases have been fully tested by the Medical Faculty. The Balsam is, consequently, recommended by physicians who have become acquainted with its great success.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

London, Jan. 26th.—John Bright, at Birmingham on Saturday, suggested that Parliament appoint a commission to go to Dublin, with power to sell the farms of landlords to tenants willing to buy and to advance three-fourths of the purchase money—principal and interest to be repaid in 35 years. Such a measure, Bright believed would meet the desires of the Irish people. The commission should assist the tenant to purchase whenever the landlord was willing to sell. He recommended a compulsory sale only where the land is owned by London Co.'s, as is the case with large tracts near Londonderry. He expressed the conviction that if his plan was ever adopted, self-interest or public opinion would soon compel individual landlords to sell to the tenants.

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The Government intends to levy a tax on advertisements in newspapers.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The Herald's Augusta special says the Supreme Court will assemble in Bangor to decide upon the advisability of considering the fusionists statement. The fusion senate met, with seven members this morning. The Republican programme is after hearing what the Supreme Court has to say regarding the fusionist statement, to have the Governor issue a proclamation commending the dispersion of the fusionist Government. It is expected that Wednesday will see the last of the dual Government.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—There is likely to be a lively row in the Butchers' Union over the funds collected to carry on the recent strike. Of $12,000 collected, the officers of the Union can only account for less than $5,000. They charge Frank O'Meara, of the Relief Committee, who has absconded, with the remainder. Patrick Welch, Chairman of the Committee, says O'Meara had been made the scape-goat of Dan O'Connell, President of the Union, Dick Powers, its orator, and Sullivan, its Financial Secretary, who really have stolen the $7,000.

Brooklyn, Jan. 26.—There was a large fire at the shoe shop, Brooklyn Penitentiary. It is reported all the prisoners are safe.

A despatch from Cabul in referring to the scheme for the withdrawal of British troops to Jellalabad, was probably inspired by the Indian Government as a feeler with the view to serve its effect.

Glasgow, Jan. 25.—Arrived, the State of Nevada.

WEATHER REPORTS.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk southerly to westerly winds, partly cloudy, to cloudy warmer weather, with rain in some localities.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Indications: For lower lakes, increasing cloudiness with areas of rain, warmer, followed in western portions by colder.

The Regulation Weight.

An official who has recently returned to Washington from a trip down the Mississippi, tells the following story: On a Mississippi steamer, as on every railway or steamboat line, a passenger is allowed a certain amount of baggage. One day a man from Texas came on the wharf at New Orleans with his baggage. He was a wild looking fellow such as only Texas can produce. He went for a man to check his baggage, and coming back pointed out his valuables to the baggage master. "You will have to pay extra baggage on some of those boxes," said the baggage-man. "Why I should like to know?" said the Texan, beginning to look belligerent. "Because a passenger is only allowed a certain amount of baggage," answered the obliging baggage-master. "How much is that?" inquired the Texan. "Sixty pounds," was the reply. "Sixty pounds," thundered the Texan, "why, my God, man, a gentleman's 'weapons' would weigh that much."

The Marquis of Lorne will arrive in Halifax, N.S., at noon on Friday, and will be the guest of his Honor Lieut.-Governor Archibald. Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise will arrive by the Sarmatian, probably on Saturday, and together with her suite, will also be the guest of the Lieut.-Governor. No decided arrangements as to landing, reception, etc., have as yet been made.

—As the result of representations made by the American Consul at Belleville, the Secretary of State at Washington has instructed the Custom House authorities that iron ore must be accompanied by consular certificates on its entry into the United States, and cannot come under the clause, which, in certain cases, admits shipments under the value of $100 to be made without that formality. Eggs butter, etc, not coming like the ore from primarily the same hand, however he thinks, should not require a consular certificate if shipped in quantities worth less than $100.

"What did your mother say, my little man? Did you give her my card?" asked an inexperienced young gentleman of a little boy whose mother had given him an invitation to call upon her, and whose street door was accordingly opened to his untimely summons by the urchin aforesaid. "Yes, I gave it to her," was the innocent reply, and she said, "if you were not a nat'ral born fool, you wouldn't come on Monday morning, when everybody was washin.'!"

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City. 1y

Cheese and Butter.—The Montreal Gazette of the 23rd says:—Parties in the trade here are divided in their opinions as to the amount of butter held in the country. While some assert that stocks in the Morrisburg and Brockville districts are large, others claim them to be small. There is no question however, about stocks in this city, which are known to be very light, some of our dealers having barely sufficient to supply their city trade. No sales of shipping lots were reported to-day. Cheese remains firm at quotations.

While the imports into Toronto last quarter show a decrease of $941,818, the exports showed an increase of $336,610.

The total value of the exports from Montreal in December was $769,477 against $538,547 in December 1878.

The winter wheat acreage now sown in Illinois is 2,658,820, or 25 per cent. greater than that of last year.

Col. Robbins, superintendent of the Baldwin Mines, Ottawa, has about completed arrangements for the shipment via Rideau Canal of 25,000 tons of iron ore to Kingston, at which point it will be loaded in steamers for Cleveland.

$25,000 of the city of Guelph 6 per cent. twenty year debentures were purchased on Thursday last by the Imperial Bank of Toronto for British capitalists at one-half per cent above par.

The Merchants' Bank sold the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee Railway bonds in London at about 93, realizing $281,000, while they were estimated in the assets of the Bank at $251,000. This sale consequently increases the assets of the Bank about $30,000.

The December bank shows the total subscribed capital of the chartered banks to have been $63,106,633; paid up, $60,351,505; notes in circulation, $22,252,761; total liabilities, $105,862,821; total assets, $178,300,684.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

Can we believe that the childlike trust which accompanied the petitions met only with rejection at the hand of that Saviour in whose name and by whose invitation they were uttered? Could he possibly go back in His word! Is He less kind and compassionate in Heaven than He was upon earth? This is impossible, and the solitary human listener felt it so. Tobby's heart prayed the same prayer through Myra's lips, and when she had ceased, and overpowered with weariness, sank gradually to sleep, he repeated again and again this one supplication, so applicable to their present situation—'Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil.'

What an expression of relief and thankfulness came on Tobby's face as he saw Myra's lovely countenance settle into slumber. This removed his worst apprehensions, for he knew that her sleep was always so profound that scarcely any noise could disturb it, and she would, therefore, be unconscious of those evil sights and sounds which the lodging house would present.

'Yes, yes,' said Tobby to himself, 'she has had her answer already. That blessed sleep is her answer, for it delivers her from evil.'

'Now then, what are you doing there?' said a gruff voice at his elbow and at the same moment the flashing light of a lantern was cast upon him, whilst a great coated policeman stood grimly regarding them.

'Only resting for a little with the child,' answered Tobby, in a meeker tone than policemen are generally answered. It had its effect, for the intended official growl was suppressed and in its stead the watchman of the night said quite civilly—

'Resting, are you? You'll have to go though for you can't be allowed to sit there you know.'

'I am going,' replied Tobby, as with the tenderest care he entwined Myra's arms from his neck, and folding them on her breast, wrapped her up again in the shawl, and, slowly lifting her from his knee into his arms, bade the policeman a pleasant good-night, and walked on towards the other side of the square.

Before going he was prompted to ask the policeman to direct him to the nearest boarding house, but he checked the impulse and left the request unspoken. It might bring suspicion on him, for he knew in what ill-favor these houses were held by the police. Anyway, it would produce the conviction that he and Myra were tramps—probably beggars—and he could not bear to be thought of in this light even by a policeman. So he closed his half-opened lips and slowly limped away.

He knew that in some of the meaner and narrower streets close at hand were houses of the description he sought, and he made up his mind to enter the first he reached. He had no power of choice, and from old experience knew that they were all evil alike—the nightly inmates being composed of the vilest and most worthless specimens of humanity—men and women whom vice and misfortune had made homeless and poverty-stricken, and cast them beyond the pale of honest respectable society. Dire necessity alone, we may be very sure, made Tobby Sprat go within the precincts of such a place; and if he could possibly have done better he would have done it.

But being shut up to it for that night, he resolutely made his way along a dirty, damp, mouldy street, keeping his eyes well about him, till he saw in the glass of a lantern hung above a door in a passage, lodgings for travellers, threepence a night.

'Now for it,' muttered Tobby, making a desperate effort to screw his courage to the sticking place, and succeeding, and coming to a stand-still at the entrance to the passage.

He paused a moment to peer within the folds of the shawl at the face of Myra. She had never moved in his arms from the time they left the steps of the monument, and she slept on most calmly and peacefully.

'Thank God for that,' muttered Tobby, fervently, and moved in to the passage.

The door of the lodging-house was closed, but at his knock he was admitted into a wide passage within, where at a little table, with a sickly-looking candle before her, sat a coarse-featured woman, in a dirty muslin cap. This was the mistress of the establishment, and her object in sitting there was to get the price of the night's lodgings from every one who entered, for it was the rule there, as in all such places, that the money must be paid on entrance, and those who came unprovided were ruthlessly thrust back into the street.

'For myself and the child,' said Tobby, as he laid down a sixpence.

The woman nodded and told him to walk on, and turn to the left. This he did, and pushing open the only door in which the crooked passage terminated, a scene met his view which no amount of written description can accurately depict.

It was the kitchen of the establishment—a large low roofed, reeking, unsavoury place, the ceiling being crossed by bare rafters, the walls ingrained with dirt, the plaster broken away in many parts, and everything looking filthy and dilapidated in the extreme.

The stifling atmosphere was filled with tobacco smoke, and through the haze a light from a large fire and from a lamp hung from the ceiling shone upon the scene. And such a scene! The place was crowded with human beings—dirty, tattered, unsightly, and repulsive. A worse set of faces could scarcely have been beheld anywhere—low, beetle-browed, brutal men, who lived by violence and crime; half naked, leering, large mouthed, sensual chinned women, from whose countenance every womanly feature had been obliterated; young men of every blackguard type; girls lost to shame and virtue, and even children of both sexes who had already begun a life of profligacy and dishonesty.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

DR. GILES—I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barroom may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandwein;" the lymphatic Frenchman for his "Eau de vie;" the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and lands. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and will not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

TAKE NOTICE.

APPLICATION will be made at the next Session of the Dominion Parliament for an Act to authorize and empower the Corporation of the City of Belleville to build and construct a Roadway and footpath across part of the mouth of the River Moira, extending from the new Ferry Slip at the junction of Dundas and Front Streets, to the north-east corner of the Island in the mouth of the Harbor, lately occupied by H. B. Rathbun & Son, and for other purposes in connection with the same.

By order,
R. NEWBERY,
Clerk of Municipality,
City of Belleville.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Aneamia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Drug gists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

What is Now Doing in Madoc and Marmora

(From the Globe's Special Correspondent.)

MADOC, Jan. 14.

As a great deal of attention is now being paid to this section of Ontario, I do not know that I need make any apology for sending a short letter devoted chiefly to current news, to be interpolated (somewhat out of the regular course, it is true) in the series of mining letters I am now furnishing from other localities.

Since my last visit to this section everything has been progressing very much as I supposed they would, the activity of ore shipments being well maintained during both the bad weather and the holiday season.

Within a week or two more locations have become sufficiently developed to warrant a regular output, and are now making daily shipments with the same regularity that has so far characterized Mr. Pusey's operations at the Seymour mine and those of Messrs. Coe & Mitchell at the Wallbridge hematite mine.

The first of these new developments, the Andrews mine, is situated on lot 9 in the 5th concession of Madoc, and is the property of Messrs. C. H. & W. C. Andrews, prominent furnacemen of Youngstown, Ohio. The work is progressing under the superintendence of Mr. H. S. McMinn, who has acted here for the Messrs. Andrews from the commencement of their prospecting in Hastings. The working consists of an open cutting near the top of a moderately high hill, where the vein shows a width of about 26 feet and is clearly traceable about 100 feet along its course. Some clay had to be removed from the surface, and this cut now down some ten feet in the ore. In the upper floors the ore was considerably mixed with lime; but it appears to be growing purer and clearer as the cut is deepened. In looking over the ore already taken out I noticed some few pieces streaked with pyrites, but by far the greater part of it appeared quite free from any objectionable admixtures.

Mr. McMinn is now shipping at the rate of between 30 and 40 tons per day, and will no doubt be enabled to largely increase his output as his development of the mine progresses. The ore in this mine is very like that of the now well known Seymour mine, but appears, if anything a trifle less vitreous.

The Cleveland, Brown & Co. location. This property consists of lot 8 in the 7th concession of Madoc, which has been for some time known as the Sexsmith Lot. The work of opening this mine is managed by Capt. Mitchell (of Coe & Mitchell) for the owners, Messrs. Cleveland, Brown & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. The deposit now being worked runs along the face of a low bluff, and is overlaid with a coating of gravelly clay from four to six feet thick. Tests with the diamond drill show the vein to be a very strong one, fully one hundred feet wide and several hundred feet in length.

Finding that he had a large body of ore to work upon, Captain Mitchell has opened the working in a manner well calculated to take out the ore in a thoroughly economical manner. Commencing with a cutting some twelve or fourteen feet wide into the face of the bluff, he has cut through the soil, through the intervening wall rock, and into the vein, it being his intention to carry the cut through to the opposite wall. When this wall is reached he will then have a strong breast of ore on either side from which to slope along the vein both ways, affording an opportunity to work a large force of miners to advantage. He is now employing from fifteen to eighteen men, but as soon as the cut is completed he will be able to put on more than as many more. At present he is shipping about fifty tons per day.

By this system the carts are backed right into the working, and the ore and waste rocks are loaded into the carts with only one handling. This ore is of a high grade, showing a good percentage of metallic iron, but in the upper floors it is so mixed with sulphur that it requires a good deal of careful sorting. In the lower floors even of the present working, however, there is very little sulphur to be seen, and it is hoped that before long it will disappear altogether. This ore all goes to the Company's furnaces at Youngstown, Ohio.

There are other very promising-looking prospects on this lot, that will be opened as soon as the present working shall have been put in a satisfactory shape.

The Stewart location in the 10th concession of Marmora, near Malone, is now looking extremely well, and it is not unlikely that during the present winter Mr. Stewart will haul a quantity of ore to the railway for shipment. So far as anything like an extensive development of this property is concerned, however, it is safe to say that nothing of importance can be done till the ice and the extension of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway shall have been built.

Other iron locations, such as the "Dufferin," "Hobson," "Nelson," and "Feigh," that will be tributary to the extension, are still idle; but as soon as the speedy building of the road shall have become a certainty, vigorous operations will be commenced upon them.

The gold mines are all in a flourishing condition, though the activity in iron mining appears for the time being to have thrown them in the shade. A great deal of absurd nonsense has been telegraphed about the gold mining here, which, though not calculated to deceive any practical mining men, has been the means of seriously misleading the public, or such portions of it as have not paid close attention to affairs of this kind. Of these reports perhaps the wildest was, that 50 acres of land near the "Dale" or "Gladstone" gold mine in Marmora had been sold for $20,000. No such sale was ever thought of, and the rumor never had the smallest foundation in fact.

At the Cook, Williams & Deau mine no results have yet been reached, and as an interest in the property is being negotiated for by the Wyandotte people who are working it, it is hardly likely that any figures as to the results will be given to the public for the present at least.

The Gatling location has been bonded to a company represented by Richard A. Rothwell for $200,000, payable as follows :—$75,000 on April 1st and $125,000 on August 1st, 1880. This offer remains open for three months from the first of this month, and in the meantime the property is being worked under a joint management made up of the two parties to the contract, the buyers having the option of assuming or declining the property at the price named within the time limit mentioned.

The new management have now before them an offer from a Buffalo firm of $15 per ton for five car loads of good, clean mispickle free on board the cars at Madoc.

The workings are now in a much more advanced state than they were on the occasion of my last visit. The main shaft, which is down some ninety feet on the incline of the vein, ten feet long and timbered seven feet wide in the clear, has been freed from water and is looking extremely well. The vein is fourteen feet wide at the bottom of the shaft, and appears to have averaged nearly or quite that width all the way from the surface, showing openings fully twenty feet between the walls in places. As seen in the bottom the vein appears to be composed entirely of quartz and mispickle, with some 20 or 25 per cent. of the latter. Seven other shafts are also being worked, and all are looking well.

The mill, which has four batteries of five stamps each (with a capacity of a ton to the stamp each twenty-four hours), is now all ready for working. The ore will first be broken with a Blake stone-breaker, then fed into the batteries, and crushed wet. It then passes to two large Australian buddles, which are placed directly in front of the batteries for concentrating, and here it is expected that the bulk of the free gold and the mispickle will be caught. The tailings from the buddlings will, however, be passed over sluices and blankets to catch anything of value that may be washed out. The ore thus concentrated (in the buddles and on the blankets) will be placed upon a drying floor, and when rendered perfectly dry will be fed into a three-hearth reverberatory furnace and roasted, to drive off the arsenic and sulphur. Thence it will be carried automatically to cast iron grinding pans, where it is twice ground. It will then pass through two sets of washers to free it from the red ochreous matter always present in roasted ore. After this it will be treated with mercury in amalgamating pans, the tailings from these passing over amalgamated copper plates, shaking tables, and mercury traps to catch any gold that may have escaped the amalgamators. It is expected that very little gold will be washed out of the amalgamators, however. The ore and amalgam will be finally taken out of the amalgamators, washed out in the usual way, after which the amalgam will be ready for retorting and smelting in the usual manner.

The Malone mills are still at work, doing a fair business, but neither the "Feigel" nor the "Gladstone" have been working any extraordinarily rich ore lately.

The Bannockburn mill, in the rear of the township of Madoc, is now running ten stamps on a trial lot of 300 tons of ore from the Craig mine in Tudor. Judge Dean has some 150 tons of ore raised on his gold properties in the rear of Madoc, which will also in all probability be crushed at this mill.

Mr. A. S. Brown (proprietor of the Bannockburn mill) is also making preparations for crushing this fall some of the two veins of gold-bearing ore on his own property adjoining the mill site.

Mr. Stewart is not now doing anything on lot 5 in the 9th concession of Marmora, which he holds under a lease from the Canada Company, but he expects to resume operations there in the spring. There is certainly a good vein of quartz and mispickle on the lot, which runs through lot 6 in the 9th (the Toronto Gold Mining Company's property), 7 in the 9th (the Cook, Williams & Dean location), a part of the 8th in the 9th (belonging to the same Company,) across the road allowance (held under lease by Mr. B. Walker, of Belleville), and over upon 9 in the 8th (the famous Gatling location.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 27.

The Canvass.

The canvass on behalf of Mr. Robertson is being conducted with considerable vigor, not only in this city, but in Sidney and Trenton, and the reports from all quarters are exceedingly satisfactory. There is still work to be done, however, and as it is utterly impossible to expect Mr. Robertson to make a complete personal canvass of the constituency between this and the day of the election, it is absolutely necessary that the Committees should come to his assistance and make thorough work of it. In the city each Ward has its Committee, with a competent Chairman, and with proper effort on the part of each Committeeman there is no reason why the majority of Mr. Robertson on Friday next should not be double that received in June last. The majority will entirely depend upon the personal effort of the members of the various Committees. They can make it 400 as easily as 200.

The Election Secure

In the prosecution of the canvass, the Committee are everywhere met with the assurance that the "election is secure." "We will vote for Robertson as we did last June," "His majority will be greatly increased," "There is no possibility of Sills getting a majority anywhere." It is in this universal feeling of security wherein lies the greatest danger. While we believe in the certainty of Mr. Robertson's election, we still also believe that the election can only be rendered absolutely safe by every friend and supporter of Mr. Robertson making the election his own personal business. When people feel secure about anything a certain amount of indifference follows, and the enemy is thereby able to steal a march upon his opponent. It is always well to be confident, but that confidence is most certain of success that carries with it the will, the power, and the determination to accomplish success. The way to obtain a triumphant victory on the 30th January, is for each elector to imagine that the result depends upon his individual vote. If this be done by all the opponents of the Mowat Government, then the election WILL BE SECURE, and we will be able on Friday evening to celebrate a glorious victory for Mr. Robertson, on yet even a grander scale than that which was celebrated on the 9th June last.

The Reaction.

Mr. Kerr, Liberal Conservative, was elected to the Ontario Legislature for the County of Stormont in June last, by a majority of 11, and was subsequently unseated on account of the indiscretions of some of his supporters. On the 23rd January, Mr. Kerr was re-elected for the same constituency by a majority of 108 over his opponent. That is the right kind of reaction, and that is the kind of reaction we want to see manifested in the West Hastings Election on Friday next. Let there be a grand rally early on the morning at every polling place of the friends and supporters of Mr. Robertson, and we will be able to chronicle a glorious victory for that gentleman on the evening of the 30th inst.

It is His Due.

When the verdict was made known voiding the election of Mr. Robertson for West Hastings, and saddling him with the costs, there was a universal feeling of indignation against the party who was instrumental in victimizing him, and a universal feeling of sympathy for Mr. Robertson, against whom not one act of impropriety could be brought home. It was felt, then, that if any Grit had the hardihood to oppose that gentleman at the new election, that he would be beaten by a much larger majority than that which defeated Mr. Holden in June. And it was quite a natural feeling, shared in largely by leading representatives of the Grit party, simply because Mr. Robertson was innocent of any unlawful act, and should not be held responsible for the indiscretions of his friends. Now, the most effectual way to revenge this indignity, and to show real substantial sympathy for the unfortunate victim, is to roll up a large majority for him at every polling place in the Riding. This can be done, if every friend of Mr. Robertson polls his vote, and it is due to that gentleman that it should be done.

Work To-morrow.

Let every Committeeman who has not done anything to-day, call upon the chairman for his ward and get a list of voters upon whom he may call, and devote to-morrow to the work of canvassing. While on your tour do not forget to ask for volunteer teams and get their names, the kind of vehicle, and leave the information with the chairman of the General Committee, N. B. Falkiner Esq., or at the the rooms of the Liberal Conservative Association. Do not put the work off after to-morrow, and while you are engaged in it, make the work thorough.

Volunteer Teams.

The law is very strict against the hiring of vehicles for conveying voters to the polls. But any man can volunteer his team for that purpose, and as it is always found desirable to have vehicles at the various polling places on the day of election, it is earnestly hoped that every friend of Mr. Robertson who has a rig, single or double, that he can spare on that day, will volunteer its use to the Committee. Many a voter is lost simply because there has been no means of getting him out to the polls. Let there be no reason for such an excuse on Friday next. All who are willing to place their teams at the disposal of the Committee on Friday next, are requested to leave their names with the Chairman, N. B. Falkiner, Esq., at his office, or at the hall of the Conservative Association, INTELLIGENCER building. This should be done at once, so that the committee can arrange for the disposal of the same before the day of election.

Be Careful.

It is to be hoped that in the contest now being carried on in West Hastings, no true friend of Mr. Robertson will, by any act or promise, do anything to compromise the election. While we urge prompt, earnest, vigorous effort, and a thorough canvass of every voter, and the use of every legitimate and lawful means to secure the election for our candidate, we warn our friends against the slightest infraction of the law. Mr. Robertson can be elected without the use of the means which the "party of purity" have so often paraded before the eyes of the electors, with a view to their corruption and debasement. All it wants is a hearty, united and voluntary effort on the part of all those who voted for him at the last election. This is his just due. Shall he not have it?

WORK! WORK!!

There are only three days left to complete the work of organization in West Hastings, and it is important that every friend and supporter of Mr. Robertson do his utmost within that time to perfect the organization. If there is a voter who has not been canvassed, let him be seen at once, and the doubtful ones canvassed again. It is also necessary that every other arrangement be made for bringing out the voters, as no vote ought to be lost for lack of systematic organization.

DARING ROBBERY.—On Saturday night the store of Mr. Rigney, grocer, Kingston, was robbed of a cash box containing $2,000 in cash and a number of notes. Late on Saturday evening, while Mr. Rigney and his assistants were preparing to leave two young men came into the shop and wanted to purchase some goods. The cash box was at this time lying on the counter near the safe. Shortly after the men went out, and when Mr. Rigney went to lock up the cash box was missing. On Sunday morning, the cash box, with the notes, but minus the cash, was found in a back street. Two young men named Gough and Deroche were arrested on suspicion and committed to goal, Mr. Rigney having identified them as the parties who were in the shop Saturday night.

Men are always disappointed when their desires are immoderate, or when they suffer their passions to overpower their reason, and dwell upon delightful scenes of future honors, power or riches, till they mistake probabilities for certainties, or wild wishes for rational expectations. If such men, when they awake from these voluntary dreams, find the pleasing phantom vanish away, what can they blame but their own folly?

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY, Jan. 26.

The first regular meeting of the City Council for 1880 was held last night at the usual hour.

PRESENT.—R. S. Patterson, Esq., Mayor; Ald. Brennan, J. Smith, St. Charles, Proctor, Lingham, McIntosh, Dickson, Holden, Geen, Vandusen, Grant, Robertson, T. Holden, Jellett, Hambly, Wallbridge, Petrie and A. L. Smith.

PETITIONS, &c.

The following were presented and read:—

From the Treasurer as follows: The amount of taxes collected from 1873 to 1879 and uncollected was $441,935.30; the total amount collected was $337,863.37; uncollected $104,071.93.

Ald. Ostrom and St. Charles came in.

From Jas. McGuire asking for a part remission of taxes on the property owned by him and partially destroyed by fire.

From Hector Howell praying for the office of Street Surveyor at a salary of $350.

From MRS. J. B. Patterson, asking to be credited with $200 on account of the opening of Alexander Street.

From John Lazier and others, asking for the repeal of the Snow By-law, and asking for the remission of fines imposed thereon.

From Lt. Col. Otter, appealing for aid to the Ontario Rifle Association to the extent of $10.

A number of accounts were presented and read.

The above were referred to their respective committees.

REPORTS.

From the Finance Committee recommending that the petitions of Hector Cameron and E. O. Bickford be discussed in open Council; that the request of Mr. Kent be referred to a committee to be appointed by the Council; that Mr. Tannahill's account for extra service be granted to the extent of $100, &c.

From the Fire Committee, approving of the payment of several accounts, and urging that hereafter no bills be paid unless authorized by the Chairman of that Committee.

A petition was here read from John King, asking the use of the City Hall for an athletic exhibition.

The several reports were appropriately referred.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Petrie asked if it was competent for the Returning Officer of this city to ask people to vote against Ald. Petrie. He also asked if it was proper for the City Clerk to insult an Alderman of this city, and also if the Police Magistrate could interfere in any other way in elections than in casting his vote.

The Mayor said these were matters that the Solicitor could properly decide.

Ald. Petrie said he would move in this matter at a subsequent meeting.

Ald. Ostrom asked why an account of Mr. Taugher's for water pipes had not been paid.

Ald. Hambly said that the account of Mr. Taugher, as far as it was proper, was paid. He had been paid for what was owed him.

Ald. T. Holden said that the Finance Committee now consisted of eleven members, whereas the rules of the Council ordered that but nine should comprise that body. He asked if a By-law had been introduced to increase the number beyond nine and if that was not the case its constitution was illegal.

Ald. Dickson was surprised that Ald. Holden should now speak on that point, inasmuch as he was a member of the special Committee and would not act thereon.

Ald. Robertson said the special Committee had deemed it advisable to act as they did.

The Mayor said no amendment had been made to the By-law.

NOTICES.

Ald. Jellett gave notice of a By-law for the adoption of the assessment roll.

For the appointment of a Board of Health, and to borrow money on the credit of the city.

Ald. A. L. Smith gave notice of a motion for a consolidation of the City debt?

Ald. Holden's motion presented at the last meeting, was allowed to stand.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Geen moved that no accounts to the city papers be paid, unless properly authorized by the chairman of committee.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Vandusen.

Ald. Dickson approved of the resolution, and had prepared a motion to a like effect but went a little farther, in that he would favor a reduction of salary or dismissal of an officer if this motion were not complied with. It was in the power of Chairmen of Committees to stop this large leak in the City's finances, and it now behoved those interested to act accordingly.

Ald. T. Holden said one of the rules of the Council was applicable in the premises, and averred that it was now unnecessary to pass such a motion as the one proposed.

Ald. Geen said he wanted public notice given of the fact that merchants and others should not give goods for the city unless they had the authority of the Council.

Ald. T. Holden said people would not give anything to the city unless they had received the sanction of the Council.

Ald. Brennan said all that was required was that the officials of the city should be required to not incur any expense to the city unless they were authorized to do so by the Chairmen of the several committees.

Ald. St. Charles moved that a committee consisting of Ald. Dickson, Jellet, the mover, seconder and the Mayor be appointed to consider the proposition of Mr. Kent, of Hamilton, re the establishment of smelting works and a glass factory.

Ald. D. Holden moved, seconded by Ald. Vandusen, that steps be taken to recover the overflow of the lands in the south part of Murney Ward, and for the dredging of the harbor, and for the purchase of a dredge. The speaker urged action now, inasmuch as the Ontario Parliament was now in session, and something should be done before the estimates were brought down.

The motion was carried.

Ald. St. Charles moved, seconded by Ald. Proctor, that Ald. Geen's motion be inserted in both daily papers.

Ald. Geen said he was desirous of giving his motion proper publicity, but he would desire that the same terms be got from the Ontario as had been obtained from the Free Press and the INTELLIGENCER. He did not object to the insertion of paid notices as advertisement in the Ontario, but he did not want to pay that paper more than he would another. The Ontario proprietor had said he would get his own prices, and it would be unfair to give that paper more than any other for any work.

Ald. T. Holden said this was an exceptional matter and should be published in one paper as well as another.

Ald. Dickson said that when advertising was done it should be done not for the benefit of the Council but for the advantage of the city.

Ald. Geen stated that all he wanted was that one paper should not receive more than another for its advertising rates. All he wanted was that the Ontario should not plaster up a long bill.

Council went into Committee on By-laws—Ald. Brennan in the chair.

Ald. St. Charles introduced a By-law altering a former one in regard to the removal of snow or ice from the front of premises and rendering a former By-law less stringent. The innovation consists in this, that snow shall be strewn on the sidewalk in slippery places and that ice shall not be removed from the streets to the detriment or injury of the sidewalks. A clause stipulating imprisonment unless a fine were paid for violation of this By-law was objected to by Ald. T. Holden, and his suggestion was endorsed by Ald. St. Charles.

The Solicitor stated that the Police Magistrates in the west had refused to act where a fine without imprisonment was in force.

The By-law was passed.

Ald. Robertson moved the second reading of the By-law to extend the time for the completion of the Grand Junction Railway, and for the payment to the trustees of $25,000—being one half the sum the city should pay on the completion of the road to Peterboro', had the original second contract been fulfilled. The mover, for the information of the new members, gave a brief resume of the history of this enterprise and the threatened litigation, the difficulties the contractors had met with, the hardship of raising further money for this road, and he urged that the project should not be jeopardized, that his proposition would be accepted, and that it would convey large benefits to this community. In conclusion he urged the laying aside of private feeling in this matter, and if the road were built he was confident it would confer great advantages to our young city.

On the request of Ald. Holden, the By-law was read. It provides as particularized above.

Ald. Robertson then moved the second reading of the By-law.

Ald. Dickson gave the substance of a former motion which ordered that $50,000 be paid on the completion of the road to Peterborough, why was it that this proposition was not accepted? It was said one half of the money was already earned and now as the debenture drew 6 per cent., why should they not be safe in our hands as in those of others, notwithstanding the Bank of Montreal refused to grant the $300,000 necessary for the completion of the road to Peterborough. The By-law carried by the last Council was fair and reasonable, and all he could infer was that there was a desire to lead us on for the purposes of getting more money. Mr. Bickford says if you don't give us more money we will not go any further, and there are no hopes that the contractors will get any more go to Omemee than they will to Peterborough.

Ald. Robertson said the original government subsidy had been cut down from $2,000 to $1,000, and this By-law would ask the government to restore what had been taken away from them.

Ald. Holden said this project would benefit those connected with it, and now to tell us that people with common sense would say that for $25,000 the further construction of this road was jeopardized, was to him an act that was not common sense. He objected to granting the request, as no favor was granted in return for it.

The motion was put and voted down.

The committee rose and reported.

Ald. Robertson moved, seconded by Ald. Farley, that the extension of time requested be granted.

Ald. Holden objected to this and the motion was withdrawn.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The amended Snow By-law was read a third time, passed and numbered.

Council went into committee on Ways and Means. Ald. Robertson in the Chair.

The recommendations of the Finance Committee were again read and passed, as were also a number of accounts.

In reference to the Grand Junction Railway matter and the proposed legislation thereon, Ald. Holden considered there should be a watch upon it on behalf of the Council.

Ald. Dickson moved that the petition of John King be referred to the Market Committee.

Moved by Ald. Farley that this Council petition the Government to restore the aid formerly granted it on its completion to Peterborough from Belleville and further to Omemee. Carried.

Ald. Dickson's motion passed.

Committee rose and reported,—Adopted.

Council adjourned.

TO THE ELECTORS OF

WEST HASTINGS.

GENTLEMEN,—Having to be in the country nearly all the time between this and election day, and the time being short, it will be utterly impossible to make a general personal canvass. I trust, therefore, that my friends will give me the same generous support that I received in June, notwithstanding I may be unable to call upon all of them.

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more). We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay?

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JANY. 27.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE COURT.—There was no business transacted at this judiciary to-day.

TRENTON RACES.—A large number of our citizens—lovers of horse-flesh, took advantage of the fine weather and the promised sport at Trenton and proceeded thither to-day to witness the races on the ice.

RECOVERED.—Mr. Stanton, conductor on the Grand Junction Railway, who was injured on the line about four weeks since, is we are glad to say, able to be out again, and will soon be able to take his place on the train.

CURLING.—Although it happens that the Belleville Curling Club has not been pitted against any foreign Club this year, still several interesting matches have been arranged amongst the members, of which particulars will hereafter be given.

THE FALL WHEAT.—Farmers are becoming alarmed for the safety of the fall wheat crops, owing to the unseasonable nature of the weather for some time past. The thawing by day and freezing by night has the effect of honey-combing the surface of the ground, thus heaving up the roots. The general impression is that unless there is a change very soon the fall wheat will be badly injured.

NEW CHURCH.—The Methodist Episcopal congregation of Stirling Circuit will (D.V.), provide a public Dinner in the interest of a new Church in the village of Stirling. Dinner to be served in Messrs. Flint & Jellett's Block, on February 11th. Revs. Bishop Carman, D.D., B. Lane, M.A., A. Campbell, Presiding Elder of the District, and others, are expected on the occasion. Dinner served at 3, p. m. Tickets, 40 cents.

ORE FOR ASSAYING.—We understand that some 300 pounds of selected specimens of various kinds of ores from the mineral regions of the north, were sent from this port yesterday to Buffalo for the purpose of assay. The specimens comprised iron, gold, silver and other ores, and were selected by a practical mineralogist and assayer. The result of these assays will no doubt be made public before long.

A NEW PROJECT.—A Company styled "The Hastings Land Purchasing Association" has recently been formed in this locality, for the purpose of purchasing and locating lands in Manitoba, and sending those who are westwardly inclined thereto. The officers of the organization are as follows:—President, J. C. Foster. Vice-President, J. M. Ashley. Secretary, F. Brenton. Treasurer, P. R. Daly. Three delegates, who are to go out to Manitoba to select lands have been appointed, as follows: Thos. Hambly, C. Ashley, and J. S. Hamilton.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—One day last week, Mr. and Mrs. ——left their house in this City to go down street, and were probably absent a couple of hours. They left their three little ones in charge of a servant girl, and little dreamed of the dreadful peril to which they would be exposed, or their narrow escape from certain death. The children were in a room up stairs playing, while the servant was attending to her household duties below, and evidently had paid no attention to what the little ones were doing. When the parents returned, a spectacle presented itself which may well have caused their hearts to chill and their blood to run cold. The room in which the children were was covered with burned straw, dozens of burnt matches were scattered around the floor, and the oil lamp had been emptied of its contents. I appeared from the surroundings that the children had taken the straw out of the bed, poured oil upon it, and set it on fire, and it is a miracle that the house was not consumed, and the children with it. The incident conveys its own moral.

A Denial.

It was stated in the Ontario a few days ago that Mr. S. T. Wilmot, who successfully opposed Mr. Sills, for the Receivship of Sidney, intended giving Mr. Sills a warm support in the present election contest. We are informed on good authority that Mr. Wilmot does not intend doing any such thing. Mr. Wilmot, we understand, sent a letter to the Ontario last Friday requesting its editor to deny that statement, but, for some reason best known to him, that letter has not yet made its appearance. Why?

INCENDIARISM.

HARRIS & WALTON'S FACTORY DESTROYED.

Shortly after three o'clock this morning the east side of the building situated between Mill and Great St. James streets used as a sash and blind factory, was discovered to be on fire. The alarm was promptly given and No. 2 steamer went quickly to the scene. The inflammable nature of the building caused the fire to spread rapidly throughout it, and in a short time the entire structure was a sheet of flame. The firemen worked with commendable energy and promptness, and by their exertions the surrounding buildings and a large quantity of lumber were saved.

The building and a part of the machinery was owned by Mr. Wm. Dafoe, whose loss was $1,200. Mr. John Butterfield owned another portion of the machinery, and he loses $1,200. Harris & Walton's loss, which comprised material ready for their manufacturing purposes, was $500. Eight mechanics lost their tools by this fire and their loss is set at $400. There was no insurance whatever on the property.

The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary as at the part where it broke out there was no stove, nor was the engine room in that quarter of the structure, and shavings which lay near the engine this morning presented no sign of fire having passed through them.

County Council.

TUESDAY, Jan. 27.

The members of the County Council of the County of Hastings assembled at 2 p. m., pursuant to the provisions of the statute, for the purpose of organization. The following gentlemen deposited their certificates of election and made the necessary declaration:—

SIDNEY.—S. T. Wilmot, Reeve; B. H. Vandervoort, First Deputy; Henry G. Bleecker, Second Deputy.

THURLOW.—H. Ashley, Reeve; W. C. Farley, First Deputy; Jas. A. McCreadie, Second Deputy.

TYENDINAGA.—N. S. Appleby, Reeve; D. Anderson, First Deputy; M. Lally, Second Deputy.

TRENTON.—G. H. Gordon, Reeve; G. W. Ostrom, Deputy.

MILL POINT.—W. R. Aylsworth, Reeve.

HUNGERFORD.—Robt. Gordon, Reeve; P. Murphy, Deputy.

HUNTINGDON.—T. Emo, Reeve; M. Robinson, Deputy.

RAWDON.—T. Walker, Reeve; S. S. Vandervoort, Deputy.

STIRLING.—Dr. Faulkner, Reeve.

MARMORA AND LAKE.—T. P. Pearce, Reeve.

MADOC.—P. Vankleek, Reeve; J. Caskey, Deputy.

MADOC VILLAGE.—E. D. O'Flynn, Reeve.

ELZEVIR AND GRIMSTHORPE.—Jas. Tuttle, Reeve.

TUDOR, et al,—J. McGregor, Reeve.

DUNGANNON AND FARADAY.—D. Kavanagh, Reeve.

MONTEAGLE AND HERSCHEL.—J. Fitzgerald, Reeve.

CARLOW AND MAYO.—W. D. Parkhurst, Reeve.

BANGOR, WICKLOW AND MCCLURE.—C. McDavitt, Reeve.

On motion of Mr. Aylsworth, seconded by Mr. Emo, Harford Ashley, Esq., Reeve of Thurlow, was elected Warden, there being no opposition.

A SENSATION.—Quite a sensation was created in the Methodist Church, Brantford, on Saturday evening. While Rev. Mr. Broadway who is engaged in revival services in that church, was praying, a Miss Clinch, of 50 summers, strode up the aisle with a shawl thrown over her head, and began pounding the Minister, and shouting out that he had ruined her character by slander. A great commotion ensued; she was soon bustled out of doors. Miss Clinch is supposed to be insane.

HUNGER AND COLD.—A cable d espatch says: An arctic wave prevails throughout Ireland and the cold is intense. Much suffering is experienced by the poorer people, especially on the north-west and south-west coasts, where the greatest amount of destitution exists. It is feared that many people will perish, as the local charities are not able to care for them. The danger from the cold is increased by lack of food, hunger rendering the peasantry more susceptible to change in the weather. The cold is also very sharp in England.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—I was much surprised this evening to find that there was a wide spread report that my family had been prostrated by small-pox. From what I learn the report originated on the grammar-school grounds, through some little children living in the vicinity of my residence, from a love of the sensational.

I should not think of noticing the matter except for the terror such a report is likely to create, and the injury it might likely do the town if spread through the country.

It is with a heart full of gratitude that I inform you and the public that the report is entirely without foundation. Herewith I hand you certificates from my family physician.

West Hastings Election.

FROM TRENTON.

TRENTON, Jan. 27.

A despatch from Trenton to-day states that both the candidates held meetings at Trenton last evening. That held by Mr. Robertson was most enthusiastic, and was attended by over two hundred persons. At the meeting held by Mr. Sills only eight were present. Mr Robertson will receive a very large majority in Trenton. Keep the ball rolling.

From the North-West.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

FORT WALSH, Jan. 3rd, 1880.

At a large post like this, and at a time like the present, when so much of importance occurs from day to day, one has but little time to think of aught else than the duty of the hour. But this being the holiday season, is an exceptional time, and as the serious duties of life are for the present suspended, perhaps I may, too, lay aside the "cares of office," and have a chat with you, about how we passed the festive season of the year in this far off corner of the world.

The past week was a gay one; there had been no less than three weddings, and after each one was a ball. The dance after a wedding seems almost as essential as the ceremony itself. Should any unconventional individual dare to get married in this country without giving the customary dance, woe betide him. But Xmas week, with its dinners, and dances, its greetings and gaieties, is over; and New Year's day, the day of all others, too, has come and gone. It is a time of great rejoicing and merry making among the people, and when every one seems to make a point of wiping out all the feuds and difficulties that have occurred and accumulated during the previous twelve months. Men, women and children, dressed in their best, go about from house to house visiting, a custom not unlike our own, but in one respect it differs materially; it matters not whether your visitor is Indian or half-breed, a civilized or savage belle, they will "salute you with a kiss." I think it is almost a pity that this custom, to a limited extent at least, is not introduced in other countries.

I commenced telling you that generally there is plenty to keep one busy, and perhaps it is well that it is so, for, were it not, I'm afraid contrasting the present with the pleasures and associations of a year ago, would tend to place me in anything but a cheerful frame of mind. As an instance: On New Year's eve a melancholy pleasure had stolen over me, the season, the festivities, the place were all favorable to such a state of feeling, the reminiscences of twelve months ago crowded upon my mind. I tried to think of other things, but it was no use, the inevitable must be submitted to, and in imagination I lived again among those with whom I was associated on last New Year's eve. What such feelings would have drawn me to I dare not fancy, had not the band, in my case most opportunely, concluded to treat us to the pleasure of a serenade. It startled me from my reverie, and the too pleasant vision was for the moment dispelled. I shook myself, resolved to do or die, and with a brother officer left to witness, but not to take part in the New Year ball in the settlement.

A day or two before I had married the worthy couple who were delighting their friends by giving their first "At Home."

We arrived when the gaiety was at its height, and I doubt, if there was a party, on the same night, in any part of Canada, where the guests were in higher spirits, or more thoroughly enjoying themselves, than were these at this New Year's dance, in the Far North West. How shall I describe the pretty squaws and half breed belles, vieing with their fair sisters from the east, in grace of movement and style of dress, or how the gay young troopers, all "booted and spurred" and gorgeous in scarlet and gold. Many a one of whom, on that night twelve months before, was doubtless the "petted exquisite" of some fashionable drawing room, but since then, carried away by the romance of such a life as this, has "taken the shilling," donned the uniform of the careless, gay dragoon, and now more fascinating than ever plays sad havoc with our lovely but unsophisticated beauties. A huge good natured fellow perched on the top of a high platform, in a sort of recitative and in time with the music of the capital band of the Force, guides the dancers through the intricate figures, until in obedience to his command, they "all promenade."

There is a short interval. "Partners for a waltz," is heard above the conversation and "the poetry of motion" begins to the strains of "Sweet Little Butter Cup," as I say good night to the hostess and leave the happy revellers to dance "the old year out and the new year in."

All this is the poetry of life and soldiering in the North West. Perhaps at another time I may give you the prose side. So wishing you all at home a Merry Xmas and Happy New Year, I shall turn in for the night.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. EUROPEAN.

ALEXANDRIA, Jan. 27.—Dr. Fenton, a highly instructed Mason, confirms the discovery of masonic emblems under the obelisk, and declares the Hiram version of Masonry as having originated with the construction of Solomon's temple is disproved, and that it is now shown that Masonry originated with the construction of the pyramids, or at least with a far remoter period than the construction of the foundation of the obelisk? The number of blocks comprising the foundation, as well as their position and arrangement, indicate that the ancients were familiar with the degrees of Masonry, at least as high as the 18th. This discovery furnishes a clue to other important discoveries, rendering probable a solution of the mystery of the construction of the pyramids.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27.—Much feeling is aroused by the Duke of Marlborough's refusal to attend the Lord Mayor's banquet. During 40 years there has been no occasion when the Viceroy failed to attent; even when O'Connell was Lord Mayor, and antagonizing the Government, the Viceroy attended.

LONDON, Jan. 27th.—There is a steamship from Australia on her way to London with an experimental cargo of fresh meat in cases of 500 bullocks and several hundred sheep.

A Constantinople correspondent says: An English newspaper here is suspended for criticising the recent honors bestowed on Hafiz Pasha, minister of police. The printing office has been closed by a force of police. The latter act is in violation of the terms of capitulation. The Porte will be called to account.

There is a doubtful report from Teheran that under the influence of England an understanding has been arrived at between Persia and Beloochistan as against Afghanistan.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The approaching session of Parliament is regarded with much anxiety, and is certainly to be stormy. It is asserted by Liberals that if it has continued a fortnight the Government may be compelled either to resign or dissolve, but the Government party sneer at the threats of the Liberals.

HUDSON, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The trial of Henry Mostt for the murder of his wife, is Abel and Jacob proper, at Taghkanic, commenced yesterday.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 27.—The will of the late Sebastian Brant, bequeathing his estate and $40,000 to his grand children, was being read yesterday when Andrew George, his son in law, asked to see it and threw it into the fire. The will left $5 to George; he has been arrested.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—Eli Cunningham, confined in the Farmington gaol for murder, pinioned his limbs on Sunday night and hung himself to his cell. Many believed him insane.

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—In the Assembly to-day the "privileges of the floor" were voted to Parnell, the Irish agitator.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Herald's Cairo letter contains the startling particulars, until now unrevealed, of the dethronement of Abdul Aziz, Sultan of Turkey in 1876. The Sultan having been informed that his favorite wife was unfaithful he charged her with the crime and in a private room of the harem ha beat her to death. Before dying she sent a message to Hassen Aoni, Grand Vizer and Minister of War, and her paramour, asking him to revenge her death. The latter conspired with others of the Cabinet and marched to the palace with troops, deposed the Sultan and proclaimed Murad, the Sultan's nephew his successor.

The Herald's Baltimore special says that the conversion of the Rev. Joham Hoja from the Catholic to Lutheran faith, is attributed to his devotion to a pretty young girl.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

In the middle of the room stood a man evidently just arrived, for a woman had risen up to greet him, and was showing signs of joy at his presence. His appearance made it very evident that he had just come out of prison. He was short made, broad-shouldered, and thick necked; his round, bullet head wore a closely cropped covering of black, bristly hair—a head mark, by the way, common to many in the room. His face was savage looking in expression, and he wore a suit of dark moleskin clothes. It was no breach of charity to set him down as a desperate and daring burglar, who had but served out his time of punishment, and was ready to start again in his career of crime.

In one corner a group of two men and two women were squatted on the floor famishly devouring bread and meat. Round the table were congregated a noisy group, feasting and drinking with riotous revelry. They, too, were shaggy haired, savage looking men of the robber class, enjoying the fruits of their ill-gotten gains, and boastfully narrating their deeds of fraud and violence, as they drained cups of brandy, and discussed a luxurious meal, which in quality and abundance never gladdened the eyes of industrious artisans. In other parts of the room similar groups were congregated–some shouting in drunken frenzy, others quarrelling over the division their spoils, others quietly and eagerly consuming their supper, and yet others singing boisterously obscene songs, or raising shouts of ribald laughter, while the flickering firelight, casting its shadows to and fro over the dreadful scene, made it resemble still more in appearance what it did in reality—the murky regions of the lost.

Tobby Spratt stood on the threshold gazing at it for some moments in horror and dismay. Bravely as he nerved himself for what he was to behold, the terrible reality that met his view was so appalling as to make him at first sight think of turning back. But he reflected that nowhere would he find more select society, and with a groan he passed through the midst of the horrid throng towards a door which he rightly judged led into the sleeping apartments.

His progress across the thronged kitchen among the Babel of sound and fury was noticed particularly by no one, and most thankful he was thus to escape observation He dreaded lest the noise of the noxious vapors should awake Myra, but she still slept with perfect tranquility, and oh! how pure in her childish innocence compared with the seething mass of sin and foul corruption which surged all round.

Two immense rooms—one opening into the other—formed the sleeping places. The beds consisted for the most part of dirty canvas mattresses, stuffed with straw, and spread in rows on the floor; and a large number of these were already occupied by a promiscuous company—promiscuous as to age and sex, promiscuous also as regarded arrangement or division. The scene here was even more loathsome and sickening than in the kitchen, and Tobby shuddered as he beheld it. Hastily running his eye over the place he noticed an empty couch in one corner just a little more secluded than the rest, and made his way towards it, often stumbling as he went over recumbent forms who littered the filthy floor in all directions.

Here close to the wall he laid Myra down, in her shawl wrappings, and without venturing to undress, or even to get under the coarse and scanty bed coverings, he stretched himself beside her, and closed his eyes against the dreadful spectacle. He wished he could also close his ears against the wicked sounds. He did his best to think on other things, and not to hear them.

And in truth his mind had anxious thoughts to occupy it—thoughts sad and serious enough to be proof against the distracting power, of surrounding influences, for they were thoughts concerning the dark rayless future. What was to become of Myra and himself? How was he to protect and support the charge he had undertaken? The morrow was coming. He could find food for it, but was it to close for them in another lodging house, and how were the wants of the days following to be supplied? This was a problem to which Tobby could see no solution whatever, and naturally enough it produced much anxiety in his mind—anxiety, but not to a torturing extent. Tobby had essentially a trusting nature, and his intercourse with the two children made him more childlike. He called to mind what had been said about the impossibility of a sparrow falling to the ground without the Father's cognisance, and this led him to remember that He who had made the statement had added 'Are not ye of more value than many sparrows?' Tobby rested on this divine logic and was tranquilised.

Strange thoughts and hopes to be pondered and cherished in that uncongenial place, where everything approaching a relationship to the Great Teacher seemed to be lost, and where the devil reigned with supreme and undisputed sway.

Though tranquilised and comforted, Tobby did not become supine, nor resolved just to trust to providence and do nothing himself. 'God helps those who help themselves' was one of his favorite sayings, and he had no notion of things coming right apart from his own efforts. So he still kept thinking as to what he should do and his meditations were rewarded at length by something like a practical idea.

Long years ago, when Tobby was young and active, he had loved and lost, the object of his affection being a certain Maria Pemberton, who had two suitors for her hand at the same moment, Tobby Spratt being one of them. Tobby was not disliked by her, in fact there was good reason to suppose that of the two he was nearest her heart. But Tobby's profession was a precarious and a wandering one, and Maria's love was not strong enough to risk it. So she preferred to become the wife of the other—a dealer in coals in a small way—who took her home to his moderate establishment in Lambeth Walk. Tobby felt it, but not sullenly, or savagely, and more than once, when in London, he had called on the couple in a friendly way, and been received in the same spirit, not by Maria only, but by her husband. They had a room to let up-stairs, and on one occasion, this room being empty, Tobby was their single lodger for whole four weeks. This was years ago, and not having been in their neighborhood since he had not seen them for that long period, but it occurred to him to go there on the morrow. He was sure they would give him and the child shelter if they could, and under their honest roof Tobby would have time to turn round and see what was to be done.

That night of horror slowly passed away, and through the whole of it Myra's profound sleep was unbroken. Tobby of course, never closed his eyes. His charge was too precious to allow him to do that, and when the first streaks of morning light came through the dilapidated window he rose from his unfragrant lair, and lifting Myra in his arms picked his way over the sleeping figures—they were all quiet now—and passed out into the cold but sweet reviving air of the new day.

A rushing sensation of thankfulness—something between a sob and a gasp—escaped from Tobby's bosom and lips when he was clear of the infamous lodging-house, and thought that the child had never been conscious of its pollutions. Never had the air of the London streets seemed to him so pure and fragrant, and he inhaled it in large lungfulls with delicious satisfaction.

He took his way again to the monument, and had just seated himself on the steps when Myra awoke.

Awoke in wonder, at sight of the open sky and the tall shaft of the monument, for she was for some moments in forgetfulness of the occurrences of the previous evening. But a brief look of enquiry into Tobby's face brought all to her mind, and she sprang up and kissed him.

They were both hungry now, and went at once to a coffee-shop, where they had a nice warm breakfast for fourpence each. Then Tobby, disposing the shawl round Myra so as to cover from observation her gay performing dress, took her hand, and away they walked across London Bridge, to go to Lambeth Walk.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Pilot.

Have you ever travelled by steamboat down the St. Lawrence River? It is a study of human nature as well as of scenery. The crowds of passengers, speaking various languages, is one feature, and the diversities of landscape, another. In the little barroom may be seen the lethargic German calling for his "brandwein;" the lymphatic Frenchman for his "Eau de vie;" the Englishman for his "ale," and the American for his "Bourbon straight." Little groups discuss the prices of lumber, cattle and lands. This cabin is filled with tobacco smoke so thick that you can cut it with your finger. Above this is the cabin filled with ladies and children lounging about the counters with their photographs, curiosities and Indian wares. Still higher up is the cabin for the pilot, to whose skilful hands are entrusted all these lives, cool and experienced, guiding the boat to its destination. How much is entrusted to him! He has never failed yet, and will not now. So in the family. Some dear one is sick nigh unto death. Friends are about the bed. Dr. HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS are here the pilot. They have never failed yet, and will not now.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 16, 1874.

DR. GILES—I paid one hundred dollars to a veterinary surgeon for medicine and attendance on a valuable saddle horse, without any benefit. He was lame from a curb more than a year, and useless in consequence of it. No remedy I could find had any effect. I applied the Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and, to my great surprise, found that it removed both lump and lameness. Having driven him recently over a very rough road, sixty miles in two days—two of the hottest days this summer—without the least symptom of return of curb or lameness. As a precaution I took a bottle of Liniment with me, but had no occasion to use it. In all cases where a Liniment can be applied, it gives me the greatest satisfaction.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

TAKE NOTICE.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Fee.	Assessment on Death of Memb'r
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50	$0.38

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER.

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, OR WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY, Jan. 26.

The speaker took the chair at three o'clock.

RAILWAYS.

Mr. Pardee presented the report of the Railway Committee, approving of the bill for the incorporation of the Port Rowan and Lake Shore Railway Company.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

The following bills were introduced and read a first time:—

To amend the revised statutes respecting land surveyor, and the survey of lands—Mr. Pardee.

To amend the Free Grant and Homestead Act—Mr. Pardee.

To amend chap. 23 of the revised statutes, respecting the sale of public lands—Mr. Pardee.

STATUTE LABOUR.

Mr. Badgerow moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Municipal Act, the object of which was to enable incorporated villages to pass by laws making the performance of statute labour compulsory.

Mr. Mowat said there were some objections to the bill, but he would consent to its going to the Municipal Committee.

Mr. Meredith said there were many objections to the performance of statute labour, and the whole question should be considered. He was opposed to the continual tinkering with the Municipal law, and thought that its too frequent amendment would be more likely to bring the House into discredit with the people than anything else. Of course every new member had to try to amend the law, but there must be a limit to that sort of thing.

Mr. Badgerow said two incorporated villages in his constituency desired the measure which he had introduced.

The bill was read a second time and referred to the Municipal Committee.

THE BUDGET.

Mr. Meredith asked whether the Treasurer would make his financial statement to-morrow, or whether the estimates would be brought down first?

Mr. Mowat said the Treasurer would be ready to go on to-morrow, but he was not sure that the estimates would be ready. If the hon. gentleman would prefer that the estimates should be brought down before the statement was made, there was no objections to deferring the budget.

Mr. Meredith thought the estimates should be brought down before the financial statement was made.

The House adjourned at 3:40.

Miscellaneous.

It is said of a Scoth "Innocent" that when a gentleman, by mistake had given him a shilling instead of a half-penny, and on discovering his mistake, asked restoration in the ordinary way when such mistakes and commited, by saying, "Hech, man, Rab, put I hae gi'en you a bad shilling; just return it to me and I'll give you another." "Oh, no," replied wise Rab. "I'll try to get it awa' mysel'; it wouldna suit you to be putting awa' ill siller."

A lazy dyspeptic was bewailing his own misfortunes, and speaking with a friend on the later's hearty appearance. "What do you do to make yourself so strong and healthy?" inquired the dyspeptic. "Live on fruit alone," answered the friend. "What kind of fruit?' "The fruit of industry; and I am never troubled with indigestion."

A young man who had just returned from a long journey, clasping his adored one in a loving embrace in a dimly lighted parlor, was seized with a great terror that, for an instant paralyzed all his energies. "Oh my darling," said he, wildly, "why didn't you write of this? What is is it—spinal disease, or have you dislocated some of your ribs, that you are obliged to wear this broad leather bandage?" "Oh, love," she gently murmured, "this is only my new belt; I would have got a broader one, but it would not go under my arms."

A piece of poetry written some years ago contains the line "hear the muffled tramp of years come stealing up the slope of time." This is all right and probably suited the age in which it was written, but now a days it would be more appropriate to say: "I hear the ragged tramp of twenty-seven years come shuffling up the garden walk, and I'll fly and lock the door before he steals the overcoat in the hall." Time works wondrous changes, and poetry must be made to fit the age in which we ive.

In a boarding house recently a young man on turning off his gas saw the words, "Confess thy sins" in phosphorescent characters on the wall. He was surprised but listening, though he heard some young ladies outside the door waiting to observe the effect on him. So pretending to be frightened at the match scratch he fell on his knees and confessed out aloud that he had frequently kissed one of the young ladies, the one whom he had best reason to suspect of playing the trick. That young lady won't play any more such tricks immediately. She thinks he is a mean, horrid thing.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as stubborn Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practice. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. ANNUAL REPORT.

The President and Directors of the N. H. A. S. beg to submit the following report:

The annual Show was held on the 9th October. Although the entries were 300 less than in 1878 the Show the present year was quite equal to its predecessor.

There were 17 entries in the Blood cattle class with pedigree, all of which were exhibited. In Horses, several of the heavy draught class were shown. The exhibition of Sheep was fully equal to if not superior to, that of former years, and the same may be said of Swine, Farm implements, Dairy produce, &c. In Grains, the judges had great difficulty in deciding, especially in white wheat.

It is a sufficient guarantee to the excellence and superiority of the Carriages exhibited to say, that the Messrs. Bristol Bros. of Madoc, are members of our Society, and exhibit work which carried off 1st prize at Ottawa, Kingston, and wherever shown.

Your Directors also report that owing to want of proper buildings and grounds—being represented as we are by the Minister of Customs for the Dominion—being in possession of Railway communication, and owning mountains of iron ore, and gold mines of the richest deposits and best quality, together with our immense pinery—should contribute to make this the most prosperous County in Ontario. But owing to the extreme length of the district (it being 150 miles long by 29 broad), a great part of which is not arable land, and to the fact that the Show is held on the southern boundary, it does not meet with the support it would were the district more compact.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

CONTINUED.

FIRST DAY.

Jan. 27, 1880.

There was a large attendance of residents of the County, several of those present having formerly represented various municipalities in the County Council.

The Clerk announced his readiness to receive nominations for Warden.

Mr. Aylsworth said he had a motion to propose, and it would result in a change of Chairmanship in lieu of the Clerk. His nominee for the Wardenship was an old Councillor and well fitted for the position. He had much pleasure in nominating Harford Ashley, Reeve of Thurlow, as Warden for 1880.

Mr. Emo took pleasure in seconding the nomination. Mr. Ashley was an old and deserving Councillor and would fill the office properly.

Mr. Anderson said the nomination met with his approval. Mr. Ashley was entitled, in his opinion, to the Wardenship, and if he was not the township he represented certainly was. Last year, although he was nominated for the Wardenship and he had resigned in his favor, and he (the speaker) was now sure Mr. Ashley would do his duty. He asked Mr. Ashley to take a leaf out of the book of the last Warden, and to be courteous and endeavor to keep down the expenses, though it was not his desire to be penny wise and pound foolish. He asked that all members be allowed to speak on any question, but to try and prevent members from speaking three or four times on one subject.

The Clerk here stated that as there were no other nominations he would declare Mr. Ashley elected as Warden for 1880.

The Warden elect having subscribed to the usual declaration, thanked the Council for his election and his mover and seconder for their kind remarks concerning them. He promised to endeavor to fill the duties without fear, favor or impartiality. He would look after the interests of the county as far as he possibly could and he would now suggest that we should make an effort to keep our expenditure within the estimates. We should use economy in all cases and the several representatives should act in that manner so that a saving to the county might be effected. He would advocate the lessening of the salary of Warden by $100 reducing it to $400. Last year had he known how the contest for the chair would terminate he would have resigned and allowed his competitor to be elected by acclamation as he had now been chosen. The expenses of the jury law, administration of justice and the payment of the debentures due on account of the purchase of roads by the county would have to be provided for this year, and he was pleased to say the Treasurer was confident he would have a sufficiency to provide the necessary funds. He again thanked the Council for the honor accorded him and then took the chair.

PETITIONS, &c.

The following were presented and read:

From H. H. Smith, of Peterborough, to renew the grant in re the Trent Valley Canal.

From the County Council of Carleton, asking that the petition to bridge the St.

Lawrence at Coteau Landing be approved of by the Council and the members of the Cabinet be urged to endorse the project.

From John Bell, Esq., asking the privilege of the right of mining an ore bed under the county road in Madoc. This was made in behalf of Mr. Stamburg, who agreed to make the proper covenant so that public travel would not be affected.

From H. C. McMinn of C. H. & C. W. Andrew's of Youngstown, Ohio, to the same effect.

From Ross and Chambers with a like purport.

From J. A. Wallbridge of the same character.

From the last Grand Jury requesting improvements in the jail; also inclosing a copy of the report of the last jury.

Mr. Aylesworth gave notices of By-laws for the appointment of County Auditors. Auditors for the Administration of Justice accounts and for the selection of High School Trustees.

Mr. Wilmot moved, seconded by Mr. Anderson, that Thomas Emo and A. McClatchie be appointed Auditors of the accounts for the administration of Justice.

Mr. Aylesworth said such a motion as the last should more properly come up under discussion in the committee on By-laws.

Mr. Wilmot's motion was withdrawn.

Mr. Tuttle gave notice of a By-law to confirm a By-law passed by the Council of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe.

The Clerk reported the receipt of 200 copies of the County Directory gotten up by the INTELLIGENCER Printing Company.

Mr. Aylesworth said the matter would come up when the Committee on ways and means met.

Mr. Pearce moved, seconded by Mr. Aylesworth, that Mr. R. S. Bell be appointed Deputy County Clerk. This, the mover said was a confirmation of the appointment which had been made, but would not entail additional expense.

The motion was carried and the Council adjourned till Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

SECOND DAY—MORNING SESSION.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 28.

The Council resumed at ten o'clock; when the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS, &c.

From Col. Otter, asking for aid to the Ontario Rifle Association to the extent of $10.

From Coe & Mitchell, asking the privilege of mining under the Hastings Road on such terms as the County ordered.

REPORTS.

The County Surveyor's report was presented and referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

The Warden here read a petition from residents of Tyendinaga asking for the reduction of the equalization of the assessment of Tyendinaga in as far as it applies to the Indian lands in that township.

Mr. Appleby seconded, Mr. Anderson moved that the matter be referred to a Committee of five members of this Council.

Mr. Wilmot said the matter could be delayed until June as the equalization of assessment for all the townships would then come up.

Mr. Murphy asked for a report from the Committee who went to Ottawa on this question.

Mr. Pearce reported verbally that the deputation had gone to Ottawa and had succeeded in getting the imposition of taxes on the Indian lands in that township allowed.

Mr. Vandervoort (Sidney) asked that this matter be referred to a committee of the whole to consider the subject.

Mr. Appleby wanted a committee inasmuch as legislation on this subject was needed.

Mr. Aylesworth said if a report on this question were made the Council could intelligently deal upon it.

The amendment was withdrawn and the original motion carried, the committee to be composed of the following gentlemen:—Pearce, Aylesworth, Appleby, Gordon and Walker.

A report from the last Council, recommending the payment of certain accounts passed by them, was read. The amount was $3,476 73, and was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

With regard to the inspection of the Trenton swing bridge, Mr. Pearce said, by inspection he had found that the timbers of the bridge were unsafe. The timbers in this structure were unsafe and unsound.

BY-LAWS.

Mr. Aylsworth moved the first reading of a By-law appointing County Auditors, Auditors for the accounts of Criminal Justice, and High School Trustees.

Mr. Tuttle moved the first reading of a By-law to confirm a by-law passed by the townships of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe. The above was referred to the Committee on By-laws.

The Committee on Public accounts on motion was chosen as follows: Messrs. O'Flynn, Aylesworth, Appleby, Gordon and Walker.

The Warden named the Gravel Roads Committee as follows:—Messrs. Appleby, R. Gordon, G. Gordon, Emo, Walker, Wilmot, Pearce, Van Kluk and Tuttle.

Mr. Kavanagh asked that a member from the north should be on the committee.

Mr. Anderson said he would favor the appointment of the whole Council as that Committee, and the members to receive no pay.

After remarks from Messrs. McGregor, Walker and Vankleek the subject dropped.

Council went into Committee of the whole on By-laws—Mr. Emo in the chair.

The second reading of the By-law to appoint County Auditors was passed. The Council appointed Hon. R. Read.

For the office of auditors of the accounts of administration of Justice accounts Mr. Wilmot seconded by Mr. Vandervoort that Messrs. T. Emo and A. McClatchie be the appointees.

Dr. Faulkner moved in amendment that Mr. Andrew Glass and Mr. T. Emo be appointed to the office.

The motion was seconded by Mr. R. Gordon.

The last motion passed.

The by-law approving of the passage of a by-law passed by the Council of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe was read a second time and laid over until the next session.

Committee rose and reported and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

The Warden appointed Mr. Jas. J. Farley as his auditor.

Council went into Committee of the whole on Ways and Means, Mr. Walkerin the Chair.

Several accounts were presented and ordered to be paid.

The requisition of the Ontario Rifle Association was granted.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

It being twelve o'clock the Warden left the Chair.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 28

Not So.

Because Mr. Johnston did not follow Mr. Clute in the discussion of the N. P. at the nomination, the Ontario flatters itself that he was afraid to handle the subject. The time that any speaker could occupy at the meeting was necessarily limited. Mr. Johnston wisely confined himself to the discussion of Ontario issues, and the relative merits of the two candidates. With these subjects he dealt most effectually. Mr. Clute preferred to introduce a subject that would draw the attention of the people from the short-comings and extravagance of the Mowat Government, but Mr. Johnston properly brought their attention back to the points to which they should now be directed. Should circumstances render it necessary that the present fiscal policy of the Dominion Government should be discussed its opponents will find not only gentlemen willing to discuss it from a favorable point of view, but will find the great majority of the electors of the Dominion recording their votes for its continuance.

Meeting at Frankford.

A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in Mr. Robertson's interest in Clarke's Hall, last evening. The hall was filled to the utmost. Short and stirring addresses were given by Mr. Robertson, Mr. Fraleck, and Mr. W. B. Northrup. Mr. Sills did not put in an appearance, alledging he had no invitation. Mr. Robertson sent a messenger to Mr. Sills' house. A brother of Mr. Sills attended and was invited to speak, but declined to do so. The meeting was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in Frankford, and argurs well for Friday next.

Thorough work is being done in this part, and we can confidently assert that Mr. Sills' boasted majority at Frankford will be minus when the ballots are counted on the eve of polling day.

Mr. Sills and his friends are resorting to the disreputable practice of stating in one part of the Riding that prominent Conservatives are supporting him in the other.

SENSATIONAL NEWS.—When Artemus Ward was editing a paper, he declared, in a dull spell, that what he wanted was "a murder, a good bloody murder," to wake people up and increase the circulation. It can hardly be said that Canada lacks sensational news, for in the papers of Monday we find accounts of crimes in the following order, beginning on the left hand column of despatches reading on consecutively—one murder, one ditto, one suicide, one slander, two fires, one "daring" robbery, one other suicide, one child murder, one concealment of birth and attempted murder; quite a reasonable list for one day, but by no means over the average of such contributions to general knowledge.

Form of Ballot.

The form of ballot paper used in Ontario Elections differs in some respects from that used in either Dominion or Municipal elections. The names of the candidates being arranged in alphabetical order, that of Mr. Robertson will appear first on the papers. The form of ballot and the mode of marking are as follows:

1	ROBERTSON. (Alex. Robertson, of the City of Belleville, Barrister.)	X
2	SILLS. (E. G. Sills, of the village of Frankford, miller.)

The ballot as above is marked with a X by the voter in the margin to the right of the name, and in favor of Mr. Robertson.

After marking your ballot, clearly and plainly, fold it so as to show the back only, hand it to the deputy returning officer, and see that it is put in the ballot box before you leave the polling booth. You will then have done your duty, and can devote the rest of the day to seeing that your neighbors do theirs.

THE REACTION FOR EVER!

DR. BERGIN RE-ELECTED FOR CORNWALL BY AN INCREASED MAJORITY.

EMPHATIC ENDORSATION OF THE N. P.

Dismay of the Opposition and Rejoicing of the Conservatives.

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 27.—The voting for a representative of Cornwall in the Dominion Parliament to day resulted in the triumphant re-election of Dr. Bergin. The following are the majorities:—

	Bergin.	McLennan.
Cornwall Town	78	..
East Ward	82	..
West Ward	27	..
Cornwall Township	..	5
Totals	187	5
Maj. for Dr. Bergin	182
Maj. for Dr. Bergin in 1878	38
Net gain in 1880	144

Bands of music are playing and the streets are alive with vast crowds of rejoicing electors. The friends of the Opposition here are overwhelmed with dismay and disappoint ment. Cornwall fully and heartily endorses the N. P.

Famine in Ireland.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—At a meeting of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, of this city, held on Sunday evening last, it was moved "That the daily papers of the city be requested to call a meeting of the citizens at an early day to take steps for the relief of the destitute Irish, by the opening of a subscription list; and that this Society head the said list with the sum of fifty dollars."—Carried.

I have, therefore, Sir, the honor to beg that you will kindly comply with the above request, and set on foot some practical and immediate means of relief.

Respectfully yours,

P. P. LYNCH,
Treasurer.

Belleville, Jan. 27.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR:—In your issue of the 26th inst, appears a letter from Mr. E. W. Johnston, setting forth that we, the promoters of the Assault-at-Arms and Athletic Exhibition, used his (Johnston's) name without his sanction. We wish to state that we did not want Johnston, as we do not consider that he could in any way add to the attraction of our programme, as the feats thereon are such as Johnston knows nothing about. Our intentions are, not to show the citizens of Belleville what Mr. Johnston can do, but to demonstrate to them what their own young men are capable of doing, with the instruction received at our Studio. This, we can assure the citizens, has been our whole study since our arrival here, and we are pleased to state it has not been without results.

Mr. Johnston states that his pupils will not take any part in the competition for the valuable prizes offered by the citizens; this they, however, dispute, as several of them have already entered who claim to have paid their dues to the Mechanics' Institute, and claim that Johnston has no authority to interfere with their rights.

Trusting, Mr. Editor, that you will give the public our statements, we subscribe ourselves,

Yours very respectfully,

ROSS & BARNES,
Instructors,
Belleville Athletic Studio.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

BRADFORD, Pa., Jan. 28.—Sam Logan, a member of the Health Board, has decamped leaving heavy deficits, and two wives with families. The wives are sisters and live in the same house.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 28.—Richard Woods, (colored), deserted his wife in Franklin Co. to live with a disreputable white woman. On Monday a crowd shot Woods dead and horse whipped his paramour.

PLEASANT VALLEY, Pa., Jan. 28.—A ball of the ancient order of Hibernians on Monday night ended in a fight, Jas. Haley firing at a crowd of assailants mortally wounded Michael Lynott.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 28.—The particulars of the burning of the steamer Charmer on Sunday put the loss at $120,000. The pilot bravely stood at his post and ran the vessel ashore. In a scramble to cross a gang of plank several were drowned. Of one hundred and four persons on board eight were lost. All the passengers were saved. A chamber maid went back to save $60 in her room and was seen no more.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—A number of Indiana Democratic lawyers and politicians have been subpœned by a Voorbees Exodus committee, to testify that Indians needs no colored laborers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The Sun's Albany special says that it seems to have got into the air there that the State Committee have some kind of creditable assurances that Tilden does not expect the Presidential nomination. The nomination of ex-Governor Ingersoll or English of Connecticut, are reported as favored by Tilden.

The Herald's Washington special says that there is no ground for the exciting reports about the warlike attitude of the administration toward the French canal project on the Isthmus.

The committee on the Inter Oceanic Canal have had an informal conversation with the Secretary of the Navy. He has never concealed his belief that the canal ought to be built and must be built under American control. Thompson and the President are the only members of the Administration who take a lively interest in the question, both of them are known to hold that the canal ought to be constructed by an American Company. The Members of the Committee think the proposed sale of the Panama Railroad an American corporation to the French company is a grave matter demanding investigation.

The Bill which the New York World's fair Committee will ask Congress to pass seeks for no appropriation, but provides for the Commission to direct the affair. The amount of claims deemed valid under the terms of the proposed treaty with France is about $1,500,000 on each side. France has already paid nearly $2,000,000 to the American citizens whose property in Paris was destroyed during the German-Franco war.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—It is now disclosed that the Brooklyn penitentiary convicts had been kept at work Sundays by the contractors, who were crowded with work.

The appeal for aid for the famishing Poles and Germans in upper Siberia is made. Artists from the leading German theatres in this city will give a benefit entertainment for the Silesians on Feb. 8th.

AN ENVIRONMENT IS ON FOOT among the colored military organizations of this city, to obtain admission to the State National Guard.

Mary Ann Fulsome, a handsome girl, aged 19, was arraigned yesterday for bigamy. She married Chas. Noll in 1878, and he discovered that she had married Samuel Allen in '76. When arrested she was living with another man. It is stated that her mother also has two husbands.

Free of Cost.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, etc, is given away in trial bottles free of cost to the afflicted. If you have a severe cough, cold, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness or any affection of the throat or lungs by all means give this wonderful remedy a trial. As you value your existence you cannot afford to let this opportunity pass. We could not afford and would not give this remedy away unless we knew it would accomplish what we claim for it. Thousands of hopeless cases have already been completely cured by it. There is no medicine in the world that will cure one-half the cases that DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY will cure. For sale by James Clark & Co., Belleville.

A FIERCE STRUGGLE!—Disease is ever preying upon man; from the cradle to the grave, more than one half of the human family have to contest inch by inch the progress of some ailment. What a boon then must BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS be; they purge out all poisonous matter, they purify the blood and humors, they give tone and power to the whole system, and enable the body to throw off disease that would otherwise have hurried it to the grave.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST HASTINGS.

GENTLEMEN,—Having to be in the country nearly all the time between this and election day, and the time being short, it will be utterly impossible to make a general personal canvass. I trust, therefore, that my friends will give me the same generous support that I received in June, notwithstanding I may be unable to call upon all of them.

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,
ALEX. ROBERTSON.

Belleville, Jan. 26, 1880.

Electoral District of the West Riding of the County of Hastings.

I CERTIFY that Alexander Robertson, Esquire, has appointed David Pitceathly, of the City of Belleville, Esquire, his Financial Agent during the present Election for the West Riding of Hastings.

W. H. PONTON,
Returning Officer.

Dated 23d January, 1880.

THE GREAT NORTH-WEST.

AN ASSOCIATION has been formed in Foxboro to be known as the Hastings Land Purchasing Association. Its object is to attain an easy means of procuring land in the Great North-West. Any person can by becoming a member of this Association have 160 320 acres of land located in whatever district they desire for the small sum of ten dollars, or fifteen dollars for locating a section (640 acres). As the terms of payment for Railway Land are so very reasonable, this means affords a golden opportunity for anyone to come into possession of a choice farm in what is soon to be the greatest Agricultural country in the world. The officers of the Association are as follows:—Joseph Foster, Esq., President; Francis Brenton Esq., Secretary; P. R. Daly Esq., Treasurer. A delegation has been appointed to go into the country to locate the required amount of land, and the three gentlemen elected to the responsible position are Messrs. Chas. Ashley, of Foxboro, Thos. Hambly, and J. S. Hamilton.

Further information can be obtained from either the officers or delegates of the Association.

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has the means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at is to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay?

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JANY. 28.

City and Vicinity.

The Police Record.—Three tramps recorded their existence and presence in this city by enlisting their names on the register of the City Hotel last night.

Iron Ore.—Another discovery of rich magnetic ore is now recorded. The find having been made in the township of Carlow, and a rich sample of which was exhibited at this office to-day.

Racing.—Owing to the unfavorable condition of the weather the races at Trenton yesterday were not as successful as were anticipated. The opening trot was undecided and the attendance was large.

Foggy.—A very dense fog enveloped the city last night and to a certain extent interfered with the outgoing of pedestrians. It also had a tendency to interfere with railroad travel for the air was so thick that objects could be seen at but a short distance.

The Bay.—The strength of the ice on the Bay is gradually lessening and the greatest caution should be exercised by those who wish to pass to either shore. Today single rigs were the rule in making the passage below the G. J. R. dock whilst at the mill above Zwick's Island double teams crossed over in safety.

A Large Loss.—A member of the County Council whilst coming down Front Street last evening lost his pocket-book which contained about $50 or $60, a note for $100 and some other valuable papers. It is to be hoped that the wealth dropped into the possession of some one who will have the honesty to return it.

Gone.—The rain of yesterday afternoon has obliterated almost every trace of the last visit of the fleecy element, and once again the sidewalks and streets are clear of snow and the glacial covering as well. Business suffers in consequence, as the produce of the farmer cannot be so readily marketed on wheels as it otherwise could be if the sleighing were good.

Lumbering.—Lumbering is reported as being prosperous and exhibiting signs of activity and briskness in the municipality of Dungannon and Faraday. The settlers in that locality get from 45c to 50c per bushel for their oats, and an average of $8.50 for their hay, and as the roads there are in good condition they readily dispose of their produce to the lumbermen with satisfactory results.

H. M. S. Pipafore.—We hope to see a full house to greet the Picton amateurs tomorrow afternoon and evening in the rendition of the above popular opera. From what we have heard the talent displayed on more than one occasion by this Company is worthy of a higher opera. The object for which the performance is intended is a good one, and in addition the evening performance with a comedy entitled "Turn him out." The several parts are fully sustained and requires some thirty performers. The general admission has been placed at 25 cents reserved seats 35 cents. Let the citizens of Belleville show their appreciation of amateur talent.

The Late P. D. Aikins.—Another of the honest yeomanry of Hastings County has passed away in the person of Peter Daly Aikins of the 3rd concession of Sidney. The deceased, son of the late Joseph Aikins, was born in 1811 on the lot where he spent his life and died. In October, 1878, he met with a very serious accident by a fall from a bridge crossing the railway near this city. From this injury he never fully recovered and his final sickness appears to have been traceable to the accident. He died of dropsy on Sunday, 25th inst., in the 70th year of his age and was buried on Tuesday the 27th in Hogle's burying ground. Rev. W. Richardson officiated. Deceased was a consistent member of the Methodist Church of Canada, and enjoyed the universal respect and esteem of the community where his life was passed.

Police.—There was no business before the Court to-day.

Temperance.—There were twelve installations at the Workingmen's Temperance Association last night.

Coming.—It is reported that the friends of the present Warden of the County intend entertaining him to a supper at Canifton. The date has as yet not been fixed upon.

Woman's Home.—The Mayor visited the women's home on Saturday last, and was much pleased with the manner in which the institution was conducted.

New Hose Ordered.—At the fire on Monday monday morning the suction hose of No. 2 steamer gave out and a new supply becoming necessary, an order for the same was sent to Montreal.

License Commissioner.—Mr. Thos. McCann, of Tweed, has been appointed License Commissioner of East Hastings, in the stead of Mr. John Thompson and Mr. Osborne in the stead of Mr. Curry of Tyendinaga.

A Valuable Bed.—Such are the prospects of the value of the iron ore bed in Madoc which runs under the county road that no less than four requests have been made to the County Council for the purpose of utilizing it.

For the West.—During the past week 45 cars of ore—principally hemmatite—have been shipped from the iron regions of this county to the American side. The majority of the shipments were conveyed to smelting furnaces in Ohio.

Game.—Bear, wolves and other game are reported as very scarce in the backwoods and huntsmen are at a loss to account for it. Bears have been seldom seen and the killing of but few has been recorded.

Narrow Escape.—A telegram from Brockville dated the 25th inst., furnishes the following:—A young man residing in town and employed as fireman on the G. T. R. between here and Belleville, fell from the engine the other day, while the train was going about 25 miles per hour. He says he rolled over and over a great many times, but at last got up without being at all injured.

Minerals.—We hear of some valuable minerals having been found in the rear of the township of Hungerford.—Asbestos of a superior quality and in large quantities have been found in the 14th concession.—Mr. John Palmer is developing an iron mine four miles from the village of Tweed which promises well.—Mr. George Wheeler has found iron ore on his lot in the vicinity of Bogart's. Its extent is not yet determined.

Wrecked.—Workmen were busily employed on the 26th inst. in raising a house in the rear of the College for removal to the rear of the lot where the neighbors were led to believe the house was intended to be used as a temporary hospital. Indignation ran high that the house should be intended for such use. The result was that when the workmen went to the building this morning, they found that the house had been raided during the night, the windows smashed, the door torn off the hinges and thrown to the other side of the street, the chimney torn down and the house itself almost demolished.

Deaf and Dumb Institute.—We are exceedingly pleased to observe from the last report of the Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb that such rapid strides are being made in the modes of instruction hitherto pursued. It is evident that the managers intend to keep abreast of the times. We are particularly pleased to notice that Mr. J. H. Brown, a Canadian, and a graduate of the Boston University and formerly Assistant Manager of the Commercial College of this city, has, after a tour of the United States, been selected to fill the position of articulation teacher in the Institution. Mr. Brown's services to the school since his short connection with it have, we are gratified to see, been as the report states "simply invaluable."

Volunteer Teams.

The law is very strict against the hiring of vehicles for conveying voters to the polls. But any man can volunteer his team for that purpose, and as it is always found desirable to have vehicles at the various polling places on the day of election, it is earnestly hoped that every friend of Mr. Robertson who has a rig, single or double, that he can spare on that day, will volunteer its use to the Committee. Many a voter is lost simply because there has been no means of getting him out to the polls. Let there be no reason for such an excuse on Friday next. All who are willing to place their teams at the disposal of the Committee on Friday next, are requested to leave their names with the Chairman, N. B. Falkiner, Esq., at his office, or at the hall of the Conservative Association, Intelligencer building. This should be done at once, so that the committee can arrange for the disposal of the same before the day of election.

Be Careful.

It is to be hoped that in the contest now being carried on in West Hastings, no true friend of Mr. Robertson will, by any act or promise, do anything to compromise the election. While we urge prompt, earnest, vigorous effort, and a thorough canvass of every voter, and the use of every legitimate and lawful means to secure the election for our candidate, we warn our friends against the slightest infraction of the law. Mr. Robertson can be elected without the use of the means which the "party of purity" have so often paraded before the eyes of the electors, with a view to their corruption and debasement. All it wants is a hearty, united and voluntary effort on the part of all those who voted for him at the last election. This is his just due. Shall he not have it?

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Bucharest, Jan. 28.—The administrative palace at Jassy, the ancient capital of Moldavia, was destroyed by fire. It is believed to be incendiary.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—The National Zeitung, in discussing the proposed increased army, says that the German nation is almost unanimous in approval of Bismarck's resolution to resist Panslavism as soon as it shows itself becoming an aggressive power. As yet Germany preserves friendly relations with official Russia, but Europe can only be thoroughly quieted by exertions in places whence the causes of the agitation have proceeded. Assurances of peace from the Russian press ought to be received with satisfaction, but it must not be forgotten that it is more easy to excite fears than to pacify them.

London, Jan. 28.—Arrived, the Gellert. It is reported that a 3rd line of steamers between Bristol and the United States is contemplated.

The Duchess of Marlborough's Irish relief fund amounts to 29,300 pounds.

Wrexling, W. Va., Jan. 8.—A sensational special sent recently from here with reference to fires and fire bugs have very little foundation.

Augusta, Me., January 28.—The Capital Guards and Richards' Light Infantry marched out to the State house this morning.

Probably the fusionist members will meet for the last time to-morrow, when they will dissolve sine die.

Boston, Jan. 28.—Wm. H. Brewster, one of the proprietors of the Traveller, is dead.

New York, Jan. 28.—The statement that President and Mrs. Hayes attended the theatre here on Monday night is unfounded. They were in Washington on Monday.

Albany, Jan. 28.—The Assembly held a recess of fifteen minutes this morning so that the members might become acquainted with Parnell.

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 28.—Joseph Wolf, aged 19, was shot probably fatally and robbed last night at Evana while going along the street. The murderer is unknown. Several arrests on suspicion.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 28.—Chief of Police Benson blew out his brains in a private room early this morning. The cause of mental aberration from domestic trouble.

New York, Jan. 28.—Antonio Giovanni Carola, for inveigling seven boys from Italy with intent to hold them in involuntary servitude for begging and playing on musical instruments, was sentenced to-day by Judge Benedict to 6 years in the Albany penitentiary. This is the first conviction here under the Padrone Act.

WEATHER REPORTS

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, brisk, westerly to northerly winds, partly cloudy, decidedly colder weather, with snow flurries in some localities.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Indications: For lower lakes to-day, decidedly colder, clear or partly cloudy weather. To-morrow, colder, partly cloudy, possibly with snow towards night.

The Election Secure

In the prosecution of the canvass, the Committee are everywhere met with the assurance that the "election is secure." "We will vote for Robertson as we did last June," "His majority will be greatly increased," "There is no possibility of Sills getting a majority anywhere." It is in this universal feeling of security wherein lies the greatest danger. While we believe in the certainty of Mr. Robertson's election, we still also believe that the election can only be rendered absolutely safe by every friend and supporter of Mr. Robertson making the election his own personal business. When people feel secure about anything a certain amount of indifference follows, and the enemy is thereby able to steal a march upon his opponent. It is always well to be confident, but that confidence is most certain of success that carries with it the will, the power, and the determination to accomplish success. The way to obtain a triumphant victory on the 30th January, is for each elector to imagine that the result depends upon his individual vote. If this be done by all the opponents of the Mowat Government, then the election will be secure, and we will be able on Friday evening to celebrate a glorious victory for Mr. Robertson, on yet even a grander scale than that which was celebrated on the 9th June last.

Addington Agricultural Society.—The following officers were elected for the current year, viz: President, Thos. Scott; 1st vice-president Adam Amey; 2nd vice-president, Jas. Price; Secretary-treasurer, J. B. Aylsworth; Directors, R. McConnell, W. D. Mace, for Longfield, A. V. Price and M. Storms, for Camden, E. J. Madden, for Newburgh, Jacob E. Shibley and J. Donnelly, for Portland, E. Byrne and L. A. Wheeler, for Sheffield. Auditors: J. Forsythe and J. C. Wells. Wednesday the 13th day of October was selected as the time for holding the society's exhibition next fall.

COMMERCIAL NOTES.

Jay Gould has resigned from the Directorship of the Union Pacific Railroad in order to be chosen a Director of the new Consolidated Union Pacific Company.

Mr. D. J. Church and Mr. J. T. McConnel, of the iron manufacturing firm of Church, Gee & Co., of Niles, Ohio, are on a visit to Ottawa, and will fully inspect the iron mines of Ottawa County.

Several prominent New York brokers on Saturday lost considerably by the decline in wheat. One had to get an extension from his creditors. Many outside speculators were wiped out.

The exports of cattle from Antigonish N. S., to Newfoundland during the past season were 40 cargoes containing 2,130, head of cattle, 2,328 sheep, 153 horses, two hundred tons butter, &c., &c., valued at $100,000.

Season charters are reported to have been made recently of 700,000 tons of iron ore at $1.75 from Escanaba to Cleveland and other Ohio ports, and at $2 50 to 2 75 per ton from Marquette, the latter being now bid for vessels to run till November 1st. Thus far 68 vessels had been engaged to carry ore to Cleveland, &c., most of them being barges and consorts.

Shipment of Cattle.—From a circular sent out by the Beaver Line Company, we learn that from the first of May to the 20th of December, 1879, they sent cattle to Liverpool by eleven steamers. The numbers were: Cattle, 1,966; sheep, 4,771; horses, 54. Of these there were landed alive cattle, 1,651; sheep, 4,700; horses, 54. Seven cattle and 25 sheep were landed dead, 8 cattle and 46 sheep were lost overboard, and 14 calves were landed, both on the passage. The loss was only 41 per thousand cattle.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that horrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, reader, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

THE NEW CORSET

Meets with Universal Approval and Annihilators of Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or elliptical lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to the form of different development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and renders it more a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular or Elliptical Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to secure an immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

CHAPTER XII.

TOBBY AND MYRA IN LAMBETH WALK—TOBBY PAYS A VISIT IN DISGUISE TO THE "SOW AND PIGS," AND RECEIVES HEAVY TIDINGS.

'Are you tired, darling?' asked Tobby of Myra, as they walked silently along.

'Oh, dear, no, Tobby; I'm not a bit tired I had such a sound sleep, and then the nice cup of warm coffee. I could walk much further yet. Did you think I was tired?'

'Well, yes, I fancied so. We have come a good long bit, you know, and you have not spoken any for the last ten minutes.'

'I was thinking of Charlie. Poor Charlie, how he will miss us, and how Master will beat him, now you are not there to hinder.'

'We must get Charlie away as soon as we can,' returned Tobby, with a sigh.

'Will you go for him to-day?' asked Myra, eagerly.

'Not to-day, darling, I fear. We must be very cunning about it, for if Master finds out what we're after, he'll not only keep Charlie, but hunt about for you, too. You and I will have to get put up somewhere before anything can be done for Charlie.'

'I know,' cried Myra, quite briskly. We must get a house somewhere, with a large room in it for performances, and Charlie and I will dance and tumble every night, and that will get money to keep us. Oh how happy we shall be, Tobby—we three without Master to rage and swear, and beat us. And then when summer comes, how delightful to get a van and go into the country, among the fields and flowers. Won't it be nice, Tobby?'

Tobby's heart was going very fast just then. The child's artless words had given him a sudden glimpse of the solution of his difficulty. Here was a way by which they could support themselves. Charlie and Myra were so proficient and clever that people were never tired of seeing them and he had no doubt whatever that if they took up their abode in a densely populated neighborhood, and provided nightly exhibitions at twopence of admission they would draw as much money as they required for their simple wants, Tobby's spirits rose fifty per cent. at a bound as this feasible prospect opened before him, and he could hardly restrain himself from catching up Myra and kissing her in the open street, for the joy of heart she had given him.

Just then they entered Lambeth Walk—a street somewhat less noisy and populous than Ratcliff Highway, but a place of pretty much the same description, and having a deal of noise and bustle in it.

Tobby stopped opposite a small shop, the window of which was full of cakes, confectionery, and small wares, while above the door there shone, in bright black and yellow letters, the name of Mrs. Stubbs.

'Hiloa! there's a change here,' said Tobby to himself. 'It ain't a coal depot any longer, and if there isn't Maria behind the counter with a widow's cap on. Why Stubbs must be dead.'

When they entered, a small boy was being served with a penny worth of gingerbread, and the fair buxom female in widow's weeds, who was supplying him with the tempting article, favored them with a momentary glance, which amounted to no sort of recognition. As soon as the transaction with the small boy was completed, Mrs. Stubbs turned her smiling face to Myra, deeming that she was the customer whose fancy was next to be met.

'Now, my little dear, what are you for—a nice sweet cake, or a doll all dressed up in blue and white?'

'Maria!'

The woman gave a great start, and turned her eyes with a jerk towards the speaker's face, which was that of Tobby.

On her face there was first astonishment, then doubt, then quickly dawned recognition.

'Why, goodness gracious me,' she exclaimed, 'it's never Tobby Spratt?'

'It's all you are like to get from him,' responded Tobby, with a smile. 'I suppose you don't find me just what I used to be?'

'Bless your heart, if you hadn't a smiled your old smile, I wouldn't have known you at all. How changed you are! You never were no great size of a man at no time, but you are twice as little as you used to be and—and well, if you will have it—your face has got such an old look in it!'

'It's a good many years since you saw me now, Maria, and time brings changes to us all, you know,' observed Tobby gravely.

'Ah, that it does,' said Maria, shaking her head dolefully. 'And that reminds me that poor dear Stubbs is dead and gone since you were here, and I'm left to battle all alone by myself.'

'I thought as much when I saw your name above the door and that cap on your head.'

'Two years next month. A healthier man than Stubbs never breathed; and would you believe it, he died in little more than a week after he was took with his complaint, which the doctor said was inflammation of the lungs, though how he came to have that goodness knows. He was mortal bad from the first, and got always worse and worse till the ninth day, when he went off like a baby, and left me a mourner for his end. I couldn't carry on the coal trade myself, so as soon as the shed was empty, I gave it up, and took to confectionery and tapes and needles, and them little things, and I'm making a living Tobby, but nothing more. When I've got a lodger upstairs it helps wonderfully, but lodgers come and go, and ain't to be counted on.'

'Have you got one now?' asked Tobby abruptly. Mrs. Stubbs shook her head. 'The last left a month since,' she replied. I've got a notice in the window but nobody asked for a room till yesterday, which was a young man who said he was a copperplate engraver, but I didn't like the looks of him and I didn't take him.

'I'm glad of that,' said Tobby,' for if you had took that young man yesterday, you wouldn't have had the room for me to-day.'

'Do you want the room, Tobby?' cried Maria, flushing with pleasure, while her eye sparkled brightly.

'If you like the looks of me, and will take me in,' said Tobby with a demure smile.

'Oh, go along with your old funny tricks. Here Barbara, come and look after the shop.'

'At the summons a girl of the age of fifteen or so made her appearance from the inner room, and Maria, yielding to her place behind the counter, led the way into the parlor at the back.

'Why, whatever is the matter with you, Tobby?' she exclaimed, as, casting her eye behind, she observed her visitor limping in his gait.

'I'm lame now, Maria,' he answered. 'I had a bad fall when tumbling three years ago, and haven't done a stroke of work in that way since, nor never will again.'

'Ah, I always said tumbling was dangerous, and now I know what's altered you so much. Come to the window, and let me look at you again.'

Tobby did as requested, and smilingly underwent Maria's scrutiny.

'Ah, but the old, pleasant face is there still; your accident hasn't robbed you of your good humor, has it, Tobby?'

'I hope not.'

'It hasn't made you cross and peevish?'

'Tobby cross and peevish!' cried Myra, who, in the height of her astonishment, could not keep silent. 'No, indeed, he is a dear, good, kind, pleasant Tobby, that he is, and he is never cross at all.'

This brought Maria's whole attention on the little speaker, whose warm praise of Tobby was in itself a favorable recommendation to the fluttering heart of Myra.

Timber Cutting!

There are thousands of our citizens whose living depends upon timber cutting. A large amount of capital is invested in this industry But per se, timber cutting is a sad sight. Look at the thick forest of tall trees with their interlacing limbs and branches, so fantastic and graceful As the axe falls upon the stout body of the tree there seems to come from it the groan of a death struggle, as if to say: "I've stood here monarch of all I survey for scores of years, keeping back the rude winds in Winter from your dwellings, and drawing the cool breezes to my shade in the Summer, and yet you cut me down for the paltry dollar I will bring. For shame woodcutter" But such is life of man and tree; all must at last give way to the inevitable. Death comes to all. The woodchopper must yield at last to death. But diseases may be retarded and often removed by DR HERRICKS SUGAR COATED PILLS. Many who would suffer for year have been relieved as i by magic by them. Their popularity is the outcome of years of use. For diarrhea, dyspepsia, disordered bowels and kindred diseases they have no equal.

LOWELL, Mass., 15 1876.

MESSRS. WM M. GILE & CO.—Gentlemen: I have been suffering for ten years with sciatic rheumatism, and the different kinds of Liniment I have used during that time may be estimated by gallons. About two weeks ago I obtained a bottle of your Liniment Iodide Ammonia of your agents, F & E. Bailey & Co.; it gave me almost instantaneous relief from pain, and since that time I have been steadily improving. It has done me more good than any medicine that I have before used I have been obliged to carry a cane until within two weeks, since which time I have not found it necessary. I also wish to state that this testimonial is not solicited, but I give it in the hope that others may be benefitted as I have been. (Signed) MRS. N. PUVEY.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague. Anemia. Intermitten Fever, Consumption. General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,

D. WALTER OAKES,
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

The Tay Bridge Horror.

LOOKING FROM THE WINDOW OF A COSEY ROOM ON THE FLASHING DOWN OF THE TRAIN.

The English papers contain very little of interest concerning the Tay bridge disaster now already laid before our readers by cable. The London Telegraph of the 30th contains this description by an eye-witness of the catastrophe :-

"Enjoying the cosey comforts of my own parlor fireside on Sunday night, I listened to the fierce clamor of the storm without and felt a deep sense of gratitude for the security I possessed, mingled with a feeling of compassion for the poor sailors on the sea battling with the storm. The children had gathered round me for their usual Bible stories, and with an instinctive sense of fear they restled close to my side as they heard the wild efforts of the blast to batter in the casement of the window. I chose the story of St. Paul's shipwreck on the island of Melita, thinking that the storm without might help me to impress upon their young minds the terrible nature of the danger to which the Apostle was exposed as the ship lay riding helplessly upon the waves with four anchors between it and certain destruction. While thus engaged a blast of wind more furious than before had caught the chimney-tops of a house almost opposite my parlor windows, and brought them down to the ground with a thundering crash, that startled everyone of us to our feet. Stepping over to the casement I gazed out upon the street, and just then a blaze of moonlight lighted up the broad expanse of the Tay down below, and the long white sinuous line of the Tay Bridge came into view. I looked at my watch and saw that it was exactly seven o'clock. 'The Edinburgh train will be due immediately,' I exclaimed to my wife ; 'come and let us watch to see if it will attempt to cross on such a night.' So saying, we turned down the gas in the parlor and prepared to await the appearance of the train. The light by this time had become most fitful. Great masses of clouds were sweeping across the expanse of the heavens, at times totally obscuring the light of the full moon. 'There she comes,' cried one of the children, and, at that moment the slowly moving lights of the Edinburgh train could be distinctly seen rounding the curve at Wormit and passing the signal-box at the south side, entering upon the long straight line of that portion of the bridge. The train once on the bridge seemed to move along with greater swiftness, and when the engine entered the tunnel-like cloisters of the great girders my little girl exactly described the effect of the lights as seen through the lattice work when she exclaimed, 'Look papa, isn't that like lightning ?' All this takes some time to write down, but to the eye it seemed as almost simultaneous with the entrance of the train upon the bridge. A comet-like burst of fiery sparks sprang out as if forcibly ejected into the darkness from the engine. In a long visible train the streak of fire was seen till quenched in the water below. Then there was absolute darkness on the bridge. A silence fell upon our eager group at the window. Then, with stunning force the idea broke upon my mind. 'Heavens !' I cried, 'I fear the train is over the bridge !' With a growing horror I watched the curve at the north side to try if I could see the train pass that point, but as several minutes passed and no moving object broke the continuity of the bridge at that point I snatched up my hat and hurried down and across Magdalen Green, to meet several individuals all bent upon the same errand as myself.

"The terrific nature of the gale at this time may be inferred from the fact that, descending the slope of the green, I had to crouch down upon the grass to prevent my being blown bodily away. It seemed as if the wind had become a solid compelling power. One gentleman was blown against another on the green, and both tumbled together. The massive signal post beside the signal-box on the north end of the bridge was bent by the wind like a willow wand, and on entering upon the esplanade, the sand and pebbles were dashed about with such force that the hands and face were positively sore with the violence of the impact. My hands held behind my back for a minute were completely filled with the drifting sand and pebbles. Looking towards the river nothing clearly could be made out. The water from the broken Newport water-pipe on the bridge was pouring into the river and, being caught in its descent by the wind, was lashed into a misty spray that helped to veil the gap that had by this time been made in the iron highway.

"A number of gentlemen having now collected below the bridge on the Esplanade, one of them climbed up into the signal-box above and there learned from the man stationed less than a mile from the scene of the great catastrophe that he knew nothing more of what had happened than that the train signalled to him as having entered upon the bridge fully fifteen minutes before had never reached his station, and that all telegraphic communication with the other side had ceased. What had in reality happened the public know now as well as they will ever be likely to know. An entire train with its living freight had been swept into the bosom of the Tay. The rest was left to the imagination. In the clear sunlight of this morning I have again visited the spot, but so calmly was the river then rolling onwards towards the sea that, save for the incontestable evidence of the great gap in mid river, it was difficult to think that the significant scene of last night was other than a horrid nightmare."

The following is a description of the first visit in a steamboat to the scene of the accident :

As the steamer neared the bridge what appeared to be broken water was observed stretching across the gap, marking, it was presumed, the submerged girders and train. It was seen that it would be hazardous to approach too near the wreck, and a boat was immediately manned by a bold crew, Captain Robertson, the harbor master, taking the helm. They then pulled away out into the darkness and were soon lost to view. The boat was pulled as close to the bridge as was deemed safe, and then her head was turned towards the north shore. She was pulled across the whole open space to the first pier intact, then through between the piers and back again along the west side till the standing piers on the south side were reached. The task was a difficult and hazardous one, and the gentlemen forming the crew deserve great credit for their gallant exertions. They were occasionally within a boat's length of the remains of the piers, without seeing a vestige of the wreck. On the stone portion of one or two of them a few iron bars still remained ; it was those which in the uncertain light led some on board the steamer to imagine that they saw human beings. In regard to the others the whole of the ironwork had been swept away, leaving the low stone foundation standing above water. The boat having been picked up without difficulty, the steamer's head was turned homewards. At this time the moon was shining brightly, and the full extent of the disaster, so far as the bridge was concerned, was pretty distinctly visible. The vessel was lying a short distance from pier 28, and from that pier to the Fife shore the bridge was evidently intact. Then pier 29 showed a small portion of the iron work for supporting the girder. From that to pier 41 nothing was visible save the stone portion of the piers, over which the storm-driven water was breaking. The weird aspect which the remains of the bridge presented in the moonlight deepened the impression that to the passengers the end must have come with terrible swiftness. It would be the work of a moment ; a sudden crash, and train and girders would fall to the bottom of the stromtossed estuary in a common ruin. When it was seen that nothing could be done, the steamer proceeded to Newport.

THE GREAT PERMANENCY OF MURRAY & LANMAN'S Florida Water gives it a wonderful advantage over nearly all other perfumes ; days and weeks after its application the handkerchief or garment exhales a soft rich fragrance, agreeable, refreshing, and healthful.

A FIERCE STRUGGLE !—Disease is ever preying upon man; from the cradle to the grave, more than one half of the human family have to contest inch by inch the progress of some ailment. What a boon then must BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS be ; they purge out all poisonous matter, they purify the blood and humors, they give tone and power to the whole system, and enable the body to throw off disease that would otherwise have hurried it to the grave.

To triumph over our passions is of all conquests the most glorious.

N. B. FALKINER,
Chairman Gen. Com.

Jan. 27, 1880.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JANY. 29.

CLOSED UP.

To-night the work of a final revision of the voters lists in the hands of the several Committees will be gone on with, and the canvass closed up. So far the canvass promises exceedingly well, and if the figures given in by the various Committees can be relied upon—and we have no reason to question them—the majority that will be given to Mr. Robertson in Belleville will be nearly double what it was in June last. This majority can be obtained if every supporter of Mr. Robertson does his duty. Shall it not be done ?

Form of Ballot.

The form of ballot paper used in Ontario Elections differs in some respects from that used in either Dominion or Municipal elections. The names of the candidates being arranged in alphabetical order, that of Mr. Robertson will appear first on the papers. The form of ballot and the mode of marking are as follows :

1	ROBERTSON. (Alex. Robertson, of the City of Belleville, Barrister.)	X
2	SILLS. (E. G. Sills, of the village of Frankford, miller.)

The ballot as above is marked with a X by the voter in the margin to the right of the name, and in favor of Mr. Robertson.

After marking your ballot, clearly and plainly, fold it so as to show the back only, hand it to the deputy returning officer, and see that it is put in the ballot box before you leave the polling booth. You will then have done your duty, and can devote the rest of the day to seeing that your neighbors do theirs.

Don't Violate the Law.

It is to be hoped that in the contest now being carried on in West Hastings, no true friend of Mr. Robertson will, by any act or promise, do anything to compromise the election. While we urge prompt, earnest, vigorous effort, and a thorough canvass of every voter, and the use of every legitimate and lawful means to secure the election for our candidate, we warn our friends against the slightest infraction of the law. Mr. Robertson can be elected without the use of the means which the "party of purity" have so often paraded before the eyes of the electors, with a view to their corruption and debasement. All it wants is a hearty, united and voluntary effort on the part of all those who voted for him at the last election. This is his just due. Shall he not have it?

"TEABERRY," the new powder for whitening the teeth, stimulating the mouth and purifying the breath; the brightest, neatest, coolest little to let gum cleant. Ask your druggist for "Teaberry." Price 25 cents. dawly

VOTE EARLY.

Under the old system of voting, it used to be said with a good deal of force that a vote polled before noon was worth two in the afternoon. The same will hold good to a certain extent under the ballot system. Although there is no positive knowledge how a man votes, still, in a contest like this, the line is easily drawn, and if those who have promised to vote for Mr. Robertson will cast their votes before noon, we will then know that the election is secure beyond doubt. It is just as easy to vote before twelve o'clock as it is after that hour. We urge, therefore, all our friends to be early at the polls, remain until your vote is registered, then go and assist the Committee to bring in others.

Cornwall.

The re-election of Dr. Bergin for Cornwall by the large majority of 182 votes, shows that the alleged reaction against the Macdonald Government and the N. P. has not as yet reached that constituency. In September, 1878, Dr. Bergin's majority was but 38, and the addition of 144 to that majority is significant of the fact that the Globe's teachings have no effect in a constituency where the manufacturing interests are large, and of the further fact that Grit Protectionism is estimated at its true value by the workingmen of Cornwall.

The Mail points out in this connection that since the general election of September, 1878, fourteen elections have been held for the Commons, in addition to those of Ministers, in the following constituencies : Centre Huron, Beauharnois, Three Rivers, Charlevoix, East Hastings, Niagara, Yamaska, Yale, Bonaventure, West Durham, Cape Breton, Provencher, North Lanark and Cornwall. Of these the Conservatives have won Charlevoix, Niagara and East Hastings, and have lost none. These facts show that the Globe's crusade against the N. P. has been fruitful only of disaster to its own party, and that the people have determined to give the new trade policy a few trials.

Bring out the Votes.

The only question for to-morrow's election is generally conceded to be the majority which will be cast for Mr. Robertson. With earnest work on the part of our friends, the majority ought to considerably exceed that of June last ; but in order to attain that end it will be necessary to poll every available vote. Let the work, therefore, be systematic throughout the whole riding, and let every supporter of Mr. Robertson go to the polls.

We Apologize.

In our issue of the 27th inst. in referring to the political meetings in Trenton we remarked that at Mr. Robertson's meeting there were over two hundred present, whilst at Mr. Sills meeting there were only eight present.

Such was the information that we received and we gave it in full belief that it was reliable, but it appears we had been misinformed. Our Grit contemporary took the task upon itself last night of correcting the mistake on our part by saying we lied when we merely gave the information as we had it; but we have since been better informed, and hasten to make the amende honorable, by giving the exact number at Mr. Sills meeting, which was six.

Polling Subdivisions.

As for the purposes of the pending election a large number of new polling sub-divisions have been created in this city, increasing their number from 8 to 13, we give herewith a list of the polling places throughout the Riding, in order that every elector who reads the INTELLIGENCER may know just where to go in order to cast his vote.

CANADIAN WHEAT IN PARIS.—Le Bulletin Des Halles, a Parisian journal, of the date January 13th, states that Canadian wheat from the Province of Ontario has appeared upon the French market. Hitherto that market had only known Michigan and other American produce, and the journal in question states that the wheat from Cannada is, if anything, superior to that of the United States, and that there can be no doubt that in the future Canadian grain will vastly influence the French markets.

To the Electors of West Hastings.

GENTLEMEN,—Mr. Sills, in his speech at the nomination, claimed that he had advocated and urged the construction of the Murray and Trent Valley Canals. I will inform you what action he did take in reference to these schemes.

After the property of the Board of Works had been handed over to the Ontario Government by the Mackenzie Administration, a petition to retain the dam at Chisholm's rapids and have the gift of the works cancelled and the property re-vested in the Dominion Government was sent by Allan Gilmour, Esq., to Mr. Daniel Morgan for signatures. Mr. Morgan and I canvassed Frankford and vicinity and obtained one hundred and twenty signatures. Mr. Sills not only strongly opposed the petition, saying that it was a political dodge and that I was trying to pull the wool over the peoples' eyes, but actually circulated a contra petition to have the works left in the hands of the Provincial Government and have the dam removed.

Gentlemen, does that look like urging the Trent Valley Canal? Every municipality from Peterborough to Trenton, save and except the Township of Sidney, sent its Reeve as a representative on the deputation to the Government, and that too though no municipality is more or even as much interested as our own. Mr. Sills however wrote to the Reeve of Trenton that he thought (probably very truly) that the deputation would get along just as well without him. He never displayed any interest in the Trent Valley Canal; he awoke one morning to find it was popular with the people, and the extent of his support and the value of his assistance I have given above.

Just at present Mr. Sills claims the suffrages of the electors of Sidney on the ground that he is a local man. He unfortunately forgets what every body else remembers that at the Reform Convention he believed that it was every man's duty to lay aside sectional feeling and to unite upon the best man. Those troublesome people with long memories who always turn up at election times want to know how it was that Mr Sills, who waxed so warm and enthusiastic over the claims and rights of a local man, voted for John Lewis when he ran against Ketchan Graham for the Local House. Consistency, thy name is Sills.

Fellow electors, vote for Robertson, who will oppose the present Government in such lavish expenditure as $2,500,000 for new Parliament buildings and $1,100 an hour when in session assembled and that in the face of an annual deficit and a falling revenue.

Your old servant,
CLEMENT ARMSTRONG.

Volunteer Teams.

A few more Volunteer Teams are wanted to enable the Committee to have sufficient for every polling place. All those who have a rig, single or double, to spare, will confer a favor by bringing in their names and the kind of vehicle they can give, at the meeting to-night in the rooms of the Liberal Conservative Association.

TO THE ELECTORS OF

WEST HASTINGS.

GENTLEMEN,—Having to be in the country nearly all the time between this and election day, and the time being short, it will be utterly impossible to make a general personal canvass. I trust, therefore, that my friends will give me the same generous support that I received in June, notwithstanding I may be unable to call upon all of them.

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,

THE NEW CORSET

Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

THIS new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of different development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable ; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

GRAHAM'S.

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many stores are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay ?

City and Vicinity

POLICE.—There were two prisoners and one tramp in the cells last night.

THE WARDEN'S SALARY.—The proposal of the Warden is to reduce his salary from $400 to $300. It has heretofore stood at the former sum.

OMISSION.—The name of Mr. Ostrom was accidentally omitted from the list, as published of the Public Accounts Committee of the County Council.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE.—The fortieth anniversary of the induction of Dr. Neil] into the St. Andrew's church in Seymour is to be celebrated to-night by a tea meeting.

BEET SUGAR.—Another meeting of those interested in the culture of sugar beets and of the establishment of a beet sugar manufactory is to be held in the Temperance Hall, Foxboro, on Tuesday next.

CHEAP BOARD.—In these times of close calculations to make "both ends meet" it may be of interest to some to know that the cost of boarding prisoners in the Montreal gaol is only 8 cents per day.

ASSEMBLY.—The Bachelors' assembly in the City Hall last evening was attended by about sixty couples. Music was provided by the Odd Fellows' string band. Supper was furnished by Dickens in his usual first class style. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the assembly broke up about 3 o'clock this morning.

H. M. S. PINAFORE.—Don't fail to attend the Opera House to-night, if you want to hear excellent singing and a first class operatic performance. The fame of the Picton amateurs has gone far and wide. Tickets only 25 cents. The 15th Battalion Band have kindly volunteered their services.

OYSTER SUPPER.—A very successful oyster supper was held last evening at the Front of Sidney Cheese Factory. The Chair was taken by Hon. R. Read, and speeches were made by Messrs. Thos. Emo, Capt. Vandevoort, D. Anderson and S. T. Wilmot. An election cake was put up between the two candidates for West Hastings at 10c a vote, when Mr. Sills received 11 votes, and Mr. Robertson 72 votes. The sum of $55 was realized.

OBITUARY.—The Hastings Star says:—"It is our sorrowful duty to record the death of Mrs. James S. Fowlds, which took place on Sunday morning. Mrs. Fowlds has been suffering for several months from the disease to which she at length succumbed. She appeared from the first to be under the impression that she could not recover, and bore her affliction with christian fortitude and patience, being quite resigned and as the end drew near, anxious only 'to go home.' Her loss will be deeply felt, not only by the family, but by a large circle of friends to whom she had endeared herself by kindly acts, and warm-hearted sympathy. She was an exemplary wife, a good mother, and consistent christian. In her, Hastings has indeed lost a friend. The deceased lady, who was a cousin of W. E. Roxburgh, Esq., of Norwood, was born in the city of Glasgow Scotland, in the year 1828 from whence she, with her relatives, came to Canada in 1854, and lived for about three years in Westwood. In 1857 she removed to Rochester, New York, where she resided until her marriage with Mr. Fowlds, in 1866."

COUNTY COUNCIL.

SECOND DAY—AFTERNOON SESSION.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 28.

The Council met at two o'clock.

A session of the Gravel Roads Committee previously held selected Mr. Emo as their Chairman.

A communication to the above effect was read by the Warden.

A letter from the County Council of Bruce was read, asking for a more vigorous action to suppress the tramp nuisance, and ask the Legislature to send vagrants of the class mentioned to the Penitentiary. The communication on motion was filed.

In the matter of the Registrar's fees Mr. Pearce reported verbally that the matter would come up in February when the subject would be fully ventilated.

A motion regarding the distribution of the Hastings Directory was presented and passed.

Council went into Committee of the whole on Roads and Bridges. Mr. Aylsworth in the chair.

Mr. Pearce moved the appointment of a Committee consisting of Messrs. Aylsworth, Vankleek and the County Surveyor to inspect the work on bridges about to be erected.

The petitions of those asking the right to mine under the roadway were again read, and provoked a discussion which resulted in the matter being referred to the County Solicitor, who, if he deems it expedient, will draft a By-law accordingly, according the Council its rights in the premises.

The Surveyor's report was read. It detailed the work on several bridges and culverts and made a variety of the usual recommendations, which after discussion was accepted.

Committee rose and reported and asked leave to sit again. Granted.

Council went into Committee of the whole on ways and means.—Mr. Walker in the chair.

A number of accounts were read and ordered to be paid.

Mr. Kavanagh moved, seconded by Mr. Parkhurst, that $500 be granted to the five northern municipalities for the poor schools in the northern part of the county to be appropriated by the Inspector.

Mr. Kavanagh said it was customary to make this grant, as some of the municipalities were too poor to pay their teachers, and when representations were made to the Government in such instances a like sum was given by it. The grant he desired would not be called for till next fall.

Mr. Pearce said the school taxes in his municipality or one of his townships (Lake) was so great that he would also ask assistance for the township named.

Mr. Walker said if an appropriation were not now made the trustees in the rear townships would not engage teachers for another year.

Mr. Pearce said if this grant were allowed it would allow of the teachers being engaged for probably a year instead of six months.

The Warden said the grant asked for would be given at the proper time and as far as the hiring of teachers was concerned the back townships could rest assured of receiving the desired assistance, although he favored the request he was opposed to a grant before the June session.

The matter was laid over till the June session with the understanding that the appropriation asked for would then be made.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

Mr. Vankleek gave notice of a By-law for the sale of the mineral rights on the County roads in the township of Madoc for the benefit of that township.

Mr. Murphy gave notice of a By-law to assume a bridge as a County bridge.

Council adjourned till ten o'clock Thursday morning.

PASSED.—We learn that Mr. E. G. Porter, in S. B. Burdett's law office, and Mr. W.B. Carroll, in Messrs. Flint & Jellett's, have passed the second intermediate at the examinations now going on in Toronto.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. J. Pusey, who has been for the past two months in England, reached Belleville to-day en route for his home in Madoc. He looks as if the voyage across the "big pond" had improved his appearance.

MISS NEILSON.—The Montreal correspondent of the Brockville Recorder speaks in the following terms of Miss Adelaide Neilson's Company, which is shortly to appear in this city:—"Never in the annals of dramatic history, so far as Canada is concerned, has such a triumph been achieved as that which took place in this city last night, when Miss Adelaide Neilson made her second appearance here, after an absence of three years. The Academy of Music never presented so brilliant an appearance. Ladies and gentlemen thronged the entrances of the theatre, and long ere the doors opened a line of carriages, at least half a mile long, extended from the entrances of the house to the various approaches thereto. Such a fashionable crush will be a rare one to repeat, but if the outside of the house presented such a mis en scene, what was the interior? From the orchestra chairs to the gallery the building was one great spectacle of brilliant costumes, the toilettes of the ladies being unsurpassable. Many of those who had attempted to secure reserved seats were glad to get standing room at reserved seat prices but need it hardly be said that they did not begrudge the price paid for the opportunity of seeing the wondrous acting of the most beautiful exponent of the histronic art who has graced the boards for years past. The play was Romeo and Juliet, and of course the heroine was represented by Miss Neilson, who was ably supported by Mr. Edward Compton, a most painstaking actor. Of Miss Neilson's acting it would ill become us to assume the part of a critic. It could not be surpassed. Can more be said? The members of the company supporting her are worthy of praise, and did ample justice to the characters assigned to them. At the close of each act Miss Neilson was called before the curtain and such cheering and applause was never before heard in the Academy of Music. Ladies waved their handkerchiefs and gentlemen their hats, showing their appreciation of the great artiste. To-night she plays Rosalind in Shakespeare's great love comedy of "As You Like It," and is needless to say that all the seats in the house are sold."

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 29.—As a sequel to the Hampton Garry controversy, Col. Haskell, Hampton's son-in-law, yesterday published a letter charging Garry with bribery, fraud and falsehood. The letter will undoubtedly lead to serious results.

HAVANA, Jan. 29.—The inhabitants of Western Cuba are alarmed at the constantly recurring earthquakes. From San Diego, Santiago de Las Vegas, Pinar del Rio, Cienfuegos, Matanzas and elsewhere, come accounts of earthquake and public terror. San Cristobal is theapparent centre of the disturbance. A concussion there on Thursday nearly tumbled the place to ruins. The church stands tottering; the priest escaped from his house while the walls were falling; the telegraph office is half demolished; the Government and municipal buildings are untenable; the gaol was filled with prisoners dismembered. One convict was shot dead after emerging through a crevice made by the earthquake. The guards were wounded in the melee. 14 other inmates are in the hospital with injuries from falling beams.

DENVER, Jan. 29.—Gen. Adams and the Utae delegation, returning from Washington, arrived at Pueblo yesterday, and proceeded at once to Los Pinos. Gen. Adams says he will capture the guilty Indians at all hazards, but does not divulge his plans. Later despatches from the south do not indicate Victoria as dead. Victoria sent two messengers to Major Morrow to negotiate for surrender, but Morrow will only treat with the chief in person and accept unconditional surrender.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The counsel for Rev. Edward Cowley, of Shepherdisfold, yesterday offered to surrender the children under his charge, but the prosecution refused to suspend proceedings, and the investigation continues. Cowley's counsel in court yesterday, stated that in view of the disclosures already made he would withdraw from the case. Criminal proceedings against Cowley are threatened.

Rev. Wm. Paul, pastor of the 2nd German Baptist Church, was expelled on Monday for alleged improper intimacy with a young girl. Paul is married, and has six children.

Caroline Mechtold, wife of a druggist, died yesterday from an accidental overdose of chloral.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Washington specials: The Tribune says there is a strong disposition to air the Monroe doctrine. In the Senate the Panama and other canal projects have been assumed of such importance that the Committee of Commerce desire to be relieved of them, and Gordon will ask if they can be handed over to a special committee.

The House railroad committee is considering a singular proposition of the Washington, Cincinnati and St. Louis Railway. That it shall be allowed to import rails for its road and pay the duties with its bonds, which the Secretary and Treasurer is to hold until the road has earned their face value by serving the Government. The same committee intends to report favorably of the Bill compelling the Government to guarantee bonds for the San Antonio and Mexican border Railway to the tune of $3,000 per mile for 160 miles. It will be observed that there is nothing mean about this Committee!

Joseph Wolf, of Elizabeth, who claimed to have been shot and robbed by unknown men, now acknowledges he shot himself because he was tired of life. He will die.

It is disclosed that in the Ward on Blackwell's Island, where Maria Otuer was fatally beaten on Saturday by two other crazy women, 200 unruly lunatics have been confined with only one nurse in charge. A searching investigation will be made.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

MANCHESTER, Jan. 29.—The Guardian's London correspondent says one of the main subjects to be presented by the Government for the Legislation at the coming session of Parliament will be a bi l for the abolition of primogeniture and for the simplification of the transfer of lands.

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—The Government intends to taxall persons exempt from military service.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The reported arrest of an absconding bank clerk from New York, is untrue.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The exports from Switzerland to the United States last year show an increase of 15,000,000 francs over those of 1878. The chief items are cotton goods, watches and embroidery.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 29.—The great fire at Jassy, which destroyed the Administrative Palace is still raging, and the flames have extended to adjacent buildings. A large number of records which cannot be replaced were destroyed in the palace.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—The jury in the case of Chas. Desmond, ex-treasurer of the Massachusetts home missionary society, charged with embezzlement, has not agreed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—At the stock exchange this morning the syndicate which purchased the large block of the Central Pacific bonds, has placed them on the market. It is said that the entire 50,000 shares taken by the syndicate at 75 was sold between 81 and 85.

MERRISTOWN, N. J., Jan. 29.—James Anderson, an undertaker of Dover, while walking on the track was struck by the Oswego express and killed.

LONDON, Jan 29.—A Vienna correspondent says that in consequence of the visits in Pesth the Minister of the Interior is preparing a bill restricting the rights of Association and public meeting, and the liberty press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Consul General at Vienna reports that the new tariff has diminished the importations from the United States to some extent. The exports to the United States increased last year. The premium on gold over silver is 15 per cent. Paper is at par with silver.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh northerly to easterly winds, partly cloudy, cold weather.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Indications: For lower lakes to-day, partly cloudy, with light snow areas.

Attempt at Incendiarism.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—There was an attempt made on Monday night to burn the buildings of S. C. Emerson, Esq., in the 8th concession of Thurlow, between Plainfield and Rollin. His hired man on going into the barn on Tuesday morning found a cedar stick with the one end whittled down to shavings and the other end stuck into a mow of pe s, and the stick had been fired, but fortunately for Mr. Emerson it had gone out.

Mr. Emerson says he is in possession of evidence of threats that leads him to suspect some parties very strongly, and also says he would give $100 for the proof that would convict the party.

YOURS, &c.,
PLAINFIELD.

Plainfield, Jan. 29, 1880.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

Operations to be resumed in March

AN ADVANCE ON HERAT CONTEMPLATED—THE DISTRICT TO BE HANDED OVER TO PERSIA.

BOMBAY, Jan. 28.—It is generally believed that an army corps will advance to Herat, and that the district will be transferred to Peria. All officers of the Cabul division now on leave have been ordered to return to their commands by March 15th, when operations throughout Afghanistan will recommence.

CABUL, Jan. 28.—The Ghuznis have sent word to Cabul chiefs that they are determined to fight to the last extremity unless Yakoob Khan is reinstated as Ameer.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—Last night I saw in your valuable paper a letter in the form of a denial of the statements made in mine of the other day. Now Sir, I wish not to enter into any silly newspaper cross-fire with these great instructors of the Anna who, like the Romans of old, are best upon having, not for their own benefit, but for that of the young men of Belleville, a grand Assault-at-Arms and Athletic exhibition. Possibly never having witnessed any of these classic Assaults-at-Arms, I would be of comparatively little use in the lists. But with regard to the simp's exercises which are to take place in the Opera House here on Monday evening:

I venture to say I can hold my own with these gentlemen and the record of the one pupil or more whom I will send to engage in them will bear out my statement. I stated in my letter that neither I nor my pupils as a body, for it was in that light that the press of the City had announced our supposed part in this affair, would exhibit ourselves. With regard to other lines of gymnastics and athletics not in their bill of fare the world can testify as to their importance in tra ning our youth of the city, and as well as equalling them as instructors in the branches contained in their programme.

The sporting fraternity and Athletes of America, as well as the press, acknowledge my prominence as a performer and instructor in the other, according to their high views "unimportant branches." Hoping, to see an end to this matter, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
E. W. JOHNSTON,
Instructor gymnastics and athletics Mechanics Institute.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

'What a pretty little cherub you are,' she exclaimed. I declare I never saw such a lovely little creature—La !'

The final interjection was produced by a sight of Myra without the shawl, dressed in her pretty performing clothes. Her exceeding beauty and loveliness no woman could withstand, least of all a warm-hearted woman like Mrs. Stubbs.

'That is a dear friend of mine, Myra,' said Tobby. 'You will love her when you know her better, and the best way to begin is to go and kiss her.'

'With a bright smile and a bounding leap Myra was in an instant in Mrs. Stubb's bosom with her arms round her neck, and her soft, warm, velvety lips pressed on the widow's mouth.

'Bless the dear angel,' cried Maria, in rapture, 'Is she your child, Tobby?'

'Yes, she is mine. Ain't you, Myra—you and Charlie?'

Myra nodded in happy acquiescence.

'You have two—a boy and a girl. And you have got married at last?'

'No Maria,' replied Tobby, 'I have never married.'

She looked at him for some moments in fixed astonishment and incredulous wonder.

'Never married !' she repeated 'And yet you have two children.'

'Mine only to love and care for. Who their parents are, nobody knows; but come, sit down and I'll tell you how we are situated.

Mrs. Stubbs sat down in a chair opposite to that in which Tobby had ensconced himself. She kept Myra on her knee, and looked pleased and happy.

'How pleasant it is to see you sitting there, Tobby. How it brings back old times and happy days. I almost fancy poor dear old Stubbs is out in the shed weighing out coal.'

'I hope and trust he is in a better place, Maria. He was a good soul, was Stubbs.'

'And you made him a good wife, you did. He has often told me so, but he didn't need to, for I knew it well enough. Now for my story Maria.'

The widow set herself to listen, and her interest and sympathy grew apace as Tobby told all about Myra and Charlie, and the bad usage of Silas Morgan up to the crisis of the previous evening, when they fled from the Sow and Pigs.

'What a heathen that Silas Morgan, is to be sure,' said Maria when he came to an end.

'And what a monster, to be cruel to a pretty innocent child like that. But you did right to bring her away, Tobby, and I'm glad you did it, and glad you have come here.'

'But I have no money, Maria. Three and four-pence is every farthing I have in this world.'

'Oh, but Charlie and I will get lots of money for performing,' exclaimed Myra.

'Hear to her, the dear lamb. Only to look to a mite like that speaking of making money.'

'It's true, though,' she earnestly rejoined. 'Isn't it quite true, Tobby?'

'Yes, darling, it's as true as the gospel,' answered Tobby, with a proud and a fond look. 'Would you believe it, Maria? Most of the money took in the van for the last six months was made by Charlie and her. You've no idea how clever they are. The people came in crowds to see them, and the saloon of the Sow and Pigs has been full every night since we came there.'

'You don't say so ?' cried Mrs. Stubbs, in amaze. 'And yet they may well come, if it was no more than to look at a pretty angel like that.'

'Silas will be in an awful rage to lose them,' added Tobby. 'He's not good for much himself now, and when he hasn't them to draw with he may shut up. But it's his own fault. He shouldn't abuse them as he does. It's the drink, Maria, it's the drink as has ruined him. He had alway a bad temper, but now it's unbearable. Oh ! the poor boy ! He'll be taking it all out of him just now. I know he will'

'But you'll go and get him away, won't you, Tobby ?' said Myra, appealingly.

'That you must,' added Mrs. Stubbs. The poor dear will be a thousand times better here than with him, and I'm sure, Tobby, you are welcome to the room.'

'Thank you, Maria. I was sure you would prove kind and helpful. I've a plan in my head, too. We'll have the coal shed cleaned out and fitted up for performances. It's a big, roomy place, and when the people know the treat they can have they'll come in flocks.'

Tobby's sanguine confidence made Mrs. Stubbs sanguine too, and that very day they set to work to have the shed cleared and fitted up. In two days it was made a comfortable place, with a small stage at one end and benches ranged in front, sufficient to hold fifty or sixty people, which, at twopence a piece, was ten shillings, as Tobby said.

On the opening night, by the hour named, the place was filled, though the people did not know what they had come to see. Besides Myra's clever and graceful performance, Tobby had got up some tricks to do himself. His lameness prevented any athletic display or feats of agility on his part, but he could toss balls and knives, balance whirling plates on the end of sticks, and such like achievements, so that he was able to fill up very cleverly and affectively the intervals between Myra's dancing. The performance was without doubt a grand success. The people were enthusiastic in their delight, and loudly declared their resolution to come again, and bring their acquaintances with them.

On the second night the place was full; on the third it was crammed; and after that, in order to reduce the overflow, the prices were raised—front seats sixpence, back seats threepence.

Tobby was in estacies, Mrs Stubbs was delighted, and Myra was as happy as a queen. The only drawback to their felicity lay in the thought that Charlie was still in the hands of Silas Morgan, and was in all probability subjected to great cruelty. Were he with them their happiness would be without alloy, and his daring feats of tumbling and gymnastics would be sure to add materially to the popularity of the nightly performonces.

Every day Myra pleaded with tears and sobs that Tobby should go for him. Tobby needed no persuasion. He was only too anxious to rescue Charlie, but the danger and difficulty deterred him. By making the attempt rashly, he might not only fail to save Charlie, but bring Myra's whereabouts to the knowledge of Morgan, and enable him to pounce on her too. He had, therefore, to invent some safe plan of operations, and it was some time ere he could fix on anything satisfactory. Many an hour he and Maria consulted about the matter without being able to hit on any proper expedient.

'Couldn't you go to the Sow and Pigs some night in disguise, and find out how things are getting on ?' suggested Mrs. Stubbs one day. 'You might manage to get a word of the boy, and tell him to give Morgan the slip.

'That's a good idea, Maria,' said Tobby, smacking his sound leg with impulsive satisfaction. 'I'll put on a red wig and a smock-frock, and go as a waggoner, and Silas himself won't know me if he sees me.

This being settled, it was intimated that there would be no performance on the following evening ; and the day was spent in procuring Tobby's disguise.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Timber Cutting !

There are thousands of our citizens whose living depends upon timber cutting. A large amount of capital is invested in this industry But per se, timber cutting is a sad sight. Look at the thick forest of tall trees with their interlacing limbs and branches, so fantastic and graceful. As the axe falls upon the stout body of the tree there seems to come from it the groan of a death struggle, as if to say: "I've stood here monarch of all I survey for scores of years, keeping back the rude winds in Winter from your dwellings, and drawing the cool breezes to my shade in the Summer, and yet you cut me down for the paltry dollar I will bring. For shame woodcutter" But such is life of man and tree ; all must at last give way to the inevitable. Death comes to all. The woodchopper must yield at last to death. But diseases may be retarded and often removed by DR HERRICKS SUGAR COATED PILLS. Many who would suffer for years have been relieved as if by magic by them. Their popularity is the outcome of years of use. For diarrhea, dyspepsia, disordered bowels and kindred diseases they have no equal.

LOWELL, Mass., 15 1876.

MESSRS. WM. M. GILES & Co.—Gentlemen : I have been suffering for ten years with sciatio rheumatism, and the different kinds of Liniment I have used during that time may be estimated by gallons. About two weeks ago I obtained a bottle of your Liniment Iodide Ammonia of your agents, F & E. Bailey & Co.; it gave me almost instantaneous relief from pain, and since that time I have been steadily improving. It has done me more good than any medicine that I have before used I have been obliged to carry a cane until within two weeks, since which time I have not found it necessary. I also wish to state that this testimonial is not solicited, but I give it in the hope that others may be benefitted as I have been. (Signed) MRS. N. PUVEY.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable ates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Aneamia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE : 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE :—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach ; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE :—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice ; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

December 19th, 1878. Yours truly, J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE :—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble ; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks ; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime : and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result : Cough sabsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago ; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE : LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach ; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose ; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this ; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible : I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR ;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

THIRD DAY.—MORNING SESSION.

THURSDAY, Jan 29

The Council met at 10, a. m.

The minutes of yesterday's session were read and approved.

Mr. McDavitt presented a petition for a grant of $50 for repairs to the road on the line between Hastings and Renfrew, provided Renfrew grants a like sum.—Referred to Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. Vankleek introduced a By-law to grant mineral privileges over County roads in Madoc to that Township.

Mr. Emo said the Gravel Roads Committee had met, and would report in the afternoon.

A letter was read from Mr. Thompson, proprietor of the Stirling News-Argus, asking for a share of the County patronage.

Dr. Faulkner spoke in favor of the letter, which was received and filed.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, a committee composed of the Warden and Messrs. Appleby, Aylsworth, Emo and Walker, was appointed to confer with the Auditor in relation to criminal justice accounts.

On motion of Mr. R. Gordon, the Warden and Clerk were instructed to sign a memorial to the Ontario Government for a grant to the extension of the North Hastings Railway to Tweed.

Dr. Faulkner moved for the remission of $100 from the County levy on Stirling, because of the heavy losses by fire in that village during the year.—Referred to Committee on Ways and Means.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Council went into Committee on Roads and Bridges. Mr. Aylesworth in the Chair.

The petition of Harry Lake for a grant on the line between Hastings and Renfrew, in Bangor, was taken up.

Mr. Aylesworth suggested that the grant be made, if at all, to the Township of Bangor.

Mr. Wilmot thought it better to lay the matter over until the June session, and then take the grant, if made, from the amount to be granted to the municipality.

Mr. Kavanagh would oppose the motion if it interfered with the June appropriations. The grant might, however, be made now.

Mr. Pearce thought the grant might be made now, and the County Council of Renfrew would take action later.

Mr. Wilmot, with this understanding, would not oppose the motion.

Mr. Ostrom thought the motion might be allowed to pass, as no money could be paid until the Council of Renfrew took action.

Mr. Anderson moved that no grant be made on roads at this session.

Mr. McGregor urged the making of the grant now.

The Warden wished the matter laid over until the June session, as otherwise the door would be opened for the making of other grants.

Mr. R. Gordon thought if it would benefit Bangor to make the grant now, they should do so.

The original motion was put and carried.

Mr. Pearce moved for a grant of $100 to Marmora and Lake to be applied on the boundary line between Hastings and Peterborough, conditional on Peterborough granting a like sum.

Mr. Wilmot would oppose the motion being in favor of making no grants on other than gravel roads, except in the five northern townships.

Mr. Bleecker expressed himself as being opposed to the motion.

The motion was passed after some further discussion.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

The opinion of the County Solicitor as to selling mining rights on roads was read, stating that the power of disposal of such rights rests with the County, and the sale must be made by public auction. In his opinion they would not give or sell at a nominal price, and he doubted whether a municipality could purchase.

Mr. Pearce suggested that a point of the road might be placed in the hands of the Township by repealing the By-law as effecting a portion of it.

The Warden was not in favor of giving up a small portion of a road, the more especially as it might prove to be of great value.

It being 12 o'clock, the Warden left the chair.

AFTERNOON SITTING.

The Council resumed at 2 p. m.

A communication was read from Mr. Matheson, Superintendent of the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, inviting the Council to visit the Institution.

The letter was received and filed, and it was agreed that at a future session the invitation should be accepted.

A letter was read from Joseph Keeler, M. P., asking the Council to make a grant for preliminary expenses in connection with the Trent Valley Canal.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Committee on Ways and Means resumed. Mr. O'Flynn acting as Chairman pro tem.

The matter of making a grant in favor of the Trent Valley Canal was taken up.

Mr. Aylsworth expressed himself very much in favor of the Canal, but had not made up his mind as to what sum they should grant towards the preliminary expenses.

Mr. Pearce said that money was needed to pay for printing, maps, expenses of travel, and he thought they should make a grant. He did not expect that the work would be done at once, but he did look for it in the comparatively near future.

Mr. Wilmot wished the matter, which was new to them, laid over until a future sitting.

Mr. Ostrom moved, seconded by Mr. Pearce, for a grant of $200.

Mr. Aylsworth moved for $100.

Mr. Anderson expressed himself as opposed to giving anything. He moved that the matter be not entertained.

Mr. Ostrom said he was willing to accept Mr. Aylsworth's amendment.

Mr. Wilmot moved to defer consideration of the subject until the next meeting. He at the same time expressed himself as favorable to granting the sum asked.

Subsequently this was withdrawn, and the original motion was carried.

Dr. Faulkner moved to remit $100 from the County levy on Stirling, in consequence of heavy losses by fire.

The motion was discussed at some length and withdrawn, to be introduced again at the June session.

Mr. Murphy said they were aware that there was great distress in Ireland, and as this County had never been behindhand in deeds of charity, he would move for a grant of $500, to be forwarded to the Lord Mayor of Dublin.

Mr. Aylsworth said he seconded the motion because the distress in Ireland was very great and seemed to be increasing. They had aided St. John and Chicago in their distress, and the suffering there was not seemingly so great as that in Ireland. We were able to give, and ought to do so.

Mr. Anderson thought Ireland and Scotland should be on the same footing. Rents in Scotland were higher than in Ireland, yet there was no distress there.

Mr. Pearce thought every ratepayer would willingly give their quota. The question was not one of nationality at all. He recognized only the claims of humanity.

Mr. Murphy said the people in Ireland are crying for bread and we ought to assist them.

Messrs. Kavanagh and Ostrom supported the motion, and Mr. Wilmot moved to reduce the grant to $300.

Mr. McGregor seconded the amendment.

The Warden supported the original motion.

Mr. Gordon (Hungerford) said Irishmen did very well in Canada, even alongside of "canny" Scotsmen. They could not appoint a Committee to find out the cause of the trouble—it was sufficient to know that it existed.

Mr. Anderson did not wish it understood that he opposed the motion; but the land in Ireland was better than in Scotland, and he would like to have an explanation as to the cause of the distress.

Mr. McGregor said the distress was caused by the wet, ungenial weather which had rendered the crops comparatively a failure, and prevented the drying of turf for fuel.

Mr. Wilmot withdrew his amendment, and after some remarks by Mr. O'Flynn the original motion was adopted.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Committee on Roads and Bridges resumed.

The petitions regarding mining under County roads were laid over until the June session.

Mr. Gordon (Trenton) moved, seconded by Mr. Ostrom, that the County Surveyor be instructed to advertise for the iron swing bridge at Trenton, and to ascertain the difference in cost of completing the work by the 1st of May or the 1st of September, the tenders to be referred to a committee composed of the Warden, Messrs. Aylsworth, Emo, Wilmot, Pearce and the mover, they to open the tenders and to have power to proceed with the work.

Mr. Ostrom said the reports of the County Surveyor and Mr. Evans showed that the bridge had become absolutely necessary. If the bridge were built in the summer it would be disastrous to the interests of the village. He hoped that the motion would pass and the Committee instructed to proceed with the work.

Mr. Wilmot felt that they were committed to the work, which he was satisfied was necessary.

Mr. Gordon explained that the draw is now closed and vessels cannot go up beyond the bridge.

The Warden held that even were the bridge now begun, it could not be finished before the fall, so that the navigation would thus be interfered with as much as it is now. He advocated the building of the pier during the summer of this year, and the superstructure next year. If the motion were so amended, he was satisfied that it would pass, and they would thus get the bridge almost as soon as otherwise.

Mr. Ostrom said the existing superstructure would have to come down when the pier was being constructed. In his opinion the best way to do was to build the bridge as quickly as possible.

Mr. Kavanagh wished to have a report from the Committee and to have information as to the cost of the bridge.

The Chairman said he had altered the motion so as to make it read that the bridge should be built without unnecessary delay.

Mr. Pearce said he found that the new pier could not be built without the present superstructure be taken down.

The Chairman said that as the draw is now fixed, and if they proceeded with due diligence no claim could be against them by persons who desired to get vessels above the bridge to load at the storehouses there.

Mr. McCreadie moved, seconded by Mr. Caskey, that the Committee receive tenders and report at the March session.

Mr. Gordon thought it best that the work should be proceeded with, as a great deal of time had been wasted on the subject, and the expense had been heavy.

Mr. Anderson explained that he was not opposed to the grant for the relief of the distress in Ireland. He had simply asked for an explanation, as he felt it to be his duty to have an explanation as to every cent of public money which they were called on to expend. He suggested that Mr. Appleby be added to the Committee on Trenton bridge.

This was agreed to.

Mr. McCreadie withdrew his amendment and the original motion was carried.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Council adjourned till 9 a.m. to-morrow.

You can train the eye to see all the bright places of your life, and so slip over the hard ones with surprising ease. You can also train the eye to rest on the gloomy spots, in utter forgetfulness of all that is bright and beautiful. The former is the better education.

THE ELECTION.

The contest for the election of a member to represent West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature has proceeded quietly up to the hour of our going to press. An extra, containing full returns, will be issued from the INTELLIGENCER office to-night, as the result will be learned too late to be given in our regular issue.

The Hamilton "Times" and Protection.

The Hamilton Times evidently feels very sore over our exposure of its gross inconsistency in advocating a Protective tariff in 1876, after having previously favored a Revenue tariff in 1875, and its now fiercely urged opposition to such a tariff as it approved of in 1876. It says in a recent issue :—

"It is true that we were in favor of an increase in the tariff in 1876, but it was to be a general increase, so made, however, that industries which were then struggling against undue American competition might have the benefit of additional protection. In no sense of the idea did we contemplate the abandonment of a revenue tariff as opposed to a purely protective tariff such as we now have, for instance, which does not protect nor yield an adequate revenue Not one word that we then uttered can even be distorted into indicating that we wished to see the land dotted with monopolies. Not a word can be found in favor of a tax on raw materials, or a tax on bread, or a tax on wheat, or a tax on meal, or a tax on coal, or a tax on sugar, or upon the necessaries of life. And yet the "N. P." includes all these taxes.

In all charity to the Times, we would say that it would have done better to remain quiet on this point, as its sins are beyond redemption. Here is what it said in 1876, from which it can be judged to what credit its present disclaimer is entitled :

"Neither is it true that protection will, except temporarily, raise the cost of the manufactured article to the consumer. And it is here that Free Traders make the greatest blunder of all. They are very earnest in contending that it is a law in political economy that wise statesmanship will never forget that, to be prosperous, a people should be in a position to buy in the cheapest and sell in the dearest market. But they forget that it is an equally well understood law in political economy that no special trade or calling can long remain exceptionally remunerative. The Free Traders say that under a protective tariff Canadian manufacturers would reap enormous profits, and that they would thus grow rich by the consumer being forced to buy his products at artificially high rates. In so saying, Free Traders ignore these economic laws of which they speak so much. It is a world wide truth that whatever calling has most profit in it is that which attracts most competitors within its ranks, and the competition soon reduces the profits to the average. Let it be known that there is fifty per cent. profit in boots and shoes, or stoves, or cottons, and hosts of people in other callings making only their eight or ten per cent. profit will at once withdraw their capital from the less remunerative business and invest it where it can make its fifty per cent. And the rush to it will continue until the profits are forced down, and the profits with them, to so low a percentage as to no longer invite capital. That is a law that has no exceptions yet when Free Traders speak on Protection they altogether ignore it. But we must correct ourselves, there is an exception. Under the incidentally Protective tariff—that which Canadian Free Traders most love—this competition and levelling of profits may be avoided. A tariff that changes, as revenue or whim dictates, is one that introduces "risk," as a permanent accompaniment of the investment of capital in manufactury, and where there is this risk there can be no guarantee of steady and effective competition. Under one phase of the tariff a manufacturer may incur many heavy losses; under another he may for a time reap enormous profits. His business partakes of the nature of a gambling speculation, and when being on a element of permanency in it, it is not one that invites the investment of capital to an amount that would introduce effective competition. So long as the Free Trade-ever-fluctuating tariff exists, this condition of things may continue to exist; there may be enough protection to encourage speculation, but not enough to create healthy competition; and thus the very evil Free Traders dread will be invited But if the friends of home industries have their way, this will be avoided. The tariff being not only protective, but based on a permanent principle, will take manufacturers out of the region of speculation; capital will flow in in abundance, for there will be no longer be risk in its employment other than that of whole competition; that competition will render exorbitant profits impossible and will, in due time, bring down the cost of the article manufactured to the minimum price. In proof of what this internal competition will do we point to England itself—the favorite country of Free Trade reference. It is not foreign competition that keeps down manufactured articles in that country to so low a price, for they have had (until of late) no foreign competition to fight against; it is simply the competition between the home manufactures does it. What internal competition can do there it can do here as well, if only our legislature is such as to make it possible.

"State encouragement to special interests is not, then, in violation of the best policy of Canada; a protective tariff will not increase by one cent the annual taxation of the country, nor need a protective policy increase the cost of manufactured goods to the consumer; but, if wisely framed, will on the contrary lessen it. And then to the balance of the good derived we will have growth in population and wealth, home markets, and increased self dependence."

Count Von Moltke has no faith in the success of the movement for the disarmament of the European Powers in his day. He says the conviction that victorious war is a national misfortune can only be the result of the moral education of the nations.

Aid for Ireland.

The generosity of the County Council in granting $600 to assist in alleviating the distress unfortunately existing amongst the peasantry of Ireland, is an action which might well be imitated by other Councils, and which will meet the approbation of the people of the County generally. In fact the Council, in doing so, is following out its own precedent in the case of the Chicago and St. John fires. Greatly as aid was required in each of these cities, the extent of the distress there was much less than that which, but for the assistance of the rest of the world, would speedily depopulate a whole district of Ireland.

We are glad, however, to see that relief is flowing in rapidly, and that our neighbors of the United States are giving of their plenty with the generosity which is characteristic of them, whilst England and Scotland are doing their part, and Canada will also acquit herself well. True, the stream of benevolence has been restricted by the agitation on behalf of the peasant proprietary project, but now that it is soon how pressing the necessities of the case are, all other considerations have given way, and the battle against famine is being prosecuted with vigor and success.

That Belleville is prepared to do her part we are quite convinced, and we shall be pleased to see a movement fairly inaugurated for a public subscription.

The Estimates for 1880.

The estimates for 1880, which were brought down on the 28th, contain the following items; the corresponding items for 1879 being given for purposes of comparison :—

FENIANS ON THE MOVE IN CHESTER.—A cable telegram says :—"An extensive robbery of arms and ammunition from gunsmith's shops has been accomplished at Chester. This police assert that the robbery was committed by agents of the Fenian Association, a body which a very numerous membership in Chester. It is remembered that almost the first organized attempt of the Fenians was made at Chester, when they sought to carry out a plot for the capture of Chester Castle some years ago."

SHIPPING ENTERPRISE.—Rivalry in shipping enterprise is well shown by the following statement which appears in the last number of the New York Nautical Gazette: "It is understood that the Cunard Company is about to engage in a new enterprise the results of which may seriously affect the East India trade of Boston and New York. It is proposed to establish a line of steamers between Liverpool and Calcutta and Bombay, the transfer of goods intended for this country to take place in the Company's docks in the Mersey. The Batavia will be the pioneer vessel of the new line. The great saving in time by the new arrangement will be seen from the fact that the average passage of East India traders to New York or Boston is about 120 days, while the steamers will average 25 to 40 days to Liverpool and twelve more to this country."

NEARLY BURIED ALIVE.—The Ottawa Free Press of last evening says :—"Yesterday afternoon a man had a narrow escape from being buried alive. He was a small-pox patient in one of the hospitals, and had apparently died of the disease. To all appearance the man was dead, and he was duly placed in a coffin and taken to the cemetery, where a grave had been opened to receive the mortal remains. The sexton and others who were conducting the burial were startled at hearing a groan, emanating from the coffin. On the lid being raised it was found that the patient had revived, apparently coming back to life. It was a clear case of suspended animation. The man was taken back to the hospital and to-day was much improved, being now in a fair way of recovery." His narrow escape from burial alive will be an episode in his life—that is if he lives, which seems quite likely.

THERE were about three gallons of eggnog left at the Indianapolis Board of Trade rooms, at the late New Year's reception neared its close, and some of the boys, intent on fun, brought in a goat. He drank plentifully of the egg nog, and then busted the bowl over and took temporary possession of the premises.

—A gentleman in Ottawa is at present working a molybdanum mine not many miles from Ottawa. It is used for dyeing purposes, and is worth one dollar per pound. He has in very short time taken out $150 worth, and says he has struck a rich vein.

PARNELL is cold as an iceberg. He evidently commits his speeches to memory, and he has not the imagination, nor style. His voice is thin and his manner awkward. He does not sway his audience. He cools rather than fires its ardor. No one could help noticing the difference when Phillips took the stage and Parnell left his audience unmoved. Phillips took it, held it, swayed it as the Irishman could not. The mission does not seem to have been any more of a success here than in other cities. The feeling is here as elsewhere, that there is too much of a mixture of philanthropy and politics in it.—Boston Correspondence Springfield Republican.

THE EXTENT to which the Afgan Ameer was guilty of the murder of Major Cavagnari has never been accurately stated. The Pall Mall Gazette of December 26th, quotes from a private letter as follows:—"Some time back, as we were about to hang one of Yakoub's generals, he said he had something to confess. He was brought before General Roberts and said that the Ameer, Yakoub Khan, signed the death warrant of the British Envoy and ordered the murderers to be dragged through the streets of Cabul. General Roberts asked him whether he would say this to the Ameer's face. He answered 'Yes,' and when brought face to face did so and since then the Ameer has been confined to his tent with a strong guard on him."

THE GREAT PERMANENCY OF MURRAY & LANMAN'S Florida Water gives it a wonderful advantage over nearly all other perfumes; it will smell as fresh after its application to the handkerchief or garment exhales a soft rich fragrance, agreeable, refreshing, and healthful.

A DEADLY STRUGGLE !—Disease is ever present upon us; from the cradle to the grave, more than one half of the human family have to contend inch by inch the progress of some ailment. What a boon then must Hagyard's Sarsaparilla and Pills be; they purge out all poisonous matter, they purify the blood and humors, they give tone and power to the whole system, and enable the body to throw off disease that would otherwise have hurried it to the grave.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Erastus Smith, the wife of a wealthy liquor merchant of Hyde Park, shot herself through the heart last evening, deliberately baring her breast to make sure of her aim. No cause assigned.

FORT BENTON, Montana, Jan. 30.—Iron Pipe, Chief of the Gros Ventres, arrived with 12 lodges at the coal banks on Wednesday night. He reports Sitting Bull, with 600 lodges, is encamped on the Big Bend of Milk river, moving south. He is very destitute and has suffered untold misery this winter from hunger. They were forced to follow the buffalo south to procure food. Sitting Bull solemnly declares if allowed to hunt on this side he will be friendly to the whites, but if his people are molested he will fight.

FREDERICK, Md., Jan. 30.—John H. Soper, a prosperous farmer, deliberately threw himself before a freight train on Wednesday evening and was instantly killed. No cause assigned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Herald's Albany special says that Col. Conkling, who is trying to harmonize the Democratic differences, favors a conference of 20 or more leading men of both wings at Albany for consultation. It is not improbable that his project may be adopted.

Attorney General Ward has called upon receivers of bankrupt corporations throughout the State to send in their last reports. He proposes to secure the passage of a law under which he can hold receivers to strict accountability.

CAMDEN, N. Y., Jan. 30.—The trial of engineer Johnson and conductor Ewings, indicted for manslaughter in connection with the accident to an excursion train on the Atlantic City Railroad, commenced yesterday.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 30.—Rev. W. Loring, of Cherryville, was kicked by his horse a few days ago and his face crushed in. His condition is critical.

WHITEHALL, Pa., Jan. 30.—A girl named Sheaffer, aged 6, on her way to school yesterday accompanied by a little boy, caught her foot between the planks on the railway crossing. The boy vainly tried to extricate her. Seeing her danger she lay down across the rail. The train came along, cutting off both legs. She died in a few minutes.

WOODSTOCK, Va., Jan. 30.—A riot at Liberty furnace ended by the discharge of the negro workmen, who were anxious to get away. The whites then disbanded.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Times says that the contract relating to passenger and freight rates between the Pacific mail Steam Ship Company and the Union Pacific Railway terminated in May last.

The Steam Ship Company has formally declared war against the Railway Company, and yesterday determined to reduce the freight and passenger rates and begin an active competition. The passenger rates are to be reduced to $75 for cabin passage from New York to San Francisco, and freight rates reduced one third to a half below the present tariff. The Times says there is talk of investigating yesterday the sale of the Central Pacific stock.

The Times doubts if Gould or other members of the Syndicate parted with a single share.

A great charity ball held last night netted from $8,000 to $10,000 for the benefit of the nursery and child's hospital.

Mrs. Kashman, a patient at the Mt. Sinai hospital, fell from a third story stair case to the basement on Wednesday, and was fatally injured.

Rev. Gustave Alan, pastor of the Bohemian Church, became ill in a horse car last night and was removed to hospital, where he died of heart disease.

Chas. Byerly, a passenger on the Havana steamer Saratoga, which sailed hence on January 17th, jumped overboard and disappeared. The water was discolored with blood; it is believed he was snapped up by a shark.

Walter Smith, known upon the stage as Walter Birch, the one popular tenor, died in Jersey City yesterday from paralysis. For the past month he had taken no food.

J. P. Hanbon, one of the oldest citizens of Patterson, failed yesterday. He lost $150,000 by bad debt and endorsements recently.

The Tribune says that no settlement of negotiations between the Erie and Central roads for the New England business, has been reached. Erie claims more than its share of the New England business. The opening of its through line to Boston has made Erie a formidable rival for all east bound business at Buffalo. Its claim to a portion of the business of the Lake Shore and Canada Southern roads, whether destined to this port or to New England, the completion of the Boston line enables it to enforce. No conflict is feared, however. It is understood that nearly an equal division of business is asked by Erie. When an agreement shall have been reached, it is probable Erie will make with the Wabash R.R. a traffic arrangement similar to that recently made between it and the New York Central. A division of the east bound traffic at Buffalo between Erie and the Central will be almost a pooling of the business of the two Companies.

THE CASH SYSTEM
IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his business strictly upon a cash basis can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.
In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.
The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.
Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases in Rothchild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.
Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay ?

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JANY. 30.

City and Vicinity.

Police.—There were eight tramps and prisoner in the cells last night.

County Council.—The Council concluded the business before it shortly before noon to-day and adjourned until Tuesday, June 8th.

Storing Flour.—Faith no doubt in the probable rise in flour has caused the millers of Hastings to store instead of shipping, and now the mill is full of flour and wheat, the storehouse is filled with flour, and they are now storing away flour in the foundry.

Reduction of Rates.—It is understood that the Montreal Telegraph Company has received official notification to reduce its cable rates to 12½ cents per word to France and the continent after the first of next month.

To Rebuild.—Mr. Dafoe, owner of the burned building occupied by Harris & Walton as a sash and blind factory, is already preparing to rebuild. Yesterday a gang of men were clearing away the debris, and the work of rebuilding will be gone on with immediately.

Narrow Escape.—A couple of ruralists yesterday desired to cross the ice to Ferry Point in order to visit some friends and seemingly unaware of the existence of a very dangerous crack had driven close to it when they were warned off by some young men who were ice-boating.

Ice Boating.—The ice on the bay now presents a good field for ice boating, as its surface is comparatively smooth and with any sort of wind the sailing is very enjoyable. A number of ladies took advantage of the weather yesterday and showed their desire for ice boating by appearing in one of the craft.

Fire.—A building, which was in process of erection on the lot owned by the city near the Agricultural Grounds, and which was intended for hospital purposes, was set on fire last evening and almost wholly destroyed. The material of the structure was not very costly, as the loss is only about $160. The work of reconstructing the building was commenced this morning.

Liberal Conservative Association.—At the annual meeting of the Liberal Conservative Association for the County of Prince Edward, held on Monday, the following were appointed office bearers for the ensuing year:—Wm. Delong, President; Ab. Huyck, 1st Vice-President; D. McCaulay, 2d Vice-President; Wm. Owens, Treasurer; D. Ross, Secretary.

Athletic Exhibition.—The grand assault-at-arms and athletic exhibition, which is to be engaged in by the pupils of Messrs. Ross & Barnes and of the Mechanics' Institute, will take place in the Opera House on Monday night. There will be, we are informed, upwards of sixty competitors, and a fine exhibition may be expected.

Recovered.—The pocket book lost by Mr. Donald Anderson has, we learn, been recovered through the exertions of Mr. W. N. Thomas. It appears that on Monday morning Mr. Thomas observed a man named William Gordon, who also passes under the name of Smith, pick up a pocket book, and questioned him on the subject, but got no satisfactory answer. Seeing Mr. Anderson's advertisement in the Intelligencer of the same evening, Mr. Thomas became convinced that the pocket book which he had seen Gordon pick up was that advertised. He accordingly found where Gordon lives, and proceeding thither last night with Sergt. Snider, had the man arrested and lodged in the cells. The pocket book was recovered, only a small portion of the money which it had contained being missing.

Eastern Ontario Dairyman's Association.

A meeting of the Directors of the above Association was held in this city, concluding last night

It was resolved to hold the next annual convention in Kingston, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, February 24th, 25th and 26th.

Mr. McPherson, the President and Mr. M. H. Grass were appointed a Committee to prepare the programme and secure the services of qualified lecturers for the coming convention.

Mr. McPherson was appointed to attend the Convention of the Western Dairyman's Association at London and arrange for securing the services of such speakers as he may think best.

The following motion was passed:

Moved by D. Vandewaters, seconded by W. S. Yates, That the President, John R. Craig and H. Ashley, Warden, be appointed as a deputation to wait on the Minister of Agriculture of the Province of Ontario, showing the importance and necessity, in the Dairy interests of Ontario, of securing statistics and information respecting this industry, and praying that the Government of the Province of Ontario will grant the sum of $2,500 to the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario, in order that said Association may employ one or more of the best instructors in Europe or America, to instruct and assist in developing our dairy interests.

"Pinafore."—The performance of this well-known opera comique by the amateurs of Picton last night for the benefit of the St. Thomas' Church organ fund, was a decided success. Every part was capably filled, and "it is greatly to the credit" of a town so small as Picton that is able to muster so much musical and dramatic talent of a superior quality. It is not, in fact, too much to say that the opera has "hardly ever" been given in Belleville with better effect by professionals.

Police Court.

(Before A. Diamond, P. M.)

January, 29th, 1880.

HORSE STEALING.

Alex. Martin, charged with stealing a horse, the property of James Lake, of Sidney, was found guilty and remanded for sentence.

January 30th, 1880.

LARCENY.

Wm. Hunt, convicted of this offence, was sentenced to the common jail for three months at hard labor.

Wm. Gordon, for appropriating some money from a pocket book found by him, was remanded until to-morrow.

LUNACY.

Patrick Foley was again remanded on this charge to Monday next.

Prince Edward.

(From the Picton Times.)

Schooner Belle.—This schooner, as she lies in Picton harbor, was to have been sold under an execution last Saturday, but in consequence of a doubt as to her ownership the sale was postponed.

Remarkable.—One of the most remarkable feats of this very remarkable winter was that of Capt. F. J. Rose, who sailed his sloop, the Ella Jane, across Lake Ontario on Monday last, the 26th of January, from Fair Haven to East Lake, into the outlet of which he he sailed without any difficulty. He came across for a load of fish. He was about six hours crossing and reports having seen very little ice.

Seeking Advice.—Mr. McCuaig has called a meeting of his constituents interested in marine matters, for Saturday, 7th February, to consult together as to the Fishery regulations, and the best site for a lighthouse which is to be erected on South Bay Point or Timber Island. We are glad to see that Mr. McCuaig is consulting the interests of his constituents in these important matters and hope there will be a large attendance. The meeting will be held in the Town Hall, Picton, at 1 o'clock.

At the Annual District Meeting of L. O. District Lodge No. 2, North Hastings, held at Bancroft, the following Officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year:—Archie Kernigham, No. 180, W. D. M.; William Young, No. 1376, D. D. M.; J. R. Tait, No. 1183, D. Chaplain, re-elected; Thomas Armstrong, No. 1111, District Secretary, re-elected; James B. Cleak, No. 1183, District Treasurer; Alexandra Creigton, No. 1111, D.D. of C.; James B. Cleak, No 1183, Past D.M. It was agreed that there should be no district celebration this year. The semi-annual District Meeting will be held at Monteagle and the next Annual Meeting at Maynooth.

A Steady Stream of Emigration has set in from India to the British colonies best adapted by reason of temperature or special industries to attract the superfluous Hindoo population. Nearly 16,000 Indians emigrated last year, of whom 14,000 were Hindoos proper, one-tenth of them being of the Brahmin order. The restrictions of caste are rapidly giving way before education, commerce and modern institutions. Many of them go to the Fiji Islands, whither the Chinese have preceded them; and Trinidad, Jamaica, Mauritius, Natal and Demarara are also competitors for Hindoo labor. They have the character of being docile, industrious and thrifty settlers.

It may be said generally of husbands, as the woman said of hers who had abused her, to an old maid who reproached her for marrying him. "To be sure he is not so good a husband as he might be, but he is a powerful sight better than none."

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

Wednesday, Jan. 28.

Mr. Speaker took the chair at three o'clock.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

To amend the Act incorporating the North Simcoe railway.—Mr. Gibson (Hamilton.)

Respecting the Victoria Railway Company.—Mr. Springer.

Respecting the construction of a branch of the Belleville and North Hastings railway.—Mr. Boulter.

To incorporate the Bayfield and South Huron railway.—Mr. Bishop.

NEW COUNTIES.

Mr. Gibson (Huron) asked whether it was the intention of the Government to introduce legislation or to consent to legislation, whether by public or private bill, to the erection or setting apart of any new county or counties during the present session.

Mr. Mowat said it was not.

INSPECTOR OF RAILWAYS.

Mr. Gibson (Huron) asked whether it is the intention of the Government this session, to appoint an Inspector of Railways, having the same powers as have been exercised for some time by the Railway Commission in England.

Mr. Mowat said it was not.

THE CASE OF MR. SMALL.

Mr. Morris moved for a return of all correspondence between the Department of the Attorney-General and John Small, Esq., clerk in the Queen's Bench office, in Toronto, wherein he was informed that his retention of his office was conditional on his withdrawal from the City Council, of Toronto, and his abstinence from taking any part in elections, whether for the House of Commons, or Legislative Assembly, together with the reply of the said John Small thereto, and copies of all letters and documents accompanying the same, or referred to therein.

A somewhat breezy discussion took place in which Hon. Mr. Mowat, Mr. Meredith, Mr. Bell, Hon. Mr. Fraser, Mr. Miller and Hon. Mr. Hardy took part.

The motion passed.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of yesterday appears Mr. Johnston's 2nd edition—now Mr. Editor I do not propose keeping up a newspaper war with Mr. Johnston. Why? because I do not consider him worthy of my steel. Mr. Johnston in his letter refers to the feats of the Romans (let not the shoemaker go behind his last), nor Johnston from his Standing High Jump, for if only feats of Roman Gladiators were to count, Johnston's position in athletics would be blank, and as to Johnston knowing as much about the feats on our programme as I do is simply absurd,—and to prove this I will bet $5 to $1 for as much money as Johnston likes to post.

This should be an opportunity for Johnston to make money if he is a man of deeds instead of words, if not stop his talk and letter writing, and by so doing he will no doubt save his friends some trouble.

Respectfully yours,
Prof. D. C. Ross.
Belleville School of Arms and Athletic Studio.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

London, Jan. 30.—By a fire-damp explosion in a colliery at Meissen, Saxony, yesterday, 10 miners were killed, 9 injured, and nine persons are missing.

New York, Jan. 30.—Arrived, the Daniel Steinmann from Antwerp.

London, Jan. 30.—Arrived, the Bristol City and Lena.

Florence, Jan. 30.—Bremerau, a notorious Colonel under the Paris Commune, died recently in this city.

London, Jan. 30.—A Paris despatch says that the coalition of the moderate Republicans with the Conservatives yesterday elected Leon Say to the Presidency of the Senate Finance Committee, over Calmona, Vice-President of the Senate, the regular Republican candidate. On the Senate proceeding to elect a life Senator, Viscount de Montolivet, recently deceased, the extremist whose turn it was to make the nomination, selected Dr. Paul Broca.

Dufaure, a Republican life Senator, with 12 or 14 followers, who have practically ceased to belong to the left centre, and must henceforth rank as a distinct group midway between the left and right centres, opposed Broca on the ground of his Darwinian tendencies. They nominated Bertoland, a well known advocate and Republican, but opposed to the anti-Jesuit clause of Ferry's education bill. Broca received 126, Bertoland 118, scattering 12,—Broca receiving 3 less than an absolute majority, the election is postponed. More than 100 senators of the right centre supported Bertoland.

WEATHER REPORTS

Toronto, Jan. 30. —Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk southeasterly to southwesterly winds, cloudy, warmer weather, fair, followed to-morrow by westerly to northwesterly winds and cloudy weather.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Indications: For lower lakes to-day, threatening snow or rain, slightly warmer to-morrow, colder weather.

By whatever names men may call themselves, or be called by others, all that they can do is to render their designations synonyms of whatsoever things are pure, honorable and just; and then there can be no question of their being friends to Jesus.

Free of Cost.

DAIRY NOTES.

If milk, a few minutes after being drawn from the cow, be cooled with very cold rain water, it keeps fresh for many days, and can be sent to a long distance

Watering Stock.—The supply of water in winter is a source of trouble. Ice gathers about the troughs and other drinking places, pipes freeze and burst, or become choked, and many other inconveniences occur. These may be avoided by methodical management. Have regular watering periods, twice a day. Fill the trough from the pumps or cisterns and drive the cattle to them and see that they drink. When all are supplied, empty the troughs, and either cover them or turn them over. Have no flowing water in the yards to waste and freeze, or become ice-cold for drink. A cold drink will reduce the milk from cows 10 per cent. or more.—Gouverneur Herald.

THE NEW
CORSET
Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

This new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of different development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

E. JAMES, Clerk.

Timber Cutting!

There are thousands of our citizens whose living depends upon timber cutting. A large amount of capital is invested in this industry But per se, timber cutting is a sad sight. Look at the thick forest of tall trees with their interlacing limbs and branches, so fantastic and graceful. As the axe falls upon the stout body of the tree there seems to come from it the groan of a death struggle, as if to say: "I've stood here monarch of all I survey for scores of years, keeping back the rude winds in Winter from your dwellings, and drawing the cool breezes to my shade in the Summer, and yet you cut me down for the paltry dollar I will bring. For shame woodcutter." But such is life of man and tree; all must at last give way to the inevitable. Death comes to all. The woodchopper must yield at last to death. But diseases may be retarded and often removed by DR HERRICKS SUGAR COATED PILLS. Many who would suffer for years have been relieved as i by magic by them. Their popularity is the outcome of years of use. For diarrhea, dyspepsia, disordered bowels and kindred diseases they have no equal.

LOWELL, Mass., 15 1876

MESSRS. WM. M. GILES & Co.—Gentlemen: I have been suffering for ten years with sciatic rheumatism, and the different kinds of Liniment I have used during that time may be estimated by gallons. About two weeks ago I obtained a bottle of your Liniment Iodide Ammonia of your agents, F & E. Bailey & Co.; it gave me almost instantaneous relief from pain, and since that time I have been steadily improving. It has done me more good than any medicine that I have before used. I have been obliged to carry a cane until within two weeks, since which time I have not found it necessary. I also wish to state that this testimonial is not solicited, but I give it in the hope that others may be benefitted as I have been. (Signed) MRS. N. PUVEY

Trial size 25 cents.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that an application will be made to the Legislature of Ontario, at its present sitting, for an Act to remove all doubts as to the corporate existence of the Hawkeye Gold and Silver Mining Company, and also to remove all doubts as to the power of said Company to sell and convey all their estate, real and personal, and to confirm an agreement now proposed for said purpose.

Dated January 26, 1880.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable ates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

MORTGAGE SALE

OF

Valuable Freehold Property.

TO be sold by Public Auction, in pursuance of the power of sale contained in two certain Mortgages to the Vendors, which will be produced at the Sale, in two parcels, on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF FEBRUARY, A.D. 1880, at Twelve o'clock, noon, by Charles Wilkins, Auctioneer, at the Dominion Hotel, in the City of Belleville, the following valuable Real Estate, being composed of:

PARCEL No. I.

Lot number Two, on the east side of Coleman Street, and south side of Bridge Street, in the City of Belleville.

PARCEL No. II.

Lot number Twenty-nine, in the second concession of the Township of Thurlow, containing by admeasurement two hundred acres of land, be the same more or less.

On Parcel No I. there is one large brick dwelling house and store, and also a good stone stable. This property is advantageously situated for a store, and is near the business portion of the city.

On Parcel No. II. there are: one one-story frame dwelling house, one log house, and three barns. There is also a small orchard on the premises; the soil is a good clay loam. About 170 acres are cleared and fit for cultivation, and about 30 acres are wood land. This property is situated about eight miles from Belleville, which affords a good market for the produce.

The vendors reserve to themselves the right of one bidding in respect of each parcel. Terms of payment very liberal. A deposit of ten per cent of the purchase money must be paid at the time of sale, when easy terms for the balance will be arranged.

For further particulars and conditions of sale, apply to N. B. Roblin, Esq., Belleville, or to

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anaemia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermitten Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

Overwhelming evidence of their superiority over all other plasters. It is everywhere recommended by Physicians, Druggists and the Press.

The manufacturers received a special award and the only medal given for porous plasters at the Centennial Exposition, 1876, at the Paris Exposition, 1878.

Their great merit lies in the fact that they are the only plasters which relieve pain at once.

Every one suffering from RHEUMATISM, LAME BACK, or WEAK BACK, COLD ON THE CHEST, COUGHS, or any local pain or ache, should use Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster, and be relieved at once. Price 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists.

HELEN OF TYRE.

(H. W. Longfellow in "Atlantic Monthly.")

What phantom is this that appears
Through the purple mist of the years,
Itself but a mist like thee?
A woman of cloud and of fire:
It is she! It is Helen of Tyre,
The town in the midst of the seas?

Oh, Tyre! in thy crowded streets,
The phantom appears and retreats,
And the Israelites, that sell
Thy lilies and lions of brass,
Look up as they see her pass,
And murmur "Jezebel!"

Then another phantom is seen
At her side, in a grey gabardine,
With beard that floats to his waist;
It is Simon Magus, the seer;
He speaks, and she pauses to hear
The words he utters in haste.

He says: "From this evil frame;
From this life of sorrow and shame,
I will lift thee and make thee mine!
Thou hast been Queen Candace,
And Helen of Troy, and shalt be
The Intelligence Divine!"

Oh, sweet as the breath of morn,
To the fallen and forlorn
Are whispered words of praise,
For the famished heart believes
The falsehood that tempts and deceives,
And the promise that betrays.

So she follows from land to land
The wizard's beckoning hand,
As a leaf is blown by the gusts,
'Till she vanishes into night!
O, reader stoop down and write
With thy finger in the dust.

Oh, town in the midst of the seas,
With thy rafts of cedar trees,
Thy merchandize and thy ships,
Thou, too, art become as nought,
A phantom, a shadow, a thought,
A name upon men's lips.

THE LONELY SHEAF.

There's a lonely sheaf in the harvest field,
That weary hands have bound,
And left for many a day and night
Alone on the stony ground.
Some tired heart must have vainly looked
For a harvest of peace and love,
To gather at last but the hopes that died
'Neath the clouds which gathered.

All over the world there are harvest fields,
And in some the reapers are gay;
In others the sowers with tear blind eyes,
Turn empty handed away,
O Summer, why scatter thy sunbeams bright.
Only for some who sow,
While there are hearts where the grains of joy
Are struggling through clouds to grow.

But the lonely sheaf in the harvest field,
That some weary hand has bound;
Wells and through shadow, and cloud, and rain,
Alone on the rugged ground,
Till the patient sower himself grows ripe,
For the harvest of heaven above,
And is gathered home by the Father's hand,
And saved by the Father's love.

Sunday Reading.

Aunt Betsy's Soliloquy.

Dear me! When we think of what we might do and don't do—of the opportunities we neglect—we have great cause to reproach ourselves. I'm very, very sorry that youthful levity caused me refuse the hand of Mr. Melancthon Gypsum when I was a girl. I objected to him because he had warts on his nose and was cross-eyed. What a silly young creature I was, to be sure! Such an opportunity! Why, you know him, dear. It is the Dr. Gypsum who is paying attention to widow Potkins now. He has found five partners to share his labors. Why, you shocking girl! No he's not a Mormon. He's had the misfortune to lose five wives. That's nothing to smile at, I'm sure!

When he proposed to me I was a mere child. He told me he was well aware that no woman's constitution would stand the climate he was going to more than two years. He was then twenty-one, and expected to stay abroad until he was forty, so he would have nine or ten wives at least during his sojourn in that foreign land, and I suppose he thought it was my duty to be the first one. He didn't look for happiness in this wicked world, he said, and he hoped I didn't either. But, as I said, I was frivolous at the time. The first Mrs. Gypsum lived two years. I've read her biography. The natives used her dreadfully, She was just eighteen when she left this world.

Ah! when I called at the parsonage the other day I saw the portraits of Dr. Gypsum's wives, all in a row: Clarissa Gypsum, aged seventeen; Maria Gypsum, aged twenty; Martha Gypsum, aged seventeen (she died on the voyage over); Sarah Gypsum, aged twenty-four, and Amelia Gypsum, who lived to be forty. She was a widow when the doctor married her, and the only one of his wives that knew how to manage natives. Mr. Gypsum came home one day and found her driving two of 'em about harnessed to a little basket carriage. They thought it was their duty; she told 'em 'twas. Mr. Gypsum didn't like it, but I think it was right smart of her. Don't you?

They fried her in slices at last, I'm told, and offered her up to a big stone idol with three noses, that they thought all the world of. All of 'em came to some violent end, but the one that died going over; and two or three of the little babies were carried off, and may be are worshipping idols now, for all we know about them. Dear me! I've seen the biographies of the five wives, all in blue and gold, with a portrait on the first page.

Ah! if I hadn't been so frivolous mine might been among 'em. There isn't one so good looking as I am, and how proud I should have been of it, to be sure. But that's the way with young girls; they can't see what's best for 'em.

Beauties of Nature.

An attentive observer will find for the most part but little or no monotony in nature. "The meridian day succeeds to morning, evening to noon, and night to evening; summer to spring, and winter to autumn." There is a grand something in nature which seems to draw out and elevate the nobler nature of man, lifting him above and beyond earthly things, leading him to seek and learn more of the All-Wise, the Author and Creator of all, who gave us these beauties to enjoy...

Truly we can see much of contrast between the dignified simplicity of nature and the vanity, ignorance and presumption of man. One may stand by the side of the grand old ocean, which Homer styles the "father of his soul," and be filled at once with awe, delight, and solemnity. And why not? Is there not enough of study in and about this vast desert of waters for a lifetime? And then we should find that we had scarcely finished the first page.

Addison compares the sixth book of "Paradise Lost" to a troubled ocean, exhibiting greatness in confusion; and the seventh affects the imagination like the ocean in a calm. Milton compares the hallelujahs chanted by a multitude of angels to the murmuring of its waves.

From the ocean we may pass to the smaller bodies of water, which have each a grandeur beyond description. Grand as this desert of of waters may be, we may associate with its grandeur as belonging to nature the sublimity and beauty of the noble old forests. Each tree and shrub is a living page, to be read by the imagination over and over again, each time finding a new beauty in its depths.

The rocks, stones, and even the very pebbles, have each their own story to tell us. We read the history of centuries in the vast rocks, which forms for us other beauties in the shape of caves, grottoes, etc. Nothing that man might do, were he to work for ages, could compare with a year of nature's work in these caves and grottoes. No machinery, however fine, could mould or form such magnificent work as in a few hours can be formed by the droppings from the rocks—that which forms the glittering stalactites, and they, meeting the calcareous mounds, stalagmites, often form pillars strangely grouped and interwoven, like trees in a forest; and, it is said, often forming a semi-transparent curtain in this forest of stone. Were we to write on and on forever, we would have but begun to read Nature's volume, which lies open to all.

Let every one be an attentive observer in Nature's great library, and thus lead his mind to a fount which never sends him away thirsty, but ever seeks to lead him on to a fountain purer and higher.

The Vast Results.

There are three human agencies at work in the world for the conversion of men—the spoken Word, the lives of Christians and the printed Bible. These three, made effective by the Divine Spirit, will yet subdue the kingdoms of darkness to the rule of Christ. And how vast is the power they already exert! A few facts, which we find in an exchange, show how enormous the demand for Bibles has been of recent years. A careful estimate of the circulation of the Bible during the last century places the number at the enormous amount of nearly 150,000,000 copies. The British and Foreign Society is in advance of any other institution of the kind as regards the number of copies issued. It was founded in 1804 and has circulated upwards of 82,000,000 copies. The American Society founded thirteen years later, has caused a circulation of 35,000,000. These two organizations are far in advance of all others. Next in respect to copies circulated are the German Societies, which together have issued 8,000,000. Then comes the National Society of Scotland, with nearly 4,768,000; then the Hibernian with 4,189,000; the Swiss with 2,000,000, and the French with 1,600,000. The National Society of Scotland has circulated its 4,768,000 copies since 1861, the year in which it was founded. These figures show that the Bible was never so widely sought after and read as now; for these figures represent, in large part, editions that have been bought and paid for, and not given away. Many of these Bibles, it may be, are thrown aside or destroyed; but an immensely greater number are undoubtedly cherished and read by their owners, and directly influence not only their own but others' lives. Against such a force as this, constantly augmenting, the resistance of superstition and the assaults of infidelity are utterly vain.—Evangelist.

Man and Miracles.

Without creation, man has enormous power over nature. He can and daily does, overpower her laws, or seemingly make them work as he pleases. Despite the law of gravity, he ascends to the sky in a ballon; he makes water spring up in fountains; he makes vessels, weighing thousands of tons, float on the seas. Despite cohesion, he grinds rocks to powder; despite chemical affinity, he transmutes into myriads of different focus the few elements of which all matter consists; despite the resistless power of the thunderbolt, he causes electricity to be his servant or his harmless toy. With fire and water he moulds into shape mighty masses of metal; he shoots, at a sustained speed beyond that of birds, across valleys and through mountain ranges; he unites seas which continents had separated; there is nothing in the whole earth which he has not subdued, or does not hope to subdue, to his use. There is hardly a physical obstacle which he does not feel he can or may yet perform. But all this wonderful, this boundless, power over material laws, is gained by these laws. He alters no property of matter, but he uses one property or another as he needs, and he uses one property to overpower another. It is by knowing that gravity is more powerful in the case of air than in the case of hydrogen gas that he makes air sustain him as he floats, beneath a bag of hydrogen, above the earth. It is by knowing that it is more powerful in water than in air that he sails in iron ships; it is by knowing chemical affinity or repulsion that he makes the compounds or extracts the simple elements he desires; it is by knowing that affinity is a force, and that force is transmutable into electricity that he makes a messenger of the obedient lightning shock; it is by knowing that heat, itself unknown, causes gases to expand, that he makes machines of senseless iron do the work of intelligent giants. He subdues nature by understanding nature. He creates no property; he, therefore, performs no miracle, though he does marvels.—Contemporary Review.

Willie's Winter Coat and Its Lessons.

In a peasant's home, poor but thrifty, sat a young mother, plying her needle, in the soft summer twilight, for the wee Willie whose ringing laughter from the little garden told its own sweet tale. The husband sat near his wife in that wearied listlessness which is made such a luxury by a hard day's toil.

"How shall we get along when winter comes, George? 'Tis hard enough in summer; what will it be then?" The question awoke something within that man's slumbering soul that sent a quiet glow over every look and tone. "Mary, lass, what art thou making there?"

"A warm winter coat for Willie, George."

"I guessed as much. Does the young rogue know about it?" "Not he, dear lamb!" "Won't you tell him, to hinder his worrying about winter?"

"He worry! Why, hearken to him, George. He's as happy as the day is long; and even if he had the sense to think about winter, he'd trust mother to keep him warm." "Aye, lass, and I vow the boy is wiser than his mother." Mary's eyes filled as she caught her husband's upward look, and the cloud of distrust was rolled from the hearth by their child's trustfulness.

HIGH AND LOW.—Those who stand on the high places of the earth understand not what necessity, what suffering, means; they know not what it to r noble mind to be obliged, like the worms, to crawl upon the earth for nourishment, because it has not the strength to endure famine. Life moves around them with so much grace, splendor, and beauty; they drink of life's sweetest wine, and dance in a charming intoxication. They find nothing within them which can enable them to understand the real sufferings of the poor. They love only themselves, and look at mankind in their own narrow circle.

Ontario Legislature.

FIRST SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 29.

The chief business was the Budget speech of the Treasurer, and the discussion to which his financial statement gave rise.

Mr. Wood began his statement by referring to the sources of Provincial revenue and commenting at some length on the causes producing a falling off in the receipts from Crown lands, Crown timber, and invested capital. The depression which has for years affected the lumber industry is passing away, and the receipts from timber dues, which were at the lowest ebb in 1878, may be expected to increase. The total receipts from all sources in 1879 amounted to $2,250,269, and the total expenditure to $2,285,282. Passing from this branch of his subject, the Treasurer enumerated briefly the items of assets and liabilities, showing that the former amounted at the close of 1879 to $5,141,396, and the latter to $822,168, leaving a capital surplus of $4,319,227. The next point touched upon was the estimate of receipts and expenditure for 1879, the revenue being placed at $2,316,718, and the expenditure at $2,288,632. After explaining the cause of the increase in some of the items of expenditure, and referring to the state of the railway subsidy funds and the number of miles of railway constructed, he turned to the first item in the financial programme of the present Government of Quebec, and discussed from an Ontario point of view the proposed sale of the North Shore Railway to the Dominion Government. Pointing out that many of the expenditures for public purposes that in Ontario are borne by the municipalities are in Quebec borne by the Provincial Government, he took the ground that the debt of the latter Province would not have been incurred had the people then followed the same practice that is followed in Ontario. In view of this fact the purchase of the North Shore Railway, half the cost of which would be borne by Ontario, would be a great injustice to this Province.

Mr. Meredith, without himself expressing any opinion on the expediency of purchasing the Quebec North Shore Railway for the Dominion, protested against the introduction of such a question into the Assembly, and proceeded to criticise the financial statement. He was followed by a large number of members on both sides, the debate taking a very wide range and lasting during the whole of a comparatively long sitting.

The speaker having left the chair, the Committee passed the item for Government House and then rose and reported.

The various Bills containing proposed amendments to the Municipal Act read a second time and referred to the Special Committee on Municipal Amendments are, so far, as follows :—

Mr. Badgerow's Bill placing incorporated villages in the same position as townships with respect to the regulation of statute labor on highways.

Mr. Calvin's Bill providing for a change in the court for the equalization of township assessments in counties.

Mr. Harcourt's Bill depriving cities, towns, and villages of the power to collect market fees.

Mr. Robinson's Bill making "owners" of lands which lie adjacent to an artificially made or improved water course, and which are improved thereby, liable for their just share of the improvement, whether they are "occupants" of the lands or not.

Mr. Ross' Bill rendering valid all municipal debenture by-laws ignorantly passed since the close of the last session under Sections 330 and 322 of the Municipal Act as they stood before they were amended last year.

Mr. Waters' Bill transferring the duty of making provision for destitute and insane persons from grand juries to county councils.

Mr. Springer's Bill enabling towns with less than five wards to have two councillors for each ward, as those with more than five wards may now have.

Mr. Graham's Bill forbidding stock to be allowed to run at large, except where municipal corporations expressly allow them to do so.

Mr. Gibson's Bill making the provisions for the capture of horse-thieves applicable to cities as well as counties, and limiting the liability of County Councils for the erection and maintenance of bridges on boundary lines to places where bridges formerly existed at a distance of five miles apart.

Mr. Nairn's Bill ranking councillors in townships not divided into wards as "first," "second," "third," or "fourth," and limiting the time allowed municipal auditors to one month after their appointment.

A HORRID THING.—In a boarding house recently a young man on turning off his gas saw the words "Confess thy sins," in phosphorescent characters on the wall. He was surprised, but listening, thought he heard some young ladies outside the door waiting to observe the effect on him. So pretending to be frightened at the match-scratch he fell on his knees and confessed out loud that he had frequently kissed one of young ladies in the dark—the one whom he had the best reason to suspect of playing the trick. That young lady won't play any more such tricks immediately. She thinks he is a mean horrid thing.

Jonathan Edwards describes a Christian as being like "such a little flower as we see in the spring of the year, low and humble on the ground, opening its bosom to receive the pleasant beams of the sun's glory; rejoicing as it were in a calm rapture; diffusing around a sweet fragrance; standing peacefully and lowly in the midst of other flowers."

THE GREAT PERMANENCY OF MURRAY & LANMAN'S Florida Water gives it a wonderful advantage over nearly all other perfumes; days and weeks after its application the handkerchief or garment exhales a soft rich fragrance, agreeable, refreshing, and healthful.

A FIERCE STRUGGLE!—Disease is ever preying upon man; from the cradle to the grave, more than one half of the human family have to contest inch by inch the progress of some ailment. What a boon then must BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS be; they purge out all poisonous matter, they purify the blood and humors, they give tone and power to the whole system, and enable the body to throw off disease that would otherwise have hurried it to the grave.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, JANY. 31.

THE RESULT.

The electoral contest which was forced upon the people of West Hastings by a few irreconcilable Grits who persuaded Mr. E. G. Sills, against his better judgment, into accepting the nomination which he had before refused, has now become a matter of history. The faction has been routed "horse, foot and artillery," and we offer our congratulations to Mr. Robertson and his supporters upon the notable triumph which they achieved.

The majority having been reduced from 337 to 149, the Grits will doubtless seek to extract a great deal of comfort from that fact; but when it is considered that their allegations of bribery and corruption were all directed against residents of the city, the returns will confute them. A comparison with the record of the June election shows that in Foster Ward Mr. Robertson increased his majority by 15; in Samson Ward it remained precisely the same; in Ketcheson Ward there was an increase of 10; in Baldwin Ward of 20; and in Bleecker Ward of I. Coleman Ward alone shows a decrease, namely of 18, leaving a net increase for Mr. Robertson of 33 in the whole city over the last year's election. How the change in Coleman Ward was brought about, we have no doubt that Mr. Sills' friends could, if they were pressed, tell pretty closely.

In Sidney local feeling, persistently worked up, and a liberal use of corrupt means in a usually hard-fought section, as we are advised, gave to Mr. Sills a large majority, which was also due to some extent to the gain of some thirty votes made by the Grit party at the last year's revision of the voters' list; for be it remembered, the list used in 1879 was that of 1878, whilst that which was used in Friday's contest was the roll of 1879. This is a lesson to our Conservative friends to look well to the revision of the voters' lists.

The majority for Mr. Robertson in Trenton was very much less than was looked for, but when it is considered that 52 fewer votes were polled than in June last, owing to the absence of many men in the lumber shanties, and that nearly all these men are Conservatives, the result is accounted for.

Under these circumstances, then, we look upon the second victory won by Mr. Robertson as the greatest of the two, and for these reasons: In the first instance, he was the candidate of a party which was looked upon as quite likely to secure a majority in the Province, whereas in the second instance he had to oppose a Government firmly seated in power, and on behalf of which the "material advantages" cry was raised with no doubt considerable effect. Secondly, his opponent in June last had no advantage in point of locality, which Mr. Sills decidedly had, owing to the assertion that Belleville wished to usurp the representation of the riding. And lastly, in Friday's election many more of his friends than of those of his opponent were absent, and money was used against him in various ways.

Whilst, therefore, warmly congratulating our candidate and his supporters on the result, we trust that any asperities which may have been born of the contest will die away and that after the victorious party have duly celebrated their triumph, matters will resume their normal quietude.

Celebrating the Victory.

Mr. Robertson's friends and supporters are preparing to celebrate the victory won in yesterday's election, by a torch-light procession to be held on Tuesday night, instead of Monday night, as at first suggested. Particulars will be given on Monday, and no doubt the turn-out will be very large and enthusiastic.

The Grand Junction and the City.

A very important letter on the subject of the Grand Junction Railway Bill which is now before the Legislature, and which has already passed the Railway Committee, appears in another column. Further reference will be made to the matter in Monday's issue. Meanwhile we call the attention of the City Council and all others interested to the extraordinary powers which this Bill proposes to confer upon Mr. Bickford and his associate contractors.

THE MANUFACTURE OF CANTON FLANNEL.—The Montreal Witness says: "The Montreal Cotton Company and the Hudon Cotton Company are both about to begin the manufacture of Canton flannel on a large scale, and machinery for the purpose has just been ordered from Lowell, Mass., which will arrive in a few days. This new branch of manufacture will give employment to a number of extra hands, and as the companies intend to turn out a large quantity of this article, or as a director expressed it, 'sufficient to supply the entire remaining demand of the Dominion,' substantial results may be anticipated. Boom matter for the M. P."

WEST HASTINGS ELECTION.

MR. ROBERTSON TRIUMPHANTLY RE-ELECTED.

The Returns of the Voting.

The election which took place in the West Riding yesterday was very quietly conducted, although both parties were well organized and worked earnestly during the day. As usual, the Grits were the most active in some of the Wards during the early part of the day, and had their vehicles placarded, which Mr. Robertson's friends did not do, but afterwards the Conservatives workers exceeded them in activity, and succeeded in bringing out a large vote.

As the hour for the closing of the polls approached, some excitement began to manifest itself, and numbers of men began to gather in the vicinity of the polling places, but a heavy rain set in which sent a few homeward and drove others to shelter. The Conservative headquarters in the INTELLIGENCER building were speedily occupied, and as the returns were received from the various Wards, all showing an increased majority for Mr. Robertson, except Coleman Ward, a good deal of cheering was done. Trenton was heard from in a disappointing sense, and although Sidney was found to have rolled up a heavy majority for the candidate resident within its borders, yet it was found that Mr. Robertson had a majority (according to the returns) of 114. But this proves to be incorrect, Marsh Hill having been credited with returning 32 majority for Sills instead of 3 for Robertson, which leaves a majority of 149 for the latter.

After all the returns had been announced, which was shortly after 7 o'clock, Mr. Robertson and some of his supporters entered the headquarters, which were soon thronged to such an extent that a very large number who desired could not obtain admission. The successful candidate, Mr. N. B. Falkiner, and some others of his prominent supporters addressed the gathering, and as the night was so stormy it was resolved to have a torchlight procession on Monday night in celebration of the victory, after which all dispersed, cheers being first given for the Queen and Mr. Robertson.

The unofficial returns compare as follows with the official returns of the election of June 5th, 1879 :—

Grand Junction Railway.

WHO IS LOOKING AFTER THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY NOW?

A copy of the Act respecting the Grand Junction Railway, now before the House at Toronto, has been sent me by some one. Section 2 reads thus :—

"The time for the completion of the said railway to a point of junction with the Midland Railway of Canada at or near the village of Omemee or in the township of Emily, and thence, in conjunction with the said the Midland Railway, or by an independent line, to such point on the Georgian Bay as may be determined on by the board of directors as the terminus of the said line, is hereby extended to the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, and the said the Grand Junction Railway Co. is hereby authorized to build and construct their said railway from the village of Hastings to such point of junction and to the terminus of the said road on such line or by such route as they may deem expedient, and to acquire by purchase, or lease, or to use by agreement for running powers, or by way of traffic arrangement, any part of the track, line, buildings, or works of any existing railway which the company owning the same may by agreement, conveyance, or lease, sell, lease, transfer, or grant the use of, to the said the Grand Junction Railway Company; and every such company is hereby authorized and empowered to enter into and make any such conveyance, lease, or agreement to or with the said the Grand Junction Railway Company; provided always that the same shall be sanctioned, ratified and approved of by a majority in value of the stockholders of such company entitled, to vote at a meeting of stockholders specially called for that purpose, and thereupon any such conveyance, lease, or agreement shall be legal and valid, and on the completion of the said the Grand Junction Railway to the town of Peterborough on or before the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, by the use of any such existing railway for part of its line, any municipal bonus made payable on the completion to Peterborough shall become due and payable to the said the Grand Junction Railway Company in the same manner as if the said company had constructed their line to the said town within the time heretofore fixed for the completion thereof by any statute or by-law relating thereto."

So the present location, with all the money expended beyond Hastings, is to be abandoned, and the law is to be made so that Bickford & Co., may join the Cobourg and Peterborough, the Toronto and Ottawa or any other line, and lease a part of it, or make a traffic arrangement or get a running power for any period and on any terms he pleases, and on his doing so, the City bonus, notwithstanding the conditions in the By-law to the contrary, shall be payable. The lease or traffic arrangement may expire, and the Grand Junction be left just as far from Peterborough as Mr. Bickford pleases, or the Belleville bonus may go to assist in the construction of the Toronto and Ottawa line, if the arrangement should be made by that company and the money of the city be used for its construction.

The clause of course provides that the Grand Junction Railway Company must sanction this arrangement, but who is the Grand Junction Railway Company? Why, Bickford & Co. hold a large majority of the stock, and can and will sanction it of course.

A more audacious attempt to ——— (I scarcely know what name to give it) never was made, and it has passed the Railway Committee without notice by our city authorities.

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—A despatch from Mount Washington says the severest storm of the winter is raging. The wind is blowing 132 miles an hour.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Washington specials :

The Herald says the State Department authorized the statement that the French minister, under instructions, has communicated to Evarts that the French Government has no concern or participation in the movement of DeLesseps in regard to the Isthmus Canal, that project being an entirely private enterprise.

The Tribune says that yesterday the President signed the patent for a grant of land in California claimed by the New Idria Quicksilver Mining Company, thus ending, so far as the Executive is concerned, the famous McGarrahan case, which has occupied the attention of the public for a quarter of a century.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Marcus Sacia, the prime mover in the celebrated Lewis will conspiracy, was arrested in Jersey City last evening by the U. S. Deputy Marshal. Lewis left his estate of a million to the U. S. Government, and a woman claiming to be his wife appeared, demanding the property.

Miss Minerva Ellis, Brooklyn, a school teacher, became violently insane recently, caused by the loss of $2,000, her savings for ten years, which she had loaned to the husband of an old schoolmate on worthless security.

It is reported that several wealthy Californians are arranging to remove to New York, and that Flood, the bonanza king, is negotiating for a mansion in 5th Avenue.

Benj. E. Smith, of Buffalo, who is building a railroad across Jamaica Co., recently purchased for $200,000, 600 acres of land at Rockaway Beach that was in dispute. Four houses on the property, built by other claimants, were torn down yesterday before the occupants had risen. Proceedings civil and criminal, will be begun to-morrow, and a lively warfare between rival claimants, including Benj. F. Butler, is anticipated.

At midnight of to-day the new tariff, the Anglo American Cable Co.'s first aggressive step in the war as a new Co. goes into effect. To all points in Europe except Great Britain and Ireland, the rates will be reduced to 12½cts. a word, against 75c., the present charge.

THE CASH SYSTEM

IT IS A FACT which will appear clear to every one, that the man who has his means ready at his command can make a more profitable use of it than another who has the same amount locked up in book debts, or in other unproductive estate. And it is on this principle, which is universally admitted, that we have adopted and advocate the Cash System of doing business.

In regard to our own particular line of business, the Strictly Cash System has proved a decided benefit to ourselves as well as to our customers, indeed it is because it offers advantages to our customers that it benefits us. Its success is shown by the rapid increase of our business since adopting it, manifesting that the public are not slow to see its advantages.

The chief reason why the goods of many storekeepers are dear is generally because either they have not sufficient capital to buy well or their money is locked up in book debts, &c., that they cannot get at it to pay for their goods, and consequently have to take them on credit at almost whatever price the parties who supply them choose to charge.

Possessing ample means as we do, we arrange to pay prompt cash for all our purchases (a Rothschild could do no more.) We thus buy our goods at the lowest price they can be procured, and selling them again wholly for cash, we continually retain this position so favorable for buying cheap. And BUYING cheaply we can afford to SELL cheaply.

Again, in selling only for Cash, we avoid losses incurred by bad debts, we save the interest on outstanding accounts, and the extra expense in keeping books, &c. All of which enable us to reduce the prices still lower, and while we are thus selling much cheaper than others we are at the same time making a fair profit. Credit stores should be confined to credit customers, for why should they who pay promptly be made to pay more for their goods on account of others' failure to pay?

Five Sundays.—The month of February which opens to-morrow, will be remarkable as having five Sundays within its twenty-nine days.

Fire Alarm.—An alarm was sounded from the City Hall shortly before noon, for the purpose of calling out No. 1 steamer for a test since her refitting.

Fire.—The house and drive shed, the property of John Elmy, in the second concession of Tyendinaga was destroyed by fire last night. Loss about $2,000; partially insured.

Generous.—Rathbun & Son have generously donated 25 cords of wood to the Women's Christian Association of this city, who will make a disposition of it to deserving residents.

Neilson.—This great artist will make her first appearance in Belleville on Friday evening next, playing Rosalind in "As You Like It." This is one of her most famous assumptions, and beyond doubt the house will be crowded to witness it.

Corby v. Williams.—In the Court of Chancery, Toronto, on the 30th, before V. C. Blake. C. Moss for plaintiff. W. C. Cssels, E. G. Ponton (Belleville) for defendant. The hearing of this cause was concluded and, after hearing the argument of counsel, the learned Vice-Chancellor dismissed the plaintiff's bill with costs.

Athletic.—As will be seen by advertisement, all who intend to enter for the assault-at-arms, must make known their intentions at Messrs. Ross & Barnes' athletic studio by 10 o'clock to-night. As the programme is so lengthy, it is probable that but one pair will be allowed to wrestle, although there are several entries.

Opening of Parliament.—In order to accommodate those who wish to attend the opening of the Dominion Parliament, which is to take place on the 12th prox., the Grand Trunk Railway will issue return tickets at single fare, from all principal stations. The tickets will be good to go on the 10th and 11th and for return up to the 16th February.

Revival Services.—The revival services in Halloway St. Methodist Church, West Belleville, continue with increasing success. Rev. Dr. Jaques, of Albert college, will preach in the above church to-morrow at 11 o'clock, in connection with the quarterly services. The revival services in the Bridge St. Church have been largely attended this week and are increasing in interest. They will continue next week.

The California Minstrels.—This company, as will be seen by advertisement, will give a performance in the Opera House on Thursday next, Feb. 5th. The Hartford Courant says of them:—"The California Minstrels had a good audience last night at the Opera House, and they deserved it. In the number as well as the quality of the troupe they rank among the best companies travelling. Some of the features of the entertainment were considerably above the average in minstrel shows. The bass singer, Mr. Norcross, has a voice of rare power, which he uses well. Six "end men" furnish tambourine and bones accompaniments and the jokes. The well-known Cool Burgess is one of them."

If you are fatigued in mind and body, take Sanford's Jamaica Ginger.

Stormy.—The present winter, like the fall which preceeded it, will go on the record as remarkable for heavy wind storms and sudden changes in temperature. Last night a gale, accompanied by rain, blew furiously from about [illegible] till after midnight, when the wind veered to the west, with frost. Such sudden changes must have provided a harvest for medical men for several weeks past.

Address and Presentation.

The lecture room of Bridge St. Methodist Church was filled to repletion last evening by the many friends of Mr. W. Flint Jones, who assembled to listen to him for the last time and bid him farewell previous to his departure for Toronto.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. N. R. Willoughby, M. A., occupied the chair and called on Mr. Wm. Johnson, Superintendent of the Sabbath School, to state the object of the gathering.

Mr. Johnson expressed very feelingly the regret of the Church and Sabbath School at the departure of one who had so endeared himself to all, and whose labors in connection with the church had been so blessed to the good of many. He then read the following address:

To Mr. W. Flint Jones.

Your friends associated with you in connection with Bridge St. Methodist Church and Sabbath School have learned with unmingled regret of your contemplated removal from our city. The few kind words we can utter in our parting would but poorly convey an idea of our esteem and affection for you and our appreciation of your labors in connection with your church. When we recall the ready cheerfulness with which you have always assumed any duty however onerous imposed upon you and the marked manner in which your efforts have been honored by the Holy Spirit, we begin to appreciate the loss we are sustaining. We cannot but recognise the fact that your highest pleasure must ever arise from the knowledge that your Heavenly Master has blessed your labors in this place; yet we would assure you that the results of your labors will ever eloquently remind us of our absent friend.

We request Mrs. Jones, and your acceptance of the accompanying tea and coffee service as an evidence of our kindly feeling and to remind you that you have our hearty good wishes for the spiritual and temporal welfare of yourselves and children. We earnestly pray that in your new sphere you will be as devoted to Christ's cause as you were here; that through life you may blessedly realize the guiding hand of God, and when taken from the Master's work here receive from the hands of the Glorified Redeemer a crown of life that shall never fade.

And then presented Mrs. Jones with a magnificent Silver Tea and Coffee service. To this address Mr. Jones replied, referring to his connection with that Church and Sabbath School, in the latter he entered when a child of four years old, graduated afterwards into the intermediate classes, then the senior classes, then was appointed teacher, and he could not estimate what he owed to that School, he was the one ought to make a presentation to that Church and Sabbath School instead of them making one to him.

The large class of young ladies, numbering nearly a hundred, lately taught by Mr. Jones then came forward and Miss Mary Templeton read on behalf of the class the following address.

Mr. W. Flint Jones,

Dear Teacher.—We meet together as a class this evening to bid you farewell. It is impossible for us to properly express our feelings of sorrow and disappointment when the unexpected tidings of your intention to leave us were made known. We feel how much we owe to you for the kind interest you have taken in our spiritual welfare, and now we want to thank you for all you have said and done, while assuring you that our hearts are full of gratitude and love.

Most sincerely, Dear Teacher, do we regret the circumstances which have called you from our midst, and while submissive to the will of an overruling Providence, offer our prayers that your pathway through life may be mode joyous. Though often seemingly indifferent to your counsels, we trust the many earnest appeals you have made will result in the salvation of our souls.

As a slight token of our love and respect for you, we ask you to accept this Chain, which we trust will in future recall to your mind the happy hours spent with your old Bridge Street Church Bible Class, and if we are never to meet again in this life, may we on some bright day meet as an unbroken class in that blest land where all is comp sure and peace and where friends never part again.

Praying that God may abundantly bless you and your wife and bring us together in His Kingdom.

We remain your friends,

Here follow the names of over eighty young ladies.

After the reading of the address Mr Vermilyea present a beautiful gold watch chain to Mr. Jones.

In reply Mr. Jones referred to the many Sabbaths they had spent together, and especially to the large number who had been converted. He thanked them over and over again for all their kindness, and after some excellent advice, as he bid them good-bye he introduced to them their new teacher in the person of Mr. Luttrell.

Mr. Luttrell then addressed the class expressing his feelings in taking charge of it and by rising the class pledged themselves to stand by him and help him.

The pastor referred to the help Mr. Jones had been to him, and how he had cheered him and how great a blessing Mr. Jones had been to the church.

The very interesting proceedings were brought to a close by singing and prayer.

Mr. Jones we understand leaves for Toronto to-day. We but express the wish of all who know him when we wish for him continued success in Toronto or wherever else he may be.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Odessa, Jan. 31.—The persons charged with the robbery of 1,500,000 roubles from the Government Receiver's office, at Cherson, South Russia, in June have been sentenced by a court martial. Three of the prisoners were sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment at hard labor, and the woman who originated the scheme of the robbery was sentenced for life at hard labor. Two of the accused were acquitted. It is supposed the robbery was committed to aid the Nihilist cause.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The municipality programme for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Czar's accession to the throne, includes the presentation of an address to the Czar with an album containing sketches of events in St. Petersburg, an offer of a prize of 5,000 roubles for the best historical essay on St. Petersburg, the opening of 25 new schools, and the distribution to the public of an account of the principal events during the Czar's reign.

London, Jan. 31.—A Paris daspatch says M. Loyson, Pere Hyacinth, has asked the Prefect of the Department of the Seine to grant him the use of the Church of Assumption Rue St. Honore, at present occupied by the Polish confaternity. Loyson pleads that his present church is unsuitable, being too small and too high rental, so that his work addresses itself to persons requiring religion and free from superstition and fanaticism. The application will certainly be refused, as his community occupies the same position as protestant free churches, which provide their own edifices and pay their own pastors.

The King of the Belgians has conferred the Leopold cross on Madamoiselle Rosa Bonheur, the artist. The first lady who has received this distinction. The King of Spain also recently conferred on this distinguished painter an equally high order, which has never before been granted to a lady.

A rich land owner near Barcelona, his wife, three daughters, a son, and two women servants, have all been found murdered in their beds. The deed was apparently done with a hatchet. The house was ransacked. A swineherd and his two sons have been arrested.

A hundred-ton gun has been tried at Spezzia. It attained a range of 10,000 metres, with a charge of 220 kilogrammes.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 31.—The residence of ex senator McCreary was burned yesterday, with a valuable library. Loss $10,000.

Queenston, Jan. 31.—Arrived, the S. S. Adriatic.

New York, Jan. 31.—Some resident of Turin, Italy, has been sending thousands of letters to a resident of this city with postage unpaid. The letters are filled with nonsense in Italian and the matter has become such a nuisance that the Post Master is investigating it.

Wm. Astor is about to retire from the turf, his horses are to be sold.

New York, Jan. 31.—Arrived the Berganland from Antwerp, the Hindoo from Hull. The Empress of Russia leaves this afternoon for St. Petersburgh.

New York, Jan. 31.—The Republican State Committee this morning resolved to call a State Convention for Wednesday, the 25th of February next in Utica to elect delegates to the National Convention at Chicago.

The statement that Freund, editor of the Music Trade Review, had returned to the city, is declared untrue.

The hand of death seems to have been laid with crushing weight upon many of the female members of the royal families. The empress of Russia is dying, the queens of Italy and Sweden are alarmingly ill, and the queen of Spain, the bride of a few short days, has just escaped a bullet to be seized with epilepsy. The prospect is rendered all the more gloomy from the fact that each of the afflicted ladies has a staff of doctors.

The most careful education in the world can only direct for the time; it cannot change the under current by which we shape our course. We must all make or mar ourselves by that self education, that moral choice of good or evil, which is the real individuality of each. And as we choose so must we live, and abide by the results of what we do as well as of what we are. The fact of these fixed results cannot be too much impressed on the young.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

THE NEW CORSET

Meets with Universal Approval and Adoption.

PERFECT ADJUSTABLE FIT.

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING CORSET EVER DESIGNED.

This new and improved Corset is adjusted by a semi-circular or Elliptical Lacing over the hips, thus avoiding the disagreeable and sometimes painful side-stiffening which is found in the Corsets now in use. The facility with which it adjusts itself to forms of different development and size, and the great comfort and ease with which it may be worn, enables the figure to be displayed to much greater advantage, and cannot but prove a valuable acquisition to the most perfect toilet.

The improved system of lacing employed in the Semi-circular Adjustable Hip Corset, prevents the wear and tear to which other kinds are so liable; and as the wearing strains are equalized and distributed over the entire Corset, they will be found to outlast three of the ordinary style of Corsets in present use.

It is only necessary to bring this new and improved style of Corset under the observation of the ladies, to at once win their immediate endorsement and approval, as its many points of excellence cannot fail to arrest instant recognition and adoption. ASK TO SEE THEM

COUNTY COUNCIL.

FOURTH DAY.

FRIDAY, Jan. 30.

Council met at 9 a. m.

The minutes of yesterday's sitting were read and approved.

The report of the Gravel Roads Committee was read as follows:

1st. That since the last session we find that there had been expended by the Superintendent of Gravel Roads under the late Chairman Harford Ashley, Esq., $189 06.

2nd. That they recommend the sum of $25 92 be paid by the Superintendent of the Gravel Roads to Robert Burnside for work done on the road leading from Madoc to Hazzards' Corners in 1879.

3rd. That the report of the Gravel Road Superintendent herewith annexed be adopted.

4th. That there be delivered and broken on the following line of roads in addition to the quantities of gravel mentioned in the report of said Superintendent the following quantities of gravel;

400 yds. on the Jamieson road.
100 " from Madoc to Hazzard's Corners.
50 " " Frankford to Belleville.
200 " " Marysville to Mill Point.
150 " " Tweed to Bridgewater.
400 " " Hayden's Corners to Cole's Cor's
200 " " Lancaster's to Gardner's in Ma'c
200 " " High bridge to Sidney T'n Hall.
300 " " Stirling to Fanning's Corners.
400 " " Thomasburg to Wallbridge mills
100 " " Millbridge to Murphy's Corners.

5th. That the sum of three thousand dollars be appropriated to meet said expenditure between now and the next session of the Council.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed, THOS. EMO, Chairman:

To the Warden and Chairman of the Gravel Road Committee.

The following contracts have been made by me to bank gravel on the different sections of the gravel roads, viz., The Marmora section, W. Ovens, to bank 275 yds, one half to be banked south of McKinney's tavern and the other half north of the tavern.

J. Sullivan is to bank 50 yds. at or near the Town Hall. Mr. Ovens reports to me on the 12th of this month that he had banked 80 yds., on which I advanced him $10. James McComb is to bank 200 yds. from what is called the flat rock to Morton's. I was informed that his contract was filled. It should be supplemented with 100 yds. more placed south of the flat rock. J. Morton and Wm. Cook are to bank 150 yds. each, one half to be placed near the brick church and the other half near Squire's Creek.

STIRLING SECTION.

Sines is to bank 300 yards of gravel and deposit the same at different places on the Stirling road.

HUNGERFORD SECTION.

James Pitman is to bank 200 yards of gravel north of W. Ketcheson's. I have hauled and spread in the centre grade of this section 190 yards of gravel at a cost of less than 50c per yard.

On the Canifton side road to Ross' Corners, I have banked 86 yards of gravel. On the Frankford and Belleville section George Williams has reported to me that he has 63 yards banked.

I advanced him $12. The gravel was banked in Zucker's swamp. J. Drewry is to bank 150 yards in Roblin's flat,

On the side road from Shannonville to Roslin A. Halstead is to bank 300 yards so it can be utilized between Morton's Corners and Harrison's Corner; and 100 yards between the 4th and 5th Con.; and 100 yards between the 5th and 6th Con.

MADOC SECTION.

J. Erwin is to bank 100 yards near Wallbridge's Mills and 100 yards north of Marsh Hill Creek. From Queensboro to Hazzard's Corners Robt. Burnside is to bank 200 yards of gravel. J. McKeown is to bank 200 yards between the town line and the Jordan, and 50 yards south of the town line of Madoc.

T. FARNHAM,
Co. Gravel Roads Supt.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Appleby said the Treasurer wished the Warden to be associated with him in providing work for prisoners in the yard, as he proposed that tramps lodged in gaol should be obliged to work.

The Warden said he would not like to act without a resolution.

Mr. Pearce introduced a By-law to borrow $20,000 on the credit of the County to pay for stock in the Grand Junction Railway.

Mr. Murphy introduced a By-law for the assumption of Sherry's bridge, in Hungerford, as a County bridge.

On motion of Mr. Aylsworth, seconded by Mr. Pearce, the Warden was authorized to give notice of the sale of minerals under the County roads in Madoc, and that a By-law be prepared for consideration at the next session.

On motion of Dr. Faulkner, the County Solicitor was directed to notify the Grand Junction Railway Company to make safe their crossings at Stirling.

On motion of Mr. Kavanagh, the Treasurer was authorized to accept a School debenture of Dungannon and Faraday for $700.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, the Warden was associated with the Treasurer for the purpose of having the prisoners in the gaol employed.

Mr. Wilmot, seconded by Mr. Pearce, moved the appointment of the Warden, Mr. Walker and the mover to proceed to Toronto and forward the petition of the Dairyman's Association for a grant from the Ontario Government.

The Warden explained that owing to lack of means for procuring necessary statistics, the dairymen were unable to learn what was the fact, that the make of cheese last season was insufficient to supply the demand, consequently most of the factories sold at less than half the present price. In order to prevent such mistakes in the future by collecting statistics and to improve the method of manufacture by employing a competent instructor, they proposed to ask the Government for a further grant.

The motion was carried.

BY-LAWS.

Committee on By laws resumed. Mr. Wilmot in the chair.

It was resolved not to consider the By-law regarding mining under the County roads at this session.

The By-law regarding Grand Junction funds, was read a second time, and the third reading fixed for the 9th of June.

The By-law for the assumption of Sherry's bridge was brought up.

Mr. Murphy explained that the bridge is a long one, and Hungerford has so many bridges that the expense of maintaining them is very heavy.

Mr. Gordon (Hungerford) said Hungerford has more bridges to maintain than all the front townships together. The bridge in question is in good condition, and would only need covering.

Mr. Vandervoort (Rawdon) moved, seconded by Mr. Anderson, to lay the matter over till the June session.

Mr. Beasco could see no object in laying the matter over, as they could not have more [illegible] then than now.

Dr. Faulkner would support the amendment, considering that the motion was equivalent to a money grant.

Mr. Gordon (Hungerford) said no County money would be expended on the bridge until after June

Mr. Robinson said the bridge was a heavy one, and he thought Hungerford had so many bridges that this one might be assumed, provided that too many of the others had not been assumed.

The Warden wished the By-law laid over till June.

After further conversation, the By-law was read a second time.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Timber Cutting!

There are thousands of our citizens whose living depends upon timber cutting. A large amount of capital is invested in this industry But per se, timber cutting is a sad sight. Look at the thick forest of tall trees with their interlacing limbs and branches, so fantastic and graceful. As the axe falls upon the stout body of the tree there seems to come from it the groan of a death struggle, as if to say: "I've stood here monarch of all I survey for scores of years, keeping back the rude winds in Winter from your dwellings, and drawing the cool breezes to my shade in the Summer, and yet you cut me down for the paltry dollar I will bring. For shame woodcutter" But such is life of man and tree; all must at last give way to the inevitable. Death comes to all. The woodchopper must yield at last to death. But diseases may be retarded and often removed by DR HERRICKS SUGAR COATED PILLS. Many who would suffer for years have been relieved as if by magic by them. Their popularity is the outcome of years of use. For diarrhea, dyspepsia, disordered bowels and kindred diseases they have no equal.

LOWELL, Mass., 15 1876.

MESSRS. WM. M. GILES & CO.—Gentlemen: I have been suffering for ten years with sciatic rheumatism, and the different kinds of Liniment I have used during that time may be estimated by gallons. About two weeks ago I obtained a bottle of your Liniment Iodide Ammonia of your agents, F & E. Bailey & Co.; it gave me almost instantaneous relief from pain, and since that time I have been steadily improving. It has done me more good than any medicine that I have before used. I have been obliged to carry a cane until within two weeks, since which time I have not found it necessary. I also wish to state that this testimonial is not solicited, but I give it in the hope that others may be benefitted as I have been. (Signed) MRS. N. PUVEY.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Aneamia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth St., NEW YORK, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879. Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878,
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermitten Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.
